Exposure to humans during the late spring to mid-summer can be reduced by wearing clothing that will protect the skin from contact by the tick. An example of wearing long sleeved shirts and pants that have been secured at the bottom in place of shorts when walking in brush or wooded areas. Wear light colored nylon clothing. This makes it easier to see ticks and they may not be able to grab onto the tight weave of slippery materials such as nylon. People that are in the underbrush or forests should check themselves often for ticks. Frequent baths and washing of clothing are also helpful in reducing the possibility of being bitten. Remember to check your pets and children for ticks when they spend lots of time outdoors. Lyme disease can also develop in domestic animals, especially hunting dogs. Cattle and horses also are affected. Prompt diagnosis and antibiotic treatment can rapidly alleviate the signs and pain of Lyme diease in animals.

If you discover a tick attached to your skin, remove it immediately, before it has time to transfer any bacteria into you. Don't try to detach it with your bare fingers; bacteria from a crushed tick may be able to penetrate even unbroken skin. Instead, use a pair of fine-tipped tweezers. In fact, if you spend much time hiking or gardening in overgrown areas, a pair of "tick tweezers" (available at many sporting goods stores) should be part of your first aid kit. To remove a tick, grip it as close to your skin as possible and gently pull it straight away from you until it releases its hold. Don't twist it as you pull, and don't squeeze its bloated body – that may actually inject bacteria into your skin. Thoroughly wash your hands and the bite area and apply antispetic. If you must touch the tick, cover your fingers with tissue, then wash your hands thoroughly. thoroughly.

Lyme disease is hard to diagnose because its symptoms can vary person to person. Also, fewer than one half of people with the illness remember a tick bite. The most obvious early symptom of Lyme disease is a red skin rash which occurs within the first 30 days of the bite. Diagnosing the disease then is important, because early treatment with antibiotics dramatically reduces the effect of the disease. The rash usually breaks out near the bite site within a week or two and develops into a reddish oval two or three inches across. Without treatment, it soon fades. The rash may have a firm center, feel warm to the touch and disappear briefly, only to reappear elsewhere on the body. Even larger rashes can be missed, though, because they are sometimes very faint. They may occur on the back, thigh, groin or armpits.

Flu-like symptoms will usually follow. Or they may be the first indication without the rash. Within a month or two, an untreated patient may experience heart palpitations, lightheadedness or shortness of breath. Paralysis, often of the muscles on one side of the face, may follow. Eventually the victim may suffer a chronic deterioration of the joints, particularly knees, with erosion of cartilage and bone.

If you find a live tick, put it in a small container or jar labeled with the date, the body location of the bite, and where you think the tick came from. Put a small piece of wet paper or cotton in with the live tick. The health department will have the tick identified and tested for lyme disease. Dead ticks should be placed in alcohol and can be sent for identification. Testing for lyme disease in dead ticks is not done.

General questions about Lyme disease may be directed to any local health department office. Charlevoix's health department phone number is 547-6523.

JUL 1989

Official Notice

ORDINANCE NO. 515

An Ordinance to amend the Code of the City of Charlevoix by adding a new Chapter, which new Chapter shall be designated as Chapter 40, Title IV, STREETS AND SIDEWALKS.

The City of Charlevoix Ordains:

That Chapter 76, Title VII BUSINESS AND TRADES created by Ordinance No. 511 and Ordinance No. 514 shall be deleted in its entirety and shall be designated. Chapter 40, Title IV, STREETS AND SIDEWALKS.

Section 4.1: FINDINGS AND PURPOSES:

It is found and declared that:

A. The primary purpose of the public streets and sidewalks is for use by vehicular and pedestrian traffic.

B. Reasonable regulation of streets and sidewalks is necessary to protect the public health, safety and welfare.

C. The uncontrolled placement of tables and chairs, merchandise and goods, newsracks, planters and other articles and objects present an inconvenience and danger to the safety and welfare of persons using such rights of way, including pedestrians, persons entering and leaving vehicles and buildings, and persons performing essential utility, and traffic control.

D. Tables and chairs, goods and merchandise, newsracks, planters and other articles and objects so located as to cause an inconvenience or danger to persons using public rights-of-way constitute public nuisances per se.

E. The provisions and prohibitions hereinafter contained are enacted in pursuance of and for the purpose of securing and promoting the public health, safety, and welfare.

Section 4.2 DEFINITIONS:

For the purposes of this Ordinance the following words and phrases shall be defined to include:

A. "Articles and Objects" - shall mean any thing or obstruction placed over or upon a street or sidewalk.

B. "Goods and Merchandise" - shall mean any items offered for sale to the general public.

C. "Newsracks" - shall mean any self-service or coin-operated box, container, storage unit, or other dispenser installed, used, or maintained for the display and sale of newspapers or other news periodicals.

D. "Sidewalk" - shall mean any surface provided for the use of pedestrians.

E. "Street" - shall mean all that area dedicated to the public use for public street purposes and shall include, but not be limited to, roadways, state trunk lines, and alleys.

F. "Table and Chairs" - shall mean facilities provided to customers for food or beverages upon a public sidewalk.

G. "Planters" - shall mean any device used or intended to be used for display of non-artificial flowers.

Section 4.3 LICENSE REQUIRED.

It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to erect, place, maintain, or operate, on any public street or sidewalk or in any other public way or place, within the Charlevoix City Limits except on the street or sidewalk within the Bridge Street right-of-way (U.S. 31) between the highway bridge on the North and Hurlbut Street on the South, any article, object, or any other obstruction except under the conditions and in the manner presented in this Chapter. Provided, however, the Charlevoix City Manager may grant, pursuant to the terms of this Ordinance, licenses for the erection, placement, maintenance or operation of newsracks, tables, chairs, and planters on sidewalks within the Bridge Street right-of-way (U.S.31) between the highway bridge on the North and Hurlbut Street on the South.

Section 4.4 APPLICATION FOR PERMIT.

Applications for such permit shall be made in writing to the Charlevoix City Manager upon such form as shall be provided by the City and shall contain: the name and address of the applicant; the proposed specific location of the tables and chairs, newsracks or planters; and shall be signed by the applicant.

Section 4.5. CONDITIONS FOR LICENSE.

A. As an express condition of the acceptance of such license, the licensee thereby agrees to indemnify and save harmless the City, its officers, directors, and employees against any loss or liability or damage, including expenses and costs for bodily or personal injury, and for property damage sustained by any person as a result of the installation, use, or maintenance of tables and chairs, newsracks, planters, or goods and merchandise within the City of Charlevoix.

B. Licenses shall be issued for the installation of newsracks, planters, tables and chairs with prior inspection of the location but such newsracks, planters, tables and chairs, and the installation, use, or maintenance thereof shall be conditioned upon observance of the provisions of this Ordinance an upon such reasonable rules and regulations as may be established by the Charlevoix City Council from time to time by Resolution. License shall be issued within two (2) working days after the application has been filed. An annual license fee of twenty-five ($25.00) is required.

C. Such license shall be valid for one (1) year and shall be renewable pursuant to the procedure for the original applications referred to in Section 4.4 and upon payment of the license fee.

D. No license shall be issued to an applicant, or any license may be revoked in the event the applicant or licensee is in violation of any of the provisions of the Charlevoix City Code.

Section 4.6. STANDARDS FOR MAINTENANCE AND INSTALLATION.

Any tables, chairs, planters or newsracks, which in whole or in part rest upon, in, or over any public sidewalk shall comply with the following standards:

A. Shall be maintained in a neat and clean condition and in good repair at all times. Specifically, but without limiting the generality of the foregoing, all tables, chairs, planters and newsracks shall be serviced and maintained so that:

1. They are reasonably free of dirt and grease.
2. They are reasonably free of chipped, faded, peeling and cracked paint in the visual painted areas thereof. The structural parts thereof are not broken or unduly misshapen.

Section 4.7. LOCATION & PLACEMENT OF NEWSRACKS, PLANTERS, TABLES AND CHAIRS.

Any newsracks, planters, tables and chairs which rest on whole or in part upon, or in, or on any portion of a public sidewalk or right-of-way or which projects onto, into, or over any part of a public sidewalk or right-of-way shall be located in accordance with the provisions of this section:

A. No tables, chairs, planters, or newsracks shall be used or maintained which projects onto, into, or over any part of the roadway or public street, or which rests wholly or in part upon, along, or over any portion of the roadway or any public street.

B. No tables, chairs, planters, or newsracks shall be permitted to rest upon, in or over any public sidewalk, when such installation use, or maintenance endangers the safety of persons or property, or when such site or location is used for public utility purposes, public transportation purposes or other governmental use, or when such use unreasonably interferes with or impedes the flow of pedestrian or vehicular traffic including any legally marked or stopped vehicle, the ingress into or the egress from any residence or place of business, or the use of poles, posts, traffic signs, or signals, hydrants, mailboxes, or other objects permitted at or near said location.

C. No tables, chairs, planters, or newsracks shall be chained, bolted, or otherwise attached to any fixture located in the public right-of-way, except to another newsrack, planter, table or chair.

D. No tables, chairs, planters or newsracks shall be placed, installed, used or maintained:

1. Within three (3) feet of any crosswalk.
2. Within ten (10) feet of the back of the street curb.
3. Within five (5) feet of any driveway.
4. At any location whereby the clear space for the passage way of pedestrians is reduced to less than six (6) feet.

E. The Charlevoix City Manager may establish by regulation the number and location of areas within the City of Charlevoix to be used for placement of newsracks.

Section 4.8. EXCEPTION FOR SPECIAL EVENTS.

A. Notwithstanding anything herein contained to the contrary, the Charlevoix City Manager may allow the placement of goods and merchandise for retail sales each year for what is commonly referred to as Sidewalk Days.

B. Notwithstanding anything contained herein to the contrary, the City Manager may allow the placement of goods for retail sales on a public sidewalk or public street by a non-profit organization recognized by the Internal Revenue Service as a charitable organization. The organization shall obtain a permit from the City Manager which shall specify the locations (s) and time period covered by the permit. The permit shall be issued without charge and may not exceed seventy-two (72) hours. The City Manager may deny the permit, if there is a reason to believe that the activity to be covered by the permit, its requested locations (s) or time interval would interfere with the rights of others to use the public sidewalk or street, interfere with the ability of City employees to carry out their jobs or the right of the public to unobstructed travel along a public street or public sidewalk.

Section 4.9. VIOLATIONS OF ORDINANCE.

Upon determination by the Charlevoix City Manager that a newsrack, planter, table or chair, goods or merchandise, or other article or object has been installed, used, or maintained in violation of the provisions of this Ordinance, an Order to correct the offending condition will be issued to the owner or operator of said newsrack, planter, table or chair, goods or merchandise, or other article or object. Such Order shall be telephoned to said owner or operator and confirmed by mailing a copy of the Order of Certified Mail, return receipt requested. The Order shall specifically describe the offending condition and request the action necessary to correct the condition. Failure to properly correct the offending condition within one (1) day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays) after the mailing date of the Order shall result in the offending condition being removed and processed as unclaimed property. If the offending condition is not properly identified by the owner or operator of the business premises located immediately adjacent to such section of the public street or sidewalk, said offending condition shall be removed immediately and processed as unclaimed property. The City Manager shall cause inspection to be made of the corrected condition or of any condition after removal under this Section.

Section 4.10. REVOCATION.

In addition to the enforcement procedures provided in Section 7.9 of this Ordinance it shall be within the power and discretion of the Charlevoix City Manager to suspend or revoke the license of continued or repeated violations or infractions of any provisions of this Ordinance or any rule or regulation of the City of Charlevoix. Suspension or Revocation shall be mandatory for the third (3) offense under Section 7.9 of this Ordinance.

Section 4.11. CITY MANAGER'S DESIGNATED REPRESENTATIVE.

"City Manager" as used in this Ordinance shall include his or her designated representative.

Secton 4.12. SEPARABILITY.

If any section, sub-section, sentence, clause or phrase of this Ordinance for any reason is held to be invalid or unconstitutional by the decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this Ordinance.

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX FURTHER ORDAINS:

That Title IV, STREETS AND SIDEWALKS, Chapter 41 Streets be re-numbered as follows:

... pier still lacking catwalk

the debate, fishermen and city officials contacted Congressman Robert Davis.

In late October, Davis announced that the Water Resources Development Act, then waiting to be signed by the president, required the Corps to pay to retain fishing on Charlevoix's south pier.

But while pier reconstruction work has progressed rapidly, conversations this past week with construction people and members of Davis' staff indicate little has been done about adding a catwalk.

"We haven't heard a thing about it," replied Luedtke Engineering Co. project manager, John Keillor when asked about the catwalk. Luedtke Engineering Co., based in Frankfort, is the company doing the reconstruction work.

Corps construction representative Jim Schultz, the onsite project supervisor, held up his hand with the tip of his thumb and forefinger together indicating a big zero when asked what he'd heard regarding the addition of a catwalk.

Dave Foster, chief of construction at the Corps Grand Haven office, said Monday afternoon that there currently is no date set to begin working on a catwalk and the Corps hasn't started working on a catwalk design.

"Apparently there is some kind of misunderstanding with the money," he said.

Charlevoix city manager Mike Wiesner said the city's been in touch with Davis' office and have been told the catwalk won't be added this year.

Don Wickersham, Davis' project manager, said the Corps has said there isn't enough time to build the catwalk this summer, but that it will be built next year.

Mark Ruge, Davis' chief of staff, said that Davis and Col. John Glass from the Corps' Detroit office have discussed the pier and catwalk. Ruge said the Charlevoix pier and the Alanson locks are two subjects Davis and Glass frequently discuss.

Ruge said the catwalk is included in the Energy and Water Resources Act of 1989. "It basically said to the Corps, 'Find the money in your budget for this.'...It's not something that they can say no to," Ruge explained.

All parties involved in the issue agree that catwalk construction would have cost less if it would have been included right from the start of the project.

"It would take a lot more to do it now than it would have had it been part of the project from the beginning," Keillor noted.

However, Foster said he didn't think the cost difference would be major. He estimated 10 percent.

Keillor noted that even without the catwalk, fishermen will be able to fish from the sheet piling area at the end of the pier. That area is approximately 100 feet long by 24 feet wide.

Schultz noted that the rock rubble area should be beneficial to bass and perch fishing.

Aside from the catwalk issue, reconstruction work has gone extremely well.

Schultz said workers are ahead of schedule and the project is 80 percent completed. He estimated reconstruction will be completed in mid August or early September.

Currently, the rubble mound is being installed. Later a cement walkway with rails will be constructed. The walkway will be similar to the one on the north pier although there will not be curbs.

Earlier this summer, the old light house was moved up on shore to keep it from being damaged during construction.

Schultz said he anticipates having the light house back out at the end of the pier sometime within the next two weeks.

INSTRUCTION TO BIDDERS

A. SUBMISSION OF PROPOSALS

Sealed proposals will be received by the city manager at his office until 10:00 a.m. July 28, 1989, located in the city building at 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan.

Proposals shall be based on performing the work in strict conformity with the working drawings and project manual prepared by the architect and shall be delivered on or before 10:00 a.m. July 28, 1989 to the city manager's office.

Proposals must be on forms furnished by the architect and accompanied by a bid bond or certified check in the amount of five percent (5%) of the proposal submitted.

B. PREPARATION OF PROPOSALS

Proposals shall be submitted in duplicate (one copy to developer, one copy to architect) on forms provided by the architect. Proposals shall not contain any recapitulation of the work to be done. Oral, telephone or telegraphed proposals or modifications will not be considered.

Proposals shall be filled in completely, including alternate proposals and all amounts must be in words as well as figures as called for in the proposal. Proposals which are not filled in completely will be rejected.

Proposals which contain qualifications and/or modifications to the base proposal will be rejected.

Signatures must be in long hand and executed by the principal duly authorized to make contracts. The bidder's legal name must be fully stated. The completed form shall be without interlineation, alteration, or erasure.

Each proposal shall be sealed in an opaque envelope and marked with the name of the building project, and name of the bidder.

The proposals will be opened publicly and read aloud.

The City reserves the right to reject any and all bids, whole or in part and waive any informalities therein.

Since this project is civic in nature and that many local contributions have already been given by local citizens, it is encouraged that local sub contractors and suppliers will also make monetary contributions when and if they are selected by the successful general contractor.

C. ACCESS TO DOCUMENTS

Copies of the contract documents will be on file at the office of the architect and the office of the city manager.

D. CONTRACT SECURITY

The bidder shall certify that he qualifies for performance, labor and materials bonds in amount of 100% of the contract, and that these bonds will be executed at the option and instruction of the city.

School board cools to pool

During Monday evening's board meeting, school board members distanced themselves from efforts to build an indoor community swimming pool.

Pool activist Bruce MacArthur represented the Pool Steering Committee which asked the school board to apply for a $750,000 State of Michigan Recreational Bond Fund grant.

If Charlevoix received the full $750,000, which is the maximum amount which can be applied for in the program, a local match of $350,000 would be required. Half of that could be in-kind contributions (labor etc.) while the other half ($175,000) would have to be in cash.

MacArthur said the pool committee feels the $350,000 can be financed without a millage increase and that an endowment fund can cover pool operating expenses which the pool committee estimates to be $50,000 per year.

The deadline for grant applications was recently moved up by the state and is now set at Aug. 4. If the school is going to be the governmental body applying for the grant and meet that deadline, they would have

Organizers finalizing Venetian plans

While plans are pretty much finalized for the Venetian Festival, there are still a couple of needs to be addressed. More local business floats are needed for the street parade and more lighted boats are needed for the boat parade.

Street parade organizers say there are several floats from out of town entered, but more local floats are needed to give the parade a local flavor. The theme of the parade is "Hooray for Hollywood." There is no entry fee. To enter, contact the Chamber of Commerce at 547-2101.

Deer won't lettuce garden in peace

by WENDI WRIGHT

Residents of Dixon Avenue, on Charlevoix's north side, have had some trouble with theft recently. The victims have a good idea of the thieves' identity and would have no trouble picking the perpetrators out of a line-up.

The police, however, have been slow to move, even as the evidence mounts.

Missing are some valuable items: swiss chard, beet greens, tulips, geraniums, green bean plants, raspberries, strawberries, and an occasional potato leaf.

The suspects are approximately six feet tall, light in coloring, with an excessive amount of body hair. They are, of course, deer. Evidently life in the forest isn't good enough anymore; now they (literally) want a taste of city life.

"They just came right in and helped themselves to the tulips this spring," reports Ann Hanna, one beleaguered Dixon Avenue resident. In recent weeks Hanna has lost both her green bean plants and swiss chard to the jaws of the silent marauders.

"Last year we had rabbits," she said wistfully, as though those had been "the good old days."

Like Hanna, Sally Ochs will be eating fewer green beans this year. "I thought I was safe, because my garden is fenced in," she said. "But they just jump over the fence and eat."

Ochs also reports that her neighbor, Alice Irving, has had

Watch for state tax increases

A recent court ruling concerning the Headlee Amendment and recent legislation concerning bottle and can deposits may both affect state taxes in the future.

In a July 5 decision, the Michigan Court of Appeals upheld an Oakland County claim that the State is not adhering to provisions of the Headlee Tax Limitation Amendment.

If that ruling stands, it could force the state to pay local units of government, including schools, hundreds of millions of dollars.

If that happens, chances are the state will be seeking some type of tax increase. In a way that would be an ironic twist of fate. For the past several years, school districts have often claimed inadequate state funding forces them to seek tax increases.

Recent state legislation to capture deposit money from unreturned bottles and cans is an indirect state tax increase.

The money involved is money which is deposited for bottles and cans, but is never claimed because the bottles aren't returned. This money, in total, is not small change. Estimates range between $10 million and $40 million per year.

Currently the money is in the hands of bottlers and beverage people, who claim it helps defray their costs. But the current legislation, which was spearheaded by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC) will turn a portion of the money over to the state to fund recreational projects.

Of course the bottlers and beverage businesses won't eat this cost. They'll pass it on to the customer.

The bottom line is that Lansing will receive more money which consumers will ultimately be paying. That's a tax increase.

When you pay more money for your pop or beer in the next few weeks, you should realize that Lansing legislators and the MUCC have just effectively stuck you with a new pop and beer tax.

Charlevoix Historical Society Annual Attic Auction at 12299 Waller Rd, 6 p.m.

Geoff Reynolds (left) and John Gaskin show some of the many items that will be auctioned off Thursday evening, July 27, to benefit the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Historical Society to host auction

by PEG OHLE

"What am I bid...."

For a dinner for two at this fine Charlevoix restaurant? For this brand new 10-speed Huffy bicycle? For a round trip to the Emerald Isle on the Beaver Island ferry? For this Gordon Neff seagull carving on a natural wood piling? For 10 pounds of freshly-caught whitefish? For this cast Iron fireplace basket? For this brand new Litter Critter? For this pet dog that doesn't have to be fed or walked?

The auctioneer will be offering these and many, many more items of similar value at the Third Annual Auction sponsored by the Charlevoix Historical Society Thursday evening, July 27, at the Reynolds residence, 12299 Waller Road.

The auction will begin at 6 p.m., but no one needs to miss dinner that evening because local deli man and caterer Dave Phillips will be on hand with a variety of refreshments. "Come early, look around, and enjoy the evening," is the invitation of Historical Museum Director Geoff Reynolds, at whose parents' home the auction will take place. Those who do not like to stand for long periods of time are advised to bring a folding chair or stool.

The Charlevoix Historical Society is dedicated to the preservation of Information about and artifacts from Charlevoix and the surrounding area. The Harsha House Museum, next to the First State Bank on State Street, is open now through the end of August on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday afternoons from 1 to 4 p.m. Members of the Society are on hand to greet visitors and answer questions about the exhibits or other questions about Charlevoix history.

This summer, the Historical Society also hired its first full-time Museum Director. Geoff Reynolds, who began attending society meetings in his pre-teen years and now a senior at Central Michigan University, has been busy cataloging museum possessions and arranging special exhibits. At the present time, there is an exhibit honoring veterans of the Civil War up through the Viet Nam conflict. There is also an exhibit of farm tools and machinery to commemorate the centennial anniversary of the Barnard Grange.

Items for the auction are still being accepted. Call 547-0373, 547-4640, or 547-5518 for pickup or drop off information.

School board discusses another millage request

School board members spoke favorably of again asking voters for an operational millage increase to fund transportation Improvements and then referred the matter to the board's transportation committee. The discussion occurred at Monday evening's board meeting.

At the June 12 school election, voters rejected a request for nine-tenths of a mill for two years by 122 votes, 588 to 466. The money would have funded construction of a new bus garage and the purchase of six new buses, two pickups and a minivan.

Superintendent Gordon VanWieren brought up the matter of millage for the board's consideration Monday evening.

Board member Scott Beatty said he favors bringing some type of a transportation millage issue back before the voters. He said that perhaps the portion of the millage which would build a new bus garage could be eliminated.

Beatty noted the importance of safely transporting students, that buses are not going to be getting any cheaper, that the school has an aging bus fleet and that the school will have to dip into fund equity money just to cover other operational costs in the current fiscal year.

"There's no point in delaying the inevitable," he said of making another millage request.

In another issue on the June 12 ballot, the school asked for one mill to balance the school's operational budget. That proposal failed by 257 votes, 669 to 412.

Board member Larry Levengood noted that the decision to place the one mill budget balancing proposal came after the decision the place the nine-tenth mill proposal on the ballot. He said that before the one mill proposal came up, the board felt optimistic about the nine-tenth mill proposal.

Levengood noted that the transportation committee previously considered school transportation needs and recommended .47 mill increase that didn't include a new bus garage or replacing the Rayder bus.

Board member Ardith Wieland asked what the time frame would be for having another election.

VanWieren said that after the transportation committee met and formulated a suggestion, the board would probably call a special meeting. He said that it normally takes about 50 days to set up an election following the official decision to have one.

The board referred the matter to the transportation committee.

At the conclusion of millage discussions, VanWieren suggested to the board that now would be a good time to begin considering long range plans for the school concerning educational programs, staffing and financing. He suggested that board committees, community members and school employees be involved in that process.

Scandal on the vine

Early one spring, a vagabond passed through town. Although this vagabond had, some years earlier, gained a certain measure of acclaim for trading some bean seeds for a cow, nobody in this town recognized him or knew his name.

The vagabond passed through town on a Sunday and stopped long enough to attend services at a local church. When the offering plate was passed, the vagabond, who had no money, tossed in an envelope containing several little pills. On the outside of the envelope, he had written, "For pumpkins."

When the minister found the pills in the offering plate, he wasn't sure what to do with them. He ended up giving them to one of the church's ladies who had a garden and grew flowers and other things.

Although the lady wasn't much into growing pumpkins herself, she knew another lady whose grandson was trying desparately to grow giant pumpkins. The lady forwarded the envelope of pills to the grandmother, who in turn conveyed them to the grandson.

The grandson put the pills in the ground around the base of the pumpkin plants.

And the pumpkins began to grow. First, vines shot out and took over the potato patch. Then came blossoms so big that bees came from miles around to pollinate them.

Pumpkins formed. They were the size of baseballs, then volleyballs, then basketballs, beachballs and finally the pumpkins grew so big that just one would bill the bed of a pickup truck.

Now, coincidentally, in that same year, the governing board of the Olympics declared gardening an Olympic event. Suddenly gardening, which had for so long been confined to the county fair, had hit the big time.

So this young man from the little town put the giantest of his giant pumpkins in the back of his truck and hauled it off to enter it in the Olympics.

At the Olympics there were a multitude of pumpkins: there were Japanese pumpkins, grown in a factory by robots; Russian pumpkins which were red instead of orange; and Cuban pumpkins which were also red because they'd been grown by Cubans trained by Russian gardeners.

Some of these foreign pumpkins were indeed fine pumpkins, but when the young American unloaded the monster pumpkin from the back of his pickup truck, all of the other pumpkins paled in comparison. The pumpkin judges scored the pumpkin a perfect ten and awarded the young man a gold medal, the first gold medal ever given in the Olympic gardening, pumpkin division.

When word of the triumph reached the young man's hometown, there was much rejoicing and people began planning for grand celebration. There was to be a parade, speeches, singing, dancing, flag waving ... the Lions Club was even going to barbecue chicken. Oh, such merriment.

Then disaster struck. Lab tests revealed traces of pumpkin steroids in the gold medal winning giant pumpkin.

The gold medal was taken away. The giant pumpkin record was stricken from the books. The hometown celebration was cancelled. There would be no chicken barbecued this day.

A panel of inquiry was formed to get to the roots of this gardening scandal. The dethroned pumpkin grower was called to testify.

In the courtroom, the chairman of the panel looked down upon the young man and said sternly, "Sir, you've disgraced yourself, your hometown, your country and your garden. Do you have anything to say in your defense?"

"Well, I guess I should say I'm sorry," the young man said softly. "But I didn't know those pills were pumpkin steroids."

"You didn't know? Pills you say? And just where did you get these pills?" the panel chairman asked.

"A lady at church gave them to my grandmother to give to me," he answered.

The panel members and every member of the audience, save one, jeered in disbelief of the story.

But one old vagabond sat in the back of the room muttering, "Fe fi fo fum. He grew a great pumpkin, but now he's a bum."

Letters to the Editor:

Police officer praised

Dear Paul Ivan,

A spinning car, a clamorous crash, shattered glass, a crushed car, a state of semi-shock... that's how I found myself after the accident. As I shakily staggered out, there you were, running toward the scene, and I found myself faced with a complete professional, a pillar of support, a skilled and knowledgable policeman, and a distinguished gentleman who has my utmost gratitude.

Thank you.

Council raises blood pressure

The Surgeon General should tack a notice on the door of Charlevoix City Hall.

"If you have high blood pressure (HBP), attending city council meetings may be injurious to your health."

Occasionally I am required to attend council meetings as a news reporter. When I don't have to attend, I stay home because I have HBP and my frustration level is pretty low.

I'm glad I missed Monday's meeting, the one at which Councilman Norm Probert suggested that the city should do something to regulate such downtown denizens as Crazy Richard, the fellow who twirled flaming batons in East Park Friday night.

Judy and I were walking downtown for dinner and stopped to catch his act. It was very well done and he attracted quite a crowd before it was over.

City clerk Arlene Staley says other communities pay Crazy Richard to perform for them, but in Charlevoix he apparently does it for free.

The act isn't exactly a first-rate tourist attraction like Niagara Falls or Grand Canyon, but our visitors seemed to enjoy watching him.

Why would anyone want to make this fellow pay a fee to perform?

I have no idea. Ask Councilman Probert.

To its credit, the council failed to act on Probert's suggestion.

But the citizens and business people of Charlevoix haven't always been so fortunate.

Remember a few years ago when a Charlevoix resident wanted to operate an attractive little hot dog wagon with an umbrella on Bridge Street? He was practically run out of town on grounds that a hot dog stand would put the Weathervane and Grey Gables out of business.

Figure that one out. Every truly cosmopolitan city I have ever visited has had hot dog stands on their streets and in their malls.

Or take the very attractive enclosure for a Dumpster proposed for Stafford's Weathervane Inn earlier this year. The restaurant had come up with a very nice plan that would improve the appearance of Pine River Lane and leave the same number of parking spaces — without intruding on the view of Pine River Channel from the north bank.

But council said the Dumpster would have to be on the hillside west of the building, blocking out the restaurant's only basement window on the north side.

So the enclosure has not been built and the dumpster is still in plain view.

Now the council is withholding its monthly payment to the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce until the chamber board agrees to accept a member of the council as a voting member — a move so high-handed it would be laughable if it weren't so serious.

It is no secret that the chamber receives about $6,700 a year from the city in addition to membership dues. The expense certainly is legitimate considering the work the chamber does for the city in organizing festivals, disseminating information about the city to prospective visitors and businesses, answering inquiries off the street, and performing a thousand and one other chores that are essential to the successful functioning of a resort community.

Under the leadership of Jacqueline Merta, the chamber has played a key role in helping Charlevoix develop into a delightful place to visit.

But council, for some unknown reason, is unhappy and wants to put its own leaden stamp on chamber activities just as it has done in other areas of city government.

It is basically wrong for anyone to worm his way into a position on the chamber board by virtue of his position on the city council. The aroma of conflict and intimidation is overpowering.

Critics have accused the Charlevoix Council of being anti-business. After this latest set-to with the chamber, I think they're right.

MY STOLEN BIKE is back home.

Last Wednesday, daughter Jennifer was pedaling through the alley between Bridge Street and Round Lake and found it leaning woefully against a brick wall.

It apparently had been taken to a "chop shop," because the basket is missing.

State fish standards criticized

A University of Michigan study of fish consumption by Michigan sport anglers indicates that state standards to protect public health from toxic chemicals in Michigan surface waters may be too lax.

The state-funded study found that, for one five-month period, Michigan sport anglers and their families ate almost 2.5 times as much fish as the level of fish consumption assumed in calculating safe levels of toxicity in state waters, said Patrick C. West, U-M professor of natural resources and project director for the study. Minorities and the elderly eat even more fish than the average angler, according to ongoing research on fish consumption in Michigan, he added.

West explained that the main purpose of the study was to test assumptions underlying Michigan's Rule 57 (R 323.1057) of the Part 4 Water Quality Standards for the State of Michigan, which regulates discharge of toxic chemicals from "point" or specific locations into Michigan surface waters. The study was conducted by the School of Natural Resources, the School of Public Health, and the Institute for Social Research, all at U-M. Funding was provided by the Michigan Toxic Substance Control Commission.

Rule 57 currently assumes that average fish consumption if 6.5 grams per person per day. The U-M study found that subjects' average total fish consumption, including fish they had purchased as well as caught, was 16.1 grams per person per day from January to early June, 1988.

West said that additional research is needed on fish consumption during the summer-fall fishing season, but, based on general year-round data from the study, fish consumption during the fall and summer may be in the range of 17.9 grams per person per day, resulting in an annual average of about 17 grams per person per day. He emphasized that the summer-fall and year-round averages are only estimates.

West explained that these figures include an adjustment factor for a "nonresponse bias," in this case a tendency of survey nonrespondents to eat less fish than respondents. These figures also may need to be adjusted for cutbacks in fish consumption prompted by existing fish consumption advisories, he said.

Letters to the Editor:

Improvising on daycare

Dear Editor,

Please allow me to publicly thank and applaud many, especially my boss, Sam Supernaw.

As you probably know or have heard Sam is infamous for his unorthodox behavior; if in doubt please see Charlevoix Trifles game. Marching to a different drummer should often be appreciated as Sam has demonstrated this past week.

With the question of Day Care prominent in the media you will appreciate my dilemma. I have twins which are 11 and my baby is 8; the ages to be offended by babysitters, yet definitely in need of supervision. My friends and I had thought we had solved the problem (applause!). Mary Shepard watches Lynda Ward's two kids (8, 9) and my three on Mondays and Wednesdays while Lynda and I work, Lynda takes Fridays off and watches my kids while I work, and Lynda and I watch Mary's four (2, 5, 8, 10) whenever she needs us. Usually this system works perfectly as Sam lets me take off whenever necessary (applause).

But it didn't work this past week. Mary had to go on vacation, a working one. Her husband had to be in Marquette on business – during quarterly tax time. Self-employed people and employers know that personal-payroll taxes are due July 17, and that is not the time that you want your accountant's bookkeeper to be off at the beach with five kids. There was the dilemma.

Answer: bring the five kids to work.

Thank you all: kids for being reasonable (not perfect) about being cooped up for hours; workman's comp auditor who said our office was so much fun he was coming back April 15th, (Sam warned him we would probably have all nine kids here then.); our clients who literally stepped over and shouted over kids and only remarked "Who's winning?" in the game Payday; and most of all Sam who's only comment on my excessive apologies and promises it wouldn't happen again was, "Don't worry about it, but maybe we need to rent a bigger office?" To all of you thank you!

When I read of Fortune 500 companies considering or implementing on-site Day Care, flexible working hours for parents, or finally realizing that productivity ratios correlate to personnel's peace of mind regarding their homelife, I smile.

They have nothing on Sam Supernaw Accounting & Tax of Charlevoix.

Dear Editor

Mrs. Gilbert's first article on the politics of Charlevoix was funny, but her second was hysterical. Her belief in the caste system is a perfect example of the difference between the "locals" and the fudgies."

JACQUELINE VERNOR AND JAMES BAILLARGEON

Vernor-Baillargeon

Mr. and Mrs. James Vernor, IV of Birmingham announce the engagement of their daughter, Jacqueline Ruth, to James Speet Baillargeon, son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Baillargeon of Charlevoix.

The intended bride attended Katherine Gibbs School in Boston and is a graduate of the American Travel School. Her fiance is a graduate of Michigan State University with a degree in landscape architecture. He is employed by the Ford Motor Company in its land development division.

The wedding will take place August 26 at Christ Church Cranbrook in Birmingham.

ing in the street parade are encouraged to dress up as stars. The children should assemble on Carpenter Street prior to the parade. Children under 12 must be accompanied by an adult. The child stars will march near the front of the parade and there will be a place reserved for them downtown so they can watch the rest of the parade.

Although a few boats have signed up, entries are still needed for the boat parade. There is no entry fee for the parade, but entries must be in to the chamber by July 24.

As of last Friday, there were still a few spaces left for park booths. People who have booths in the park are reminded that space is rented on a first come, first serve basis.

Trost-Mitchell

Lori Ann Trost and Patrick C. Mitchell exchanged marriage vows Saturday afternoon, June 24, at St. Mary's Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Trost, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Mitchell, all of Charlevoix.

Approximately 450 attended the ceremony in which Father James Gardiner officiated at the double ring rites, with the bride being given in marriage by her parents.

For the occasion, the altar was decorated with large white wicker baskets of pink carnations, flamingo alstroemeria and white gladiolus, and the side altars were decorated with vases of long stemmed pink roses. The pews were adorned with pink carnations, spring rye, charm gladiolus, and white bows.

The bride wore a satin gown fashioned with off-the-shoulder puffed sleeves accented with satin rosettes, and a silk re-embroidered lace fitted bodice. The hand-beaded full skirt flowed into a cathedral-length train, and the knee-lenth banana-clip veil was accented with silk lilies of the valley.

The bride carried a bouquet of pink roses, charm miniature gladiolus, stephanotis, baby's breath, and variegated ivy.

Cheryl A. Hartnett assisted the bride as maid of honor, and Lynne Trost VandenAkker, Patti Goodreau, Jennifer Joy, Holly Mitchell, Betty Trost Klooster, and Lois Willlams were bridesmaids.

and a bows at the waistline. Their hair was coiffed in French braids accented with silk lilies of the valley, and they carried white wicker baskets of pink roses, flamingo alstroemaria, white miniature carnations, and baby's breath.

LORI AND PATRICK MITCHELL

Alicia Sorber served as flower girl, wearing a dress of the same pattern as the bridesmaids. Her hair was done in French braids decorated with white bows, and she carried a miniature version of the bridesmaids's baskets of flowers.

Mark Klooster was the ringbearer, and Eric Klooster and Chris Mailloux served as altar boys.

Todd McNitt assisted the bridegroom as best man, and Jon Sorber, Tom Aepelbacher, Alec Sheets, Shawn Harnett, "Boogie" Carlson, and Dan Buday were groomsmen. Don Trost and Jeff Novotny served as ushers.

Music for the ceremony was provided by St. Mary's choir.

her own encounter with the deer. "They ate the geraniums, but they're picky," Ochs said. "They only ate certain colored ones."

Like his neighbors, Fay Davis has had a few encounters with this ruthless gang. "They got my swiss chard," he said. "And a few potato leaves. Evidently they don't like potatoes too well, though, they didn't eat very much."

Davis and Ochs share the opinion that the deer are strolling over to Dixon Avenue from the little island between the Chicago Club and Round Lake. So far three of the furry thieves have been spotted in the neighborhood.

Deer are also exploring opportunities in local industry. Mari Marshall, an employee at Medusa Cement Co. reports that a fawn showed up in the men's locker room at Medusa recently. (Job hunting, no doubt.)

Evidently the deer have thrown all caution to the wind. They even had the audacity to inspect Police Chief Dennis Halverson's apple trees, and found some of the green golf ball-sized fruits perfect for dessert. "They just were passing through," he reports. "Just checking out the crop." Halverson hasn't ordered "hoof cuffs," yet, however. "They were here first," he said. "We co-exist pretty well."

Joe Powell, a long time Charlevoix resident and gardener, doesn't share Chief Halverson's view. Powell thinks the "graceful thing of beauty" image of the deer is inaccurate, to say the least. "They walk right in, eat the tops off the flowers, and walk out again," he said. "You can't tell me that isn't meanness. You know, they walk on more than they eat. They just tromp all over everything and laugh."

Rod Cortright, of the Cooperative Extension Serivce in Boyne City, offers a few suggestions for the harried gardner. "Physical barriers are the most effective," he said. Cortright suggests a sturdy fence, preferable at least six feet tall. Deer repellant is another option, he said, but it's less convenient and less effective than a fence because it must be reapplied after every rainfall.

Cortright also suggests "home remedies" such as blood meal or human hair scattered around plants. Evidently the human hair idea has been around for awhile. Shelly Stevens, owner of New Creations, says that it is not at all uncommon for people to ask hair salons to save bags of hair for use in the garden.

According to Cortfight, the deer population in Michigan is about 50 percent higher than wildlife experts feel it should be. As the population rises, the competition for food becomes more heated, and the deer are forced to explore any avenue for food. This year, they've discovered Dixon.

Soil and Water District meeting July 25

The Charlevoix Soil and Water Conservation District will host its 41st Annual Meeting Tuesday, July 25 at Whiting Park.

Each year the district puts on a dinner and holds a business meeting at which directors are elected for 3 year terms of office.

The meal this year will consist of chicken, assorted salads, rolls and beverage, at a cost of $2.00 per person. Reservations should be made by calling 582-6193 or 582-6374.

"Growing Concerns – Future of American's Farmland" is a short film that will be shown, followed by a presentation from Jim Peters, Director of the Midwest Regional Field Office of the American Farmland Trust located in Chicago. AFT is a national nonprofit conservation organization dedicated to the protection of the nation's most productive agricultural land. Its support comes from some 40,000 members as well as foundations and private corporations.

Peters has had 15 years experience as a local and regional planner, including work with local governments, with a private development consulting firm, and with the American Planning Association.

Tickets will be sold at the door. Dinner is at 7 p.m.

Dr. Frederick W. Young

Dr. Frederick W. Young, former Charlevoix resident and dentist, passed away suddenly July 1, 1989. Dr. Young was born July 6, 1906, in Birmingham. After attending Detroit City College, he graduated from the University of Michigan School of Denistry in 1932. Dr. Young began his dental career practicing with his father in Detroit until 1934, when he moved to Charlevoix.

Between 1943 and 1946 he served in the European and Pacific Theaters with the Dental Corps of the United States Army. While in the service, he married Roberta Seymour of Charlevoix in 1943.

In 1952, Dr. Young moved to San Clemente, Calif., where he practiced dentistry until 1966. Due to heart surgery he left his private practice and moved to Long Beach where he practiced orthodontia and began the Senior Citizen's Dental Program for the Harbor Dental Society. Dr. Young retired to San Marcos, Calif., in 1981.

Dr. Young was an active member of the Kiwanis Club and a lifetime member of the American Dental Association and the BPO Elks. His favorite hobby was ham radio. His call letters were W6UAP.

Besides his wife Roberta, he is survived by one daughter, Martha Rodger of Royal Oak, Mich.; two sons, James of Costa Mesa, Calif., and Thomas of Soquel, Calif.; 6 grandchildren; and one sister, Margaret Carey of Stuart, Fla.

A memorial service was held July 6, 1989, at the First Congregational Church of Escondido, Calif., with Rev. James Fredette officiating.

Grief recovery meetings scheduled

A series of weekly grief recovery sessions will be held from Tuesday, July 25 to August 22 from 10 a.m. to 12 noon in the Charlevoix Area Hospital classroom to help those recovering from a loss.

Rev. Merlin Delo will be the program leader for the sessions which are co-sponsored by the Charlevoix County Hospice and Charlevoix Area Hospital. Anyone who has suffered a loss and who would benefit from the support of others along with informative discussions which will help them deal with their grief are invited to attend. Please call the Hospice office at 536-2842 to indicate your desire to participate.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

I never thought you would hear me say this but, I kind of miss the warning whistle on the Charlevoix lighthouse. You do remember that little tooter don't you? Yes, I admit there were moments I wondered why in the world it was blowing. I mean when the skies were blue and the sun was bright, you couldn't help but wonder why. Yet consider the alternative. What would life be like without messengers like the lighthouse to warn us of even unseen dangers?

"The messengers of your life" are what I'd like for you to think about. Who are the people in your life who have shaped, guided, encouraged, and even warned you about the different things you have faced over the years?

I have a friend who recently lost his mother. His father had died several years before. He said he suddenly felt like an "orphan" in the world. Our parents may eventually leave us but the messages they have implanted in our hearts are there forever.

How about the teachers you have had over the years? Have you ever considered the awesome responsibility they have in laying a foundation for all of life's learning in those fragile young lives? Some of the teachers you had were better and some were worse than others. I wonder how many people can even remember the names of every single teacher that they had over the years. Yet each and every one of them, regardless of your feelings about them, left a profound mark or "message" on your heart. One that will last you forever.

But to me, the most important messenger of all is the one who first lets you know about the place of God in your life and in particular, what His Son Jesus Christ stands ready to do for you. Do you remember the first time you heard the gospel and it really made sense to you? Do you remember the thrill of truly being forgiven of your sins, the God given assurance of being His child? That is a remarkable message to bear as well as the hear!

What I hope you realize is that you are meant to be a messenger for someone else. Your life is meant to carry the good news of hope and help on to another seeking soul. You can do it too. You do it in your actions. You do it by listening. You do it through acts of caring. You do it in many different ways.

Is there any doubt about what the message of God's love has meant to you? There is someone waiting for you to bring them the word. You can be a messenger about real life, life in Christ, for them.

Family cases appeal to attorney

Although the area of law Teri Craine specializes in is often tense and heated, she prefers to see calm discussion and reason prevail.

Craine, an attorney, specializes in family law, which in her situation often means handling divorce cases or cases of spouse or child abuse or neglect.

"I felt there was a need for a moderating, leveling kind of voice," she replied when asked why she chose this particular branch of law.

Craine, who is now 48, entered law school when she was 41 and well along into raising her own three children. She had also established a career as a speech and language pathologist.

"I wanted to expand my skills," she explains.

Legal trials and custody battles in divorce cases are often devisive according to Craine. She says economic problems and anger associated with divorce can end up causing legal wars which leave scars that will be present for years.

Craine has written a brief legal guide to divorce so that people going through a divorce will have a better understanding of the legal proceedings. She also provides other literature and often guides her clients to some form of counseling.

Although Craine has been active in the women's movement and trained as a volunteer attorney in a battered women's home, she occasionally represents the husband in divorce cases.

Regardless of whether she's representing the husband or wife in a divorce case where children are involved, Craine said her first interest is the children.

In cases of child abuse and neglect or termination of parental rights, Craine is often appointed by the court as guardian ad litum (an attorney representing the children in the case.)

"What happens with these kids is they have to have someone they can count on," she says.

Serving as guardian ad litum has often meant more than just appearing in court. Craine says she's often had her young clients come home with her for a while. She's also gone to educational planning conferences at school for kids she was representing.

"I still believe that each one of us has to do our best," she said of working with young people. "I believe people can make an impact on kids."

Craine currently splits her practice between Oakland County and Charlevoix County, but wants to move more of it here.

Although she says the Charlevoix Court system and personnel are excellent, Craine would like to see the entire judicial system change the way it handles family cases.

Craine says she would like to see a "family court" which would handle divorce, abuse and neglect, and family termination cases.

"I just don't think it's a good system, as we have it now," she remarked.

Artworks featured in new shop

by PEG OHLE

Patricia Keehn of The Village Shop of Scottsdale has brought handcrafted art works from 25 top southwest artists to her shop in Charlevoix.

Keehn explained that everything in her Village Shop here is "artist made" and she does business only with artists; she does not buy from middlemen. "And some of my artists sell only to me so their work cannot be bought anywhere else," she added.

The works of art of which Keehn is so proud include pottery, sculpture, wall hangings, jewelry, dolls, and other items for household decoration and personal use. She also offers a special service in arranging to have woven articles made in the customer's own choice of colors.

The several pieces of metal sculpture in the Village Shop are the work of Phil Vickers, some of whose artwork is in the White House and some in the Smithsonian Institution. The ceramic figurines by Nona Eyars are also well-known, according to Keehn. Each year, this artist turns out a different figure which is duplicated in various colors, and they are becoming collectors' items, Keehn said.

Although the Charlevoix shop is full of a variety of art work not usually seen in this area, it is only a sampling from the Scottsdale Village Shop, where 60 artists are represented, Keehn added.

Why did a resident of Arizona open a shop in Charlevoix, Michigan?

"I grew up in the Upper Peninsula, near Norway," Keehn explained, "and I wanted my children to see what Northern Michigan was like. We go up to visit my parents, but we don't want to impose on them. Last September, I drove from Grand Rapids to Leelanau, to Charlevoix, to Mackinaw City, looking for a place for a shop so we would have a good reason for spending the summer in Michigan. I liked Charlevoix, the town and the people, so I came back to open my shop here on Park Avenue."

Patricia Keehn is shown among some of the southwestern art in her village shop.

Keehn and her husband, Bill, have five adopted children: Paul, 14; Daniel, 11; Mike, 8; Amanda, 4; and Joel, 2. Paul has his first job this summer, working at Village Inn Pizza, and the other children divide their time between Charlevoix and "Grandma's".

Keehn will take her brood home toward the end of August, but she will return later in the fall for the Christmas trade. In her absence, Sandy Drost will be in charge of the shop.

Charlevoix County State Bank assistant vice president Diane YoungeDyke stands next to the bank's new automatic teller machine.

Bank machine installed downtown

Downtown Charlevoix now has an automatic bank teller machine which is hooked up to the world.

The machine, which is affiliated with Network and Cirrus, recently was installed in the entryway of the Charlevoix County State Bank. Its first day of operation was July 11. The machine is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

People with cards for the machine will be able to make withdrawals, deposits and transfers to both checking and savings accounts.

LoAnne Brown, the bank's senior vice president - cashier, said bank officials discussed getting an automatic teller machine four or five years ago and this past year assistant vice president Diane YoungeDyke began gathering information on the machines.

Brown said a lot of people have asked about automatic teller machines when opening accounts. YoungeDyke said the machine will allow up to four transactions in a 24 hour period to a cash limit which will vary by the customer.

Along with benefits to people visiting Charlevoix and local people who need to bank at odd hours, banking officials also feel local merchants may benefit by not having to cash as many checks as they do now.

HOW WOULD RISING ENERGY DEMAND, FALLING INTEREST RATES AND INDUSTRY MERGERS AFFECT UTILITY STOCKS?

FIND OUT AT OUR FREE SEMINAR.

Our research analysts see these as three compelling reasons why selected utility stocks, and electric utility stocks in particular, offer compelling investment value today.

Demand for electricity in this country has increased 20% in the last five years, and is expected to continue to rise.

Utility stocks have historically outperformed the broader market in times of declining interest rates. Right now, we believe interest rates have peaked.

And we believe the wave of mergers and consolidation in the utility industry – as evidenced by the 14 transactions proposed or consummated over the last 18 months – has only begun.

Come hear the views of Shearson Lehman Hutton's Senior Utility Analyst and Sr. Vice President Edward J. Tirello. Find out how you can take advantage of today's favorable outlook for the utilities industry.

County planners consider lake plan ramifications

by PEG OHLE

The misunderstanding between the Charlevoix County Planning Commission and the City of Boyne City reached a conclusion last Thursday at the regular meeting of the Planning Commission.

As far as the Planning Commission is concerned, Boyne City may proceed with its plans to enlarge its marina.

There had been friction between the two bodies after the Planning Commission did not approve Boyne City's application to the Department of Natural Resources for funds with which to add 16 slips to the City's marina.

The Planning Commission based its decision on provisions of the Lake Charlevoix Management Plan, which limits the number of boat slips, rack boat units, and car-trailer parking units at launching facilities to one for each 100 feet of shoreline.

While the exact shoreline footage owned by Boyne City is not known, it is over 5,000. The City now has 52 car-trailer parking units and 20 marina units, which, with the requested additional 16, would bring the number of launching facilities to 88, more than permitted under the Lake Management Plan.

Soon after learning of the Planning Commission's failure to endorse its application for DNR funds, Boyne City let it be known that it already had a permit from the DNR for 15 slips, issued in 1985. These slips were to be built on the "Peninsula" next to the Harborage Marina. Learning about that, the Planning Commission decided to support the grant application.

Following that decision, County Planner Larry Sullivan wrote the Army Corps of Engineers suggesting that if a new permit were to be issued to build slips elsewhere than on the Peninsula, a public hearing should first be held, as provided in the rules.

That suggestion was not well received by the Boyne City Council, and a flurry of accusations followed.

At last week's Planning Commission meeting, Sandra Stanley, a member of the Boyne City Council as well as a member of the County Planning Commission, let it be known that Boyne City wants to sell the slips it intends to build on the Peninsula to the Harborage Marina and use the new permit to build 16 slips in the City marina basin north of the Boyne River. This would, in effect, give Boyne City the number of slips approved in 1985.

"There will be no more letters between the Planning Commission and Boyne City on this matter," Sullivan told the Courier.

"We will let the Department of Natural Resources (the granting agency) and the Corps of Engineers and the DNR (the permitting agencies) decide the matter."

In the process of objecting to the Planning Commission's original decision, the Boyne City Council questioned the legality of using the Lake Management Plan in making the decision. Neither the County Board of Commissioners nor the Boyne City Council had adopted the Lake Management Plan, the Council argued, so it was not applicable.

The County Planning Department has now received some information concerning that issue from Mark A. Wyckoff, president of the Planning and Zoning Center in Lansing. Some of that information is contained in the following answers to Sullivan's questions:

Q - Does the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners have to approve or adopt any plan recommended by the Charlevoix County Planning Commission in order for the Planning Commission to use it as a "bona fide" plan?

A - There is no express statutory authority that I am aware of for a County Board of Commissioners to adopt a county plan. On the other hand, the County Planning Act PA282 of 1945 in section 5 requires a County Planning Commission to adopt county plans and authorizes the adoption in part or as a whole by a single resolution. (With regard to the Municipal Planning Act, the Attorney General of Michigan even ruled a City Council cannot adopt a master plan prepared and adopted by the Planning Commission.

Q - Does a plan have to be completed and legally adopted in order for the Planning Commission to use it as a guide in decision making, lacking any adopted plans on a specific issue or topic?

A - I draw your attention to Chapter 10 in Michigan's Zoning & Planning third edition, by noted land use attorney, Clan Crawford. On page 246, Clan discusses the distinction between adopted and unadopted plans and cites a number of cases in which unadopted plans have been used in decision making by a Planning Commission and considered by a court, but clearly he advises, as would I, that the plan be adopted if it's going to be used as a basis for any sort of recommendations.

Q - Does an incorporated municipality have to formally approve a County Plan in order for the County Planning Commission to use the plan as a basis for making comments on something occurring within a city...?

A - Certainly not, the function of a County Planning Commission is to prepare a plan that looks at all elements and concerns associated with the County.

Such plans are authorized to be adopted only by the County Planning Commission. Should an individual municipality choose to endorse or even go so far as to adopt a County Plan, that would be an action that they would be taking solely on their own.

Q - If a County Plan and a city, village or township developed and approved plan are in conflict, which plan should the County Planning Commission use in its review policy?

A - There is no question that both plans should be considered. Where there is conflict, the County Planning Commission should make a strong effort to identify the conflict and explain the rationale behind its plan. The recommendations may very well be that they have discovered a potential problem or error in the County Plan that could be addressed with subsequent revision...,

(With reference to the above opinion, Sullivan points out that the only Boyne City plan which mentions a marina is the City's Comprehensive Plan of May, 1980 which states, "While land is plentiful, these areas fail to meet demands relative to several specific activities. Baseball and softball diamonds, a swimming pool, soccer field, and larger marina facilities are among the current shortcomings").

Wyckoff concludes his statement by writing, "Please recognize that the foregoing comments are presented from my position as a community planner with over 15 years of practical experience and are not presented as a legal opinion."

City softball games

Charlevoix Cinema III, Ironworks-Quality Limo and Pine Hill Nursery recorded victories in mens slow pitch softball July 12.

Cinema III got the most exciting victory as they came from behind in the last inning and beat Bay Shore Steel on Chris Putman's grand slam home run. Brian Wilmot also had a home run for Cinema III while Butch Potter had two for Bay Shore. Dave Novotny got the pitching win.

Ironworks-Quality Limo defeated Pat McKeown Ford 7-1. Winning pitcher Dave Cole gave up only six hits. Steve Leazier homered for the winners.

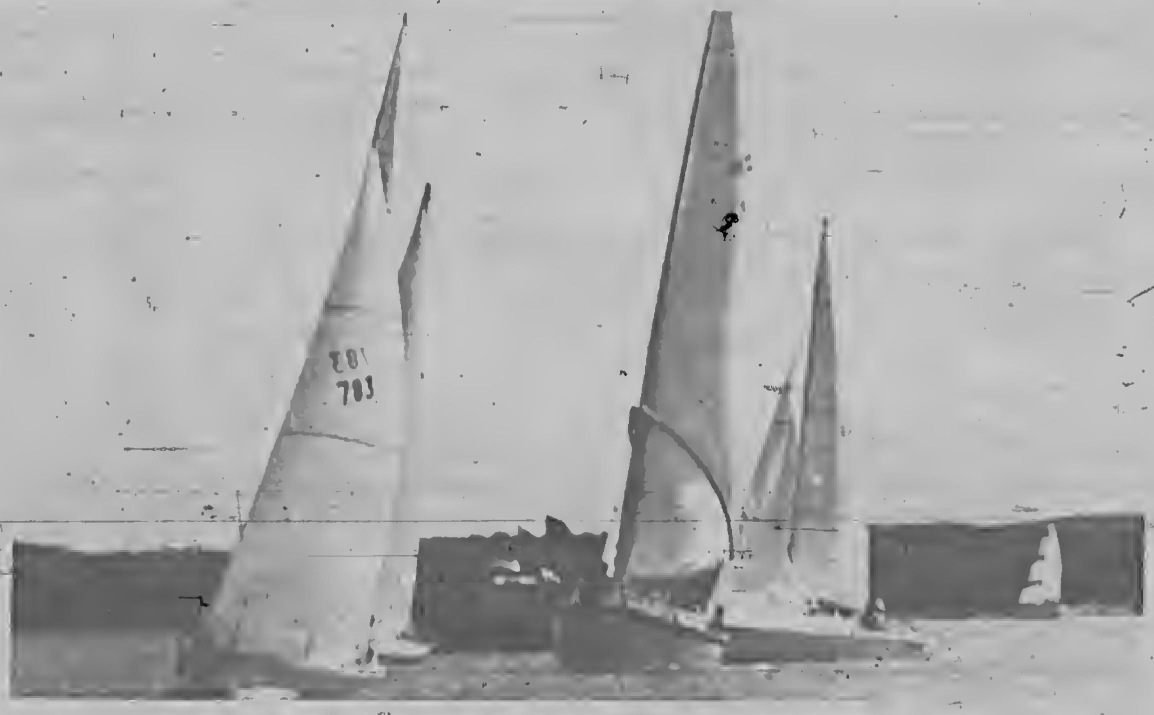
Pine Hill easily beat Paul Bunyan Lanes 13-5. Pine Hill was led by Eric Towe with two home runs. Ken Peebles was the winning pitcher.

In womens softball last Thursday night, First State Bank, LexaMar and Tapawingo-Romas-Rocky Top Farm got victories.

First State Bank beat Kwikie Printing 22-10 in a walkathon. There were 41 walks issued in the game. Shelly Essenberg and Teresa Noirot each had two hits for the bank.

LaxaMar defeated Town House 21-9 with Connie Borths getting the pitching win. Diane Brighting and Junie Vroman each had three hits for the winners. Cookie Borths and Margie Sladek each had two hits for Town House.

In the closest game of the night, T-R-R snuck past Venture Video 8-7 in eight innings. Mary Carver was the winning pitcher. Brenda Bruce and Mary Hopp each had three hits for T-R-R while Lori Antaya had two for Venture.



Some of the divisions in this past weekend's Irish Cup sailboat races were hotly contested.

Yachting Notes

by A. Nony Mouse

Lots of facts this week, so little room for fun and yarns...

The second race of the Summer Series showed that the taller masts of the larger yachts can reach more of the very light air as the Fleet A corrected finish positions became the Overall finish positions. Gotcha said just that to Slapshot who, in turn, dunked Mint Julip, leaving Apprentice to study harder. Their times ranged from 1:54:43 to 1:56:53; best times in the other Fleets were all over 2 minutes.

Minors in Possession, with minor Bickersteth in possession, had the next best time (2:00:40) for First in C, Bandit stole second from Allons-y, then HSMM (His Serene Majesty's Mobile) brushed off a minor Newsense as Mud Duck sort of flapped home.

Cygnus repeated as No. 1 in B (2:02:04) with the Doctor swan driving. Mi-Joy was a 3 second lead over Noname who blew Blasen back to fourth as the Lost Vermonter couldn't be found by the Foxy Lady despite her Tireless quest. Sandpiper left a Kitty Wake for (oh, gee) Te-Gi.

The ten boat Jib and Main Fleet danced in behind Cabaret (2:12:15), while Nancy then flew in ahead of Bald Eagle. Apothecary drug out a fourth and Canusa quietly took the fifth. Stalworth topped Cheemaun with Hot Mustand as Maureen completely lost Spirit.

Saturday, July 15 – Irish Cup Regatta – great day delivered on a silver platter by Chairman Michelle Biddick and her professional race management team. Racing home to the Lions Club Chicken Barbecue, in the spinnaker Fleet 1, it was Traveller, Reckless and Gotcha in the money, then Spar Wars, Apprentice, Slapshot, Mint Julip, Newsense, Mi-Joy and Cool Running. Fleet 2 had Sandpiper, Allons-y and HS Moisture Missile earning flags followed only by Cygnus and 2 DNF's. The top 7 overall were also the top 7 in Fleet 1.

Jib and Main Fleet 3 saw Maritime, Peregrine and Fever with awards, then Kainele and 1 DNF. JAM 4 had Cabaret, Victoria and Shoo Fly (the last two Nonsuch 30's head to head all the way with just 11 seconds between them a the finish) then C. Fling. JAM 5 won by Fury, who was also JAM overall winner at 1:48:57. Cheemaun and Maureen caught flag honors while The Terror trailed.

The Fun Fleet 6 was fantastic – The Committee was both bribed and impressed with so 3 Karets won the "Zaniest" Trophy while Our Thyme, Whisper and Warm Winds were 1, 2, 3 in Fleet. Also finishing were Teamwork, Rosemary and Essex. A great time was had by all.

Irish Boat Shop sponsors the annual event for the benefit of the Lake Charlevoix Mariners who, in turn, support the Sailing School. Hats off to them, and to the skippers who took several of the students along for the race – there sure were some happy kids! If you, your son or daughter would like to learn to sail, or to improve your sailing skills; get Sail School info from Gary Gleason at 547-4600.

City of Charlevoix Band Pavilion
INSTRUCTION TO BIDDERS

A. SUBMISSION OF PROPOSALS

Sealed proposals will be received by the city manager at his office until 10:00 a.m. July 28, 1989, located in the city building at 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan.

Proposals shall be based on performing the work in strict conformity with the working drawings and project manual prepared by the architect and shall be delivered on or before 10:00 a.m. July 28, 1989 to the city manager's office.

Proposals must be on forms furnished by the architect and accompanied by a bid bond or certified check in the amount of five percent (5%) of the proposal submitted.

B. PREPARATION OF PROPOSALS

Proposals shall be submitted in duplicate (one copy to developer, one copy to architect) on forms provided by the architect. Proposals shall not contain any recapitulation of the work to be done. Oral, telephone or telegraphed proposals or modifications will not be considered.

Proposals shall be filled in completely, including alternate proposals and all amounts must be in words as well as figures as called for in the proposal. Proposals which are not filled in completely will be rejected.

Proposals which contain qualifications and/or modifications to the base proposal will be rejected.

Signatures must be in long hand and executed by the principal duly authorized to make contracts. The bidder's legal name must be fully stated. The completed form shall be without interlineation, alteration, or erasure.

Each proposal shall be sealed in an opaque envelope and marked with the name of the building project, and name of the bidder.

The proposals will be opened publicly and read aloud.

The City reserves the right to reject any and all bids, whole or in part and waive any informalities therein.

Since this project is civic in nature and that many local contributions have already been given by local citizens, it is encouraged that local sub contractors and suppliers will also make monetary contributions when and if they are selected by the successful general contractor.

C. ACCESS TO DOCUMENTS

Copies of the contract documents will be on file at the office of the architect and the office of the city manager.

D. CONTRACT SECURITY

The bidder shall certify that he qualifies for performance, labor and materials bonds in amount of 100% of the contract, and that these bonds will be executed at the option and instruction of the city.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

TAKE NOTICE, That the Michigan Department of Natural Resources proposes to hold a public hearing in the Eveline Township Hall, corner of Mountain and Ferry Roads, East Jordan, Michigan, at 7:00 p.m., Wednesday, the 26th day of July, 1989.

The purpose of this hearing is to secure the views of interested persons concerning the following application for permit:

Application for Permit 88-5-99W under the Goemaere-Anderson Wetland Protection Act (1979, P.A. 203) by Robert Greene, 25 W 254 Concord Road, Naperville, Illinois 60540, to propose residence built on pilings, access fill for drive and garage, and elevated boardwalk and dock adjacent to Lake Charlevoix, T33N, R7W, Section 14, Eveline Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan.

The application may be reviewed in the Land and Water Management Division, DNR, 1732 West M-32, Gaylord, Michigan, during normal office hours.

The hearing will be held pursuant to Section 8(1) of the cited statute. The hearing will not be a court-type proceeding; witnesses will not be sworn, and there will be no cross-examination. Public hearings are primarily informational and are held to encourage the expression of views and presentation of facts.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources will, upon written request, provide a copy of the Department's decision on this application.

4. Amendment to Chapter 51, Section 5.188 (3) (f)
Amendment to add the following:
Section 5.188 (3) (f)

6. Location of all existing plant materials showing those materials to be saved, to be moved and to be removed.

7. Location of all proposed plant materials.

8. A planting list for all proposed landscape materials showing caliper sizes, height of material, method of installation, botanical and common names, type and amount of mulch, ground cover and grasses.

9. Sections, elevations, plans and details of all landscape elements, such as earth mounds, retaining walls and planting details.

10. The proposed planting dates.

11. A statement of intent to install and maintain all such landscaped areas in accordance with the requirements of this Chapter.

12. An irrigation system plan for watering and draining landscaped areas beyond one hundred fifty (150) feet of a main water outlet, or other provision for watering.

5. Chapter 51, Section 5.5, Definitions
Add the following Section as Indicated:
Section 5.5 (23)

"Conflicting Land Uses": Where any use district abuts a different use district, or an existing residential use lot or parcel.

Section 5.5 (24)

"Continuous Screen": A hedge, wall, landscaped berm, or combination of landscape elements which forms an unbroken visual barrier from any adjoining land.

Section 5.6 (8) (a)

"Enforcement Official." The Zoning Administrator.

Section 5.8(4) (a)

"Landscape Elements." Living plant material such as, but not limited to, grass, ground covers, shrubs, vines, hedges or trees, and non-living durable material commonly used in landscape development such as crushed rock, brick, wood chips, cobblestones, brick, tile, or decorative blocks whether as a vertical element such as a wall, or a horizontal element such as a bed, walk, or path.

Section 5.10 (1) (a)

"Off-Street Parking Area." An area used for the parking of more than two (2) vehicles as a principal or accessory use, but not including driveways.

Section 5.11 (1) (a)

"Shrubs." Self-supporting, deciduous and/or evergreen woody species, normally branched near the base, bushy, less than fifteen (15) feet in height, as normally grown in Charlevoix County.

Section 5.11 (13)

"Trees." Self-supporting, woody, deciduous and/or evergreen plants with a well-defined central stem or species which normally grow to a height of fifteen (15) feet or more in Charlevoix County.

Section 5.11 (14)

"Vines." Plants which normally require physical support to reach mature form.

6. Section 5.17 (5) and Section 5.188 (1)
Add to Section 5.17 (5)

(5) Where a zoning district abuts a railroad right-of-way, as indicated on the zoning district map, (whether an existing right-of-way or an abandoned right-of-way), the zoning district shall be deemed to extend to the center of the illustrated railroad right-of-way.

Section 5.188, Development Plan shall be amended to read:

(1) No building shall be erected or structurally altered, nor shall any grading take place in any zone district, except "R-1," "R-2" and "R-2A," nor shall any change in use as defined by use regulation within the various zone districts be permitted in any portion of the premises, until such a time as a development plan has been approved by the City Planning Commission. "Change of Use" shall also include a re-institution of any use discontinued for a period of three (3) years or more. Such approval shall terminate within twelve (12) months of the granting thereof, unless a building permit is obtained for the development plan project.

The balance of the section shall remain the same.

7. Amendment of Section 5.212 (8)

Section 5.212 (8) The second paragraph shall be changed to read as follows:

In the Central Business District when a property owner of a property fronting on Bridge Street between Antrim Street and the Pine River Channel, wishes to expand their floor area and is unable to provide the required off-street parking, such property owner may meet the parking requirement by contributing to the City of Charlevoix Central Business District Parking Development Fund. The contribution amount shall be Five Thousand ($5,000) dollars per parking space, adjusted by the Consumer Price Index from the base year 1989. Under this provision, no spaces will be reserved for the use of contributing properties. In the event a Central Business District Property Owner provides their own parking on a separate parcel, such parcel shall be deed restricted, with an interest given to the City, to the parking use for the property to which it is assigned.

8. Section 5.221 (3)

Section 5.221, Continuance of Use shall be amending by adding:

(3) If a residential structure on a non-conforming lot is non-conforming due to existing building encroachments into a required side yard setback; and if the nonconformance was created by the adoption of this ordinance; the City Zoning Administrator may approve and issue a Zoning Permit for construction, which will in-fill the building mass, extending the side yard encroachment:

(1) Provided, the addition will not extend into the required side yard to any greater extent than the existing structure.

(2) The addition will not encroach upon required front and rear yard setbacks.

(3) The addition will not diminish the availability of light and fresh air to a neighboring property.

(4) The addition is found, in its opinion by the Fire Chief, not to constitute a potential hazard.

Prior to issuing a permit, the Zoning Administrator shall consult with the adjoining property owner to determine the extent of the adversity of the impacts described above.

... pool grant application receives cool reception had to act Monday evening or call a special meeting between now and Aug. 4. The board did not act to make a grant application Monday evening. They did not call a special meeting.

Board vice president Bob Drenth was the first board member to speak on the pool application proposal. He said school board members are "just taking a whale of a lot of flack" about the proposed pool.

Drenth noted that the school already faces financial difficulties in areas such as transportation and asbestos removal.

Board members noted that although the board and pool committee have sought to make it clear that the pool committee is operating independently of the board, that the public may be perceiving things otherwise.

Board member Doris Pearl said she believes pool news release contributed to the defeat of millage proposals in the June 12 school election.

Drenth said, "I think our reputation as a school board will go down the tubes if we get behind this thing."

Board member Scott Beatty said most grant applications require local matching funds and the school doesn't have the money for matching funds.

MacArthur said both construction and operational funds will be generated through fundraising efforts. He added that the school could apply for the grant and later turn it down if local funds were not in place.

Board member Larry Levengood, who is also a member of the county planning commission, said he has attended meetings and read state information concerning rules governing the recreational bond program in question. He had a copy of the rules at Monday's board meeting.

"As I review these rules, I see a multitude of problems with local schools applying for these funds," Levengood said.

He pointed out that the $750,000 grant combined with the $350,000 local match totals $1.1 million and the estimated cost of just the pool building is $1.1 to $1.25 million. When other facets of the proposed project are added in, the total estimated cost is as much as $1.7 million.

MacArthur referred to successful projects in neighboring communities where benefactors were found. He indicated Charlevoix may also be able to find such benefactors.

Beatty pointed out that while he would like to see a pool, a grant applicant is making certain representations "in good faith" namely an intention to meet the matching fund requirement and sustain operational costs. He and other board members indicated they don't feel the school is the organization to make those representations.

MacArthur said the local commitment to the pool can be the fundraising effort.

Board member Janet Rathke asked if some other governmental body may make the application. MacArthur said Charlevoix Township might be eligible to make the application.

Kids enjoy day camp

"Come and see our sandcastle," the little girl said.

So the photographer shuffled through the sand over to the sandcastle the children had built. It was a nice sandcastle with walls and towers and all of the usual sandcastle things.

Alongside the castle, there was a round area enclosed by sand and containing water and some dead alewives.

"What's that?" the photographer asked.

"That's the royal pond," the little girl answered, proud as a peacock.

The sandcastle, complete with royal pond, was built by campers at Camp McSauba, a children's summer camp sponsored by the city recreation department.

Camp McSauba is in its 14th year. A total of about 300 children between five and 12 years old will attend the camp's eight one-week sessions this summer.

Campers attend camp from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Thursday, they arrive at 9 a.m., stay through the day and evening and sleep overnight in tents in the woods. Camp concludes Friday morning with breakfast and an awards ceremony.

Camp director Teresa Noirot explains that the camp averages 40 children per session, with a maximum of 50. While at camp, the children participate in a variety of activities including: recreational games, arts and crafts, shooting BB guns and small bows, nature tours and playing on the Lake Michigan shoreline.

Pool chair says no pool millage council supports grant application

Pool Steering Committee members are going to do everything they can to bring Charlevoix an indoor community swimming pool without having property taxes pay for it, committee cochairman Dave Strawbridge asserted at Monday evening's city council work session.

"I'm dead flat telling you that we're not going to bring this to a millage," Strawbridge maintained. He said the committee wants to make the project happen "outside of the tax sector."

Following those comments, and others from the audience, councilmen concurred that they are willing to support having Charlevoix Township apply for a $750,000 state grant to help fund the pool.

Pool proponents are seeking a State-of-Michigan Recreational Bond Fund grant. A governmental unit must make the application for the grant.

Earlier this month, the school board chose not make the application. Board members expressed concern about what the public perception would be if the school system applied for a swimming pool grant at a time when it faces financial hardship in other budget areas. While board members did not say they were opposed to having a pool, they distanced themselves from the pool building project.

After being turned away by the school board, the pool committee approached Charlevoix Township. The proposed site for the pool is at the Charlevoix Elementary School, which is located in the township.

At Monday's council meeting, Strawbridge said the township planning commission has reviewed the request and recommended that the township sponsor the grant application. The township board will meet between now and the August 4 grant application deadline to consider the matter.

Strawbridge explained that the pool committee approached the city council because it is seeking support from all local governmental entities. The amount of local support for a project is considered a factor in the success of a grant application.

Billie Smith, a city resident who regularly attends council meetings, expressed skepticism about the pool proposal. She said she is afraid that eventually taxes will be required to support the pool.

Smith indicated that many of the pool proponents are wealthy professional people. She said she is "worried about the little fellow who's taxed right up to here," and gestured to the

Top right Last week's group of Mount McSauba campers and counselors paused from their sandcastle building long enough for this picture. This group of campers is one of eight which will attend the camp this summer.

... Camp McSauba

"It's a pretty structured program so the kids know what (activities) they're supposed to be doing and when (they're supposed to be doing them)," Noirot said. "That eliminates a lot of the chaos."

Noirot is assisted by four full-time counselors, one part-time counselor and a volunteer. All of them are college students from Charlevoix. They are: Meg Fowler, Bob Sell, David Miller, Angela McClanaghan, Jon Terry and Shannon Titsworth.

When the children arrive at camp, they're divided by age and assigned a counselor. Noirot, who has been camp director for six summers after serving as a counselor for four, says this summer's staff is one of the best overall that she's had to work with. She said that with a ratio of about one counselor for every 10 kids, the counselors can give the kids quite a bit of attention.

About 75 percent of the campers are children of local residents. The other 25 percent are from East Jordan or Boyne City or are the children of people vacationing in Charlevoix for the summer.

Although a few of the children get homesick during Thursday night's campout and decide to go home, Noirot said most of the children seem to enjoy the camp.

The cost of the camp is $40 per camper. That price includes a camp T shirt, crafts project, Thursday dinner, Friday breakfast and awards at the awards ceremony. The children bring sack lunches.

There will be three more sessions this summer and there are still openings in some of them. For information, people may phone 547-3253 or sign up at the recreation department office in city hall.

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

In the days of pioneers

We were pioneers and stayed in covered wagons. Needless to say, this was many years ago. I was about 12 years old at the time.

In old western movies, when pioneers are about to be attacked, somebody always hollers, "Circle up the wagons."

The covered wagons our group stayed in weren't entirely circled up. They were arranged in a semi circle. I suppose that meant we were still vulnerable to attack, but only from one side.

During the weekend when we stayed in the covered wagons, nobody laid seige to our pioneer camp. But if any rampaging marauders of the prairie had attempted a massacre, rest assured myself and the other members of our junior high church youth group would have given a noble account of ourselves.

The covered wagons were part of a church camp in mid Michigan. As I recall, it was a nice camp in a beautiful country setting. There were several acres of land with rolling hills, some woods, a barn and horses, a place to swim, a recreation building, mess hall and several different outposts each with its own theme.

Had we been a youth group of trappers, we'd have stayed in rustic cabins, but we were pioneers so we stayed in covered wagons. The wagons were nothing elaborate, but they were comfortable and contained bunk beds.

About 15 kids from our youth group and three or four adult chaperones stayed in the covered wagons. The group was split pretty evenly between boys and girls.

The girls set up quarters in a covered wagon at one end of the semi circle and the boys set up camp in a wagon at the opposite end.

One evening we all went on a hayride. Afterward, we were dropped off at the recreation room to goof around there a while.

I'm not sure exactly how long we stayed at the rec. room, but it was until well after dark.

Some of the other boys got bored and decided to go back to camp. My friend Ken and I were playing ping pong when they left. We told them we'd be along later.

The girls were playing a piano and singing songs. None of them departed early.

About an hour later, the rec. room closed. Ken and I, the girls and a chaperone, who was an older girl, in her late teens or early twenties, began walking back to camp.

We walked quietly along the dark and eerie dirt roads. None of us had a flashlight. It was an overcast night, pitch black without even the light of the stars and moon to guide us.

There was a distinct, although unspoken, element of fear in the midst of that small group of junior high kids shuffling down those foreboding roads.

Although the walk was probably less than a mile, it seemed much longer. When we arrived at camp, the dark silhouettes of the covered wagons were a welcome sight.

Moments later a blood-curdling symphony of screams pierced the stillness of the night.

I found out later, that the boys who came back to camp early had not gone to our covered wagon. No, they'd hidden in the girls' covered wagon.

To top it off, when the girls got back to their wagon, they were initially afraid to go inside because they were still spooked from the walk and the wagons were darker than dark.

When the girls finally did muster their courage and timidly entered the wagon, those boys rose up from the bunks and bellowed in the darkness, "Get out of our camper."

Those girls let out some screams that I'm sure are still rattling around the hills of mid Michigan.

... who help themselves

The recent convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) in Detroit was a vast disappointment to those of us who had expected some indication that America's blacks are ready to resolve some of their own problems.

After 80 years, you'd think such a prestigious organization would learn to put its priorities in order.

But once again this year, speakers hammered on the same tired old theme: Whitey is to blame for our problems and Whitey has to make it up to us one way or another.

Rather than taking bold and decisive action to do something about infant mortality, illiteracy, drug abuse, unemployment, crime, substandard housing, AIDS and the breakdown of the black family, the NAACP wants to send poor old Whitey on another guilt trip.

The major decision reached at the convention was to hold a massive march on Washington in August to protest a recent action by the Supreme Court which the NAACP feels undermines civil rights gains by softening some affirmative action programs.

Affirmative action, as you know, gives minorities preferential treatment in hiring, even though other applicants are more qualified.

Affirmative action also means that some educational requirements for access to higher education are waived for minorities.

There was a time when such programs may have been justified, even though they have always smacked of reverse discrimination.

But after a generation of affirmative action, problems persist and it is time for a different approach.

The NAACP, however, would rather kick a dead horse than buy a new one.

ALTHOUGH THE nation has a growing cadre of affluent blacks, few of them apparently feel any obligation to help their brothers, which, incidently, is and always has been a common practice among other ethnic groups.

Once a black secures a foothold on the economic ladder, he normally flees to the suburbs to rub shoulders with Whitey.

In the mid-1960s, Eric Hoffer, America's longshoreman-philosopher, had some interesting thoughts on the subject. In an essay entitled "The Negro Revolution," Hoffer wrote:

"One begins to wonder whether the American Negro has the capacity to create a genuine community with organs for cooperation and self-help. You strain your ears in vain amid the present Negro clamor for a small voice saying: "Leave us alone and we will show you what we can do." If it be true that the the only effective way to help the Negro is to help him help himself, then the Negro's aversion to, or perhaps incapacity for, a self-starting, do-it-yourself way of life makes it questionable whether he can ever attain freedom and self-respect. One cannot think of another instance where a minority striving for equality has been so deficient in the capacity for mutual aid and cooperation. Almost invariably when a Negro makes his mark in whatever walk of life his impulse is to escape the way of life, the mores and the atmosphere of the Negro people. He sees the Negro masses as a millstone hanging about his neck, pulling him down, and keeping him from rising to the heights of fortune and felicity. The well-off or educated Negro...will not lift a finger to lighten the burden of his people. Thus, the most enterprising and ambitious segment of the Negro population has segregated itself—from the Negro millions who are left to wallow in the cesspools of frustration which are the Negro ghettos."

OF COURSE, THERE are some notable exceptions. The press makes a big fuss whenever comedian Bill Cosby donates a million dollars to a black university.

But there are millions of other blacks who are doing very well, thank you, who would just as soon forget their roots. I, for one, feel they — more than Whitey — have a moral obligation to help their brothers. External help has failed; improvement must come from within.

But protest marches are a relic of the '60s. Another march on Washington will do nothing to improve the plight of blacks. Such a demonstration carries with it the clear risk of further racial polarization, tension and strife — absolutely the last thing blacks — or any of us — need this hot summer.

... Edith checks into voting vironmental issues that riles many "second home" owners.

Or is it?

In my previous column, it was suggested that some of our "second home owners might consider casting their votes in Charlevoix. By doing so these part-time residents could have a voice in local government, as well as in so many of the issues that affect their property and their environment. People are concerned about the quality of the air, the density of lake usage, and the impact of land development.

A number of people have asked me how to go about changing their voting registration from downstate or out-of-state to this Northern Michigan community.

I wasn't exactly sure, so I thought I'd better check it out and here's what I found. After 30 days, one may go to the Secretary of State's office at 101 W. Hurlbut Sreet. One needs to fill out the Michigan Voter Application on the premises. It is then sent to the County Clerk's office, who forwards it to the city or town where one now chooses to vote. They will also notify one's former registrar to nullify one's previous voting registration. Simple.

If one is from out-of-state, he or she will also be asked to turn in their out-of-state driver's license and apply for a Michigan license.

But according to the election office in Lansing, if one has a dual residency, a person declares his or her preference for voting purposes in the palace where he or she intends to return. (It is the IRS who questions the required six months residency period, not the Secretary of State.) An extreme example, a person may be sent overseas for several years by a corporation and still vote in the town where he or she intends to return.

There's more to ponder. Married couples need to consider where they file their income tax return. We all know that Michigan residents pay a 4.6 percent state income tax. Other states pay the same, but some states like Florida have no state tax. Therefore couples from Florida would not be wise to register to vote in Michigan, while it wouldn't make any financial difference to couples from downstate.

Furthermore, according to my CPA source, spouses can have a different residency, and still file a joint return. In other words, there are couples who do divide their vote, one voting downstate and the other voting in Northern Michigan.

You think that's all? Not quite. When you apply for a Michigan Voter Registration form at the Secretary of State's Office, you are also going to have to fill out a Political Party Preference Declaration in order to vote in the presidential primary. This will be held in March 17, 1992.

If you fail to file by Feb. 17, 1992, or you indicate that you have no party preference, you are not eligible to vote in the primary only. Of course you can vote in the general election in November.

Perhaps I have not answered all the complicated questions pertaining to people who may have debated changing their vote to Northern Michigan — people who feel they have suffered taxation without representation for too long. Nevertheless, these are some of the answers that you may share with those who deeply care about our area, and who want to be informed.

Mailing legislation pending

Legislation is pending in the House to crack down on companies which imply a connection with the United States Government in their direct mail advertising. Currently many people are fooled by these official-looking mailings.

Senior citizens are most often the targets of deceptive mailings. They will receive a solicitation that says for example: "Important Benefit Information Inside," enclosed in a very official looking envelope. In reality it is only a company trying to sell something. In some cases, people end up purchasing products or services which they could get free or at a lesser cost through the federal government.

The Deceptive Mailings Prevention Act would help eliminate the confusion that results from this type of mailing. This legislation would require disclaimers to be placed on the face of documents and envelopes which appear to be federally affiliated or endorsed.

Hayes Township court case ends

The people of Hayes Township tried hard to support their zoning ordinance, defending it all the way to the Michigan Supreme Court.

And the Lake Charlevoix Association honored the people of Hayes Township for their efforts.

But in the end, the Supreme Court refused to hear the case, letting stand the decision of the Michigan Court of Appeals that portions of the Hayes Township zoning ordinance were unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court announcement came last week on the same day the Lake Charlevoix Association announcement was made.

Specifically cited was Section 5.13 (b), called "Limitation of 'Funnel Development', which reads as follows:

"Any development in any zoning district which shares a common lake front or stream area may not permit more than one (1) single family home, cottage, condominium or apartment to the use of each one hundred (100) feet of lake or stream frontage in such common lake front or stream area as measured along at the water's edge of normal high water mark of the lake or stream. This restriction is intended to limit the number of users of the lake or stream frontage to preserve the quality of the waters, and to preserve the quality of recreational use of all waters within the Township. This restriction shall apply to any parcel regardless of whether access to the water shall be gained by easement, common fee ownership, single fee ownership or lease."

In supporting the anti-funneling portion of the zoning ordinance, the township argued that paragraph three (3) of the Rural Zoning Act states that a zoning ordinance shall be "based upon a plan designed ... to conserve natural resources and energy," and requires that reasonable consideration be given to natural resources, and lakes and streams are natural resources.

However, the Michigan Court of Appeals did not interpret that portion of the Rural Township Zoning Act that way. "We do not read it as being a grant of power to the townships. Rather, our reading of Paragraph 3 is that it is one of restriction upon the zoning powers of a township by specifically requiring the township to give consideration to various factors such as the impact upon the natural resources, before enacting zoning ordinance ... the fact that a township must consider the impact of a zoning ordinance upon lakes and streams does not necessitate the conclusion that townships have the authority to regulate lakes and streams by way of a zoning ordinance."

The constitutionality of portios of the Hayes Township Zoning ordinance was questioned by Fox & Associates when they filed suit in Circuit Court against the township in January of 1985. That court upheld the zoning ordinance but Fox appealed to the Michigan Court of Appeals, which found that portions of the ordinance were unconstitutional.

Fox & Associates owns 337 acres of property with 2,800 feet of Lake Charlevoix shoreline in Hayes Township but because of certain lake use restrictions had not been able to obtain a zoning permit from the township for a development they proposed.

Fox & Associates vs. Hayes Township became a well known court case throughout Michigan because its final determination would affect hundreds of townships and municipalities with anti-funneling provisions in their zoning ordinances. It had been hoped that the Michigan Supreme Court would hear the case to settle the question with finality.

Hayes Township was joined in its appeal to the Supreme Court by the Michigan Townships Association, the Michigan municipal League, and the Michigan Boating Industries Association as intervenors. Another intervenor was Sally A. Ginn, who owns property adjacent to the Fox property in Hayes Township.

Several local Environmental groups also assisted Hayes Township financially.

Last January, while awaiting word from the Michigan Supreme Court, Fox & Associates and Hayes Township entered into a Consent Agreement in which the township gave Fox permission to build 16 single-family homes along his Lake Charlevoix shoreline along with a 16 slip marina. These homes

... pool group continues to seek applicant for state grant

Strawbridge maintained the pool effort is not going to come to taxes. Smith maintained that it will.

The proposed pool would have six lanes, and be 25 yards long. The cost for just the pool is estimated to be $1.1 to $1.25 million. When a mall area, parking lot and other items are added in, cost estimates range as high as $1.7 million.

The grant application would ask for $750,000 in state money to be matched by $350,000 locally. Half of the local match may be labor and other in kind contributions. The other half, $175,000 would have to be cash.

Under the recreation bond fund grant program, $750,000 is the maximum amount any single project could receive. It is more likely that a project would receive some figure which is less than the maximum.

At Monday's meeting and other meetings, a question which has repeatedly arisen is where funds will come from to operate the pool after it is constructed.

Estimates of a pool operating cost have ranged from $40,000 to $70,000 per year with $50,000 being the figure most commonly sighted by pool proponents.

Councilman Butch Russell asked Strawbridge what would happen if the pool was built and then somewhere down the road a year came when there wasn't enough money to cover operations.

Strawbridge said the pool committee wants to establish an endowment fund and have funds in place to cover pool operations for a long period of time, more than just the first few years.

The council will hold a special council meeting next week to formally support the township making a grant application.

City council continues to discuss Nanny's parking

The city council and owners of Nanny's restaurant are halfway home in deciding how to reroute Ferry Avenue without taking too many parking spaces away from the business.

According to the city plans, Ferry Avenue is to be rerouted from its present location between Nanny's and the lake to a new location behind Nanny's.

A portion of the new route traverses city land which Nanny's currently leases for parking.

Earlier this summer, the city council modified the plans to displace fewer parking spots. However, under an agreement between a former city council and Nanny's owner Mike Barnard, Nanny's is leasing the parking spaces for $1 per year.

Barnard maintains he was given the favorable lease rate in exchange for giving up any claim he had to the land which was abandoned when the railway was taken out.

At Monday evening's council work session, some councilmen indicated they want to increase the $1 per year lease rate and feel a provision in the agreement allows them to do so.

Councilman Ken Whitley suggested a lease rate of $1,000 per year.

There is also a provision in the agreement which would allow the city to sell the property in question to Barnard. Councilman Bill Haggard said he doesn't like the $1 per year lease rate and if that has to be the rate, he would rather sell Barnard the property and get it back on the tax roll.

Barnard said that he feels the previous city council which made the original agreement acted in good faith. He said the current council is now taking a different approach to the matter.

Monday evening's council meeting was a committee of the whole session and the council could take no formal action. However, by conscensus, they referred the matter to the planning commission for review.

The council and Barnard did agree on plans for the lake side of Nanny's. When Ferry Avenue is moved, the city intends to abandon the old road. As the adjacent property owner Nanny's will be able to use the western half of the old road for parking.

Under the modified plans, people will enter the present Ferry Beach parking lot south of Nanny's and exit north of Nanny's. The city will construct a new parking lot to the north of the present beach. The old and new parking lots will not be directly connected. People will have to use the new Ferry Avenue to get from one parking lot to the other.

County Commissioners

Charlevoix County was among 37 counties to send representatives to a County Commissioners' Day at Michigan State University sponsored by the Cooperative Extension service. Shown (from left) are: Adger Carroll, assistant director for Natural Resources and Public Policy, MSU Cooperative Extension Service, county commissioners Ralph Harmon and Larry Matthew and county extension director Rod Cortright.

CHURCH

Vacation Bible School planned

The theme for this years Community Vacation Bible School is "Under God's Big Top". The school sessions will be held at the Assembly of God Church on M-66 from 9:30 to 12:30 Tuesday through Thursday, August 15, 16, and 17. On Thursday at 6:30 p.m. there will be a Grand Finale and Balloon Release for the entire family.

The Bible School takes its circus theme from a performance of "The Greatest Star of All" at the High School gymnasium on Monday evening August 14 at 7 p.m. This performance by The National Touring Company is sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministeral Association, is open to the public and has free admission.

With a kick off from The Greatest Star of All, the circus theme will be continued with the children learning the variety of life and feelings God has given us, the juggling of daily decisions, and the freedom and joy that knowing Jesus and the Bible can provide. Activities include clown makeup, puppets and circus crafts related to a biblical daily unit.

Children who will be four years old by September through those who have completed the 5th grade may register. The registration fees are set at $3 per child or $10 per family. Scholarships are available. Registration forms may be obtained at area churches or on posters located in several community businesses.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

It has never ceased to amaze me that almost every year, one or more of American's pollsters surveys the nation's feelings about God. And almost every year, they come back with virtually the same results. Better than 75 percent of the people surveyed, in some cases 90 percent, believe in God.

Believe it or not, I have a problem with those results. As a pastor, I can't help but ask if that many people do believe, where are they? Churches ought to be fuller. New ones, instead of being a great adventure to start, ought to be springing up all the time!

Where are all those believers? A little self test provides at least part of the answer. Bring to mind something that is really troubling you right now. Get it out on the center stage of your mind. How well are you dealing with it? Probably not very well or it wouldn't be pressing, unless, and here is the test, you took that problem to God first. That is one of the biggest reason for having faith you know.

We seem to have a difficult time realizing that God is interested in everything that concerns us. There are plenty of Biblical examples to back that up. He airlifted daily supplies of bread and meat to the children of Israel while they took their wilderness trek. A widow, faced with the loss of one of her children due to overwhelming debt, saw the one thing of value she had multiplied to where she could sell the excess. She paid off her debts and had money left over. Do you remember the man who was healed after seven ducks in a muddy river? How about Jesus saving a wedding by changing water into wine?

Think carefully about these acts of God. They are miracles in our eyes. But they are really nothing more than our living heavenly Father's response to the needs of His children.

Have you heard the commercial "a mind is a terrible thing to waste?" Hold on to that phrase for a moment and consider this idea. When you let your problems so upset you that you don't even think of your faith in God, that is where the real waste in life is.

God knows what worries you. He knows the problems that can overwhelm you. But He will not interfere. He's waiting for you to put your belief where it belongs. He's waiting for you to open your heart and put your full trust in Him.

Mesquite keeping busy during summer months

Summertime is a pleasantly busy time for the Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite. After the frantic hustle of the spring buoy season, the warmer months bring the more relaxed pace of the Michigan festival season.

Mesquite began her festival season on June 30th at Escanaba's Bayfest, giving tours to over 800 people. She then returned home and while the crew enjoyed the Fourth of July with family and friends, over 300 visitors toured the ship at the City Dock. While enroute to Traverse City on July 9th for the Cherry Festival, Mesquite developed problems with main switchboard and was forced to turn back to Charlevoix.

Still in store for Mesquite this summer is the Charlevoix Venetian Festival in late July. Included in this year's festival will be the Mesquite change of command. The change of command is a time-honored ceremony at which Lieutenant Commander Thomas Conlan, Commanding Officer of the Mesquite, will be formally relieved by Lieutenant Commander Richard Lynch.

LCDR Lynch comes to Charlevoix from Coast Guard headquarters in Washington D.C. The change of command will be held on board Mesquite at City Pier at 11 a.m., July 29. All are invited to attend and say goodbye to LCDR Conlan and welcome LCDR Lynch to Charlevoix.

The Ninth Coast Guard District Commander, Rear Admiral Applebaum, will be in Charlevoix for the festivities. He will preside over the change of command, and will remain in Charlevoix to run in the 10K road race Saturday morning and to act as a judge for the annual evening boat parade. Mesquite will serve as the judging platform for the boat parade and will be open for tours during much of the Venetian Festival.

In early August Mesquite will end her festival season with the Cooperstown conference on Mackinac Island. Shortly after she will travel to Duluth, MN to join the rest of the Great Lakes Buoy Tender Fleet for the yearly tender conference. The conference is a two week period set aside for training, discussing professional methods and engaging in highly spirited athletic competition.

September brings autumn and will find Mesquite entering a period of much needed maintenance and repair. She will be drydocked to perform routine hull inspections and to replace the stern tube seal. She will return to Charlevoix in October to prepare for the fall decommissioning run with time out, of course, for Ghost Ship.

Lake levels not a problem

During June, all the Great Lakes continued their usual early summer rises. Lakes Superior and Michigan-Huron were near their June long-term average levels. Lakes St. Clair, Erie and Ontario were well above their average levels for June. Precipitation in June was near average on the Lakes Superior and Michigan-Huron basins, and well above average on the Lakes Erie and Ontario basins.

The Great Lakes forecast shows that Lakes Superior and Michigan-Huron are expected to be near their long-term average levels during the next six months.

Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of June were at elevation 578.88 feet above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec, or 23 inches above Chart Datum. This was about 3 inches below what it was a year ago, but 4 inches above one month ago. The June monthly mean level of 578.56 feet was about 2 inches below the long-term average for June. The lakes, however, remained about 32 inches above their all-time low June monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1964. The forecast shows that at the end of July, the level of lakes Michigan-Huron will be about 1 inch above what it was at the end of June. The lakes are expected to complete their seasonal rise in July. The water level in December 1989, is expected to be about the same as the long-term average for that month.

Road Commission reports on receipt of state funds

Charlevoix County has only 720 miles of paved roads, but the Charlevoix County Road Commission helps maintain many miles of state and federal highways in the county, and it all adds up to big business.

Last year, the Road Commission received $1,617,546 from the Michigan Transportation fund to take care of county road, $67;843 from the Economic Development Fund to take care of forest roads in the county, $304,986 from the federal government, $335,374 in county-raised funds (mostly from townships), and $379,222 from other sources (mostly for trunk line maintenance), for a total of $2,704,919.

During the year, the Road Commission spend $2,825,519 on road construction, road maintenance, equipment, administration, and miscellaneous expenses, bringing expenditures $120,600 over revenue.

BUSINESS

Store specializes in model trains

by PEG OHLE

When Richard Young's job with a large Ohio company was terminated by a merger, he and his wife, Carolyn, decided to give up the city and move north for a "better life."

They had spent vacations in the area, and after considering all the possibilities, they decided on Charlevoix as a place to open a business.

Richard and Carolyn opened their Silk Flower Shop in the Edgewater Inn last summer, with Richard serving as the "tree builder" and doing other heavy work around the shop. There wasn't enough for him to do, however, so, after studying the market, he decided Charlevoix needed a toy train shop.

There was space available in the lower level of the flower shop, so that was converted into The Toy Train Shop, full of large scale replicas of Austrian, Swiss, and German cars and engines as well as large scale replicas of many old American smaller scale trains.

Train tracks encircle the shop just above eye level, and with a flip of a switch, a locomotive and three freight cars start their trip with realistic chugs and an occasional whistle.

Young admits he always liked toy trains and that may be why he chose them as a sales item.

"Large scale trains such as the LBD we handle are growing in popularity. They can be used indoors or outdoors on a deck, patio, or even in a garden. A special plastic coating on the trains prevents fading," he explained.

Young added that most hobby shops in northern Michigan do not stock many of the large scale trains. He sells them by the started sets that includes tracks, a locomotive, cars, and other accessories such as people, and he also welds individual pieces.

"We like to get both the kids and the fathers interested," Young said. "The kids can use the starter set and the fathers can have their own trains with more complicated equipment, but use the same track.

"We sell for less than most retails shops in the big cities, my customers tell me," he concluded.

Young also buys old trains sets or trades them in on new models.

Richard Young sits in front of some of his model trains.

DNR plans to auction land

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) will offer for sale nearly 500 acres and 2,000 platted lots of tax-reverted lands in the northern Lower Peninsula on July 31, and August 1, 2, and 3.

Public auctions will take place July 31 at the Park Place Hotel, 300 State Street, Traverse City; August 1 and 2 at the Holiday Inn, 2650 South Business Loop, Grayling; and August 3 at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 19510 20-Mile Road, Old 131, Big Rapids. Pre-registration for each sale will begin at 9 a.m., followed by the auction at 10 a.m. the state will reserve mineral rights, aboriginal antiquities (archaeological finding) and rights of access to watercourses.

Roland Harmes, DNR Real Estate Division Chief, said a total of 1,284 property sale units, determined to be surplus to state needs, will be offered during the sales. Properties for sale are located in the following counties: Alcona, Alpena, Antrim, Arenac, Bay, Benzie, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Clare, Crawford, Emmet, Gladwin, Grand Traverse, Iosco, Isabella, Kalkaska, Lake, Leelanau, Manistee, Mason, Mecosta, Midland, Missaukee, Montmorency, Newaygo, Oceana, Ogemaw, Osceola, Oscoda, Otsego, Presque Isle and Roscommon.

Harmes said bids as low as $10 will be accepted for some sale units, and that total minimum bids set by the state would equal $602,165.

Sale booklets containing property descriptions are available at all county courthouses in the northern Lower Peninsula and at DNR district offices, or by contacting Judd Arnold, DNR Region II Headquarters, Box 128, 8717 N. Roscommon Road, Roscommon 48653, 517-275-5151; or Gary L. Hartsuff, DNR Real Estate Division, Box 30028, Lansing 48909, 517-373-1250.

Tax-reverted land sales for the southeastern half of the Lower Peninsula will be held later in August and September.

Tom Hanna named to First State Bank board

Thomas A Duke, Chairman of First State Bank of Charelvoix, has announded the appointment of Thomas G. Hanna to the bank's board of directors.

Hanna, general manager for Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Company, has been affiliated with Top O' Michigan since 1974 and was appointed its general manager in 1979. A graduate of Cleveland State University, he is a professional engineer by education and experience. Tom and Ann Hanna have been residents of Charlevoix County since 1967 when Tom was assigned to assist in the operations of the Medusa Cement Company's plant in Charlevoix.

Yachting Notes

by A. NONY MOUSE

'Twas just another perfect Wednesday night, here in paradise! The rain had done gone, the clouds were losing their cover, blue and gold were the colors of the western skies as we headed home. A good northeasterly held for a couple legs then diminished to a ghost by the sixth (and final) leg on a neat course with proper (!) stakes-to-port. (Thanks, Phil.) Slapshot did the hat trick by taking like honors and then first in Fleet A and overall with 1:57:07, the new main just purr-forming. Actually, Dave Strawbridge's Pygmalion got the gun but was a sad sight (no mast) despite the happy crew, just out watching. Gotcha gotta second place hat trick while Flash Gordon's new Cal 34, John, beat Mint Julip for third in the A Fleet.

While Mi-Joy was third at the line, fifth to cross Blasen corrected at 2:08:02, just 29 seconds better for first in Fleet B and fourth overall. Trailing both were the Lost Vermonter, third at 2:09:50 then Cygnus, Tireless, Miller Time, Sandpiper, Kitty Wake and Ti-Gi.

HSMM (Happy Sailors Make Mistakes) jumped the gun but restarted and were fourth across the finish line, third overall (2:03:59) and first in Fleet C (thanks kid, your old man loves that new 164 Genoa). Bandit and Newsense were both in the money 'way ahead of Mud Duck, Allons-y and Minors in Possession (with the main minor "downstate").

Cabaret again smoked the JAM Fleet (2:21:55) with about 6 minutes on Nancy who also had 6 on Hot Mustard. Following were Maureen, Apothecary, Stalworth, Canusa and Spirit.

"'Tis better to be merry with the fruitful grape than sadden after none, or bitter, fruit." Join the old tent maker, if he can rise from his ashes and dust – at a CYC Wine Tasting Party this Friday evening at 6 p.m. Just $2.50 covers; so bring a guest (hey, Guest, if nobuddy'l bring ya, come on down – just say Omar invited you). It's at the Club (the Railway Depot, if you're one of them guests).

Slalom in sailboats? Yep! Hot Dog! CYC at 10 a.m. sharp, Aug. 26, the Saturday before Red Fox for Semi-Pro Match Racing against the best of the rest. Hank, Dave, Mike, Karl, Bill, E, Bob, etc – Challenge! And, it's for The Best Damn Skipper of the Year trophy! Look out for youth, too; I hear that the top few skippers of the Sailing School youth program will be invited. That's ok, we'll make 'em sail against each other 'til there is only one left (and hope he, or she, has had at least one loss by then). Double elimination, as always.

Don't overlook the August 30 Wednesday Night Sail Social at Oyster Bay, that's the week after the last race of the Summer Series on August 23. Or the Michelob Cup Race, Friday afternoon, September 1; then the Red Fox Regatta on Saturday and Sunday! ('way too Soon!)

...the End of the Mouses' Tale.

Mainlanders beat Islanders

The Bay Shore Steel softball team took a road trip this past weekend. Well, maybe road trip isn't the proper term. In this case it was more of a wave trip.

The steel team visited Beaver Island this past Saturday and took both ends of a double header from a team of islanders.

Bay Shore took the first game 17-10 and the second game 11-8. Winds were fair at the island field and home runs were plentiful. Mike Pearsall hit three, Chris Havens two and Bruce Mativa, Tim Melke and Butch Potter one apiece for the winners. Dave Melke picked up both pitching wins.

City softball results

Bay Shore Steel, Pat McKeown Ford and Iron Works-Quality Limo picked up mens slow pitch softball wins July 19.

Butch Potter had a trifecta, three home runs, to lead Bay Shore Steel to a 17-10 victory over Pine Hill Nursery. Dave Sommerville also had a home run for the winners. Dave Melke was the winning pitcher.

Pat McKeown Ford just got past Paul Bunyan Lanes 13-12. Bill Joy homered for the winners while Jay Mosoryak did the same for the losers. Bill Roloff got the pitching win.

Iron Works-Quality Limo comfortably beat Harbor Industries 17-2. Steve Leazier homered for the winners. Gary Smith homered for the losers. Dave Cole allowed but five hits as winning pitcher.

In womens play Thursday, Venture Video, First State Bank and Tapawingo-Romas-Rocky Top Farms all recorded fairly easy wins.

Venture beat Kwikie Printing 8-4. Winning pitcher Judy McDonough allowed only six hits. Lisa Cornell and Jessica Metara accounted for four of Kwikie's six hits, each with two. For Venture, Adele Letman and Ann Willis each had two hits.

First State Bank clobbered LexaMar 14-2. Winning pitcher Shelly Essenberg allowed four hits. Angie McClanathan had a home run and Essenberg and Melissa Boss each had three hits for the bank.

T.R.R. handily defeated Town House 16-2. Brenda Bruce had a home run for the winners while winning pitcher Laura Kemp gave up only five hits.

Girls basketball alumni day planned

Alumni of the Charlevoix High School girls basketball program are being sought for a mid November get together.

Former coach Toni Felter is seeking alumni players. Plans call for the players to get together during an afternoon and evening. In the afternoon, there will be a basketball clinic with alumni working with seventh and eighth grade girls. In the evening, the alumni will divide into teams and play a game.

The first season Charlevoix High School fielded an official team was 1970-71. Last year 13 alumni players got together and scrimmaged the varsity team.

Hunting and fishing license revenues rise

For the second consecutive year, revenue from hunting and fishing license sales climbed about 7 percent in 1988, and the number of people buying fishing and hunting licenses increased slightly from the previous year, according to the latest license sales figures released July 18 by Secretary of the Interior Manuel Lujan.

A total of 15,918,522 people bought hunting licenses in fiscal year 1988, compared with 15,812,528 during fiscal year 1987. Fishing license purchasers numbered 31,478,490 in fiscal year 1988, compared with 30,345,714 in 1987. Money spent on licenses and associated permits, tags, and stamps in 1988 reached an overall total of $710 million, compared with the previous total of $661 million.

Money from the sale of fishing and hunting licenses, permits, tags, and stamps is used to fund state fish and wildlife programs. These license sales figures are compiled annually by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service from information submitted by state fish and wildlife agencies. State funding through the Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration and the Federal Aid in Sport Fish Restoration programs, both administered by the Service, is determined in part by the number of paid fishing and hunting license holders in each state.

MORE SENIOR STUFF

More senior citizens participate in the congregate meal program than any other program offered. Meals are served five days a week at the East Jordan Senior Center, the Charlevoix County Senior Center at the VFW Hall, and the Boyne City Senior Center in the Boyne City Hall. Nutritionally balanced meals are served at noon every weekday for a suggested donation of $1.25, although no one is refused a meal if he or she cannot pay.

The home-delivered meal program serves those who are physically unable to get to the meal sites. These meals are delivered in covered containers and the food is ready to eat. A similar $1.25 donation is requested for these meals.

The homemaker and home chore services are used by senior citizens who for reasons of health or other infirmities cannot handle the work of daily living. They, too, are asked to pay a donation toward the cost of he services if they are financially able.

The friendly visitor makes scheduled telephone calls to senior citizens who live alone, assuring them of help if and when needed. The information and referral service provides answers to questions that senior citizens may have about almost any aspect of their lives.

The Charlevoix County Transit System is not a Commission on Aging service. Rather, it is funded by the State Department of Transportation and local millage and provides transportation for people of all ages. However, senior citizens represent a large percentage of its customers.

Headquarters of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging are located in Boyne City, phone 582-7301. Questions concerning Commission on Aging Services will be answered through this office.

Sidewalk repair work began last week. This summer the city hopes to complete infrastructure sidewalk repairs in all southside residential areas.

BRAKE PRICES?

UNTIL THEY PULL THE WHEELS, THEY'RE PULLING YOUR LEG.

Think about it. How do some brake places know what your next job'll cost if they've never seen your brakes to begin with? Answer: they don't.

Fact is, there's no way anyone can figure out exactly what the price will be. There are just too many possibilities.

That's why at Midas, we pull all four wheels before every brake job. To get inside your brakes. To inspect them. To positively determine what's gone wrong. From a nine dollar can of fluid to a new master cylinder.

And when we're finished, we'll give you a pinpoint estimate of the entire job. With a price that won't go up when the job's done. That's our promise to you.

So when it comes time to pay, you'll have a leg to stand on.

City of Charlevoix Band Pavilion
INSTRUCTION TO BIDDERS

A. SUBMISSION OF PROPOSALS

Sealed proposals will be received by the city manager at his office until 10:00 a.m. July 28, 1989, located in the city building at 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan.

Proposals shall be based on performing the work in strict conformity with the working drawings and project manual prepared by the architect and shall be delivered on or before 10:00 a.m. July 28, 1989 to the city manager's office.

Proposals must be on forms furnished by the architect and accompanied by a bid bond or certified check in the amount of five percent (5%) of the proposal submitted.

B. PREPARATION OF PROPOSALS

Proposals shall be submitted in duplicate (one copy to developer, one copy to architect) on forms provided by the architect. Proposals shall not contain any recapitulation of the work to be done. Oral, telephone or telegraphed proposals or modifications will not be considered.

Proposals shall be filled in completely, including alternate proposals and all amounts must be in words as well as figures as called for in the proposal. Proposals which are not filled in completely will be rejected.

Proposals which contain qualifications and/or modifications to the base proposal will be rejected.

Signatures must be in long hand and executed by the principal duly authorized to make contracts. The bidder's legal name must be fully stated. The completed form shall be without interlineation, alteration, or erasure.

Each proposal shall be sealed in an opaque envelope and marked with the name of the building project, and name of the bidder.

The proposals will be opened publicly and read aloud.

The City reserves the right to reject any and all bids, whole or in part and waive any informalities therein.

Since this project is civic in nature and that many local contributions have already been given by local citizens, it is encouraged that local sub contractors and suppliers will also make monetary contributions when and if they are selected by the successful general contractor.

C. ACCESS TO DOCUMENTS

Copies of the contract documents will be on file at the office of the architect and the office of the city manager.

D. CONTRACT SECURITY

The bidder shall certify that he qualifies for performance, labor and materials bonds in amount of 100% of the contract, and that these bonds will be executed at the option and instruction of the city.

E. THE CONSTRUCTION TO START SEPTEMBER 5, 1989 WITH A REQUIRED COMPLETION DATE OF MAY 15, 1990.

Coast Guard to be honored

Charlevoix's Annual Venetian Festival, Thursday July 27 through Sunday, July 30, will kick off a year-long celebration of the United States Coast Guard's 200th Anniversary, and is probably the first Coast Guard Bicentennial party in the nation.

"Venetian Festival is a celebration of the lakes. Since the Coast Guard's official celebration begins August 4, we felt we should be the first to wish them 'Happy Anniversary'," says Jacqueline Merta Executive Director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

The Coast Guard has been an important presence in Charlevoix for almost 100 of its 200 years. The first Life Saving Station, with a sailing schooner as a rescue vessel, was established at the turn-of-the-century on Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beach. Since then Charlevoix has hosted both a Search and Rescue Station and served as home port to the Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite.

The four-day extravaganza will be highlighted by a parade of decorated boats and extraordinary fireworks, Saturday evening, July 29.

Charlevoix's Venetian Festival has festivities everyone will enjoy. The street side of the downtown waterfront park, overlooking the picturesque yacht harbor, will be lined with booths offering everything from food to quilts, in the tradition of an old fashioned country fair. Between the booths and the yacht docks, the park will be filled with musical performers ranging from bagpipers to Newman Navy League Cadets. The central waterfront parking lots will be cleared to make space for a professional carnival of rides and games.

Coronation of the Venetian Queen will be a well orchestrated and choreographed pageant, Thursday evening, July 27. Each member of the court will be escorted by a member of the crew of the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite. Highlight of the evening will be the presence of both Miss Michigan 1988, Krista Bloomfren, and recently coronated Miss Michigan 1989, Molly McIntyre, of Monroe.

Friday morning, the Coast Guard will host a full dress Change of Command Ceremony on the deck of the cutter Mesquite as Lieutenant Commander Thomas Conlan, who is moving to a new assignment in Washington, D.C., is relieved by Lieutenant Commander John Lynch. The ceremonies will be presided over by Rear Admiral R.A. Applebaum, Commander of the Ninth Coast Guard District.

A fast pitch softball tournament, featuring 10 of west Michigan's finest teams, opens Friday evening and continues through the weekend, with finals Sunday afternoon.

Dancing under the stars is planned for Friday night as Larry Wojcik and his Big Band entertains Charlevoixans and visitors in the park.

Events run back to back all day Saturday, starting with the Jeff Drenth Memorial Foot Races at 9 a.m. Named in memory of the young Charlevoix Olympic candidate, the 1, 5, and 10 K races include the third leg of the Michigan Triple Crown of One Mile Road Races. Limited to a select group who run a mile under 4:20, the Triple Crown's prize is a purse totalling $1,000, to be divided between top runners who began in Marshall, May 27, followed by Jackson, June 28. There is also a $300 purse to be divided between the top milers in Charlevoix only. The open races Saturday are medal races without purses, according to Pete Spieles, Charlevoix's cross country coach.

The Grand Venetian Street Parade, with floats, marching bands, color guards, equestrians, antique vehicles, drill teams, clowns and more, will march down Bridge Street at noon, this year to a theme of "Hooray for Hollywood."

Saturday afternoon the waterfront park will overflow with activities, including musical entertainments. Miss Charlevoix will be formally presented at 7:45 p.m. just prior to the beginning of the Venetian Boat Parade. Sail boats, under sail, will lead the parade, followed by all manner of lighted and decorated craft at 10 p.m. U.S. Coast Guard Rear Admiral R.A. Applebaum will serve as a judge of the Venetian Boat Parade.

Charlevoix's famous Venetian fireworks begin at 10:30 p.m. Saturday.

Venetian Festival closes Sunday morning when both the American Legion and the Easter Star offer breakfasts before the finals of the fast pitch tournament and model airplane buffs gather at Charlevoix Buffs Airfield for a "fly'in".

Drenth race features state's finest runners

A swift chicken would probably take at least 10 minutes to run one mile. Many human runners in the 11th Annual Jeff Drenth Memorial race will cover that same distance in less than five minutes.

Yes, these runners are faster than a speeding pullet.

The race, which is a traditional part of the Venetian Festival, will take place at the elementary school Saturday morning. Race-day registration begins at 8 a.m.

There will be two one-mile races this year along with the five and 10 kilometer races.

One of the mile races will be a casual race for children, plodders and other runners who just want to check out their time in the mile.

The other mile race is a new event which will feature some of the finest milers in Michigan. Runners competing in that race must be able to run a mile in less than 4 minutes and 20 seconds.

The quick mile race is part of a new event this year which is a Michigan Mile triple crown. Charlevoix is the final leg of the race. The other two legs were run earlier this summer in Marshall and Jackson. There will be $1,000 in prizes at stake in the race.

There will also be $300 in prizes for Charlevoix mile racers.

The casual mile will start at 9 a.m. The five and 10 K races will start together at 9:30. The entry fee for the races is $7 prior to July 29 and $8 on race day. Racers may also pay a dollar less if they choose not to receive a race T shirt.

There is also a special family fee of $7 for the casual mile race. One shirt will be given out for that fee.

There will be aid stations along the way in the 5 and 10 K races and postrace refreshments will be provided.

Trophies and plaques will be awarded to the male and female winners of each race. The top three finishers by age group will receive medals. All runners will receive ribbons.

Following the race there will be a drawing for prizes donated by local merchants.

The race is sponsored jointly by the Charlevoix High School Cross Country Team and the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. For more information, contact race director Pete Spieles at 547-2398. Entry forms are available at the Chamber of Commerce building.

Bandshell low bid is $285,000

Council looks at ways to cut cost

There is about $110,000 available to finance building a new bandshell, but the low bid to construct the new bandshell is $285,000.

What to do? What to do?

The city council and an audience of approximately 20 people grappled with that question at a council committee of the whole meeting Monday evening.

Although the matter was discussed for approximately an hour, no single suggestion received anything close to unanimous approval.

Ultimately, the council decided to have architect Jack Begrow and Mike Wiesner work on the matter further and suggest some areas where the project might be scaled back to cut costs. They will report back to the council at the end of August.

Controversy and lengthy discussion is nothing new to the bandshell project. Earlier this year various factions in the community debated the design of the bandshell and the ultimate design decision ended up being made by the council.

At the time the council decided upon a design, the project carried an estimated cost of approximately $186,000.

Since that time, it was discovered that due to the weight of the building and the type of soil in the park, special pilings and foundations will be needed to support the structure. That added approximately $40,000 to the price tag.

Begrow said that with the added costs, he had estimated the project at $238,000.

The city advertised for bids and received three which were opened late last week. Comstock Construction Company of Traverse City submitted the low bid of $285,000. The other two

Although the weather threatened to rain on the Venetian Parade, it held off until the parade was over.

Despite rain following the parade Saturday afternoon, almost all Venetian events were able to take place much to the delight of the thousands of people who were in town for the annual celebration.

Marci Wynkoop won the Venetian queen pageant which kicked off the festival Thursday evening. Wynkoop also won the talent portion of the event, singing the Whitney Houston song, "One Moment In Time."

Boat parade moves to upswing

The 1989 Venetian boat parade was one of the finest in recent years and may be the start of an upswing in the popularity of the event.

Charlevoix's boating community can be proud of the 1989 Venetian boat parade. One would hope the 1989 boat parade proves to be a springboard for fine parades in future years.

In recent years, the boat parade has suffered from a lack of entrants. Boaters seemed to be either too busy to decorate their boats or preferred to watch the parade rather than be part of it.

Although that same dearth of participants was feared this year, that fear did not materialize. despite some dreary weather Saturday afternoon, more than a dozen lighted boats participated in the boat parade.

Even more impressive than the quantity of the entries was the quality and spirit.

The winning boat, the Serenity III, featured bouncing stars and a chorus line of dancers. The runner up, the Safe-Stress, was highlighted by a rocket ship of lights. Another entry, Cygnus, offered a tribute to the Coast Guard which drew rave reviews on the deck of the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite.

Over the 59 years of the Venetian Festival, there have been times when the boat parade was nothing but something to do to pass time until the fireworks began. This year's boat parade was much more than that. It was an event unto itself; a showpiece.

Many events in festivals, and life in general, seem to be cyclical. They're either on their way up or on their way down.

With any luck, the 1989 Venetian boat parade will be remembered as one which put the parade on the way up.

...bandshell proves to be costly

bids were $326,186 and $326,252.

Charles Papineau, a retired contractor who was at Monday's committee meeting, said he'd estimated the project using 1982 building figures and came up with an estimate of $213,000. He said that after compensating for inflation since 1982, he figures the Comstock bid is about right.

Monday evening, councilmen considered things which might be done to whittle the cost of the project.

Eliminating the fish pond, bathrooms and place for electrical transformers was considered, but councilmen indicated those items, particularly the fish pond, should be left in the project.

Three councilmen, Butch Russell, Ken Whitley and Earl Muma, talked of not building a bandshell in the park, but just replacing the fish pond and constructing either a small gazebo or stage.

Begrow said that only a few local subcontractors participated in the bid process. He said that Comstock is willing to work with local contractors and that might reduce the cost of some phases of the project.

He also spoke of possibly scaling back parts of the pond involving the pumping system and waterfall.

City electrical renovations are going to require an electrical transformer in the East Park area. During bandshell design discussions, councilmen indicated they want the transformer in the basement of the bandshell.

At Monday's committee meeting, Wiesner said a valid argument might be made that some money from the city electric fund should go toward the bandshell due to the transformer. However, the additional cost due to the transformer is going to be minimal as other than space its only requirements are some larger-than-normal doors and a ventilation system.

Councilman Bill Haggard noted that Downtown Development Authority (DDA) funds might also be used to help fund bathrooms and perhaps the sound system. Last year, when former mayor Ralph McRae suggested using DDA funds for bandshell bathrooms, a majority of the council was opposed to the idea.

Russell said that if a bandshell can't be built in the park for the original $186,000 estimate, it might be better to build some type of civic entertainment facility somewhere other than East Park. Muma expressed similar sentiments in regard to building an enclosed pavilion away from the downtown area and East Park.

While Begrow and Wiesner are discussing cost cuts, leaders of the factions previously involved in the bandshell debate have agreed to initiate discussions concerning future fundraising efforts.

Matthew Schnackenberg, a Charlevoix High School senior, recently participated in a graphic arts seminar which is part of the Summer Institute for the Arts and Sciences at Michigan Technological University. The institute, a two-week program sponsored by the Michigan State Board of Education, is designed to give students an opportunity to explore different career possibilities in the arts and sciences. Schnackenberg is the son of Richard and Lee Schnackenberg.

Russians will visit Charlevoix

by PEG OHLE

A visit to Charlevoix by four Russian citizens has been rescheduled for September 16 through 19.

The group will be on tour under the auspices of an organization called "Soviets, Meet Middle America," which has headquarters in California.

A planned visit to Charlevoix by another group in the early part of last month had to be cancelled because of visa problems.

Ralph McRae is the contact person for Charlevoix and he will work with a committee to set up housing and activities for the Russians while in Charlevoix.

Those who come to Charlevoix will be part of a group of 20 who will travel and visit across the continental United States and Hawaii and Alaska. Each group of four will visit three different areas. They will all land in New York September 15 and spread out from there.

The four who will visit Charlevoix will come directly from New York. After their four days here, they will depart for Evergreen, Colorado, a suburb of Denver, stay there for four days, then depart for Lawai, Hawaii for another four-day stay.

Those tentatively scheduled to come to Charlevoix are introduced as follows:

Olga Alexeeva, who was born in 1964. She graduated from the Moscow Pedagogical Institute, now teaches school, and is interested in visiting American schools. She speaks English.

Anatoly Strumin, who was born in 1955: He graduated from Moscow University and is a professional journalist who serves as chief of the "Komsomolskaya Pravda" commerce department. He will be the formal head of the delegation. He is interested in American media and advertising and would like to explore the possibility of a Soviety-American joint project, "Holidays in the Russian Countryside." He speaks fair English.

Natalia Kuprijanova, who was born in 1958. She lives in Moscow and graduated from Moscow Pedagogical Institute. She is an interpreter and will take part in talks and interpreting for Anatoly Strumin.

Shraga-Goga Clauzner, who was born in 1936. He lives in Tyumen, graduated from Tomsk Polytechnical Institute, and is now the manager of the Tyumen plastics plant. He does not speak English.

McRae and the trip's sponsors emphasize there may be some changes in dates and personnel before the scheduled visit.

Local Scouts return from summer camp

A group of local Boy Scouts recently returned from a "Great Summer" week at Camp Greilick, the 560 acre Boy Scouts of America camp located southeast of Traverse City.

Camp Greilick is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year as is the Scenic Trails Council of Northern Michigan.

During the week at Camp Greilick, Charlevoix scouts earned a total of 15 merit badges and 11 skill awards.

Charlevoix's troop was led by senior patrol leader Gary Arnold. He was assisted by patrol leaders Mark Schairbaum of the Beaver Patrol, Andrew Laucher of the Panther Patrol and James Pfluecke of the Owl Patrol. Other scouts attending the camp were: Ron Zellers, Mike Ochs, Scott Burns, Gregg Seaman, junior assistant scoutmaster Steve Kniat, Noel Kammerman, John Chase, Mike White, Scott Blechel, Eric Rowell, T.J. Caldwell and junior assistant scoutmaster John Rathjens.

Scoutmaster Jack Laucher, assistant scoutmaster John Pfluecke, assistant scoutmaster and eagle scout Bill Burns and troop committee members Gerald Chase and Dave Arnold accompanied the scouts.

Sunglasses for Windows

It's like putting sunglasses on a window, says David Bibler, about applying Llumar, solar-controlled window films.

The Micro-thin, polyester-mylar films are virtually invisible when properly applied to existing windows.

But the films block up to 80 percent of the heat in summer and retain up to 65 percent of the heat in the winter, says Bibler, co-owner of quality Window Tinting, both in Traverse City and Grand Rapids, with his wife, Judy.

Three types of films—reflective, non-reflective and low E series are all covered by a 7 year warranty.

Quality Window Tinting also installs solar control film on motor homes, campers, vans, boats and passenger vehicles. All installations come with a lifetime guarantee.

A multitude of plans and preparations are made for the Venetian Festival. While placing portable restrooms downtown might not have been the most glamorous preparation made, no doubt it was appreciated by those who made use of the facility.

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Pussycats' pitiful plight

Pity the poor Tigers.

It is a lost year for both the Tiger batters and pitchers.

A guy sitting at the kitchen table after dinner and picking his teeth with a toothpick is wielding better wood at the plate than many of the Tiger batters.

If you're a Tiger pitcher this season, a successful outing is taking your family to the beach on a day when there's no ball game.

Until they get up to .500, which probably ain't going to happen this year, I won't be spending a lot of time watching the Tigers.

For nonsports fans, the term ".500" refers to a percentage, based on a scale ranging from .000 to 1.000. In the particular sport we're discussing here...which is baseball...this scale is used as something of a yardstick in keeping track of wins and losses.

For example if our team...which in this case is the Tigers...the Detroit Tigers...they play baseball...professional baseball..."professional" meaning they're paid to play it - and in this unfortunate year, it just means they're paid to play it, not necessarily to play it well.

Getting back to the term ".500", the percentage scale and the yardstick thing. For the purpose of this example, say the Tigers had played only four games this year and they won three and lost but one. They would have a winning percentage of .750.

Of course the playing only four games and the winning percentage of .750 was only for the purpose of example. When we get back to a "for the purpose of reality" situation, things get ugly.

In reality, the Tigers have not played only four games this year. As of Sunday, following a 14-3 thrashing from the Baltimore Orioles, the Tigers had played 102 games and won only 35 of them while losing 67.

This means they have a winning percentage of merely .343 which is 16 games, or .157, below .500.

As I said earlier, until the Tigers get back to .500, I don't envision myself spending much time watching them play.

No doubt some diehard Tiger fans will accuse me of being a fair-weather fan, someone who leaves the team in its time of need, a fan who jumps ship when seas turn rough.

I deny this charge. Although I'm not going to waste my time and subject myself to the frustration of watching a team which gets beat by scores like 14-3, that doesn't mean I won't still support them. I'll just do it in other, indirect ways.

Baseball is a game heavily freighted with statistics such as .500. I'm sure that if a devoted fan such as myself were to take some time and work with these statistics, something inspiring to both fans and players might come of it.

Sure the Tigers only have a winning percentage of .343, but on the other hand they have a losing percentage of .657. Now a figure like that is a little more impressive.

As Tiger fans, I think we owe it to ourselves and to our team to simply say that our team is playing .657 ball this year.

If fans of other teams, teams that are winning, get suspicious and start asking questions about our .657 claim, we will just support it by citing other statistics. We'll tell them that one of the primary reasons the Tigers are having as much success as they're having this year and playing .657 ball is because there are several Tiger players this year who are hitting right up around .800.

Thanks for historical auction

Dear Editor:

The Charlevoix Historical Society would like to thank all of the private donors and the Charlevoix merchants for their gracious donations toward our Attic Auction. We would also like to thank Dave Phillips and his Wharfside Deli for providing a splendid array of fine food for our auction crowd.

Thank you for your time and patience in making this Attic Auction a rousing success.

Building 1,200,000 houses

Dan Vreeland, a former Charlevoix resident who has been lured away by the bright lights of Petoskey, is concerned about the cost of the B-2 bomber.

Dan thinks we could put the $72 billion to better use.

Housing, for example.

Ever since he entered the real estate business, Dan tends to think of things in terms of housing.

He claims that if the $72 billion were spent on housing, the money would build 1,200,000 homes at a cost of $50,000 each.

"It would solve our housing shortage," he claims.

The homes Dan envisions are pretty nice — three bedrooms, two baths and all the amenities.

But housing isn't the only benefit we could buy for ourselves for $72 billion.

How about a swimming pool for every school district that can't afford one?

How about refurbishing our schools in general?

How about educating our bright young kids who don't stand a chance of getting a higher education?

How about medical research aimed at conquering cancer and AIDS?

The more I think about wasting $72 billion on instruments of death and destruction the madder I get.

Why don't we throw out that whole crowd down in Washington and bring in some responsible, caring citizens?

Come the Revolution!

AFTER SIX WEEKS of drought, wouldn't you know that the first measurable rain of the summer would come on Venetian Saturday?

Somebody up there hates us.

Actually, the rain wasn't that bad — and there's no denying we needed it, what with our parched lawns and dusty gardens.

Besides, the rain stopped in time for the fireworks over Round Lake, which were probably the best ever.

I particularly liked the rockets that left a lighted trail across the sky and the big bursts that spawned several smaller bursts that shot off like mad dogs chasing their tails.

The street parade was fine, as usual. Of course, I missed some of the old entries, such as the Scottville Clown Band, the Epsilon Jass Band, the Palaestrum gymnastic team and the bagpipers. Some viewers thought the fire equipment segment was a bit much, but by and large, the parade was a success.

At one point I held my breath when an unmanned clown car took off down the South Hill, but the clown caught up with it in time and jammed on the brakes. A tad risky for my money, with crowds of children lining both sides of the street.

Under such circumstances, vehicles should have a warm body behind the wheel at all times.

In any event, Round Lake — that little jewel in our navel — never looked lovelier than it did Saturday night, with all the lighted boats on the lake and lighted condominiums ashore.

I wonder if there is a more beautiful sight anywhere in the world?

Can Venice, Italy — the namesake of our Venetian Festival — be more attractive? I somehow doubt it.

There was a time many years ago when I wasn't particularly turned on by the Venetian Festival. The kids were young and the whole weekend wore me to a frazzle.

Lately, however, I look forward to the festival like a kid looks forward to Christmas. Relatives, friends and old neighbors descend on the city in droves and it's fun to see them all again.

Then there are the strangers.

From November through April, hardly a strange face shows up in town and I think we get a little bored looking at each other.

It's nice to see strange faces from strange places and listen to new ideas.

We're not getting inbred, or anything like that; but it's fun to stir the pot from time to time to see what rises to the top.

DO YOU KNOW we have 15 T-shirt shops in town?

I didn't count them because I don't have enough fingers. But a friend made a spot check the other day.

I figure we have enough T-shirts on hand to outfit the Chinese Army.

Letters to the Editor:

Poignant comment supports pool

Dear Sir:

An unreported dramatic and poignant remark at Monday's Charlevoix Council meeting created a mood among those present to cooperate with efforts of the Pool Steering Committee.

A member of the audience, when Council was asked to support the indoor pool effort, eclared "I lost a nephew three years ago who drowned in Lake Charlevoix. Had he known how to swim, he'd be alive today. Whether the pool is $1 million or $2 million, it would be worth it if it would prevent this kind of tragedy."

Someone else in the audience asked why involve city, township, etc. It was explained it is a condition that a unit of government must support the pre-application for $750,000 from the Michigan Recreation Bond Fund, a big part of the $1.1 million needed to construct the pool. This support does not in any way obligate them financially.

As to the concern expressed "about the little fellow" this venture assures access to certified swimming instruction and water safety regardless of financial means. If a family can't afford to send its children away to camp, it still can take advantage of an indoor pool at the elementary school where kids can readily be taught swimming as part of gym class year round.

PSC co-chair Dave Strawbridge asked all of us to work together to accomplish this goal which will benefit young and old.

New boating tax is opposed

The Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries has once again gone on record opposing recreational boating user fees.

Congressman Bob Davis, Vice Chairman of the committee, whose district includes more recreational boaters than any in the nation says the committee was instructed to come up with $200 million in Coast Guard user fees by the House Budget Committee, but opted for other measures instead to meet is "reconciliation" instructions.

Reconciliation is the mechanism used to enforce the spending and revenue assumptions which underlie the annual budget resolution. In the House of Representatives, it is the Budget Committee which gives those enforcing instructions to other House Committees with recommendations on how to come up with the new revenues, or savings in spending. In the case of the 1990 budget, the Committee of Merchant Marine and Fisheries was told it needed to reconcile $200 million. While the reconciliation figure is not negotiable, each committee has the flexibility to come up with the savings or increase revenues in any way it sees fit.

"This is not the first time the Budget Committee has recommended recreational boating user fees, and every time our committee has rejected the idea," Davis said. "We are firmly opposed to a new tax on boaters and we were able to meet our reconciliation target through other programs."

The committee reported a reconciliation bill that includes:

–new $20 per person fees for passenger cruise ships, most of which fly foreign flags; –accounting for the FY1990 fees that will be collected from oil companies under oil spill legislation passed by the committee earlier this year;

–an increase in rental fees paid by U.S. companies for offshore oil and gas leasing activities; and –the interest currently being accrued on the funds normally paid to Panama under the canal treaties that have been put into escrow accounts because they are being withheld from the government of Panama because of the U.S. position on political problems and activities there.

Knight-Denison

Michelle Louise Knight and James R. Denison exchanged marriage vows Saturday afternoon, July 15, at the Charlevoix Congregational Church.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jeffrey L. Porter of Charlevoix and Jonathan J. Knight of Chicago.

The bridegroom is the son of Don Denison of Eastport and Mary Denison of Bloomfield Hills.

The Rev. Ward Clabuesch, great uncle of the bride, and the Rev. Philip Schairbaum officiated at the double ring rites in which the bride was given in marriage by Dr. and Mrs. Porter.

Approximately 100 guests witnessed the ceremony in the church sanctuary which was decorated with gladiolus, delphinium, lilies, astermaria, and curly willow.

The bride wore a gown of silk taffeta fashioned with a full skirt, bodice of French Alencon lace accented with seed pearls and sequins, and bows at the upper arms and back of waist.

Her cathedral-length veil was made of Belgium lace, and she carried an English bouquet composed of roses, delphinium, astermaria, daisies, and baby's breath.

Elizabeth M. Knight assisted her sister as maid of honor, and Kate Reed, Pam Phoutieu, Theresa Linck, Julie Oimoen, and Lisa Cooper served as bridesmaids.

The attendants wore tea-length gowns of multi-colored pastel floral chintz fashioned with full skirts and drop waists with off-the-shoulder necklines. They also carried English bouquets.

Gary Longe served as best man, with Cass Denison, Barney Nefey, Jeff Japinga, William Learned, and Phil Van Winkle serving as groomsmen.

The bride's parents hosted a reception at their home following the ceremony. Music was furnished by the Epsilon Jass Band. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's father at the Belvedere Golf Club.

Following a wedding trip to California, the newlyweds will live in Arlington, Virginia.

Both young people are graduates of Michigan State University, he with a degree in economics and she in education. Earlier, the bride graduated from Cranbrook-Kingswood School and the bridegroom from Seahold High School in Birmingham. The bride now teaches second grade in the Montgomery County (Maryland) school system, and the bridegroom is the associate editor of the Loan Pricing Corporation.

Hair-Johnson

Joanne Lynn Hair and Thomas Lee Johnson were married June 24 at the Salvation Army Citadel in Royal Oak.

The bride is the daughter of William and Clarice Hair of Madison Heights and Walloon Lake, who formerly lived in Charlevoix. The bride's grandmother is Ruth Hair of Charlevoix.

The bridegroom is the son of Phil and Carol Johnson of Manistee.

Both bride and bridegroom are graduates of Ferris State University.

Becky Hair of Warren assisted her sister as maid of honor. Karen Lamoreaux of Traverse City, Lisa Dickinson of Royal Oak, Kathy Kelly of Madison Heights, Leanne Kotecki of Manistee, and Michelle LeMahieu of Manistee were bridesmaids.

Pete Brown of Grand Rapids served as best man, with Phil and Dave Johnson of Manistee, Bob Nichols of Traverse City, Kevin Picardat of East Lansing, Larry Hair of Fountain, Colorado, Bill Hair of Berkley, and Mike Hair of Sterling Heights acting as ushers.

Valene Hair of Sterling Heights, niece of the bride was flower girl, and Kyle Kotecki of Manistee, nephew of the bridegroom was ringbearer.

THOMAS AND JOANNE JOHNSON

A reception at the Troy Elks Club followed the ceremony. Following a wedding trip through northern Michigan, the newlyweds are at home in Warren.

MacArthur-Braswell

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Morgan MacArthur of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter, Karen Mae, to John McCauley Braswell. He is the son of T. Edward Braswell, Jr. of Alexandria, Virginia, and Mrs. Jeff Braswell of Port Gibson, Mississippi.

The intended bride graduated from Michigan State University with a degree in communications. She is presently director of marketing for an Alexandria-based trade association.

Her fiance is a 1977 graduate of Duke University with a juris doctor degree. He also holds a master's degree in law and taxation from Georgetown University.

He is a partner in the Redmon law firm in Alexandria.

The wedding will take place September 8 in historic Christ Church in Alexandria.

Book sale scheduled

The Charlevoix Womens Club will host their annual book sale, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Aug. 11 and 12 at the public library.

The sale is a traditional event in which used books donated by club members and other people are sold. Money raised from the sale is donated to charitable causes.

Brass band plays Saturday

A pops concert entitled "Serenade of Stage and Screen" will be presented by Northwood Orchestra at 7 p.m. Saturday, August 5, at Elm Pointe Park, on M-66 just north of East Jordan. Concert goers can bring blankets or lawn chairs to enjoy the music in the park's picnic area on the shore of Lake Charlevoix's South Arm.

The concert is sponsored by Jordan River Arts Council in conjunction with Portside Art Fair at Elm Pointe, at which 98 artists will display their works from 11 a.m. until the concert begins at 7 p.m.

Featuring the Corporate Brass with two medleys, "The Roaring Twenties" and "Tribute to Duke Ellington," the concert will conclude Northwood Orchestra's 1989 Festival of the Lakes which included six concerts at Black Forest Hall in Harbor Springs.

Selections for the event include Bernstein's overture of "Candide," selections from Loewe's "Camelot," symphonic dances from "West Side Story" and Ravel's "Bolero" popularized in the movie, "10." It will conclude with the all-time favorites, Tchaikowsky's "1812 Overture" and Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Northwood Orchestra, conducted by Don Th. Jaeger, is composed of 48 professional musicians who came from 16 states and two foreign countries for a two-week summer music festival in northern Michigan.

The Corporate Brass, established in 1982, has won acclaim for their exuberant style whether playing renaissance or ragtime, Bach or Basie. They are:

Martin Dennis Porter, trumpet, who is concert and creative arts director at Bowling Green State University and a member of Toledo Symphony Orchestra and Toledo Concert Band.

Larry Herman, trumpet, marketing and public relations director for Fort Wayne Philharmonic and former member of Disneyland Band and Dave Sporny Big Band.

Bernice Schwartz, horn, Bowling Green teacher and member of Toledo Symphony Orchestra and Toledo Concert Band.

David Sporney, trombone, faculty member at University of Massachusetts who has appeared with Dave Brubeck, Chicago Little Symphony and the Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra.

Peter Brockman, tuba, instructor at Interlochen Arts Academy who has performed with the Henry Mancini Orchestra, Johnny Mathis and Andy Williams.

The Elm Pointe event is supported by the Michigan Council for the Arts Touring Arts Agency. Individual tickets are $8.25, and family tickets are $27.50. They may be bought in front of the museum at Portside Art Fair on the day of the concert. They are also available at stores and chambers of commerce throughout Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

Boaters are welcome to anchor in Lake Charlevoix's southern arm near the park's southern section to enjoy the music. An arts council boater will circulate among the nautical listeners to collect donations.

E.J. hosts Portside Art Fair

Detroit News art critic Joy Hakanson Colby will select this year's Portside Art Fair winners which will be purchased to join the permanent collection housed in the Portside Art and Historical Society Museum at Elm Pointe, just north of East Jordan.

Colby, who has been art critic and feature writer for the Detroit News for 35 years, has served on the art advisory panel for the Michigan Council for the Arts, the New Detroit art committee and the Detroit Council for the Arts. She is listed in both "Who's Who in American" and "Who's Who in American Art."

As Portside Art Fair juror, Colby will select both a painting and a craft for purchase prizes, which will be placed in the Cygred Riley Gallery in the museum on Elm Pointe's premises. Riley was sole organizer of the prestigious art fair for its first 25 years and continues to recruit jurors for the yearly purchase prize contest.

Artists entering their works in the competition have already had their work juried to gain acceptance as an exhibitor at Portside, which is limited to 100 artists. The wide range of exhibits include watercolors, oils, acrylics, pen and ink sketches, collages, pottery, sculpture, glass, jewelry and soft sculpture.

This 27th year of the art fair has 96 exhibitors, according to Nancy Carey, one of a five-member committee organizing the event which will take place at Elm Pointe on Saturday and Sunday, August 5 and 6. Other committee members are Anne Dingman, Lynn Carson, Laura Hansen and Patti Hodge.

This year's fair which includes many first-time exhibitors, also features a Saturday night concert for the first time. In conjunction with the Jordan River Arts Council, the Northwood Orchestra will present a pops concert, "Serenade of Stage and Screen," at 7 p.m. Saturday, August 5, in Elm Pointe's picnic area. Tickets ($8.25 individual, $27.50 family) are available at stores and chambers of commerce throughout Charlevoix, Antrim and Emmet counties.

No admission is charged for the fair itself, but because the fair is a major fundraiser for Elm Pointe and the museum, donations are accepted.

John Eckhold

John Cornelius Eckhold, 71, of Charlevoix, died July 24, 1989 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral services were held Thursday, July 27, at Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. James K. Gardiner officiated and burial was in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Eckhold was former director of the office of automotive safety and research for the Ford Motor Co.

He was born in Detroit on Sept. 12, 1917, and resided in the Detroit area until October, 1982. He then had spent his winters in Bradenton, Fla. Mr. Eckhold had summered in Charlevoix since 1969.

During World War II, Mr. Eckhold served as a member of the U.S. Naval Reserves. He was commissioned as an ensign in 1942 and served with distinction in the Pacific campaigns aboard the destroyer escort USS Cowell. In July, 1943 he gained promotion to lieutenant junior grade and in October, 1944, was promoted to a full lieutenant.

After Japan surrendered in 1945, Mr. Eckhold served as part of a team of army and navy officers who toured parts of the Japanese islands, accepting the surrender of various military installations. Mr. Eckhold was honorable discharged from active service in 1946.

On Jan. 11, 1947, he married the former Barbara L. Jackson in Bowling Green, Ohio.

An automotive engineer, Mr. Eckhold attended both Wayne State University and the University of Michigan. He was an alumnus of the University of Michigan School of Engineering.

Following World War II, Mr. Eckhold joined the Ford Motor Co, and in 1958 he was transferred to Cologne, West Germany where he helped establish Ford's European operations. He returned to Ford's world headquarters in Dearborn in 1960 and assumed the office of director of automotive safety and research in 1967. He retired from Ford in January of 1980.

Mr. Eckhold was a member of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

He is survived by: his wife; Barbara J.; two sons and daughters-in-law, Dr. John C. and Margaret S. Eckhold Jr. of Midland and attorney Scott R. and Carolyn B. Eckhold of Petoskey; and four grandchildren, Erin, John C. III, Patrick and Christopher Eckhold.

The family suggests memorials to the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

It was a privilege for me to be aboard the Cutter Mesquite last Friday morning as a part of the change of command ceremony honoring LCDR Tom Conlan and welcoming his replacement, LCDR Rich Lynch. I was fascinated with the pagentry and tradition behind everything that they did. The Mesquite's Exec defined the change of command as "the total and complete passing of responsibility for the vessel and all of its crew from one individual to another."

In a phrase my congregation knows well, that will preach. You see in some ways that is a good explanation of what happens when you give your life to God. A change of command has taken place. When God is truly in control of our hearts, He assumes complete responsibility for what lays ahead. His judgements, His decisions, His direction are meant to dictate the course of our future. Now when you consider that God not only made you but He also created everything that affects your world, is it really all that bad to give control of your life over to Him?

If you have ever been caught out on Lake Michigan in a fog bank, you know that navigating can become difficult, even impossible. Our trying to handle our future on our own is like trying to look through a fog bank. God, on the other hand, as the author and finisher of our faith is able to take us through anything that lays ahead. After all, He drew up the navigation charts for all of life.

When we give God the rightful place in our lives, we can rely on His actions being for our best. He knows our needs. He knows the best methods of supplying those needs. He does not always work the way we might expect in meeting those needs. He also knows the difference between our needs and our wants.

In the light of the power that we know He has, in the light of the knowledge about Him that we are growing into every day, in the light of the unfailing hope of heaven that lays ahead for every faithful child, should any Christian have reason to be afraid? Life is much more satisfying when God is guiding you. Be sure He is in charge of your heart today.

Circus theme for Bible school

"Under God's Big Top" is the theme of the Community Vacation Bible School in Charlevoix this summer. The school sessions will take place at the Assembly of God Church on M-66, August 15 through 17.

Through the circus theme the children will be learning about the variety of life and feelings God has given us, the juggling of daily decisions, and the freedom and joy that knowing Jesus and the Bible can provide. Activities include clown makeup, puppets and circus crafts related to a biblical daily unit.

Children who will be four years old by September through those who have completed the fifth grade may register. Immediate registration is requested. Forms can be found displayed in local stores and other community businesses.

Bus transportation for children living in and around Charlevoix will be provided. Approximately six stops, all adult supervised, will be set up. Children riding the buses must be registered prior to the first day of classes. Bus schedules will be mailed to all registered families.

St. Mary's has guest speaker

Rev. Fr. John Nicola

Rev. Fr. John Nicola will deliver a speech entitled, "Satan, a Reality in the '90s" at 7:30 p.m., Friday Aug. 11 at St. Mary's Parish.

Nicola, a summer resident of Charlevoix, has a Doctorate in Sacred Theology. The topic for his doctoral thesis was possession and exorcism.

Nicola investigates cases of reported diabolical possessions for the Catholic Bishops of the United States. He also assisted the exorcist for the diocese of Rome in four solemn-public exorcisms in Europe. He served as the technical advisor to the producer and director of the movie, "The Exorcist."

Under the sponsorship of the Conference Speakers International, Nicola has spoken at about 40 college campuses and to various other groups.

Methodists get new hymnal

The Charlevoix United Methodist Church invites the community to attend its Hymnal Dedication Service Sunday, August 6, at 11 a.m.

The first copies of this hymnal were published this past May. This hymnal has taken over eight years to produce and contains many old favorites as well as contemporary hymns by Bill Gaither, Amy Grant and others.

Mariam Meangwie

Marian Meangwie, 76, former Cross Village resident, died July 28, 1989, at St. Mary's Hospital in Grand Rapids.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, August 1, at Arsulowicz West Chapel, Grand Rapids. Dr. E.J. Elk officiated and burial was in Kent Memorial Gardens, Grand Rapids.

Marian Meangwie was born April 7, 1913 in Cross Village. She attended school in Cross Village and she resided in Petoskey, Charlevoix, and Grand Rapids.

She is survived by two sons, Levi Wanegeshik of Charlevoix and Frank Wanegeshik of Alto; several grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She was a mother, grandmother and aunt to many people she knew.

William R. Dicksinson

William R. Dickinson, 76, Charlevoix summer resident, died Monday, July 31, 1989.

Memorial services will be held at 4 p.m. Monday, August 7, at First Congregation Church, Charlevoix.

A full obituary will follow.

Kristie Hand was chosen first runner-up and Tammy Felton was named Miss Congeniality. Other competitors were Dana Haney, Melissa Ritt, Stacy Gebott, Susan Healey, Chrissy Dillon and Cayte Christensen.

Spectators lined Bridge Street for the street parade Saturday afternoon. The following floats and entries received special parade committee recognition: the Barnard Grange; Bell Tower Reformed Church; Charlevoix Senior Citizens; Charlevoix Electric and Water; Kiwanis Club; Grandvue; KHQ; Class of '59; Cravings; Yogurt Time Plus; and the Assembly of God Church.

Saturday evening's lighted boat parade featured 14 entries. John Upjohn's Serenity III won the parade with a "Salute to Broadway." Mary Sue Edwards and Safe-Stress placed second with a tribute to the space program. Bruce Thomas and Absolutely took third with Venetian Stars and Stripes.

One of the first challenges Marci Wynkoop faced as Venetian Queen was getting the train of her dress into the limo.

Adults might be able to ride bigger carnival rides, but they just can't do it with the zeal of the youngsters.

BUSINESS

Barb McGlinch manicures the nails of one of her customers and Hair Quarters in the Edgewater Inn.

New all-purpose salon opens

Barb McGlinch opened her Hair Quarters beauty salon in the Edgewater Inn last January, following several years of working in other salons in Charlevoix and other parts of the country.

Barb's husband, Ted McGlinch, has been with the United States Coast Guard for 20 years and is presently serving aboard the cutter Mackinaw. His assignments have taken the family (their boys are now 18 and 13) to several different parts of the country, which accounts for Barb being licensed as a beautician in Oregon, Virginia, and the District of Columbia as well as Michigan.

When asked about the differences in salon services across the country, Barb replied:

"In Oregon I did more trimming for men, beards and mustaches, as well as manicuring and facials. On the east coast, our clientele were mostly professional men and women who wanted manicures and facials. Because of their working hours, we started early and worked late. Our customers even set up appointments for facials on their way home".

In Charlevoix, Barb says, her customers are mostly year-around residents and "boat people". She does a lot of hair styling for both men and women (young men are wearing their hair shorter), as well as manicuring. Eventually, she will offer facials in the salon. Charlevoix prices are comparable to those on the east coast, according to Barb.

Other beauticians at Hair Quarters are Gwen Anderson, Alice Firman, and Shelley Crane. The salon is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., six days a week, and evenings by appointment.

Business gets new owners

Town and Country Cedar Homes, which has an office in Charlevoix, has been acquired in partnership by two investment groups.

Biggs, Kinney, Primus Venture Partners of Cleveland, Ohio and the State of Michigan Venture Capital Division have purchased the business from Southwestern Enterprises of St. Louis.

Town and Country was founded by Biggs and Kinney in 1983 with the financial assistance of Southwestern Enterprises.

Local officials face squad of Playmates

Charlevoix residents Don Smith, Richard Pajtas and Sam Supernaw are in training for this summer's biggest softball game: The Playboy Playmates vs Emmet-Charlevoix All Stars.

The 1989 Emmet County Fair will kick off in style this year with a softball game featuring five recent Playboy Playmates. The Playmates will play the Emmet-Charlevoix All Stars, a group of area personalities who will pick up ball gloves for the first time in years.

The Playmates game will take place at 7 p.m. August 19, at Turcott Field in Petoskey.

The five young women will visit northern Michigan for the first time when they appear in the softball game. Coming to the Petoskey for the game are: Lynn Austin, Miss July 1986; Carmen Berg, Miss July 1987; Jennifer Jackson, Miss April 1989; Ava Fabian, Miss August 1989; and Rebecca Ferratti, Miss June 1986.

Coached by Harbor Springs resident B.J. Mogg, the Playmates will take to the field planning on a major win.

"We have been practicing and have played together several times this summer," said Jennifer Jackson, Miss April 1989. "We know what we're doing and not only hope to win, but to draw attention to the Emmet County Fair, one of the highlights of the summer for area residents."

The Emmet-Charlevoix All Stars also plan on winning. "We're in this to win," said coach Joe Kilborn. "Just because we may be a bit older, does not mean we can't play one whale of a good game." Joining Kilborn on his team will be a variety of area people such as Judge Harvey Varnum, Harbor Springs Mayor John Kenyon and Judge Richard Pajtas.

The Playmates game will begin nine days of fair activities including draft and speed horse shows, harness racing, kid's day, senior citizen's day, the USA demolition derby, speed horse races and the popular midway and exhibits of farm animals and local produce and crafts.

Tickets for the Playmates vs Emmet-Charlevoix All Stars can be purchased for $8 at the Boyne City, Charlevoix, and Petoskey Chambers of Commerce. Tickets will also be available at the game although advance purchase is recommended.

Jurists select art fair exhibitors

Broader use of color, an evolution of technique based on traditional foundations with freer interpretations, a touch of impressionism, and a move away from pop or "fun" art will characterize the themes at Charlevoix's annual art fair according to organizers of the event.

Considered one of the premiere summer shows in the nation, Charlevoix will bring together top fine artists in East Park August 12.

"Contemporary art is returning to the traditions found in fine art collections," says Suzi Reis, one of the art fair coordinators. "Whimsical and pop art are disappearing. We find the artists with real staying power have strong traditional foundations, excellent training, fine technique and, most of all, creative depth. We feel the art fair is becoming increasingly sophisticated."

Staged on Charlevoix's spectacular waterfront park, the art fair is an extraordinary visual event. Brilliant watercolors, abstract oils, delicate paintings, bold canvases, large sculptures, intricate carvings, fine ceramics, unusual fabric pieces, art photography, displays of original jewelry in gold, silver and space age metals, all are displayed against the backdrop of Charlevoix's natural Round Lake harbor.

The fair, like the artists, has evolved over the past 31 years, thanks to increasingly selective procedure for jurists. Known in the art community as the place where major galleries and collectors make their annual acquisitions and identify the rising stars, the fair attracts over 1,000 applications from artists. For many artists Charlevoix is the only art fair. Otherwise they show their works exclusively in galleries and one-person shows.

"Artists and art collectors keep coming back because this fair is not static," Reis, a former gallery owner continued. Using watercolors as an example, she sees a trend away from highly detailed, photographic realism, to application of watercolor techniques to non-traditional subjects.

Reis cites Dee Knot of Flushing, Michigan, a member of the prestigious American Watercolor Society and long-time Charlevoix exhibitor. Knot has moved away from dark earth tones and traditional highly detailed landscapes to bright colors and often impressionistic paintings of flowers and people.

Similarly, Randall Higdon, of Coloma, Michigan, also a member of the American Watercolor Society, has left the traditional path of barns and snow. Tom Hale of Northville has achieved national recognition with water colors and acrylics of old cars and trucks; and Rick Burger, water colorist of Rochester, Michigan, has developed a misty quality, a blue-grey aura, in his studies of old northern Michigan summer cottages.

In other media there are comparable trends, with emphasis on color and technique. Benzonia ceramicist Allan Vigland's works are described as "bright and flawless," by committee member Sally McNamara. "People line up three deep at his booth."

Manhattan jewelry designer Joan Michlin, "works in oversized pieces with gold. There will be nothing else like this in the show," McNamara states.

Equally important is the range of prices of the works, adds Reis. "Naturally the major works can be expensive, but there is a lot of affordable fine art at our show, as well."

"This is a broad based show. That's why it attracts so many people. Some come ready to buy at 9:30 a.m., others make a day of it, browsing, wandering from display to display. It's a rare opportunity to see this much fine art in one place. And you can't beat the location," she added.

The day-long art fair officially opens at 10 a.m., Saturday, August 12.

MACKINAC LOG

This weary writer is just back from Mackinac Island after 70 plus hours on a 34'x14' piece of fiberglass. Imagine getting in your car and going from Charlevoix to Detroit at speeds varying from 7 mph to .02 mph- scary isn't it – trouble is I'm looking forward to my next race. Here's a very short log of the race from aboard the yacht Apprentice.

Start... go slow for nine plus hours... stop... go for swim Saturday night... hazy and water looked like a mirror all night... next morning back up to slow, wondered where other boats were... picked up a flying mammal, a bat, about 2 hours south of Cove Island... listened to radio about boats rounding Cove Island... found out we were two hours behind boats we were racing against, turned radio off... bat getting impatient with our progress and decided to scout out area around boat; wild people on boat moving around and waving arms to fend off visitor, must have looked wild from another boat... rounded Cove Island light approximately 12:30 p.m. Monday... bat left boat one hour after rounding Cove Island... while moving slow but steady along Canadian shore, dodging reefs and freighters, we came across boats that rounded Cove Island two hours ahead of us... our spirits lifted and new race started... five miles from finish heaviest wind of race and we were beat out by three bigger boats, 2 miles from finish... oh well, there's always next year... the Apprentice is a Schock 34' owned and skippered by Gary Gleason with crew members Chuck Koucky, Steve Church, Stewart Maggrett, Jay Heininger, Ron Abfalter, John Gordon and Mike Carland.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT SERIES

Now on the local scene, 2 people just off the Mac race were out on the race course Wednesday night and were welcomed back by a nice southwesterly breeze.

In Fleet A, Mint Julip took advantage of the breeze and got the gun followed by Slap Shot, Flash and Gotcha.

Mi-Joy took advantage of the air and squeaked a 15 second win over Blasen. There were many lead changes in the P-26 class with the outcome not decided until the finish line. Not far behind were Lost Vermonter, Cygnus, Foxy Lady, Miller Time, Kitty Wake, Tireless and Sandpiper.

The high performance fleet really had fun in the wind with Bandit taking line honors followed by Allons Y, MIP (going to get caught on one of those close port-starboards), Newsense, H.S. Moisture (without the Mouse), Mud Duck and Perogative.

The JAM Fleet had quite a battle going between Nancy and Cabaret with Cabaret getting first followed closely by Nancy, Bald Eagle, Maureen, Apothecary, Canusa, Cheemaun, Hot Mustand, Stalworth, Spirit.

Local team wins tournament

The home team Charlevoix Foot Clinic won the Venetian Festival Fast Pitch softball tournament this past weekend.

Although they lost the first game in the finals of the double elimination tournament to K of C Little Ceasars of Cheboygan by a score of 4-2, they came back in the next game to win 2-1.

Foot Clinic stayed in the winners bracket in advancing to the finals as they beat Cheboygan Co-op 3-2, Coldwater Rendering 5-1, and K of C Little Ceasars 2-0.

Foot Clinic's Scott Kelly, Jim Potter and Mark Preseau also took individual tournament awards.

In a thundering herd, runners in the five and 10k races started down Division Street. The two courses separate later in the race.

Drenth race draws crowd

The Central Michigan University (CMU) connection dominated the Jeff Drenth Memorial Race Saturday.

Kirk Dietch won the fast mile, Joel Krafsur won the 5K and Matt Peterson won the 10K. Peterson is a Charlevoix alumni and all three have raced for CMU.

In the womens races, Debbie Nowak won the 10K while Kayla Skelly took the 5K.

Matt Peterson and Geoff Goolsby run side by side in the 10K race this past weekend. At the end of the race, Goolsby slowed a bit and playfully pushed his former CMU teammate across the finish line ahead of him.

City softball results

Paul Bunyan Lanes, Pat McKeown Ford and Bay Shore Steel picked up easy wins in mens softball July 26 at the expense of Townhouse, Harbor Industries and Charlevoix Assembly of God.

In the opening game Paul Bunyan beat Townhouse 8-1 with Dan Golosby the winning pitcher and Bob Sandow helping the winning cause with a home run.

In game two, McKeown took Harbor Industries 7-0 with Bill Roloff getting the pitching win.

Bay Shore Steel beat the Assembly 11-0 in the nightcap. Dave Milky was the winning pitcher.

Venture Video, Townhouse and Tapawingo were winners in womens' games Thursday, July 27.

Venture beat First State Bank 11-4. Cheryl Pence was the winning pitcher.

Townhouse defeated Kwikie Printing 27-18 with Sheri Fiedorek getting the pitching win.

In the closest game of the night, Tapawingo beat Lexamar 12-9 behind winning pitcher Mary Carver.

DDA/TIFA public hearing scheduled

Amendments to Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA) project plans will be discussed at a public hearing at 7 p.m., Monday, Aug. 7 in city hall.

Periodic updates of DDA and TIFA project plans are called for in the original DDA and TIFA package adopted by the city council in 1982.

Last fall and this spring, city, school and county officials debated DDA and TIFA funding of local projects. The amended list cites proposed DDA and TIFA projects with an estimated total cost of $3,672,000. (A list of proposed TIFA and DDA projects, as amended, accompanies this story.)

At recent council discussions concerning the amended list, city manager Mike Wiesner pointed out that projects on the list can easily be deleted at a later date, but adding projects at a later date is an involved process. Therefore the list includes projects which in the future may end up being deleted.

During council discussions, some council members indicated they have reservations about certain proposed projects, but will address those concerns when projects are considered on an individual basis.

In closed sessions this past winter, city, school and county officials developed a tentative agreement to change the timeframe for the DDA and TIFA and the amount of money which would be captured for DDA and TIFA projects.

However, when the tentative agreement became public several local business people complained about it. In response to the concerns of the business community, the council amended the tentative agreement to allow more time for the TIFA and DDA to accrue project funds.

At this time, the school has not formally accepted the amended agreement.

The TIFA district encompasses the Ferry Beach area. According to the proposed agreement, the TIFA would stop collecting funds with the final tax billing in 1991.

The DDA encompasses the downtown business district. According to the proposed agreement, the DDA will stop collecting funds with the final tax billing in 1998.

DDA and TIFA funds are tax revenues from increases in state equalized valuations (SEV) in the DDA and TIFA districts. Taxe revenues from SEV increases between the time the DDA and TIFA began (1982) and the time the programs expire are used for projects within the DDA and TIFA districts.

TIFA and DDA work scheduled to begin this fall includes: the relocation of Ferry Avenue and utilities beneath the roadway; sidewalk and lighting work on the west side of Bridge Street.

Motorycycle safety must be stressed

As Michigan's 186,000 motorcycles join millions of cars and trucks on the state's major travel routes this summer, AAA Michigan urges all drivers to be more alert.

"By observing basic safety rules and carefully scanning all directions, automobile drivers and motorcycle riders alike can enjoy an accident-free traffic mix," said Robert V. Cullen, AAA Michigan Safety and Traffic manager.

More than 110 fatalities and 5,000 injuries occur in Michigan annually from accidents involving motorcycles or specialty vehicles such as mopeds and motor scooters.

Motorcycles are involved in seven percent of all road deaths, although they represent only three percent of the registered motor vehicles in Michigan.

Fifty-eight percent of motorcycle accidents involve other vehicles. Many were attributed to the car or truck driver violating the right-of-way of the motorcyclist.

"Part of the problem is that motorists don't always see motorcycles until it is too late, then they can't yield," said Cullen. "This is especially true at intersections, where more than 45 percent of all motorcycle accidents take place.

He said cycle riders can avoid accidents by:

– Maintaining a lane position slightly to the left of center. It gives riders a better view of the road ahead, while making motorcycles more visible to automobile drivers.

– Maintaining a three-second gap when following another vehicle at speeds under 40 mph. (Use a 4- to 6-second distance at higher speeds or if roads are wet.)

– Approaching intersections with caution, especially where a motorist's vision may be obscured by parked vehicles or other objects. Riders shouldn't assume other drivers will see them and yield at an intersection.

Precautions urged to prevent drowning

Drowning is the third most common cause of fatal, unintentional injury in the United States. Among children and young adults, it is the second most common cause.

The most recent "Boat and Water Accidents" report issued by the State of Michigan Department of Natural Resources states, "in water accidents, the unsupervised child is still our greatest problem. Private swimming pools accounted for 13 deaths of preschool children. This is a problem which can only be controlled by increasing adult supervision."

Dr. Brian Youngs, Regional Medical Director for District Health Department No. 3 and 4 (Emmet, Charlevoix, Otsego, Antrim, Cheboygan, Montmorency, Presque Isle and Alpena Counties), considers drownings to be a preventable cause of accidental death of children. He added that "most drownings and near drownings happen when a child accidently falls into a pool or is left alone in the tub."

Never leave a young child alone in the tub - not even to answer the phone or to get a towel. If you must leave, take the child with you.

Always watch your child by the pool, at the beach, by a lake. Beware of backyard pools in the neighborhood. Your child could wander off and accidentally fall in.

Teach your swimmers these four key rules:

Swim with a buddy, never alone.

Don't dive into unknown bodies of water. Jump feet first to avoid hitting your head on a shallow bottom.

Don't push or jump on others.

Be prepared for an emergency.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE
SALE ON FORECLOSURE
BY ADVERTISEMENT

Default has been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage made by Pamela King Levine, a single woman, to the CHARLEVOIX COUNTY STATE BANK, a Michigan banking corporation of Charlevoix, Michigan, dated April 29, 1988, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, on May 4, 1988, in Liber 200 of Mortgages, Page 184. As of the date of this Notice, there is claimed to be due on said Mortgage for principal and interest the sum of $112,890.55, and no proceedings at law having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said Mortgage has become operative;

NOW, THEREFORE, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described, or so much thereof as may be necessary, at a public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the County Building in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the place of holding the Circuit Court in and for said County, on Wednesday, 30 August 1989, at 10:00 o'clock a.m. in the forenoon of said day, and said premises will be sold to pay the amount so as aforesaid then due on said Mortage, together with interst thereon at eleven (11) percent per annum, legal costs, attorney fees as provided by law and any taxes and insurance that said Mortgagee, Charlevoix County State Bank, does pay on or prior to the date of said sale, said premises being described as follows:

Land located in the Township of Eveline, Charlevoix County, Michigan, being all of Government Lot 1 of Section 9, Town 33 North, Range 7 West and the Northeast Quarter of the Northeast Quarter of Section 16, Town 33 North, Range 7 West.

The redemption period, as made and provided by statute, is 1 year from the date of such sale.

Caution advised in the heat of the summer

Hot weather disorders are a potentially serious threat to any individual during episodes of high temperature and himidity. Hot weather disorders are preventable if people are aware of the conditions that cause injury and know how to prevent them.

Dr. Brian Youngs, District Medical Director, believes all individuals should be aware of hot weather disorders. He is especially concerned for athletes trying out for a team or just attempting to get into condition. Individuals in poor physical condition, not acclimatized, overweight or husky, wearing heavy clothing, overexerting themselves and sweating excessively without adequate fluid intake are at special risk. Other people predisposed to heart injury include the young, especially infants, the elderly, the person taking medications (diuretics), and the individual with a serious illness (diabetes, hyperthyroidism, dehydration, congestive heart failure, abnormalities of skin and sweat glands, infection with fever, and central nervous system disease), or a history of a heat disorder.

With advanced planning and a good measure of common sense, heat related illness can usually be avoided. Individuals known to be at risk or other individuals supervising sporting events and monitoring the activities of others should observe the following preventive measures.

1. Drink plenty of water. Fluid consumption should be as much as 50 percent greater than the amount dictated by thirst. Adequate fluid intake of water or fruit or vegetable juice before or during strenuous exercise is essential to reduce risk.

2. Increase the intake of salt. Increased salt and fluids particularly help prevent heat exhaustion and heat cramps. Do not take salt tablets unless specified by a physician. Persons on salt restriction should consult a physician before increasing their salt intake.

Reduce activity during the heat. Strenuous activities should be reduced, eliminated, or rescheduled to the coolest time of the day. Minimize the amount of strenuous physical activity that's undertaken, especially in the sun and in the hottest times of the day. Sporting activities should be scheduled for the early morning or the evening.

4. Avoid the heat as much as possible. Individuals at risk should stay in the coolest available place, not necessarily indoors.

5. Spend more time in air-conditioned places. Air-conditioning in homes and buildings markedly reduces danger from the heat. If acquiring an air-conditioner is not economically feasible, spending more time each day (during hot weather) in an air-conditioned environment affords some protection.

6. Wear loose and light-colored clothing in hot, sunny weather. Other methods of keeping cool, such as taking cool showers or swimming, may be useful.

7. Contact your physician to determine if you are at increased risk because of any medicine or drugs you may be taking (especially tranquilizers and anticholinergics).

8. Sugary beverages, which decrease gastric emptying, and alcoholic beverages, which are dehydrating, should be avoided.

9. Sponge body surfaces with cool water to assist in preventing heat stroke. If heat stroke symptoms occur, immediate medical attention should be sought. Heat stroke is a life-threatening medical emergency.

10. Identify individuals in any of the high risk groups, increase efforts to have them keep cool, and emphasize the importance of maintaining contact with others for early detection of signs of heat illness.

11. Participants in hot weather sports events must make sure they are adequately acclimatized. At least a five to six week training period, building up gradually and done in the same heat conditions as the event, is essential.

12. Teach patients and team members to recognize the early symptoms of heat injury: stumbling or clumsiness, headache, nausea, dizziness, excessive sweating or lack of sweating, and changes in mental status.

Garden Club planning tour

Bonnie Webster of Bonnie's Country Spice will show Charlevoix Area Garden Club members through her garden on State Street and explain flower drying techniques beginning at 1 p.m. Tuesday, August 8.

Joyce Hosmer will host a business meeting at her home on Mercer Boulevard following the tour. Co-hostesses are Nancy Wood and Lorna Miles.

Members are asked to turn in their quilt tickets and money at this time.

City council approves new contract with chamber

Council won't have a seat on chamber board

The city council and chamber of commerce resolved their differences Monday evening when the council approved a contract which doesn't for the city council to have a standing voting seat on the chamber board of directors.

Approval of the contract puts to rest, at least for the time being, a council-chamber quarrel which began in May.

In May, the chamber moved to establish a political action committee (PAC).

At the May 19 council meeting, councilman Norm Probert asked to withhold payment of a $558.32 monthly bill from the chamber. At that meeting Probert said he questioned chamber involvement in political activity. Although no roll call vote of the entire council was taken, payment was withheld.

Councilmen originally termed the payment a city contribution to the chamber. Chamber officers argued that the monthly payment is not a contribution, but is compensation for services the chamber provides which otherwise would fall in the lap of city hall.

In a subsequent meeting, the city attorney advised the council that if the council is paying for services on a regular basis, there should be a written contract defining those services and the amount of payment.

A contract was drawn up and presented at a July 10 council meeting. While discussing the proposed contract, councilmen decided that they wanted the council to have a standing voting seat on the chamber board of directors. The council was not unanimous in that position. Councilmen Bill Haggard and Jim Potter indicated did not support the demand for a chamber board seat.

At the July 10 meeting, chamber director Jacquiline Merta and chamber president Dan Barron expressed skepticism and told the council that would make Charlevoix's chamber-council relationship atypical compared to other communities.

However, Merta and Barron said they would take the proposal before the chamber members and board.

The chamber board did not meet until late July. Between July 10 and the chamber board meeting, Merta came back before council and asked for the contract and board seat to be treated as separate matters and for the contract to be approved. The council refused.

In late July, the chamber took a survey of its members. At Monday evening's meeting, Merta presented the council with copies of the survey results.

Merta said the survey went out to all of the chamber's approximately 300 members. The chamber received 125 responses.

"That's the most response we've ever received to a survey," Merta told the council.

The survey contained three questions. Of the 123 people responding to the question, "Should the City Council be granted a voting seat on the Chamber's Board?" 119 answered no while 4 said yes.

Barron said the chamber board felt they had "a pretty strong directive" from the chamber members. He said the board had discussed the matter and the board felt much the same as the members.

However, Barron noted the City attempts to reduce evening bridge openings

Charlevoix is attempting to decrease the number of bridge openings between 6 p.m. and 10 p.m. A 14-day traffic study will take place later this month as the first step in the process.

Currently the bridge opens whenever a boat wants through between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m. Boats are supposed to give a long and a short toot on their horns to let the bridge tender know they want the bridge to open.

During the day, between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m., the bridge opens only on the half hour and the hour for pleasure craft. However, even during the day the bridge opens on demand for commercial craft or for boats being towed.

Earlier this summer, police chief Dennis Halverson at the behest of city council, wrote a letter to the U.S. Coast Guard office in Cleveland to see about changing the opening hours.

The city would like openings between 6 p.m. and 10 p.m. to be only on the half hour and hour, rather than on demand. City officials and at least one bridge tender feel this would decrease the number of openings during that time period.

Last week Halverson talked on the phone with the Cleveland Coast Guard office. He said the Coast Guard would like a traffic survey done for 14 consecutive days.

"I put in a request with the Michigan Department of Transportation and they hope to do the count this month," Halverson explained during an interview with the Courier. He noted that for the survey to have merit, it will have to be completed prior to Labor Day.

Halverson said the person he talked to in Cleveland explained that the bridge openings are governed by formal rules which are part of federal law.

In regard to making a change in the opening schedule, Halverson said, "It sounded like it will take some time."

In another matter concerning the traffic flow on Bridge Street, the council plans to have the traffic light change to a blinking yellow light at 11 p.m. rather than at 10 p.m.

While the open bridge may be a beautiful sight from the channel or from Hoffmann Park, it's an ugly and unwelcome sight for drivers on Bridge Street. The city is attempting to limit the number of bridge openings between 6 p.m. and 10 p.m.

... council/chamber contract

chamber feels there should be open communications between the council and chamber. He said the mayor has a standing invitation to attend chamber meetings. He also said that the chamber board realizes the mayor has many responsibilities and would recommend that perhaps the mayor protem serve as the council's chamber liaison. Councilman Earl Muma is the current mayor protem.

Mayor Gary Probert referred to a second question on the chamber survey. The question read, "Should the meetings of the Chamber Board remain confidential, and be open only to Chamber members and not the city council?" Of those responding, 81 said yes and 39 said no.

Probert asked if there's an incongruity there with the chamber saying they want open communications, but confidential meetings.

Probert also said he talked to Petoskey's mayor and was told Petoskey doesn't give the chamber any money on a monthly basis as Charlevoix does, but does contribute $5,000 to a development fund administered by the chamber.

Muma said he contacted Boyne City and found that they operate much the same as Charlevoix does without a council member sitting on the chamber board.

"Every community's different," Merta said of council-chamber funding relationships.

At the beginning of the council meeting, when councilmen were asked if there any items on the agenda in which they might have a conflict of interest, Norm Probert said that he is a friend of the chamber. The "friends of the chamber" are kind of quasi members.

Probert participated in discussion of the chamber matter, but abstained from voting.

During the chamber discussion, Norm Probert said he's concerned about "a little old lady living on Lewis Street" who's having trouble paying her taxes and these taxes are "supporting private enterprise."

He also complained about the chamber being closed Memorial Day and said the chamber receives free park space for chamber activities, low rent on the chamber building and free water and electricity plus a $6,700 annual subsidy.

Barron addressed the $6,700 subsidy matter. He argued that the city does not support the chamber, chamber members do. He said the city compensates the chamber for services the chamber provides.

"We're pulling our own weight," he said.

Merta responded to Probert's other contentions. She said the chamber isn't open on Memorial Day because people are leaving town that day, not coming to town. She said other area chambers are also closed.

Regarding the taxes of the "little old lady on Lewis Street," Merta said that state tax dollars also go toward tourism, economic and industrial promotion. She said that chamber efforts are geared toward improving the community's tax base.

As to the use of city parks for chamber events, Merta said other nonprofit organizations also use the parks for events to improve the community.

Haggard said he feels the chamber is doing a good job and thinks communications between the council and chamber should be held together.

Haggard moved to accept the proposed contract which will pay the chamber $6,700 per year. Muma supported the motion.

The motion passed 4-0. Haggard, Muma, Whitley and Potter voted in favor. Norm Probert abstained. Councilman Butch Russell was absent from the meeting. Under Charlevoix's city charter, mayor Gary Probert only votes to break ties.

Later, the council voted on a start time for the contract. The question amounted to whether the withheld funds would be paid.

Whitley voted against paying the withheld funds. Potter, Muma and Haggard voted in favor of paying them.

Rain, hail and high winds blasted Charlevoix Friday evening bringing down several tree limbs throughout the community. This large limb fell across a driveway on East Dixon Avenue.

Developer seeks property rezoning

by PEG OHLE

The much-rumored development of the property owned by Oscar and Margaret Stroud on the south side of U.S. 31 North in the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township has become something more than a rumor. The property includes several cabins on the hillside overlooking Lake Charlevoix and the Wayside Motel property at the corner of Mercer Boulevard and the highway.

According to Stoud, Lester N. Turner, an East Lansing attorney, has held a land contract on the property for "a couple of years." On July 19, Turner appeared at a meeting of the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission, a part of which was devoted to a public hearing on Turner's request for rezoning the property in question from Commercial-2 (C-2) to Residential-4 (R-4). His project was generally well received by the public, although he was not able to give figures on the number of housing units his development might involve. The Planning Commission later voted for the rezoning, and the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, acting in an advisory capacity, last week agreed with the township planners. The property in the township encompasses about five acres.

The R-4 zoning permits apartments, condominiums, playgrounds, and offstreet parking. Fifteen living units are permitted per acre and not more than 15 percent of the area may be occupied by residential buildings. Generally, R-4 zoning is considered more restrictive than C-2, which allows for restaurants and taverns, bowling alleys, theaters, and other similar uses.

Turner has not yet met with much success in getting the property in the City of Charlevoix which includes the Wayside Inn, rezoned. Turner appeared before the City Planning Commission June 12, but was not on the agenda because he had not furnished a site plan along with his re-zoning request (from Hotel-Motel to R-4) as required by City Planning Commission for rezoning to R-4. Turner has called tis requirement "illegal and impractical."

He went back to the City Planning Commission meeting again on June 28, again without a site plan and no place on the agenda.

The City continues to wait for such pertinent information about Turner's proposed development such as parking arrangements, landscaping plans, percent of land to be covered, square footage of housing units, number of bedrooms, and similar details. City Planner Gerry Harsch, City Attorney James Young and Turner, are now communicating on the matter.

Sunglasses for Windows

It's like putting sunglasses on a window, says David Bibler, about applying Llumar, solar-controlled window films.

The Micro-thin, polyester mylar films are virtually invisible when properly applied to existing windows.

But the films block up to 80 percent of the heat in summer and retain up to 65 percent of the heat in the winter, says Bibler, co-owner of quality Window Tinting, both in Traverse City and Grand Rapids, with his wife, Judy.

Three types of films — reflective, non-reflective and low E series are all covered by a 7 year warranty.

Quality Window Tinting also installs solar control film on motor homes, campers, vans, boats and passenger vehicles. All installations come with a lifetime guarantee.

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Act quickly to save turtles

Since the salvation of turtles is a matter of principal, even shrimp are no small thing.

My wife Kathy tells me our household may be foregoing shrimp purchases to save some turtles. It's not like I've been eating shrimp every day anyhow. It's just a matter of a rare thing getting rarer.

In case you haven't heard, there's been a big fuss lately concerning shrimp fishermen and turtles. As I understand it, during the shrimp catching process, turtles get caught in shrimp traps (or nets, or whatever it is shrimp are caught in) and are killed. A device called a "turtle excluder" has been invented to keep turtles out of the traps while still letting shrimp in. But for some reason, many shrimp fishermen don't want to use the "turtle excluders."

So Kathy, who likes turtles, is ticked off at shrimp fishermen and she's talking boycott.

Normally I don't support these boycott things and I'm not sure exactly where I stand morally on this one. But then, in our household I'm not the one who usually does the grocery shopping so my moral position on the shrimp boycott may not make a whole lot of difference. Effectively, I'm squarely in the turtles' corner.

And I guess that's OK. I like turtles well enough. No point in having them die unnecessarily.

In the past, I've even aided and abetted my wife in turtle rescues.

One summer day we were in a rowboat on a small lake fishing for perch and bass. Suddenly Kathy hooked something bigger than a perch or bass. When she reeled in her line, she found a turtle with a hook through the lower of its little turtle lips.

Now here was a fisherwoman disappointed in her catch. Size and weight mattered not one bit, she was adamant that catch-and-release was the only way to handle the matter.

What with women's liberation, women now tackle many tasks previously reserved to men. But there are a few things in this world, such as killing bats and extricating fish hooks from turtle lips, which women still generally leave to men.

Pulling a fish hook out of a turtle lip isn't easy. It's a tough and dirty job. To begin with, you get no cooperation from the turtle. He kept pulling his head back inside his shell.

Fortunately, the fishing line was still attached, so I pulled on that with enough force to persuade the turtle to stick his head back out so I could grab the end of the hook.

I'm not sure if it hurt the turtle to have me do this, but watching appeared to pain Kathy something terrible.

"You're gonna rip his head off," she squealed.

Everybody's a critic.

"I'm trying to get ahold of the hook," I explained.

"You're going to kill him," she predicted.

Pessimist anyway. I was only yanking on the turtle's head for its own good.

After watching me battle the hooked turtle tooth and claw for a few more minutes, Kathy worked up her courage and decided she'd take matters into her own hands. I relinquished the turtle and told her to go ahead and give it her best shot.

It took a while, but eventually between the two of us, we got the hook out. We put the turtle in the lake and he swam away.

I picked up my pole and resumed fishing, but after only a cast or two I noticed Kathy had reeled in her line and was putting her pole away.

"What are you doing?" I asked.

"I'm through fishing for today," she answered. "There's too much turtle activity in these waters."

So I reeled in my line too. As we were rowing toward shore, we met another boat.

"Did you catch anything?" one of the guys on the other boat called.

I pointed to Kathy and said, "She caught a nice turtle, but we threw it back."

Luckily, I was the one doing the rowing. Had Kathy held the oars, I suspect the next stroke would have caught me just above the ear.

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

A second childhood

After Friday night's unexpected thunderstorm, I lost no time in making a Saturday morning appointment to see my shrink in Neverville — Dr. Si Kiatric.

"Doctor, I have a problem," I started as I eased myself onto the horsehair sofa in Dr. Kiatric's old-fashioned examining room above the Sulphur and Molasses Drug Store.

"Well, let's hear it, m'boy," said the affable old doctor, sitting down at his desk and picking up a quill pen. "The floor is yours."

"Doctor, I'm afraid I'm entering my second childhood — and it frightens me."

"What makes you say that?"

"Well, there have been signs," I said. "But last night convinced me I need help. Did you have that terrible thunderstorm, with hail and high winds?"

"We had a little rain, but I could see across the lake that Charlevoix was really getting hit. The sky turned black."

"Well, Judy and I had just finished dinner and the heat was unbearable,'" I continued. "I told Judy I thought I would run down to Lake Michigan for a swim and she said she'd walk down with me.

"So I went in the house and put on my bathing suit. When I returned to the front porch, the wind had picked up and the sky looked like a bad bruise."

"It's going to rain," Judy observed.

"The words were hardly out of her mouth when the skies opened up and great sheets of rain began falling, effectively canceling my trip to the beach. But instead of taking a shower, like any normal person would do, I raced back into the house, found a wash cloth and bar of soap and skipped out onto the front lawn."

"You what?" Dr. Kiatric asked, raising his voice and his eyebrows at the same time.

"I began soaping up on the front lawn in rain — something I haven't done since I was seven years old."

Dr. Kiatric dipped his pen in the ink well and scribbled briefly on his note pad.

"Did anyone see you?" he asked.

"There were some people on the porch across the street. The house is for sale and I think they were looking at it. They left as soon as the rain stopped and never came back. Judy says I scared them away."

"Did you sing and dance while you were soaping up?" the doctor persisted.

I blushed.

"Of course, I sang and danced," I answered. "Don't you always sing and dance in the shower?"

"But you weren't in the shower. You were on the front lawn," Dr. Kiatric reminded me.

"I couldn't help myself," I sighed. "The rain was cool and refreshing and I was hot. It really felt good."

"How long did you sing and dance in the rain?" the doctor asked.

"I was almost rinsed off when the hail started," I said. "And that hurt. So I went back on the porch and got my towel."

Dr. Kiatric made another notation on his pad.

"How old are you?" he asked.

"All I remember is that I was born during the Herbert Hoover-Al Smith election campaign. I recall Hoover talking about 'a chicken in every garage and a car in every pot.'"

"You're into reversal, too," Dr. Kiatric commented, making another entry on his pad. "The phrase is, 'a chicken in every pot and a car in every garage.'"

"Whatever," I answered, weary of his nit-picking.

"You mentioned other symptoms," the doctor pressed on. "Could I ask what they may be?"

"Well, take oatmeal," I answered. "For 50 years I would excuse myself and leave the room whenever anyone started to eat a bowl of oatmeal. Now I love it. Can't get enough of it. I fix oatmeal for breakfast every morning."

"Hmmm," Dr. Kiatric responded, knitting his brows and making another notation on his pad.

"Anything else?" he asked.

"The other day I mistakenly turned on the car radio instead of the windshield wipers and picked up a station playing rock music," I said. "I actually understood some of the words before I could get it turned off."

I sighed heavily.

"Be frank with me, doctor," I said. "Is there any hope?"

Dr. Kiatric examined his notes and then looked at me long and thoughtfully. Finally he spoke.

"I'm afraid your case is beyond my range of expertise," he apologized. "But I have a friend, a respected physician in Naubinway, who may be able to help."

He scribbled a few words on a scrap of paper and handed it to me.

"Dr. P.D. Attrition!" I exploded. "Why he's a baby doctor!"

"I know," said Dr. Kiatric. "But at the rate you're going, next week at this time you'll be in the fetal position."

Last week the city placed several loads of beach sand north of the swimming pier at Ferry Avenue beach. The sand approximately doubles the size of the beach's swimming area.

Letters to the Editor:

Water tower should be saved

Dear Editor,

Why should a Charlevoixan want to save the old water?

1. Heritage. Do you have anything from your grandparents that you are proud to keep as a family remembrance? Well, the water tower is a treasure from Charlevoix's "grandparents."

2. Dollars and sense. Most Charlevoixans earn their livings from tourism – directly or indirectly. Like it or not, without tourists where would the dollars come from? The old water tower is one of Charlevoix's attractions. Watch the views that are being photographed.

3. Charm. The reason so many tourists put the water tower in the background of their photos is that you cannot easily find 1906 water towers still standing – especially in such a beautiful setting.

6. Boating. At night, boaters also have the lighthouse – but during the day the water tower is literally a Charlevoix landmark.

5. Location. There are billboards and signs throughout northern Michigan announcing Charlevoix. The water tower is a beacon to ships and autos: "Here is Charlevoix!"

6. Pride. Charlevoix's petunias are talked about throughout the state. Protecting the old water tower would be one more way to show that Charlevoixans are proud of their city.

I realize I am not a native Charlevoixan – but I have a residence here and my heart is here. I ask the people of Charlevoix, especially the city council: Recognize what we are so fortunate to have so that it is not lost. The old water tower is part of "Charlevoix." Is "Charlevoix the Beautiful" to be torn down piece by piece? Please save the old water tower.

(City Council has a work session, on this subject, Monday, August 14.)

FAMILY

Givens-Hahn

MELISSA AND RAYMOND HAHN

Melissa Givens and Raymond Hahn were married July 15 at the Ironton Congregational Church before approximately 250 guests.

The Rev. Harold Kruse, Jr. officiated at the double ring rites in which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride is the daughter of Jodie and Peggy Givens of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Douglas Hahn of Pontiac and Diane Encarnacion of Charlevoix.

For the ceremony, the bride wore a gown of white satin with a waist-length veil adorned with lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of silk flowers in teal, peach, and white.

Carolyn Beer of Charlevoix assisted the bride as maid of honor, and Leslie Hahn of Charlevoix and Cindy Sadowski of Boyne City served as bridesmaids. They wore full-length teal satin gowns and carried bouquets similar to that of the bride. Joshua Hahn was ringbearer.

Tim Maples of Royal Oak served as best man, and Chick Grose of Ellsworth and Deano Drost of Charlevoix were groomsmen. Bob Givens and Philip Peterson, both of Charlevoix, were ushers.

Music for the ceremony was furnished by organist Sallie Sanders.

A reception at the American Legion Hall followed the wedding, with music for dancing offered by "The Road Runners." The rehearsal dinner was held at Nanny's Old Place.

The newlyweds are at home in Charlevoix. The bridegroom is employed by the East Jordan Iron Works, and the bride is a cosmotologist.

Deering-Wilmot

TRACY AND BRIAN WILMOT

An afternoon ceremony at the Howell First Presbyterian Church on June 17 united Tracy Danielle Deering and Brian Clifford Wilmot in marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Daniel and Joyce Deering of Howell, and the bridegroom is the son of Charles and Marilyn Wilmot of Charlevoix. Both young people are students at Michigan Technological University. He is studying electrical engineering, and she is studying forestry.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore a gown of satin and lace fashioned with a chapel-length train and white satin bow accents. Her bridal hat was trimmed with veiling, and she carried an arm bouquet of peach roses, baby's breath, and peach satin ribbons.

Dianne Moffat played a program of traditional wedding music.

Sheryl Graff was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Cathy Flynn, Laura Wilmot, and Renee Strand. They wore peach satin tea-length dresses with V necklines and bow accents. Each carried a bouquet of daisies.

Meghan Vogel was flower girl, wearing a white lace dress with peach accents. Her hairpiece was a halo of daisies. Todd Deering was ringbearer.

Steve Schultz was best man, and Chad Deering, Rodney Baum, and Patrick LaBlance served as groomsmen.

The bride's parents hosted a dinner dance reception at the Marlon House following the ceremony. The rehearsal dinner was held at Mel's Carriage House, hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Birthday celebrated

Arlow Crites of Charlevoix recently celebrated his 90th birthday. Friends and relatives joined him for a buffet dinner July 23 at the home of his daughter and son-in-law Madlyn and Robert Heise.

Former exchange student attends reunion

Ria Kroese, now Mrs. Jan Groen-Kroese of Wilnis, The Netherlands, attended the 1964 class reunion of Charlevoix High School recently. Ria was an exchange student living with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McRae in 19763 and 1964 while attending school here. Her high-school-age daughter accompanied Ria to Charlevoix, where they spent several days at the home of Ralph McRae.

Bartley-Urch

JACQUELINE BARTLEY AND JAMES URCH

Ken and Carol Bartley of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter, Jacqueline, to James Urch of Buchanan.

The intended bride graduated from Charlevoix High School and has been making her home in Buchanan, where she is employed by Datalike Computer Systems. Her fiance is manager of the True Green Lawn Care Company.

According to the bride's parents, the engagement announcement followed the proposal made by the intended bridegroom atop a ferris wheel in Chicago and his slipping the engagement ring on his fiancee's finger as the wheel began its downward trip. "Ups and downs as in marriage," they explain.

The wedding will take place next spring, after which the couple will live in Buchanan.

Adult Education registration

Classes for high school completion will begin September 11 under the auspices of the Community Education Department of Charlevoix High School.

All persons between the ages of 18 and 105 who are interested in obtaining a high school diploma or who would just like to be involved in the learning process are invited to register.

All state required subjects, such as English, history, American government, science, and math are offered, as well as electives in such areas as social studies, humanities, health, and business communications.

Classes meet five days a week, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., at the Senior Citizens Center, V.F.W. Hall, Highway 31 North in Charlevoix. Independent study is also available for those who have difficulty with this time schedule. Interested persons should contact Sherry Black at the Charlevoix Adult Learning Center, phone 547-5361.

Collins-Carey

CHARLES CAREY AND NINA COLLINS

Nina F. Collins and Charles L. Carey II of Traverse City have announced they will be married September 23.

The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Ray and Phoebe Collins of Traverse City. She graduated from Central Michigan University in 1979 and received a juris doctor degree from Duke University School of Law in 1982. She is an attorney with Blakeslee, Chambers, Peterson, Dalyrymple and Christopherson in Traverse City.

Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Carey of Charlevoix. He graduated from Michigan State University in 1972 with a degree in communications. He is a licensed contractor and owner of Topper's Painting, Inc. in Traverse City.

Class of '29 reunites

The Charlevoix High School graduating class of 1929 met for their 60th class reunion Friday, July 28 at the Weathervane Inn.

Twenty people attended the event. Max Novak served as master of ceremonies. In the future, the class intends to meet each year on the Friday of Venetian weekend.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Little boys are not always known for their neatness. I was no exception. I had a bad habit of more or less letting my clothes fall where they may when it was time to take them off for bed. What I didn't know then was that I was setting myself up for all kinds of trouble by doing that.

You see, when the lights were off and everyone was in bed, I'd see shadows. All kinds of monsters and yucky things would suddenly appear on my wall. Since all of us are grownups now, we know there's no such thing. But as a boy, those shadows were all too real and threatening to me. My Dad finally showed me how shadows would always be behind me. I didn't understand it them. I do now.

Jesus said, "I am the light of the world." We may be grownups, but we still have our struggles with shadows. They are now a much different variety from the monsters that haunted our bedroom corners. There are fears about the future. There are doubts about our own abilities. Don't forget worries over those that we love. I'm sure you could think of a few more of your own to add to that list.

Is Jesus a part of your life? If He is, where is He? The same advice my Dad gave for dealing with shadows in my childhood bedroom goes for our adult-type shadows. If Jesus is your light, then keep Him at the forefront of your life. With the light of His life in front of you, any shadows you might face will soon fall behind you.

Don't be afraid of the shadows you may face. Jesus also suggested we needed to come to Him with the innocence of a child in our hearts. You know how easy it was to trust those you loved as a child. Nothing has changed. He stands ready to be your light, to guide you, and to love you that you might truly get all the fullness there is to have out of life.

Dixon L. Warner

Former Charlevoix resident Dixon L. Warner, 76, died Aug. 3, 1989, at his home in Inkster.

Funeral services were held Monday, Aug. 7, at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. The Rev. Benton Heisler of the United Methodist Church officiated and burial was in Barnard Cemetery, Marion Township.

Mr. Warner was born Feb. 28, 1913, in Charlevoix the son of Charles and Emma (Brown) Warner. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1931 and lived in the Detroit area (Dearborn and Inkster) for the past 50 years.

Mr. Warner is survived by: three sons, Charles F. of Charlevoix, Gerald D. of Warren and Mark W. of Rochester Hills; one daughter, Julie Ann Fabris of Atlanta, Ga.; seven grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; four brothers, Clyde of Norwood, Giles of Grand Rapids, Doyle and Jasper both of Charlevoix; three sisters Irene Nadeau of Taylor, Leona Habel of Charlevoix and Lucille Anderson of Lansing.

The family suggests memorials to the American Heart Association.

Bicyclists should wear helmets

Bicycle riding is an excellent form of exercise. Unfortunately as the popularity of bicycling increases, so do the number of accidents related to this activity. The "Internal Medicine Alert" reports that head injury accounts for up to 80 percent of fatalities and the bulk of serious disability from biking accidents.

Wearing a helmet while riding a bicycle can make a difference. Until recently, advocates of the use of protective headgear for cyclists found their stance lacked scientific support. But wearing protective headgear clearly makes a difference. Recent evidence reported in the "Mayo Clinic Health Letter" confirms that a helmet can reduce your risk of serious head and brain injury by almost 90 percent should you be involved in a bicycle accident.

What to look for in a bicycle American National Standards Institute (ANSI) or Snell Memorial Foundation.

The helmet should meet the voluntary testing standards of one of these two groups.

Boyne City will be hosting annual home tour

Four Boyne City area homes and a condominium complex will be open for public view during the Boyne City Historical Society's Fifth Annual Home Tour from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on for his bride. The house is not only a home for the Berniers; but serves as a studio for Olive's painting and a workshop for Walter's many hobbies, including furniture-building and cutstone fireplace, birch log mantel, and new kitchen, porch, and deck.

The condominium complex is the Atrium Inn in downtown Boyne City. It is built on the site

Charlevoix and Horton Bay. It is described as a "contemporary Victorian house designed by Doug Wright, Petoskey architect, and built in 1987 by Bill Noblett, Carpentree Construction of Boyne City".

Items collected from old houses were used in conjunction with modern building materials. Some of the old items were extra wide heavy oak doors, hanging chandeliers with their original milk glass shades, 96 wooden spindles, newel posts, beveled glass French doors, fireplace mantels, and stained glass windows.

The two-story home includes a master suite on the first floor and another two-bedroom suite on the second floor. Pieces of antique furniture are combined with the modern throughout the house.

Those visiting the Osterbeck home are also invited to visit with the Llamas at nearby Maplewood Farm.

Tickets for the Boyne City Historical Society Home Tour are available for $8 at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce office.

This "contemporary Victorian" home of Gary and Lynn Osterbeck on the north shore of Lake Charlevoix will be open to the public for the Boyne City Historical Society's Home Tour.

CHURCH

Anna D. (Midge) Crain

Anna D. (Midge) Crain, 61, of Charlevoix, died Aug. 5, 1989, at Little Traverse Division, Northern Michigan Hospitals, Petoskey.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, Aug. 8, at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix, Pastor ~~Bruce~~ E. Hamilton of Community Church of God officiated and burial was in Brookside Cemetery.

The former Anna D. Gibbard was born May 3, 1928, in East Jordan, the daughter of Charles L. and Roxa (Bolser) Gibbard. She graduated from East Jordan High School in 1946 and on Nov. 2, 1946 she married Glenn L. Crain in Ellsworth. They moved to Charlevoix in 1947.

For 27 years, Mrs. Carin worked for Hoskins Manufacturing in Charlevoix.

She is survived by her husband; five sons, Michael G., Gary L. and Roger A. all of Charlevoix, Robert M. of Bakersfield, Calif. and Dennis J. of Garland, Texas; two daughters, Mrs. Sue Shively of Charlevoix and Connie L. Crain of Kenner, Inc; 17 grandchildren; one great grandchild; two brothers, Clifford Gibbard of East Jordan and Rex Gibbard of Petoskey; two sisters, Mrs. Ruby Dolhoph of Detroit and Mrs. Alice Velat of Flint.

The family suggests memorials to the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Envelopes for that purpose are at the Winchester Funeral Home.

James H. McClanathan

James H. McClanathan, 77, of Charlevoix, died Aug. 5, 1989, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, Aug. 8, at Community Reformed Church. The Rev. Larry Grooters officiated and burial was in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. McClanathan was born Oct. 1, 1911, in Charlevoix, the son of Henry and Sarah (Nowland) McClanathan.

On Aug. 13, 1940, he married the former Allce Brock in Charlevoix.

Mr. McClanathan was a member of the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix and worked for 16 years for Will-Flow, retiring in 1974. He also had farmed on the family farm in Norwood Township.

He is survived by his wife; three sons and daughters-in-law, James R. and Beverly McClanathan; Ronald L. and Sue McClanathan and Raymond G. and Mary McClanathan, all of Charlevoix; two daughters Mrs. Dale (Darlene) Buckner of Charlevoix and Mrs. Rolland (Shirley) Daugherty of Gaylord; 10 grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; one sister, Agnes Davidson of Gibraltar.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Little boys are not always known for their neatness. I was no exception. I had a bad habit of more or less letting my clothes fall where they may when it was time to take them off for bed. What I didn't know then was that I was setting myself up for all kinds of trouble by doing that.

You see, when the lights were off and everyone was in bed, I'd see shadows. All kinds of monsters and yucky things would suddenly appear on my wall. Since all of us are grownups now, we know there's no such thing. But as a boy, those shadows were all too real and threatening to me. My Dad finally showed me how shadows would always be behind me. I didn't understand it them. I do now.

Jesus said, "I am the light of the world." We may be grownups, but we still have our struggles with shadows. They are now a much different variety from the monsters that haunted our bedroom corners. There are fears about the future. There are doubts about our own abilities. Don't forget worries over those that we love. I'm sure you could think of a few more of your own to add to that list.

Is Jesus a part of your life? If He is, where is He? The same advice my Dad gave for dealing with shadows in my childhood bedroom goes for our adult-type shadows. If Jesus is your light, then keep Him at the forefront of your life. With the light of His life in front of you, any shadows you might face will soon fall behind you.

Don't be afraid of the shadows you may face. Jesus also suggested we needed to come to Him with the innocence of a child in our hearts. You know how easy it was to trust those you loved as a child. Nothing has changed. He stands ready to be your light, to guide you, and to love you that you might truly get all the fullness there is to have out of life.

Dixon L. Warner

Former Charlevoix resident Dixon L. Warner, 76, died Aug. 3, 1989, at his home in Inkster.

Funeral services were held Monday, Aug. 7, at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. The Rev. Benton Heisler of the United Methodist Church officiated and burial was in Barnard Cemetery, Marion Township.

Mr. Warner was born Feb. 28, 1913, in Charlevoix the son of Charles and Emma (Brown) Warner. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1931 and lived in the Detroit area (Dearborn and Inkster) for the past 50 years.

Mr. Warner is survived by: three sons, Charles F. of Charlevoix, Gerald D. of Warren and Mark W. of Rochester Hills; one daughter, Julie Ann Fabris of Atlanta, Ga.; seven grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; four brothers, Clyde of Norwood, Giles of Grand Rapids, Doyle and Jasper both of Charlevoix; three sisters Irene Nadeau of Taylor, Leona Habel of Charlevoix and Lucille Anderson of Lansing.

The family suggests memorials to the American Heart Association.

William R. Dickinson

William R. Dickinson Jr., 76, of Chicago Club, Charlevoix, died July 31, 1989, in Charlevoix.

A memorial service was held Monday, August 7 at First Congregational Church. The Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Dickinson was born May 8, 1913, in Chicago, Ill., the son of William R. and Anna Wilson Dickinson.

In 1934, he graduated from Yale University and in 1937 he graduated from Yale Law School.

On July 22, 1945, he married the former Anne L. Knowles at Beverly Farms, Mass.

Mr. Dickinson is survived by his wife Anne L. of Charlevoix and Lake Forest, Ill.; two daughters, Amy T. Dickinson of Libertyville, Ill. and Mrs. Anna D. Platt of Grosse Pointe Farms; one son, William R. Dickinson III of Grand Rapids; two grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago or the Chicago Zoological Society. Envelopes for those purposes are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

O. Mildred Scott

O. Mildred (MacArthur) Scott, 92, of Charlevoix, died Aug. 5, 1989 at her home. Mrs. Scott was a former resident of Flint and Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Funeral services will be held 2 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 9, at the Central Christian Church in Flint. The Rev. William Hawkins will officiate and burial will be in Sunset Hills Cemetery, Flint.

The former O. Mildren Eckinger was born July 23, 1897, in Bay City, the daughter of David J. and Melinda Baker Eckinger. She attended Bay City and Charlevoix public schools and on Feb. 5, 1917 she married Roy I. MacArthur in Charlevoix. He preceded her in death in October 1957.

On Aug. 11, 1967 she married Hugh Scott in Flint.

Survivors include: her husband, Hugh Scott of Charlevoix; a son and daughter-in-law Bruce M. and Barbara G. MacArthur of Charlevoix; one daughter, Mrs. William (Mildred M.) Darnton of Charlevoix and Ann Arbor; seven grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; one stepdaughter, Mrs. Louis (Helen) Auer of Tequesta, Fla; two stepgrandchildren and two stepgreat-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix; the Kiwanis Youth Foundation, Friends of the Pool; the Flint Institute of Music or the St. Cecilia Society of Flint. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home where visitation was held. The Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum officiated.

Hospital board meets

Al Ranger, president of Ranger Engineering, was elected president of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors July 25.

Ranger succeeds Tom Carey who served as board president for eight years. Ranger has been a member of the board since 1985 and was secretary-treasurer for two years and chairman of the hospital's Planning Committee.

Jeannine Wallace, the owner of The Shop of the Gulls was re-elected vice president.

Norman Perkins, diagnostic consultant for the Char-Em Intermediate School District and resident of Central Lake, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Ray Wood

Ray Wood assumed his seat on the board at the July meeting following his election at the July 18 annual meeting. Wood, a Charlevoix resident since 1951, is a retired contractor.

Bicyclists should wear helmets

Bicycle riding is an excellent form of exercise. Unfortunately as the popularity of bicycling increases, so do the number of accidents related to this activity. The "Internal Medicine Alert" reports that head injury accounts for up to 80 percent of fatalities and the bulk of serious disability from biking accidents.

Wearing a helmet while riding a bicycle can make a difference. Until recently, advocates of the use of protective headgear for cyclists found their stance lacked scientific support. But wearing protective headgear clearly makes a difference. Recent evidence reported in the "Mayo Clinic Health Letter" confirms that a helmet can reduce your risk of serious head and brain injury by almost 90 percent should you be involved in a bicycle accident.

What to look for in a bicycle American National Standards Institute (ANSI) or Snell Memorial Foundation.

The helmet should meet the voluntary testing standards of one of these two groups.

Boyne City will be hosting annual home tour

Four Boyne City area homes and a condominium complex will be open for public view during the Boyne City Historical Society's Fifth Annual Home Tour from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on August 17.

The varied architecture and location of the homes will provide the visitors with a different feeling in each home.

The nine-room home of Dr. and Mrs. Brendan Lee is situated on a ravine overlooking the Boyne River. The windows to the south not only provide a breath-taking view but sunlight for the solar heating system.

The country ranch-style home of Walter and Olive Bernier was built in 1976 by Walter Bernier for his bride. The house is not only a home for the Berniers, but serves as a studio for Olive's painting and a workshop for Walter's many hobbies, including furniture-building and pottery-making.

When the Robert Youngs needed more room, they added a guest house to their residence on Springwater Beach. It is three stories high, with the first floor taken up by a garage and the second and third floors by a bedroom and loft apartment which provides a panoramic view of Lake Charlevoix. The ground floor of the main house will also be open for the tour. It is a log structure which has recently been remodeled with a cutstone fireplace, birch log mantel, and new kitchen, porch, and deck.

The condominium complex is the Atrium Inn in downtown Boyne City. It is built on the site of an old granary, and Jack Begrow, the architect, retained many of the old beams and columns to provide a touch of antiquity and sturdiness. The three-story atrium provides sunlight and a place for green plants and flowers, bringing the outdoors in.

The house that will probably interest most Charlevoix tour-goers is the home of Gary and Lynn Osterbeck, located on Lake Charlevoix between Charlevoix and Horton Bay. It is described as a "contemporary Victorian house designed by Doug Wright, Petoskey architect, and built in 1987 by Bill Noblett, Carpentree Construction of Boyne City".

Items collected from old houses were used in conjunction with modern building materials. Some of the old items were extra wide heavy oak doors, hanging chandeliers with their original milk glass shades, 96 wooden spindles, newel posts, beveled glass French doors, fireplace mantels, and stained glass windows.

The two-story home includes a master suite on the first floor and another two-bedroom suite on the second floor. Pieces of antique furniture are combined with the modern throughout the house.

Those visiting the Osterbeck home are also invited to visit with the Llamas at nearby Maplewood Farm.

Tickets for the Boyne City Historical Society Home Tour are available for $8 at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce office.

This "contemporary Victorian" home of Gary and Lynn Osterbeck on the north shore of Lake Charlevoix will be open to the public for the Boyne City Historical Society's Home Tour.

Church celebrates centennial

The Centennial Carnival on Saturday, Aug. 19, will begin at 11 a.m. There will be a food tent from noon until 2 p.m, special music, contest and games through the afternoon. Ham and table service will be provided for the potluck at 5:30 p.m. A slide showing of "Days Gone By" will end the day.

Sunday Aug. 20, will feature former pastors participating in the worship service. There will be special music and in keeping with our heritage, a touch of the Dutch! Nursery care is available for infants through second grade.

The end of the Centennial Celebration will feature the release of 100 helium balloon. We invite everyone to come and help celebrate the church's 100th Birthday. Centennial dress optional.

The public is invited to join the congregation of the Belltower Reformed Church, formerly Atwood Reformed Church, as they celebrate their Centennial.

Legality of lake management plan being questioned

by PEG OHLE

The decision of the Michigan Court of Appeals in the case of Fox & Associates vs. Hayes Township states specifically that a township zoning ordinance cannot regulate or limit boat dockage construction or riparian access rights.

A sentence in the decision reads: "...We can only conclude that the Legislature, in enacting the TRZA (Township Rural Zoning Act) granted authority to townships to zone land use but not water use or to regulate riparian rights".

With that sentence, the Court of Appeals invalidated Section 5.13 (a) and (b) of the Hayes Township zoning ordinance limiting dockage and "funnel development."

And it may also have invalidated many of the recommendations contained in the Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Plan, completed last year by a committee of county residents appointed by the County Planning Commission and working under the jurisdiction of that commission.

The plan makes several recommendations about regulating the waters of Lake Charlevoix, especially in preventing "over use":

"All new marinas or access site developments should have 100 feet of lake frontage on Lake Charlevoix for each of the following: boat slips, rack storage unit, or car-trailer parking space...

"Expansion of existing marinas or access site developments should have a total of 100 feet of lake frontage for each of the (same as above)...

"One boat dock (which is not a hazard to navigation) to be allowed for each lot qualifying for use as a single family dwelling unit, as specified by the local zoning unit,"

Early this summer, the County Planning Commission used the second paragraph above in recommending against the expansion of the Boyne City Marina because the city already has more than "one slip, rack storge unit, or car-trailer parking space" for each 100 feet of lake frontage it owns.

Following complaints by the Boyne City Council and other interested persons, the County Planning Commission decided to turn over a decision in the case to the Army Corps of Engineers and the Department of Natural Resources, the licensing and funding agencies for the proposed marina expansion.

Petoskey attorney Seberon Litzenburger, who represented Fox & Associates in its case against Hayes Township, is vocal in his belief that; in light of the Hayes Township decision, the Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Plan cannot legally be used by the county in making recommendations for boat slips or marinas.

He recently appeared before the County Board of Commissioners to make some straightforward comments:

"A county or township has no jurisdiction over water...The state government, through the Inland Lakes and Streams Act, regulates navigable waters...Some message should be sent to your Planning Commission that the county does not want that plan...If the Planning Commission is doing something illegal, the county board is responsible...If you don't have your prosecutor give a judgement on the Lake Management Advisory Plan, the County Board is asking for trouble."

County Planner Larry Sullivan disagrees with Litzenburger, indicating that the Township Rural Zoning Act and the County Planning Act (Act 282 of 1945, as amended) provide for different types of land and water regulations.

"I believe the County Planning Act does give the County Planning Commission authority to develop plans covering both land and water areas of the county," he says, citing Section 125.104 of the Act:

"It shall be a function of the County Planning Commission to make a plan for the development of the county...It shall be the duty of the county planning commission to (1) make studies, investigations, and surveys relative to the economic, social, and physical development of the county; (2) formulate plans and make recommendations for the most effective economic, social, and physical development of the county; (3) cooperate with all departments of the state and federal governments and other public agencies concerned with programs directed toward the economic social and physical development of the county, and seek the maximum coordination of the county programs of these agencies."

... lake management plan legality is questioned

Only one member of the Planning Commission and no one from the Lake Management Advisory Committee was present to hear Litzenburger's remarks. However, County Commissioner Walt Hufford replied in their support: "Even if what you say is true, I think there is still a lot of good planning in that report and the county should try to find a way to continue using it."

Hufford was making special reference to the land use portions of the Lake Management Plan, which have not been questioned. Recommendations are made in the plan for "all lands within 1,000 feet of Lake Charlevoix and other lakes, rivers, perennial streams or a major creek whose surface waters outlet into Lake Charlevoix." This area adds up to approximately 14,900 acres, or nine percent of land in Charlevoix County.

Recommendations for these lands include minimum vertical and horizontal setbacks from the water, greenbelts, development density based on soil types, restricting wetlands development, reducing storm water contaminants from reaching water bodies, and installation of sanitary sewer lines through populated areas of the lake shore.

Lacking a county zoning ordinance, any or all of the above recommendations could be made part of township zoning ordinances, especially those with Lake Charlevoix shorelines.

There are already three state laws and at least one federal law that are aimed at protecting Lake Charlevoix, but they all address the protection of water quality by controlling pollution

Next week, the Courier will outline the laws now in force protecting the lake.

St. Mary's hosts festival

Members of St. Mary's church are making plans fot the 5th Annual Parish Festival. The festival will begin at 1 p.m. Aug. 19 at St. Mary's Church.

A chicken barbecue will kick off the event from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. In the evening there will be a variety of games for children and adults as well as hot dogs, pop, popcorn and baked goods.

Proceeds from the event will be used to support St. Mary's School and Catholic Education.

Chicken salad highlights luncheon menu

The women of the Christ Episcopal Church will sponsor a chicken salad luncheon from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., Aug. 12 at the church which is at the corner of State and Clinton Streets.

Along with the mainstay chicken salad, the menu includes muffins, relish, fruit, cookies and a beverage. The cost is $4.

Work has started on city property north of Ferry Avenue beach. The city plans to extend the park area onto the property.

City softball results

Women's League action concluded this past Thursday with First State Bank, Tapawingo and Lexamar finishing their season on a winning note.

First State Bank clinched the league championship with a 14-1 win over Townhouse. Angie McClanathan had a home run and Shelly Essenberg four hits for the bank. McClanathan also was the winning pitcher. Vicki Flowers had two hits for the losers.

Tapawingo beat Kwikie Printing 10-3. Tapawingo's Tammy Allen had three hits. Mary Dubey had two hits for Kwikie. The winning pitcher was Mary Carver.

In the evening's closest game, Lexamar beat Venture Video 9-7. Jodie McDermott and Connie Roberts each had two hits for Lexamar. Pam Gibson had two hits for venture. Roberts was the winning pitcher.

Bay Shore Steel, Ironworks Quality Limo and Charlevoix Cinema III picked up wins in mens slow-pitch softball action Aug. 2.

League leading Bay Shore Steel beat Townhouse 6-2. Townhouse outhit the Steel team 8-6, but the game is judged by runs scored. Dave Melke got the pitching win.

Ironworks defeated Paul Bunyan Lanes 7-5. Scott Morgan had a home run for the winners while Dave Cole was the winning pitcher.

Cinema III beat Pat McKeown Ford 6-2 with Dave Novotny getting the pitching win.

Skiers go to summer camp

Several Charlevoix skiers are participating in a 10-day summer ski camp at Mount Hood, near Portland, Oregon.

Edith Pair, Alison Boyer, Scott Boyer, Heather Keller, Jacob Smith, J.H. Heck, Steve Kang and Chris Pemble ventured west for some very early season skiing.

Edith Pair is one of the Charlevoix High School skiers who will participate in a summer ski camp on Mount Hood, near Portland, Oregon.

Black powder shoot to take place in East Jordan

The Jordan River Sportsmens Club will host their annual August Rendezvous Aug. 12 and 13 at the Sportsmens Club Range on Advance Road.

A black powder shoot which begins at 10 a.m. Aug 12 will highlight an event where participants dress in 18th and 19th century costumes.

The public is invited to witness the muzzle loading rifle shoots, knife and tomahawk throwing contests and many other events from days long past. There is no charge to attend the events.

Yachting Notes

by A. Nony Mouse

Sailboat racing can mean many things to different people. The races can vary from short triangles, or even just windward-leeward courses, all the way to trans-ocean, or round-the-world voyages. The number on board may vary from one person (even in both the just mentioned extremes) to a hundred or more, in a tall ships race.

CYC members participate in a good variety of these experiences; lounging through the calms of this year's Mackinac, racing one design in the J-22's on Thursdays, competing under handicap for Class and Overall on Wednesdays and, in a couple weeks, head-to-head match racing over a slalom course in the Hot Dog Races.

While each is different, all racing is as far from pleasure sailing as the Indy 500 is from a Sunday drive in the country. The kids who skipper and crew in our Wednesday Night Series are seeing how vital teamwork, practice and dedication are to success in racing, and, hopefully, learning that these same factors will influence their lives. They're also seeing Lady Luck at work, but noting that the lady seems to come most often to those who are expecting her.

I'm very thankful that all my kids have grown up with the help of sail racing and believe it's made them just a little better prepared for adult life. Is it time to get your kids involved? No other sport welcomes all shapes, sizes and ages with such equal opportunity!

A Wednesday with wind! Unusual, so let's–look at the results in an unusual way; Top 20 Overall, with Fleet letter and finish in (): Apprentice 1:21:02 (A-1), Slapshot 1:23:23 (A-2), Newsense 1:24:20 (C-1) for the top three; 4 Gotcha (A-3), 5 Bandit (C-2), 6 Cygnus (B-1), 7 Mi-Joy (B-2), 8 Seeking Moisture (C-3), 9 Blasen (B-3), 10 Foxy Lady (B-4), 11 Allons Y (C-4), 12 Flash (A-4), 13 Lost Vermonter (B-5), 14 Minors-in- (C-5), 15 Tireless (B-6), 16 Miller Time (B-7), 17 Mud Duck (C-6), 18 Kitty Wake (B-8), 19 Ti-Gi (B-9) and, finally 20 Prerogative (C-7).

In the JAM (Jib and Main) Fleet: Cabaret, Maureen and Apothecary take Flag Honors, followed by Cheemaun, Canusa, Nancy, Sonrise, Hot Mustard, Stalworth and Spirit.

Taking the drop, but with three races left; the Fleet Standings:

Fleet A: Slapshot 5.50, Gotcha 9.75, Mint Julep 10.75, Apprentice 11.75, Flash 16, Tigger and Pygmalion 20.

Fleet B: Cygnus 6.25, Mi-Joy 6.75, Blasen 9.75, Lost Vermonter 16, Miller Time 18, Foxy Lady 21, Tireless 27, Kitty Wake 28, Sandpiper 32 and Ti-Gi 36.

Fleet C: Bandit 7, Heat Missile 8.5, Newsense 12.75, Allons Y 13, MIP 13.75, Mud Duck 19, Prerogative 28, Mr. Breeze 29 and Hussy 31.

Jib and Main: Cabaret 3, Nancy 6.75, Maureen 16, Apothecary 18, Bald Eagle 18, Cheemaun 21, Canusa 21, Hot Mustard 26, Stalworth 29 and Spirit 37.

and that's...

Swimming pool - state grant deadline passes

Although swimming pool proponents failed to find a sponsor for a state grant application in time to meet an Aug. 4 deadline, they say fund-raising efforts will continue.

The proposed pool was one of three items on the agenda at a special Aug. 3 city council meeting. Pool Steering Committee cochairman Ken Weller updated city councilmen on the status of the pool.

Initially, the pool committee intended to raise funds this summer and apply for a grant from the state recreation bond fund later this year. However, the state moved the grant application up several months to Aug. 4.

According to administrative rules governing the recreational grant program, applications must be made by governmental units. That meant the pool committee had to find a governmental unit to make the application for them.

Pool proponents have targetted the elementary school as the site for the pool. Last month they approached the school board asking the school to make the grant application. Board members effectively declined by taking no action on the request.

Board members said the school has other financial concerns at this time. Although pool supporters said they're not asking the school for financial support, school board members feared that the perception of Charlevoix voters would be that the school is becoming financially tied to the pool.

Pool supporters planned to apply for a $750,000 grant which, if they received the entire $750,000, would have required a $250,000 local match. Some board members noted that since the school can give no assurance of any type of local match or operational funds at this time, they didn't feel the grant application could be made in good faith.

Following the school board decision, pool supporters asked Charlevoix Township to make the grant application. Weller said that since the Aug. 4 deadline left little time for deliberation, township officials chose not to act on the grant application.

"This (the current situation) is where we would have been without the hoopla of the (Aug. 4) preapplication deadline," Weller said at the city council meeting.

He said that although the pool committee will not be able to make an application on this round of state recreation grants, the committee will continue to pursue other grant programs and sources of funding.

Weller emphasized that the pool committee wants to construct and operate the pool without money from a property tax millage. The estimated cost to construct the pool complex ranges from $1.35 to $1.75 million. Pool supporters also want to establish a $500,000 endowment fund which would generate $50,000 a year to operate the pool.

Councilman Butch Russell said people have spoken to him questioning the elementary school as a location for the pool. Russell said he isn't opposed to the pool, but despite the pool committee's desire to fund the pool without local taxes, people feel that if the pool is placed on school or city property, sooner or later the financial burden will come back to local taxpayers.

Weller referred to plans to use the pool in teaching elementary students to swim. He noted the difficulty of transporting children to a pool away from the school. He also reiterated plans to establish an endowment fund.

By a 4-2 vote, councilmen passed a resolution supporting the pool. Russell and councilman Ken Whitley voted against the resolution.

The resolution does not obligate the city to any financial support for the pool.

E.J. class of '39 has reunion

CHARLEVOIX WATERFRONT ART FAIR

SATURDAY, AUGUST 12

A SPECIAL SOUVENIR SECTION OF THE Charlevoix Courier

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 9, 1989

AUG 1989

Art fair returns to traditional look

Broader use of color, an evolution of technique based on traditional foundations with freer interpretations, a touch of impressionism, and a move away from pop or ''fun'' art will characterize the themes at Charlevoix's annual art fair according to organizers of the event.

Considered one of the premiere summer shows in the nation, the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair will bring together top fine artists in East Park, August 12.

"Contemporary art is returning to the traditions found in fine art collections," says Suzi Reis, one of the art fair coordinators. "Whimsical and pop art are disappearing. We find the artists with real staying power have strong traditional foundations, excellent training, fine technique and, most of all, creative depth. We feel the art fair is becoming increasingly sophisticated."

Staged on Charlevoix's spectacular waterfront park, the art fair is an extraordinary visual event. Brilliant watercolors, abstract oils, delicate paintings, bold canvases, large sculptures, intricate carvings, fine ceramics, unusual fabric pieces, art photography, displays of original jewelry in gold, silver and space age metals, all are displayed against the backdrop of Charlevoix's natural Round Lake harbor.

The fair, like the artist, has evolved over the past 31 years, thanks to increasingly selective procedure for jurists. Known in the art community as the place where major galleries and collectors make their annual acquisitions and identify the rising stars, the fair attracts over 1,000 applications for artist. For many artists Charlevoix is the only art fair. Otherwise they show their works exclusively in galleries and one-person shows.

"Artists and art collectors keep coming back because this fair is not static," Reis, a former gallery owner continued. Using watercolors as an example, she sees a trend away from highly detailed, photographic realism, to application of watercolor techniques to non-traditional subjects.

Reis cited Dee Knot of Flushing, Michigan, a member of the prestigious American Watercolor Society and long-time Charlevoix exhibitor. Knot has moved away from dark earth tones and traditional highly detailed landscapes to bright colors and often impressionistic paintings of flowers and people.

Similarly, Randall Higdon, of Coloma, Michigan, also a member of the American Watercolor Society, has left the traditional path of barns and snow. Tom Hale of Northville has achieved national recognition with watercolors and acrylics of old cars and trucks; and Rick Burger, watercolorist of Rochester, Michigan, has developed a misty quality, a blue-grey aura, in his studies of old northern Michigan summer cottages.

In other media there are comparable trends, with emphasis on color and technique. Benzonia ceramicists Allan Vigland's works are described as "bright and flawless," by committee member Sally McNamara. "People line up three deep at his booth."

Manhattan jewelry designer Joan Michlin, "works in oversized pieces with gold. There will be nothing else like this in the show," McNamara states.

Equally important is the range of prices of the works, adds Reis. "Naturally the major works can be expensive, but there is a lot of affordable fine art at our show, as well."

"This is a broad based show. That's why it attracts so many people. Some come ready to buy at 9:30 a.m., others make a day of it, browsing, wandering from display to display. It's a rare opportunity to see this much fine art in one place. And you can't beat the location," she added.

The day long art fair officially opens at 10 a.m., Saturday, August 12.

Local galleries also offering special exhibits

Charlevoix's Waterfront Art Fair has made the community a focal point for Michigan art enthusiasts. Local galleries have expanded the community's artistic appeal beyond a single weekend and now feature exhibits which add to Charlevoix's artistic allure.

Currently, works by nationally known maritime artist Pete Peterson are on display at Signature Gallery, one of the galleries on Bridge Street.

Peterson, who lives in Missouri, has been doing a summer show in Charlevoix for the past three years. He says that although he's been tapering off in the number of shows he does each year, he still enjoys doing the Charlevoix show.

Peterson has done several paintings of the Charlevoix harbor, Lake Michigan and other scenes from Northern Michigan.

Several of Peterson's Charlevoix paintings take a page from history bring back memories for Charlevoix oldtimers. Peterson stresses historical authenticity and does extensive research prior to taking brush in hand.

Three of the paintings being exhibited from a history of the Olds Boathouse which later was Browe Marina and now is a condominium.

Charlevoix boaters may also recognize boats from days long past such as the Sylvia and RioMar in Peterson's paintings.

Other Peterson paintings feature nationally historic ships such as the Constitution leaving Boston Harbor in 1812.

Many of Peterson's works are watercolors, but he also does pencil drawings and serigraphs.

Although Peterson lives in Missouri, which he concedes is kind of a peculiar place to find a maritime artist, he spent more than four years at sea in the Navy. He sailed extensively in the waters near Alaska. He has also spent time as a painter in New Orleans.

Signature co-owner Beth McGraw said Charlevoix is fortunate to be able to have an artist of Peterson's caliber exhibit his works here.

Peterson did his first show in Charlevoix because he is a friend of McGraw's sister Ann. Once he visited Charlevoix, he found that it appealed to him artistically and that his wife and four-year-old daughter Elsie enjoyed spending time here.

"Lake Michigan is Elsie's ocean," he explained. One of the pictures on exhibit shows his wife and daughter walking toward the Lake Michigan beach.

Peterson said he plans to continue doing shows in Charlevoix.

McGraw said Peterson's works have been very popular and that some art enthusiasts have even planned their Charlevoix vacations to coincide with Peterson's show.

Water tower given 60 days

The old water tower still stands. Barring an unforeseen disaster, it will continue to stand at least for the next 60 days because the city isn't going to make a decision on it until then.

City councilmen discussed the fate of the tower at Monday evening's council work session.

Earlier this summer the council received an estimate of $3,600 to erect an eight foot fence and three strands of barbed wire around the tower to keep people from climbing on the tower. When the estimate came in, councilman Butch Russell said he felt the city should decide whether the tower is going to stay up or be torn down before putting any more money into it. The other councilmen agreed.

City water and electric department supervisor Ed Whitley researched the cost of keeping or tearing down the tower and gave the council price figures at Monday evening's meeting.

Whitley said the estimated cost of tearing down the tower is about $25,000. He noted that the cost has stayed pretty consistant as three or four years ago when the council discussed tearing down the tower, the estimated cost was $22,000.

Putting approximately 100 cubic yards of sand inside the tower to stabilize it and repainting the tower carries an estimated price tag of approximately $45,000. If the city can find a way to keep people from climbing the tower and defacing it with graffiti, a new coat of paint would last between 20 and 25 years.

Whitley said the paint currently on the tower is lead based. Currently the Environmental Protection Agency doesn't have guidelines for removing lead-based paint.

Whitley explained that when there are no guidelines, the agencies overseeing projects such as repainting water towers usually put in strict safety standards. Those standards could include draping a canvas around the tower, covering houses surrounding the tower and only working on certain days when wind speeds were minimal.

Bob Hoffman suggested the city explore the possibility of acquiring federal grant money to make up the cost difference between saving the tower and tearing it down. He said there might be funds available to preserve the tower as a historic structure.

Lou Orlowski asked the council to take their time and not tear the tower down immediately. "Don't tear it down right away," he said. "Let's look into it a little bit more."

Mayor Gary Probert recommended waiting 60 days while looking into the possibility of acquiring grant money to save the tower. If, after 60 days, no grants appear to be available, the council would consider tearing down the tower and converting the site into a public park.

The councilmen concurred with Probert's suggestion. Hoffman, Orlowski, city treasurer Rick Brandi and city planner Gerry Harsch were appointed to investigate grant possibilities.

This glassware was one of the more eye-catching exhibits at the 31st annual Waterfront Art Fair this past Saturday in East Park. As per usual, the fair drew thousands of people. (More pictures on page 3)

Janet Kniat (center) will be entering two of her Angora rabbits in the Charlevoix-Emmet County Fair this coming week. Kniat, 14, has been active in 4-H for several years. Trisha Avery, 8, is holding a Dutch miniature rabbit. Janet Kniat holds an adult Angora and Mike Kniat, 9, holds a mixed breed American rabbit.

Local 4-H member taking rabbits to county fair

Although Janet Kniat of Charlevoix will have plenty of company among 4-H members with horses entered in the Charlevoix-Emmet County Fair next week, she will be among only a few 4-Hers with rabbits entered in the fair. And she might be the only person with Angora rabbits.

Kniat, 14, has been in various 4-H clubs since she was seven or eight years old. Currently she trains her horse with the Horton Bay Pony Club and has her rabbit with the Little Furries Club out of Petoskey.

About two years ago, Kniat began working with rabbits. Asked why she became interested in rabbits, she replied, "I don't know. They're just cute little fuzzy animals."

In the case of the Angora rabbits, they're fuzzy to an extreme. Angora rabbit fur sometimes grows to several inches in length. Kniat says she has to brush the Angora rabbits, particularly the older ones, regularly or they get knots in their fur.

Kniat plans on entering two Angoras and a Dutch rabbit in the fair. The Dutch rabbit is a miniature breed. The rabbits will be judged on their markings, weight and build. Judges will also judge Kniat on how well she shows the rabbits and ask her questions about the rabbits.

Although she will only be taking three rabbits to the fair, Kniat has several others. She said that she and her nine-year-

Sunglasses for Windows

It's like putting sunglasses on a window, says David Bibler, about applying Llumar, solar-controlled window films.

The Micro-thin, polyester-mylar films are virtually invisible when properly applied to existing windows.

But the films block up to 80 percent of the heat in summer and retain up to 65 percent of the heat in the winter, says Bibler, co-owner of quality Window Tinting, both in Traverse City and Grand Rapids, with his wife, Judy.

Three types of films — reflective, non-reflective and low E series are all covered by a 7 year warranty.

Quality Window Tinting also installs solar control film on motor homes, campers, vans, boats and passenger vehicles. All installations come with a lifetime guarantee.

OPINIONS

Letters to the Editor:

Dear Editor,

Water Air Team Charlevoix Inc. takes strong exception to statements made by Mr. Seberon Litzenburger at a recent Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners meeting.

Mr. Litzenburger maintains that due to the Court of Appeals decision in the case of Fox & Associates vs Hayes Township, the recommendations regarding boat density in the Lake Charlevoix Management Plan are illegal. This in incorrect. The Lake Management Plan recommends that "agencies and units of government with jurisdiction use these standards as a guide." In the case of Lake Charlevoix, both the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers have specific statutory authority to regulate both number, size and placement of boat slips. The Court of Appeals ruled only that under the Rural Township Zoning Act, townships do not have that authority.

The Court of Appeals decision only erodes local control over our natural resources. We question if this decision would have been upheld by the Michigan Supreme Court. We feel Fox & Associates and Mr. Litzenburger probably had some of the same concerns since they essentially settled the case on Hayes Townships' terms before the Supreme Court could rule.

In regards to his comments that the Charlevoix County Planning Commission does not have the authority to make such recommendations, language in the County Planning Act indicates they do.

In his comments to the county board Mr. Litzenburger neglected to mention the numerous cases where lakes have become overcrowded and the legal steps riparians have taken to limit access of non-riparians. Courts have ruled that riparian rights regarding recreational and commercial uses are limited to the extent that they do not unreasonably interfere with the riparian rights of others. In cases of overcrowding, riparians have invariably targeted public access sites and other "funnel" development claiming unreasonable use and have severely restricted the lake use of non-riparians.

In studying this issue and others over a two year time period, the Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee (a majority of which were representatives from the local governments surrounding the lake most having no riparian interest on Lake Charlevoix) conclude that due to its shape and other factors such as tremendous growth in condominium boat slips, Lake Charlevoix has a very real potential for becoming overcrowded in the future.

This fact is not readily apparent now since only about 38 percent of the shoreline surrounding the lake is now developed. The Committee concluded that in order to protect non-riparian access, standards for marina and other boat access development needed to be set up to prevent gross overcrowding by all shoreline owners including units of government.

The victory Mr. Litzenburger claims in the Hayes Township case only guarantees lake access to those who can afford lakefront property and has the potential of limiting access to the lake of those who can not afford lake property.

WATCH Inc. with a membership of over 1,000 families strongly supports the recommendations made in the Lake Charlevoix Management Plan and feels the use of Lake Charlevoix is the right of every resident of Charlevoix county - now and in the future.

REASONABLE TO ME

Grandpa's race horse

My grandpa, the late Stub Swanson, he owned a race horse and took it to fairs to race it. This was many years ago and I suppose that's how my family originally became interested in horse racing.

I'll be going to the harness horse races up at the fair in Petoskey next week. Attending those horse races is something I've been doing each year for as long as I can remember.

Stub's horse's name was Willie Napoleon. Stub's name was actually Lawrence.

For several years before he got the race horse, Stub had ponies and riding horses. To the best of my knowledge, Willie Napoleon was his only race horse.

Along with going to the harness races at the fair, I also make it a point to watch the Kentucky Derby on TV each year. Just before the start of the Derby, the TV camera will sometimes show the owners of the favored horse.

The Kentucky Derby's a big dress up affair. The race horse owners on TV are always dressed in spiffy suits and ties and you can see by their faces that they're in an awful fret over the race.

In my mind, I contrast the Kentucky Derby race horse owners against grandpa Stub. He wasn't into suits and ties. He wore workboots, blue work uniforms and a cap. And he wasn't one to fret much or get worked up over things.

I've never asked my dad or grandma about the real story of how Stub got into the race horse game. That's because I've always had my own imaginary scenario which has been good enough for me.

Knowing how grandpa Stub was, I picture him just coming home one day with his tall brown horse and turning it loose in the pasture with the other horses.

I figure when Grandma or my dad or one of the other people in the family noticed a new horse in the pasture, they probably said, "Stub, what's this new horse?"

And he answered, "That's my race horse."

"Your what?"

"My race horse. He's a harness horse. His name is Willie Napoleon."

"What are you going to do with him?"

"Why race him at the fairs. That's what you do with a race horse."

"But whatever in the world made you decide to get a race horse?"

In response to that question, grandpa Stub would have stood there with his hands in his pockets, shrugged his shoulders, shuffled his feet a little and replied, "Well, I don't know...I just wanted one."

And that would have been reason enough. Just kind of curious. Wanted to try horse racing, have some fun and see what it was about. If the horse own, it won. If it didn't, it didn't. The fun wasn't in the outcome of the race, the fun was in the adventure of racing.

One evening next week, I'll go up to the fair with my family and watch the horse races. We always get a program then watch the horses parade past prior to the races and try to pick the winners.

There have been races when I've selected horses that ran like the wind, easily outdistancing the rest of the field. There have been other races when the horse I chose broke stride and ran so slowly that it was in jeopardy of being lapped in a two-lap race.

Either way, it's all right by me. The fun's just in being there, picking a horse and cheering it on. The outcome doesn't mean so much. I like to think that's a philosophy of harness horse racing I've come by honestly.

Too few cops at Art Fair

Editor,

Date: Saturday, August 12, 1989

Event: 31st Annual Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair

Missing: The entire Charlevoix City Police Department, except one officer answering calls at City Hall, and the summer auxiliary officer writing parking tickets. No officers in evidence from 5:30 a.m. through 6 p.m.

Comment: On this, the busiest day of the summer, the lack of police officers was duely noted by visitors, exhibitors and local citizens. This was not only a gross oversight by our police department, but also very poor judgement on the part of someone. The evident lack of police protection was an insult, not only to the thousands who visit Charlevoix for the Art Fair, but also to the local merchants and taxpayers who support the city police.

Addenda: A request for on-duty police officers had been made, prior to August 12.

Flag amendment absurd

I can't believe this idiotic scheme to re-write the Constitution to penalize flag-burners has gone as far as it has.

The other day at lunch I noticed a petition near the cash register of a popular Petoskey restaurant. The petition was calling for an amendment to the Constitution making flag desecration a federal offense and it was almost filled with signatures.

I told the cashier I was surprised that so many people had failed to think through President Bush's proposed flag desecration amendment to its logical conclusion: a gradual erosion of our Constitutional rights.

The cashier wasn't surprised at all.

"This is our second petition," she said proudly. "I signed the first one."

Do the signers know what they are signing? Apparently not. If they did, they would never even consider tampering with our First Amendment rights — the same rights that have made Americans the envy of less fortunate people the world over for 200 years.

In case your a little hazy about your First Amendment rights, here's what the founding fathers wrote:

"Amendment I. Religious establishment prohibited. Freedom of speech, of the press, and right to petition.

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment, of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances."

Why all the fuss about the First Amendment all of sudden?

Earlier this year, the Supreme Court, in one of its boldest and most reassuring decisions in modern times, declared flag-burning as a form of political protest (read "freedom of speech") is OK.

If some poor, illiterate nincompoop decides to burn the flag because he thinks he has been mistreated by the government, so be it. He needs some way to express his anger. Furthermore, he may have a legitimate gripe. Far be it from me, or you or anyone else to shut him up.

Don't these petition-signers know that freedom of speech is what being an American is all about? Did they all grow up in a cave on Sumatra? Don't they realize that millions of people around the world would give almost anything for the kind of Constitutional protection that so many Americans are so eager to give away?

I am particularly chagrined that so many veterans groups have come out in favor of any Constitutional change that would limit their First Amendment rights. Veterans among all people should know better.

Furthermore, flag-burning is not exactly a national problem. I, for one, have never met a flag-burner. I have never seen anyone set fire to Old Glory.

How many flag-burners do we have in Charlevoix County? How many in Michigan? How many in the whole country?

You could probably count them on one hand and have fingers left over.

Then why risk opening up the Constitution? If we violate our rights once, it will be easier to violate them again. And again and again until we have no rights left.

Now I'll let you in on a little secret. President Bush isn't all that crazy about amending the Constitution. He's too smart for such nonsense or he wouldn't be president. But he sees flag-burning as a popular issue and he is going to wrap himself in it just as he did the Pledge of Allegiance during last fall's election campaign.

What really bothers me is that we have so many crazies in Congress who are willing to play ball with him — probably because they think a macho, anti-flag-burning stance will please their leather-headed constituents back home.

Why, when so many totalitarian nations are striving for freedom, are so Americans so eager to forfeit their right to free expression? If you have a good answer, I'd like to hear it.

The right to burn the flag — a symbol of the very laws that protect us — is our ultimate right. It should not be taken lightly.

Letters to the Editor:

Monitor development

Dear Friends & Neighbors:

Please be alert to an investment that you've made that could be threatened. We've all been attracted to this part of Michigan because of the quality of life that's found here. In the last decade it has begun to change with the influx of people. The shores of Lake Michigan have changed, Round Lake has changed, Lake Charlevoix has changed. Charlevoix has changed.

Changes can be good when controlled and people work together. Examples are the developments currently underway in Oyster Bay and at Water's Edge. Both appear to be quality projects that will be an asset to Charlevoix. But residents and local government got involved in both projects to alter developer's original plans to where they are now. In fact it took a referendum and a public battle in one case and a court suit in another. But because of public involvement good changes resulted.

Now the largest and perhaps most significant project for our area has begun. The Oscar Stroud property is in the hands of a developer and is moving very rapidly towards being developed.

The property is a natural and the potential is there for a wonderful project, one that would be beneficial to Charlevoix. But we all need to be alert and be involved in what happens. I urge you all to work with your representatives in the Charlevoix township and city. Demand they do their homework, represent your views, and insure the new growth coming is controlled and well planned. Be informed yourself. Protect your investment! Once it's gone, it's gone forever!

Beaver Island students make video

Heather Gillespie, Student Director and Kathleen McNamara, Principal of the Beaver Island Community School, announce the culmination of a year long video project. The project was undertaken by the 17 high school students as a result of an Arts Project Support Grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts.

The students wrote, directed, filmed and edited a video entitled "My Island Home," which reflects some of their views of life on Beaver Island, Michigan's most remote inhabited island.

The intended audience for the video was the young people of another remote inhabited island: Aranmore, County Donegal, Republic of Ireland, from where the early settlers of Beaver Island emigrated. A copy of the 30 minute video is now making its way to the school on Aranmore.

"The video project was a great experience for our high school students," notes McNamara, principal of the 70 student K-12 public school. At first news of the project the students were very excited. When Ken Hannon and Valerie Clarke of the KEVA Partnership in Flint arrived for the first of their four video-related visits, the students were shocked at the amount of work that would be involved in writing the script and learning to use the equipment properly; enthusiasm languished.

As the students began the actual filming, their enthusiasm increased somewhat and by the time they began the almost 40 hours of editing required they became very excited about the quality of the finished video.

Their pride in their work was shown when they planned the Premiere Showing of "My Island Home." The students spread the word that this was a special occasion and about 150 island residents turned out in their formal wear for the premiere which took place in the school's multi-purpose room on a borrowed big screen TV.

Heather Gillespie, a junior and Beaver Island native and the director of the video introduced the video remarking that "this project was very tedious and there were times we wanted to quit, but looking back now I see it was fun, an experience I am glad I had."

McNamara said that it was exciting for her to see the students' satisfaction upon completing the project and their parents' and grandparents' satisfaction in knowing that a copy was being sent to Aranmore.

Because of the warmth and appeal of the video the students were encouraged by those who saw the premier to market the VHS tape. Profits from the sale of "My Island Home" will be used to purchase editing equipment for future use by the students.

The video is selling for $20.85, which includes postage, and can be ordered from Beaver Island Community School, P.O. Box 235, St. James, MI 49782, (616) 448-2233.

Garden Club quilt raises funds

James Southers of Cleburne, Texas won a quilt which was given away Saturday as the climax to a fundraising project by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club.

The garden club raised between $5,000 and $6,000 with the quilt project. The money will be used for planting and upkeep of the five community gardens and other projects the club tends to.

The community gardens include: the Father Charlevoix Garden on West Dixon Avenue; the Memorial Garden on East Dixon Avenue; the Garden near the intersection of Michigan and Petoskey Avenue's; the planters at the Post Office; and the garden at the base of the sign at the south end of town.

Other Garden Club projects include: education of members and the community; flower shows; providing gardening books to the public library; working with the schools; making donations to garden related organizations.

City gets high marks on audit

Monday evening, city councilmen received a report on the annual audit of the city's books and found the city's financial record keeping system came out of the audit smelling like a rose.

"This is a very good audit report, one you should be proud of," a representative of the certified public accounting firm of Hill, Woodcock and Schroderus told the council.

The letter accompanying the audit cited only three minor qualifications regarding the audit of the city books. That figure is down from six qualifications last year and 10 the year before.

The first qualification advised the city to develop a more complete listing of fixed assets. The letter said, "This listing, if developed would eliminate an audit opinion qualification, as well as, potentially alleviate undocumented insurance losses arising from fire, storm and theft."

A qualification concerning a fixed asset list is very common on municipal audits.

The other two qualifications advised the city to review and possibly modify equipment rental rates between enterprise funds and review and expand the job cost system for electric and water utility extension and maintenance projects.

Juvenile Court budget continues to run in the red

by PEG OHLE

The number of days of child care provided by Juvenile Court decreased in the past year by 1,872, but the cost of that care increased by $7 a day, and the child care budget is showing a deficit.

That was the gist of the report given to the County Board of Commissioners last week by Juvenile Court Officer Brad Campbell. Campbell reported that, despite all the efforts of his court to cut expenses, so far this year, the court's deficit amounts to $33,072.29, and with last year's carryover deficit, the total is $149,969.53.

An added note reads, "Had we been given the requested quarterly payments (from the county budget) of $64,000 per quarter, we would be $12,927.61 in the black".

Campbell also explained some of the new and on-going programs designed by Juvenile Court to divert children and families from the court system, de-escalate involvement with the court, and avoid out-of-home placement.

The new programs, instigated since Judge Frederick Mulhauser took office at the end of last year, include:

Court-School Liaison Program, designed to increase communication with schools in order to better network and plan for treatment of children.

Court School, a program whereby children suspended from school must appear with school work at the court to serve their suspensions.

Non-Secure Retention, designed to avoid the high cost of downstate detention and jailing. Charlevoix County operates a six-bed detention facility funded by the Office of Criminal Justice. This will make it possible to delete $21,000 a year from child care expenses.

Department of Social Services Prevention Program, sponsored by the DSS and working in conjunction with the Diversion Program and the court, this program addresses family issues that lead to court and formal Protective Services involvement.

The on-going programs include:

Diversion Program. On-going since, 1986, this program is geared toward diverting pre-delinquent and first time offenders away from formal court involvement.

In-Home Care, specifically designed to avoid out-of-home placement.

VIP-VORP. The court's Volunteer in Probation program assists young persons to experience, sometimes for the first time in their lives, a positive relationship with an adult. The Offenders Reconciliation Program brings offenders and victims together for reconciliation and restitution.

Browe-Mitchell

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore E. Browe, Jr. of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter, Janine, to James A. Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Mitchell of Loves Park, Illinois.

Both young people have been making their homes in Denver, where the intended bride is employed by Bandgap Technical Corporation as an accounting administrator and her fiance is a student in avionics.

The wedding will take place September 2 at St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey.

CHURCH

Roswell E. Williams

Roswell E. Williams, 82, former Charlevoix resident, died Aug. 12, 1989, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Services were held Aug. 14 at St. Mary's Church, Charlevoix. The Rev. James K. Gardiner officiated and burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Mr. Williams was born Oct. 30, 1906, in Pellston and grew up there. On April 1, 1943, he married the former Lois Emmons in Detroit. She died Nov. 15, 1985.

Mr. Williams was manager of a rooming house in Detroit for 25 years before moving to Charlevoix in 1969. Prior to that time, he was a seaman engineer with Great Lakes Maritime Service.

Mr. Williams had been a resident of Grandvue Medical Care Facility since 1986.

He is survived by: a sister, Eva E. Shea of Petoskey; a nephew and his wife William W. and Dorothy Miles of Petoskey; a sister-in-law, Frances Emmons of St. Clair Shores; a brother-in-law and his wife, Homer and Eunice Emmons of Detroit.

The family suggests memorials to Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home.

Dorothy Henry

Dorothy Henry, 80, former Charlevoix resident, died July 17, 1989, in New Port Richey, Fla.

A memorial service was held July 21 at the Faupel Funeral Home, New Port Richey.

Mrs. Henry was born Aug. 24, 1908, in Bassett, Neb. She married Dallas Henry on July 31, 1925, in Indiana. Mr. and Mrs. Henry owned a business, "Henry Barber & Beauty Shop," in Charlevoix for 20 years. In recent years, the couple resided in Florida. Mr. Henry died in March, 1960.

Mrs. Henry is survived by: two daughters, Donna Lord of New Port Richey, and Joni Olach of Newport News, Va.; five grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; two sisters, Avis Seaman of Crawfordsville, Ind., and Bonnie Lesard of St. Petersburg, Fla; one brother, Norris Wright of Crawfordsville.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Back in 1927, old Brother Lott, an 88 year old friend of mine, was building a log cabin for himself. Now he and his friends had gotten just about everything done except for building the chimney for the fireplace. The day was getting on and they were getting kind of tired and hungry. So everybody really got busy and threw that chimney up in a hurry.

There was only one problem. They didn't set a proper foundation for the chimney. Instead of using big rocks at the bottom and little rocks at the top, they used the same size rocks all the way up. Guess what happened?

To tell it the way Brother Lott did, "we put the heat to that chimney and just about the time the smell of beans and cornbread was really getting good, we heard this loud crack and the whole thing came down. We all knew why. It took us 'til two o'clock in the morning but we rebuilt and built it right."

Sometimes we treat our lives a lot like that chimney building project of Brother Lott's. We hastily throw things together and are devastated when things fall apart.

We forget that God has a plan, a real sense of orderliness, for our lives. Instead of realizing that God has given us the faith to move mountains, we settle for a belief that's only an occasional match for a molehill.

If things occasionally fall apart on you, ask yourself whose plan are you following? Molehills are hardly a ripple in our lives if we're following God's plan. Mountains ought to plant a sense of expectation within us as we watch and see what neat things God is going to do next.

The Psalmist writes, "I desire to do your will, O my God, your law is written on my heart." Get in a hurry or go it alone in life and expect problems. Trust it to the Lord and watch new strength grow in your faith as he helps you build your life and build it right.

New officers installed by Grandvue group

The regular monthly meeting of Grandvue Medical Facility Auxiliary took place at the facility on Peninsula Rd., East Jordan, August 20. Twenty members and guests were present.

New officers installed for 1989-90 year were: President Ruby VanAlstine, Vice-President Florence Stucker, Secretary Jean Korthase, Treasurer Mary Geiken.

New equipment, an electric scales and indoor-outdoor bed, which will be purchased from proceeds of annual Tag Day was discussed.

Programs for the coming year will be co-chaired by Florence Stucker and past president Ruth Ann Knysz.

The annual Membership Drive and renewal of memberships were discussed.

Clark school reunion

Former students and teachers from the old County School of Clark are invited to a reunion at noon, August 19 at the Norwood Friendship Hall.

People attending the reunion are asked to bring a dish to pass and their own table service. Rolls and beverage will be provided. Family members are also welcome to attend.

New Mesquite captain shipped in Somewhere between Sitka, Alaska and Washington, D.C. rests the quiet little town of Charlevoix, Michigan. After serving with the U.S. Coast Guard in the two former locations, Lt. Commander Richard Lynch will spend the next three years in the latter as Captain of the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite.

Lynch, 34, arrived in Charlevoix with his family July 13. He officially took over as Mesquite commander July 28.

Lynch graduated from the U.S. Coast Guard Academy in New London, Connecticut in 1977. Since graduating, his assignments have made him well-traveled.

His first assignment was with the Coast Guard cutter Hornbeam in Cape May, New Jersey.

After two years in New Jersey, he spent three years in St. Louis, Missouri working in a staff job in the navigational aids branch of the Coast Guard office responsible for the nation's western rivers.

He said that assignment was interesting, but he prefers being on an ocean coast or on the Great Lakes.

From St. Louis, Lynch went north - far north - to Sitka, Alaska. From 1982 through 1984 Lynch was the executive officer on the Coast Guard cutter Woodrush. Yes, it's the same Woodrush that was stationed in Charlevoix several years ago.

"I loved it," Lynch said of Sitka. "I didn't want to go there, but after being sent there I fell in love with the place."

Lynch and his wife, Dianne, had their first child, Ryan, 6, while in Sitka. Their other child, daughter Lindsay, is three.

From 1985 until arriving in Charlevoix earlier this summer, Lynch was stationed in Washington, D.C. While there, he attended George Washington University and received a Masters Degree in Business Administration. He also worked at the Coast Guard's headquarters.

Lynch said that command assignments on cutters usually last for three years, but occasionally extend to four.

Although he and his family have been busy since their arrival in Charlevoix, they have found a little time to get out and see the community.

"We love the place," Lynch said. "As far as a place to live and bring up the kids, I couldn't be happier."

Lynch and his wife will be living in Charlevoix Township where they had a home built.

As commander of the Mesquite, Lynch will be responsible for a crew of 55 aboard a 180 foot ship.

The mesquite is one of five buoy tending ships in the Great Lakes. It's primary mission is maintaining navigational aids on the northern halves of Lakes Michigan and Huron.

Much of the crew's efforts are directed toward making sure buoys and shore aids are positioned properly and showing the proper signals to assist marine traffic. According to Lynch, spring and fall are the ship's busiest times of the year.

The Mesquite also spends a fair amount of time restoring and maintaining lighthouses. In times past, many of the lighthouses were manned, but as the lighthouses became automated the responsibility for maintaining them fell to ships such as the Mesquite.

Lynch said the duties of the ship require people with a wide variety of talents and abilities. He noted that thus far he's found that the best part of being a commanding officer is working with the people and having "a lot of talented people working for you to get the job done."

Last winter, the Mesquite was assigned to drug patrol duty in the Carribean Sea.

Lynch said that the Coast Guard rotates such assignments between Great Lakes ships and its unlikely that the Mesquite will have a similar assignment for the next few years.

Three concerts to take place in five days

Sheriff unhappy with multiple concerts

Castle Farms Music Theater concert promoters are looking forward to three of the biggest concerts of the summer within a five-day period. Charlevoix County sheriff George Lasater is not looking forward to three of the biggest concerts of the summer within a five-day period.

The Beach Boys and Chicago will kick off the three concerts at 8 p.m., Aug. 19. They will be followed by Ringo Star and his all-star band at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 20.

The biggest of the three concerts will take place at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 23 when Skid Row and Bon Jovi, one of the most popular bands currently on tour come to town.

Earlier this week, concert box office personnel were estimating a crowd of between 8,000 and 10,000 for the Beach Boys-Chicago concert, a smaller crowd for the Ringo Star concert, and (depending on how last minute sales go) possibly a sell-out crowd of 15,000 for Bon Jovi.

Charlevoix Productions advises concert goers that parking lots won't open until three hours before the show and that concert gates won't open until two hours before the show.

The box office opens at the same time as the parking lots. If there are tickets available on the day of the show, Wharfside Market in downtown Charlevoix will also have them.

Lasater disapproves of having concerts so close together. He says it causes difficulty for his department from both a budgetary and personnel standpoint.

"Financially, physically and emotionally, it will exhaust everybody," he said of the series of three concerts.

He said the sheriff's department will still respond to other complaints while the concerts are going on and will have a deputy at each end of the county.

"We'll just do the best we can and deal with it," he explained.

Ironton Ferry gets $50,000

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners received some good news last week when Youth Activities Director Mike Davis reported the county would receive a grant of $50,000 from the State Department of Natural Resources to help maintain and operate the Ironton Ferry for the coming year.

The grant was made in recognition of the Historic Site of Michigan designation of the ferry, conferred in 1976.

In telling the County Board about the grant, Davis recognized the help of both State Senator Mitch Irwin and State Representative Ralph Ostling in getting it approved.

For some time, the county has been trying to obtain some sort of funding to help defray the costs of operating the ferry across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix at Ironton. Last year, the operations deficit amounted to approximately $45,000, and it is expected to be at least as much this year.

The ferry, which has been operating for over 100 years under various governmental jurisdictions, is now under the jurisdiction of the Charlevoix County Transportation Authority, a three-man body made up of County Commissioner Ralph Harmon, Road Commissioner John Kujawski, and member-at-large Robert Winchester.

The ferry not only saves many miles of road travel between the eastern and western parts of the county, but it has long been a tourist attraction, with vacationers often making the round trip just for the experience.

The garden in front of the Sheriff's Department is not only good to look at, but also supplies most of the fresh vegetables served to inmates in the county jail. Some of the vegetables are also given to area senior citizens. Shown tending the garden are jail trustees (from left) Dan Jarvis, Chuck Jacobs and Casey Fortune.

SPORTS

Yachting Notes

by A. NONY MOUSE

This paragraph is addressed to the Crud of Charlevoix. You know who, you broke into the sailing school building, spread polyester resin all over the place, but, so far, have not had enough guts to "claim responsibility" for your terrorist action. Make your choice; call Jim Keller at 547-9700 and offer to help him in all his efforts to keep the sail school sailing – or – be advised that you will, every time you look in a mirror (even 60 years from now) know that you're the s–t that did it! When your're so ready to be proud of the other things you've done – you'll remember... and remember again... and again...

Please; call or just leave, and stay away.

The Wednesday series has become a real dog fight. Look at these results and picture the flag positions still in doubt! Next week, we'll again give you the standings, with only one race left but right now only Slapshot, in Fleet A, has First in Fleet locked up. Mi-Joy comes close in Fleet B, but Cygnus just needs two firsts and one other boat between, in each race, to steal the big flag! Fleet C (Bandit) and JAM (Cabaret) both have just 2.5 point spreads, so 2 firsts, by No. 2 Seeking Heat and Nancy, respectively, will create ties – and probably capture season honors based on most first place finishes! In Fleet C, if the two old men of the sea keep fighting each other and ignoring the rest, Newsense could grab the flag!

Last Wednesday started with a promise of a summer breeze, gentle but oh, soo nice. Only two legs later, it was all over - and we were all thanking Phil for ending it there, instead of an hour or two later at the next mark. It's called frustration!!! But anyway...

By Overall Corrected Position: One! Slapshot 1:10:39 (A-1), Two! Apprentice 1:12:51 (A-2), Three! Newsense 1:18:04 (C-First), 4 MIP 1:19:59 (C-2), 5 Gotcha 1:21:06 (A-3), 6 Flash 1:24:30 (A-4), 7 Bandit 1:26:41 (C-3) 8 HS Moist M 1:28:57 (C-4), 9 Allons-y (C-5).

The rest were all over an hour and a half, and were, in order... Mi-Joy (B-First), Miller Time (B-2), Mud Duck (C-6), Blasen (B-3), Cygnus (B-4), Lost Vermonter (B-5), Foxy Lady (B-6), Mr Breeze (C-7), Sandpiper (B-7), Kitty Wake (B-8) and Tire (almost) less (B-9)!

The JAM Fleet, despite the ghostly air, managed 8 finishes... Nancy, Bald Eagle, Maureen, Cabaret, Spirit, Hot Mustard, Sonrise, and Cheemaun all drifted across with final finish at 4:57:03!

If you're into higher math, you'll note that the average speed of the winner was just over two furlongs per fortnight – that's why sail racing is such a great spectator sport (if you're in love and wouldn't notice if the movie projector broke, anyway).

All you young hot shots, all you old know-all derelicts, all you middle age trauma examples – – be there!!! 10 a.m. sharp for Hot Dog Races Saturday, August 26 (or keep your mouth shut about your sailing skills ALL winter long)!

...the End of the Mouses' Tale.

League and district winners

City softball results

Pine Hill Nursery and First State Bank wrapped up men's and women's softball league championships last week.

In a one-game playoff for all the petunias Wednesday, Aug. 11, Pine Hill defeated Charlevoix Cinema III 18-3. Both teams had finished the regular season with 13 wins and three losses. Eric Towe homered for Pine Hill in the playoff game while Gerald Klooster was the winning pitcher.

Earlier the same evening, Pine Hill concluded their regular season with a 9-3 win over Townhouse. Towe had two home runs in that game. Ken Peeble was the winning pitcher.

In the only other game played Wednesday, Bay Shore Steel beat Pat McKeown Ford 13-12. Butch Potter homered for the winners and Dave Melke was the winning pitcher.

Iron Works-Quality Limon picked up a forfeit win from Assembly of God Church.

After taking the local women's league softball title earlier in the week, First State Bank went unbeaten through three games to win the five-team Women's Class E District Slow Pitch tournament this past weekend. The tournament took place in Charlevoix.

In the final game, First State Bank beat Venture Video of Charlevoix 11-0. Winning pitcher Carrie Nelson allowed Venture only two hits.

First State Bank opened the tournament Saturday with a 15-2 win over Larks Lake Bar and an 8-2 win over Wolverine Stages. Nelson was also the winning pitcher in those games.

Venture Video lost to Wolverine Stages 14-6, but then defeated Kwikie Printing 27-10 and avenged their loss to Wolverine Stages 6-5 to reach the finals.

In other preliminary games Wolverine Stages beat Kwikie Printing 6-4 while Kwikie defeated Larks Lake Bar 12-0.

old brother Mike have a total of 14 or 15 rabbits.

Kniat says her parents, Paul and Geneva, seem to like the rabbits well enough.

Despite the brushing required by the Angoras, Kniat says rabbits aren't that difficult to take care of. She notes that although it takes her about half an hour each day to feed and water them all, it could be done faster if she didn't feel compelled to take the time to talk to them all.

While rabbits aren't as intelligent as some pets, they do have distinct personalities.

Kniat said her brother has a big rabbit which he can hold like a baby. Her showmanship rabbit is fine when she's holding it, but mean and aggressive when it's in its cage at home. When she reaches into its cage to pull out the empty food or water dish, the rabbit, aptly named Nipper, nips at her hand and makes kind of a growling sound.

Earlier this year, one of Kniat's Angora rabbits had a litter. She's thinking about selling the five baby rabbits.

Several laws affect Lake Charlevoix management

by PEG OHLE

Last week, the Courier addressed the State Court of Appeals' decision that Hayes Township, through its zoning ordinance, cannot regulate or limit boat dockage construction or riparian access rights, and looked at whether or not Charlevoix County, through its Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Plan, can do so.

Petoskey attorney Seberon Litzenburger was quoted as saying it cannot, and County Planner Larry Sullivan was quoted as saying the County Planning Act gives the county that authority.

The Lake Management Advisory Plan was written under the direction of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission with the purpose of detailing methods of "managing the use, growth, and quality of Lake Charlevoix and its adjacent lands." It has already been challenged by the City of Boyne City because the County Planning Commission used a portion of the plan in recommending against funding for additional marina slips in that city.

Those who object to the Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Plan seem to do so not only because they believe it is invalid, but because they think there is already plenty of legislation which protects the lake.

The Inland Lakes and Streams Act (Public Act 346 of 1972), cited by Litzenburger as a protector of Lake Charlevoix, provides for the "sound use of inland waters by regulating physical alteration, such as creating, enlarging, or diminishing inland lakes or streams, connecting any water bodies, or dredging or filling bottomlands or the land area of an inland lake or stream lying below the ordinary high water mark."

On the federal level, the 1972 Federal Water Pollution Control Act regulates the discharge of dredge or other fill material into navigable waters and their adjacent wetlands, requiring a permit from the Army Corps of Engineers for these activities.

Another act designed to protect water bodies is the Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Control Act (Public Act 347 of 1977). This act states, in part:

Any person who proposes an earth change which will disturb one or more acres of land or which is located within 500 feet of a surface watercourse within the county shall obtain a grading permit...prior to initiating the earth change." One of the purposes of this act is to "protect and preserve the water quality and associated fish and wildlife resources."

Still another act with regulations designed to protect lakes and streams is the Wetland Protection Act (Public Act 203 of 1979). While it is aimed primarily at regulating land use, the act recognizes that the wetlands around the shores of lakes and streams serve as important vehicles for filtering polluted waters before entering a lake or stream.

And there are many other laws, local and state, which protect lakes and streams from pollution from holding tanks and debris.

Most of the above-mentioned laws are aimed primarily at protecting water quality by controlling pollution from sources away from the lake surface. They don't attempt to protect water quality by limiting the number of persons and watercraft using the lake surface, as do the invalidated portion of the Hayes Township zoning ordinance and some of the recommendations of the Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Plan.

Section 5.13 of the Hayes Township zoning ordinance reads, in part:

"Not more than one (1) mooring, slip or dock space for each one hundred (100) feet of lake frontage may be provided for mooring or docking of boats in any zoning division of the township."

This provision effectively limits the use of boats on the lake by limiting mooring spaces.

Recommendations in the Lake Charlevoix Plan include the following provision to "minimize the potential for over-use of Lake Charlevoix's water surface...":

"Expansion of existing marinas or access site developments should have a total of 100 feet of lake frontage for each of the following: slips, rack storage units, or car-trailer parking spaces, as the case may be."

When the County Planning Commission used this paragraph in recommending against funding for expansion of the Boyne City Marina because the city already has more slips than one per 100 feet of shoreline it owns, the first questions arose about the validity of the plan and the need for the plan.

...laws affecting management of Lake Charlevoix

Is there a need for restricting the use of Lake Charlevoix by people and watercraft? The Courier first asked the question of Leah Green, a member of the Hayes Township Board, who served as vice-chairman of the Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee. Her reply was:

"Both the zoning ordinance and the Lake Management Plan are probably ahead of their time. The job of crafting recommendations to protect people from probably non-existing problems is difficult and thankless, but the wheels of government turn slowly, and if we wait until there are existing problems, it may be too late.

"We use the word 'should' in our recommendations, not 'must' or 'shall'. Our purpose was to have a measure. The numbers we came up with were the best guess we could make. I personally wanted to ask for an annual survey of boat use, types, etc. so there could be a better basis for the numbers we use. In the end, the committee wanted to get across the message that the potential for pollution from over-use is there. We had no crystal ball as to numbers of boats or people or years we have before this happens. We need research to get this answer".

Roger Bush of Charlevoix, who spends a great deal of time on Lake Charlevoix, had a different type of answer:

"I think we are fast approaching the saturation point with large boats, those watercraft 25 feet and over. Development on the far ends of the lake—Boyne City and East Jordan—have filled a niche for large boats and their traffic is creating high waves and back wash off the shores. This makes it difficult for small boat users on the lake.

"We need some kind of restrictions. I would like to see the larger boats dock at the Charlevoix end of the lake because most of their use is on Lake Michigan. We could have five times as many 20-foot and down boats and not notice the increase, but if we double the number of larger boats, the lake will become almost unboatable. Some boaters just don't take the small guy into consideration in passing, especially on the South Arm."

One small boat sports fisherman, who asked not to be identified, expressed the hope that if the time came to limit the number of boats on the lake, public access sites would be given priority overy marinas, so "the little guy" could do his fishing.

Another transplant from southern Michigan said he hoped the time would never come when "we could water ski only between noon and two o'clock or fish before noon or after five like on some lakes down below."

Last week the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners decided to "take another look" at the Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Plan to decide if and where it needs revising.

Also last week, the Hayes Township board endorsed the plan with the hope that the county board would make any changes it deemed necessary and use the plan to guide growth on Lake Charlevoix.

No quid pro quo,
no hostage deal;
We won't negotiate.
While this is so, the status is quo —
And we just sit and wait!

City council says no to new downtown street lights

Decision made despite support for lights from merchants

As of Monday evening's city council meeting, the lights are out in downtown Charlevoix ... the proposed new street lights that is.

Before an audience which filled the city council chambers and spilled out into the hallway, city councilmen voted to delete the new lights from the amended list of Downtown Development Authority projects.

Councilmen made the decision by a 3-2 vote. Councilmen Earl Muma, Butch Russell and Ken Whitley voted for the motion to delete the lights. Councilmen Jim Potter and Bill Haggard voted against the motion. Councilman Norm Probert was absent from the meeting and mayor Gary Probert only votes to break ties.

The new lights were rejected despite pleas from approximately 20 business people who asked the council to either support the new lights or at least delay a decision until more information could be gathered.

As proposed, the lights would have been the same as the lights currently in front of Points North, just to the north of the bridge. The proposal called for 77 new lights to be installed along Bridge Street and 15 new lights to be installed on side streets in the downtown business district. The 92 new lights carried an estimated price tag between $178,000 and $214,000.

Discussion of the lights lasted for more than an hour Monday evening and grew heated more than once.

Members of the audience began clapping, much like an audience on the Donahue show, when someone said something they concurred with.

The clapping angered mayor Gary Probert who, following one of the clapping sessions, vigorously hammered the table with his gavel and said, "Stop these outbursts or we will eliminate people from the audience."

To which audience member Bill Supernaw chided, "Down with the freedom of speech."

The audience didn't clap for the next few speakers, but eventually began again. Probert made no additional reproachments.

Almost all of the business people who spoke at the meeting, spoke in support of the lights.

"I think the lights are really critical in this (the DDA program)" Jim Mabee of The Clothing Company said. ..."I really think that we need the lights to make this whole thing work."

"I think these (new) lights should definitely be there," said John Ochs of Central Drug Store.

Ochs said the current lights are ugly and a detriment to downtown Charlevoix. Mike Greeley of Wharfside called the current lights, "parking lot lights."

Muma said he was concerned that the proposed lights would offer less light and be detrimental to downtown security.

Russell said, "I feel the present lights are more than adequate."

Hans Wiemer, who supported the new lights, referred to Petoskey's gas light district and said he doesn't believe that section of Petoskey has a disproportionately high crime rate.

Supporters of the new lights pointed out that the council did not have to make a final decision Monday evening. They said that more information could be gathered and if councilmen were still opposed to the new lights, they could delete them from the DDA project list at a later date.

However, it will be much more difficult to add the lights at a later date. Adding projects to the DDA project list requires a lengthy public hearing process.

Several people recommended that the city ask Lexalite, a local industry specializing in lighting, to work with the city in gathering information. Lexalite vice president Dale Troppman was at the council meeting and said the firm would be willing to work with the city.

School seeks millage again

by Wendi Wright

At its regular meeting Monday night, the Charlevoix Board of Education decided to put another millage proposal before voters in a special election to be held October 2. The proposal is for .79 mills for two years to be used to upgrade the school system's bus fleet.

This new proposal, coming on the heels of the defeat of a higher transportation millage in June, is projected to net the school an estimated $355,000 over two years. The money will be used to purchase new buses; a new full-size van; and one mini-van or station wagon.

According to Richard Kelly, new school business manager, the school currently has nine buses that are running with over 100,000 miles on them. "There's going to come a time when these buses just aren't going to run anymore," he said at the meeting.

"Our main concern," stated school Superintendent Gordon VanWieren, "is that we upgrade the bus fleet, and that we continue to upgrade it. In order to bring it up to where it should be, we need to ask for another millage."

VanWieren said the vans are needed to save wear and tear on the buses, as they can be used for small team or group trips. Also, since it's not necessary for the driver of the van to be specially licensed, coaches or teachers can drive the vans to school functions. This, Kelly said, saves the school money as it eliminates the need to pay a bus driver for these trips.

This new proposal covers only the bare necessities, according to Board member Larry Levengood. "We have to get approval for this millage," Levengood said after the meeting. "We took out the things that weren't absolute necessities."

Board member Robert Drenth suggested the possibility of combining bus routes between the three schools in order to reduce the mileage the buses must cover everyday. VanWieren cited two potential problems with this suggestion. First, he

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Getting in shape for football

Now and for the next couple of weeks, high school football players are going through preseason conditioning.

This is necessary so that when the season begins our football players will be in shape. We can't have a bunch of shapeless blobs taking the field. Football's no sport for amoebas.

Many years ago, when I was a high school freshman, I gave high school football a whirl and went through this preseason conditioning stuff. And I remember it well - not fondly, but well.

Preseason conditioning practices consisted of two hours of a lot of calisthenics and running. It involved a substantial amount of perspiration and any young man who's survived one of these sessions will laugh in the face of the toughest workout some Hollywood lady like Jane Fonda has to offer.

Although many of the calisthenics were garden variety such as push-ups and jumping jacks, football conditioning also featured some more creative ways to torment a body.

There were these things called "log rolls." Three players stood side by side. When the coach signalled, the middle player dove sideways at the feet of one of the other players. That player dove over the rolling player and toward the feet of the third player. The third player dove over the player rolling at him and toward the first player who by this time was supposed to be standing up again. This went on until the coach decided the players were finished.

Log rolls were one of the drills I did fairly well. As a high school freshman, I wasn't very tall and was so thin that I only cast a shadow on days when the sun was just right. But I was reasonably agile and log rolls stressed agility.

Being thin also had certain disadvantages in log rolls. All too often it seemed one of the other two log rollers would end up being someone less agile and much less thin. When one of these bison miscalculated a dive and landed on us thin folk, it tended to insure that we stayed thin.

"Down-ups" also merit mention. This exercise involved running in place, then on a signal kicking your feet out backwards and falling to your chest, and finally popping back to your feet again as quickly as possible and continuing to run in place. We'd do 25 or 30 of these down-up things at a time.

It a way, down-ups epitomized the basics of football: you run, you fall down, you get back up, you run again.

When we were issued uniforms and began contact drills, I concluded that half of down-up exercises are a waste. In football, there's no need to learn to fall down. People knock you down. But the getting-up part came in handy.

Most players seemed to hate the running more than the calisthenics.

We ran things called "gut-busters." In a gut-buster every body lined up at the goal line and ran first to the 10-yard line and back, then to the 20-yard line and back and so on...

Gut-busters made your heart pound like the bass drum in a heavy metal band.

By my junior year, I'd seen the light and given up on football. Although I'd grown to be as tall or taller than most of my teammates, I'd also found that no matter how many chocolate shakes I drank, the only time I gained weight for football was when I put on the helmet, pads and other paraphrenalia. Then my weight approximately doubled.

Ironically, although I, like the other players dreaded the running part of football conditioning, I ended up running cross country my junior and senior years. After a few weeks of cross country training, gut-busters weren't so intimidating. A gut buster would serve as a nice warm-up prior to some serious running.

My younger brother Gregg, who was much more successful at high school football than I was, set out to beat the football preseason conditioning trauma one year. During the summer, he ran between five and 10 miles a day.

When preseason conditioning came around, Gregg cruised through the gut busters, 12 minute runs and all the other physical trials. He was in shape.

Then in the first week of the season, he broke his ankle and was out for the year.

Poland reborn

If I had to live in any other country in the world today, it would have to be Poland. And I'm not even Polish.

Can't you imagine the tremendous feeling of exhilaration that must be abroad in that land now that the stodgy old communist regime has ended — peaceably — and Lech Walesa and his free enterprise pals are calling the shots!

Although Walesa turned down the job of prime minister, the post was accepted by his buddy Tadeusz Mazowiecki, pronounced "Mah-zoh-vee-ET-skee."

Walesa probably will continue in his old role with the Solidarity trade union and act as sort of a Polish Ben Franklin, goading here, prodding there.

I know it's early and there are lots of stumbling-blocks ahead, but I predict that in a very few years Poland will be the showplace of Eastern Europe.

- Factories running full tilt to meet almost a half century of unsatisfied demand.
- Fertile farms thriving under private ownership.
- Grocery stores bulging with the bounty of the land.
- A building boom that will leave Toronto in the dust.
- The rebirth of a culture that has been denied the world since the death of composer, pianist and statesman Ignace Jan Paderewski almost 50 years ago.

ALTHOUGH some folks are worried that Mazowiecki will have to produce immediate results to satisfy his countrymen, I am not particularly worried. Poles, as we have learned over the years, are very patient people. They certainly know that Mazowiecki won't be able to correct two generations of heavy-handed totalitarian rule overnight.

But change may come more quickly than we think.

For one thing, the free world would like nothing better than to hold Poland up as an example of what can be accomplished under laissez-faire economics. The United States government will be unstinting in its financial and technical aid.

But that's not all. Private investors throughout the free world are not going to pass up a good deal. Poland in the years ahead is going to offer more blue-ribbon investment opportunities than any other nation —including the United States.

The demand is built-in, the raw materials are available and the Polish people over the years have demonstrated a world-class work ethic.

Unless I miss my guess, Wall Street already has reconnaissance patrols on the streets of Warsaw.

WHAT IS MOST exciting about the big change is that, unlike the Chinese protesters in Beijing this spring, Walesa, Mazowiecki & Co. have worked their way into the highest echelons of government without bloodshed and without really antagonizing their communist predecessors, who remain in control of the military. Poland will continue to be a member of the Warsaw Pact.

Of course, Poland's dramatic changes could not have taken place without the tacit approval of Soviet Premier Mikail Gorbachev who is attempting to effect similar changes in his own country.

Other Soviet satellites in Eastern Europe, including Hungary, also are moving toward more democratic governments.

It is no secert why the iron-fisted dictatorships of the Soviet bloc are suddenly relaxing their grip.

The powers-that-be realize that the juvenile fantasies of Karl Marx, founder of socialism, just don't work. They may sound OK on paper, but after 70 years of practical application in the Soviet Union they have failed to produce a standard of living even remotely comparable to accepted standards in the West.

Some communistic leaders like Cuba's Fidel Castro are unwilling to change course; but the movers and shakers in most other Soviet bloc countries realize that their lives could well be on the line unless they do something — and do it quickly — to feed the hungry and bring their countrymen into the mainstream of the 20th century.

The people will not live on promises forever.

Extended learning program offered

Central Michigan University's School of Extended Learning and Northwestern Michigan College are offering four televised college-level classes on the CMU Public TV network and some cable channels.

"The Story of English" and "The Western Tradition" are two previously aired Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) series that have been adapted for telecourse presentation by CMU, for three semester hours of credit each. "Marketing" and "Faces of Culture" telecourses are sponsored by NMC and carry four and five quarter hours of credit, respectively, which is transferrable to CMU.

Telecourses offer an alternative to students who find it difficult to attend classes on campus. Students who register for telecourses receive a complete packet of materials, which includes assignments, exam schedules, and other course information. Work is evaluated and graded by the course instructor.

"The Story of English," hosted by Robert MacNeil of the "MacNeil-Lehrer News Hour," explores the origins, evolution, and expansion of the English language.

"The Western Tradition," hosted by Eugene Weber, a professor at the University of California at Los Angeles, weaves together history, art, literature, religion, geography, government, and economics.

"Marketing" looks at the wide scope of marketing as it influences both profit and non-profit firms, with particular emphasis on business philosophy.

"Faces of Culture" is an introduction to the study of human group behavior, with special emphasis on culture, the socialization process, a social institutions, and social change.

"The Story of English" begins a nine-week run from 11 a.m. to noon Tuesdays, starting Sept. 12 and ending Nov. 7. "The Western Tradition" airs for 13 weeks from 11 a.m. to noon Thursdays, starting Sept. 7 and concluding Nov. 30.

"Marketing" will be broadcast for nine weeks from 11 to 11:30 a.m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays beginning Sept. 25 and ending Nov. 22. "Faces of Culture" airs for 10 weeks from 11:30 a.m. to noon, also on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays beginning Sept. 25 and concluding Dec. 1.

Tuition for each of the NMC-sponsored telecourses is $104 for Grand Traverse County residents and $168 for non-residents. Tuition for the CMU-sponsored classes is $243 per course. Call (517) 774-3719 for CMU telecourse registration information; call (616) 922-1049 for more information about the NMC-sponsored courses.

All telecourses will air on WCMU-TV 14 Mt. Pleasant; WCML-TV 6 Alpena; WCMW-TV Manistee; WCMV-TV 27 Cadillac; TV 46 Traverse City and TV 69 Leland and Suttons Bay. In addition, the NMC-sponsored courses will be cablecast on NMC-13, Centel Cable, Traverse City.

Letters to the Editor:

City council criticized

Letter to the Editor,
Charlevoix City Council versus Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce:

Thank you Chamber, a get-it-done-properly and forge-ahead-progressive group that consists of bright individuals that attack problems fairly. It is truly a great asset for our beautiful Charlevoix, directed by talented Jacquie Merta. Thank you for all your good efforts and I hope you stay with our city for many years.

Now this leads me to my thesis.

Replace the Council who ignores the uncovered trash cans in our city parks and our boat docks. A simple solution would be a picket fence and some bushes.

For at least 15 years you have promised toilets. Who needs your snails pace?

My suggestion is to replace the Council with the Chamber and make Merta our Mayor.

Charlevoix is exciting so let's keep it beautiful.

Burnsides is gone due to alleged rent gouging due to a four-time rent increase by the new local owners.

Council, you have one plus for sure – we don't have to travel to Mackinac Island for sweatshirts or ice cream, thanks.

This is not head-hunting, I just want to see charming, beautiful Charlevoix cared for by dedicated people.

Robert Wexstaff, extremely capable, and Hans Wiemer, talented architect, are only a few of the residents that would help direct some of the projects that never seem to be finished.

Now, I request police protection as I go into hiding.

Salmonson becomes Eagle

Dave Salmonson (left) became an Eagle Scout in a court of honor ceremony which took place at the United Methodist Church this past Sunday. Presenting Salmonson the award was last official act by retiring scoutmaster Louis Edwards.

David Salmonson became an Eagle Scout this past Sunday in a Court of Honor ceremony which was incorporated into the service at the United Methodist Church.

Salmonson, son of Terry and Lynne Salmonson, is the ninth Charlevoix scout to reach the rank of Eagle in the past 30 years.

It's been a busy year for the 18-year-old. This past spring he was part of the state championship performing arts team. In June, he graduated as class valedictorian. And Sunday he became an Eagle scout. In a few weeks he will be leaving for college at Oakland University.

Salmonson said he's had his sights set on being an Eagle scout for several years.

"When I started out as a younger scout, I thought that was the goal," he explained.

He said you pretty much have to decide early in scouting if you're going to attempt to make Eagle rank because there's a time frame within which certain things must be accomplished. All of a scout's merit badge work must be done prior to the scout's eighteenth birthday. Salmonson said he made it by a matter of days.

In the process of becoming an Eagle scout, Salmonson earned 21 merit badges. Some categories covered by Salmonson's badges include: citizenship in the community, nation and world; forestry; environmental science; astronomy, first aid; safety; emergency preparedness; wilderness survival; soil and water conservation; and communication.

"The hardest was probably environmental science," Salmonson said. "You have to stay out in the woods for certain periods of time and study the ecology. It also required a 500 word essay."

Salmonson said his father was involved in scouting and was Charlevoix's cubmaster for a while.

"He was the reason I got into it...both my brother (Tim) and I," he noted.

Salmonson said he's pleased to have made Eagle scout. He said it not only will look good on a resume, but it's also a good feeling to know that if he's ever in a situation out in the wilderness he will be prepared to handle it.

Former scoutmaster Louis Edwards and current scoutmaster Jack Lauchner worked with Salmonson as he worked his way through the scout ranks. Making the presentation at Salmonson's court of honor was Edwards' last official act as Charlevoix scoutmaster.

Local students participate in Tech summer program

James Pfluecke and Ben Whitley, both of Charlevoix, recently participated in Michigan Technological University's Summer Youth Program. They were among 960 junior and senior high school students attending the University's seventeenth annual Summer Youth Program held July 9-August 5.

Each student has the opportunity to participate in one of fifty-five week-long explorations. Program design focuses on career exploration and development of new skills through laboratory, classroom, and field experiences, with each exploration directed by a Michigan Tech faculty member or a specialist in that area of study.

Pfluecke is the son of John and Anne Pfluecke. Whitley is the son of Jerome and Nancy Whitley.

Charlevoix plays role in program for peace in Ireland

For the past several weeks, Charlevoix has, in a small, but important way, served as a sanctuary from violence and a promoter of peace between Protestants and Catholics in Northern Ireland.

Samuel Willis, 12, and Cormac McCloskey, 13, have spent the past several weeks with the Dave and Mary Lou Norton family at Island View.

Newscasts from Northern Ireland often feature scenes of shootings and car bombs and other violence. But that all seems very distant when talking to two Irish boys on a sunny day in Charlevoix.

Samuel is a soft-spoken boy with dark hair from the suburbs of Belfast, Northern Ireland. He is Protestant. Cormac is outgoing, has bright red hair and a quick smile. He is Catholic and lives in urban Belfast.

They came to Charlevoix as part of a program called Committee 10. The program places teenagers from different factions in Ireland, and other countries where there is civil strife, together for several weeks somewhere away from their homeland.

The goal of Committee 10 is to foster peace for tomorrow through working with young people today.

"If you live together, you can tell people you met this person who was nice," Cormac explains.

Cormac was asked to participate in the program by his priest, Samuel was asked by his minister. Both boys said their parents supported their participation.

Samuel says there isn't much violence now where he lives.

Cormac says there is occasional violence where he lives and a person has to be careful. He notes that the violence has been going on for so long that people have learned to live with it.

"It just happens," he says. "It's like tradition."

Both boys agree that things in Ireland are slowly getting better.

The Committee 10 program has been going on for eight years. It originally was intended to be an eight year program, but both boys say they wouldn't be surprised to see it extended.

Prior to coming to America, July 7, the boys met each other once and went to a movie together. They'll be in Charlevoix until Aug. 25. This week they're on a backpacking trip in the Upper Peninsula with some people from the Congregational Church.

Mary Lou Norton said she became interested in the Committee 10 program several years ago when she read about it in a magazine.

She waited until this year, when her children were older, and wrote to a contact person listed in the magazine.

"It's really simply run," she commented. "There are a priest and a minister who find the children there and a man in Fresno, California who helps find host families here."

Sponsoring families are asked to help raise funds for program costs. Norton said that was accomplished with the help of she the Congregational Church and some local civic groups.

During their stay in Charlevoix, the Irish boys have been very busy. They've visited Beaver Island, Mackinac Island, Sleeping Bear Dunes, the Interlochen Arts Academy and canoed the Jordan River.

They also showed their American hosts a thing or two about Irish football, which Americans refer to as soccer and found out a bit about one of Dave Norton's favorite sports, basketball.

"It's a very nice place. It's a change from the city," Cormac said of Northern Michigan.

They said they enjoyed Charlevoix's summer weather. According to Samuel and Cormac, a warm day in Belfast is when the temperature reaches the 60s and "sometimes we get sunshine."

While in Charlevoix, Samuel and Cormac not only met and befriended the Norton's children, Matt, Beth and Sarah, but also dozens of others.

"It's been a lot of fun," Mary Lou Norton said of Samuel and Cormac's stay. "We've enjoyed it. I think it's been good for our kids."

...council says no to lights

Jeanine Wallace from Shop of the Gulls, asked the council not to delete the proposed lights at Monday evening's meeting.

"I think it's very important that you not make a negative decision now, but that you leave all of our options open," she said.

Chamber of Commerce president Dan Barrons also asked for the decision to be delayed.

"It just appears, at this point, premature," he said. "Let's not jump into things."

City attorney Jim Young advised the council that they could delay a decision by simply adjourning the public hearing and resuming it at a later date.

However the council chose to vote Monday evening. When the vote was finally taken and came out against the new lights, many of the light supporters got up to leave the meeting. Somebody flipped off some of the light switches in the council chambers on their way out.

The council meeting then recessed for several minutes.

When the council meeting resumed, councilmen considered the other projects on the DDA list. After the entire list had been considered, light supporters ask the council to reconsider the proposed lights.

In order for the lights to be reconsidered, one of the councilmen voting against them would have had to request the matter be reconsidered.

Barron said the lights are "dearly sought and very important to the business community."

First Barron and later John Campbell asked Whitley, Russell and Muma to move that the matter be reconsidered.

"I voted already," Muma said.

"Mr. Campbell, I've looked at the facts. I've run it through my mind and I have made a decision," Whitley said.

When asked how he made his decision, Russell replied, "It's based on the people that talk to me, the people I represent other than the downtown business community."

Campbell said the councilmen's minds were made up before the public hearing and "therefore time was wasted for all."

...school seeks more mills

said, the school would need more buses to accommodate the increase in the number of students for each route. Second, by integrating the elementary and secondary students, there could be disciplinary problems.

VanWieren said, however, that he and Kelly would examine the feasibility of this suggestion more closely.

The defeated proposal in June called for nine-tenths mills with which six new buses, two pickups and a mini-van would have been purchased. The money would also have been used to build a new structure to house the bus fleet. A second proposal for one mill to cover rising school costs was also defeated in the same election.

Auction to benefit pool

Proponents of an indoor swimming pool are continuing fund raising activities and will sponsor a live and silent Labor Day auction. The event will take place from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. at Irish Boat Shop.

In past years, Labor Day auction proceeds went toward planting petunias. This year, the petunias will be funded through other fundraising events.

Sponsors of the auction have received donations of goods and services with a retail value of approximately $14,000 and are hoping to receive even more donations between now and labor day.

Recently the auction received a donation of a 3-day cruise for two couples aboard the Medusa Challenger. The ship has two guest cabins, excellent food and will be making a round-trip cruise to Detroit.

Auction sponsors are hoping for similar creative donations. For more information or to make donations write to P.O. Box 275, Charlevoix MI 49720 or call 547-0700.

Pool proponents again ask school to consider grant

by Wendi Wright

The school board was presented once again with a suggestion by the Pool Steering Committee, represented by Dr. Dave Strawbridge, that the school board submit an application to the State of Michigan for a grant to build an indoor swimming pool facility. The pool committee had first raised the issue in July at the last regular Board meeting.

Responding to Board concern about the required $350,000 local matching funds required to obtain the $750,000 grant, Strawbridge distributed a fund-raising flyer to the members of the Board as an example of the pool committee's efforts at fund raising since the last Board meeting. Strawbridge told the Board that because he felt that Board members were not very positive about the pool idea the first time it was discussed, this time he wanted to show the Board exactly what the pool committee was doing to raise funds.

"At first I was dismayed by the Board's reaction," Strawbridge told Board members. "But I really feel we can do this. We're serious about fund raising, and we will continue to try to defray the costs of the pool without a millage." Strawbridge said that the Kiwanis Club was involved in fund raising, and the pool committee members had mailed letters to individuals they felt would respond with donations.

Max Novak, Board President, pointed out that in addition to the construction costs, which would not be completely covered by the grant, even with the local matching funds, $1 million would have to be kept in escrow for maintenance costs and upkeep. Strawbridge said he thought that figure would be closer to $500,000. He suggested that $200,000 or $300,000 could be raised initially, and that the rest could be raised through minor fund raising efforts every year.

Board member Ardeth Wieland once again voiced a concern brought up at the last meeting that tax payers would think that school funds were financing the pool if the school sponsored the grant application.

Referring to a comment made at the last Board meeting, Strawbridge said that he felt that the suggestion that the millage proposal failed in June because of the pool controversy was inappropriate, and that a survey conducted by the pool committee indicated that 72 percent of those surveyed would support a millage for the pool.

CHURCH

Last week, local children were entertained at Vacation Bible School by circus performers. The theme of this year's interdenominational bible school was "Under God's Big Top."

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

One of the most precious prayers Jesus ever prayed is found in John 17. There He asked the Father to help believers all become one just as he and the Father were one. A unique example of what being one in Christ can accomplish took place in Charlevoix last week. I hope your child didn't miss out on it.

"Under God's Big Top" was a circus motif used by a very dedicated group of adults to teach nearly two hundred area youngsters the joys of living for Jesus. Learning about the Lord was probably the most important aim of the week. But I also believe churches working together in just such a fashion is of equal importance.

The overall aim of the universal church is to reach the world with the gospel message. Working in our individual groups, we may have small little victories here and there but we'll never be as effective as we could be working together. We were never meant to promote a particular denominational message. We have always been called to lift up the Lord. What better way could there be to lift Him up than to let the world see believers working together?

If you were to look at the twelve apostles, you would discover twelve very unique men. Their backgrounds ranged from fishermen, to craftsmen, to bookkeepers. They were different in their feelings, hopes and dreams. But one thing bound them together. They thoroughly believed in who Jesus was.

If you look at the different churches that make up the Charlevoix religious community, you will find they too are very unique. They range from Catholic and Protestant traditional worship to evangelical, charismatic and pentecostal. They too are different in their hopes, feelings and dreams. Yet the same thing that bound the apostles together incvitable binds them together whether they always realize it or not. At the heart of every church family is that deep seated belief in who Jesus is.

We need to look for more ways for believers to work together. If you have never lived outside of Charlevoix, you may not realize just how special our inter-church cooperation is. Yet we've only scratched the surface of the true spirit of unity that Christ prayed for.

Harold J. Heeres

Harold J. Heeres, 51, of Banks Township, died Aug. 17, 1989, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral was Saturday, Aug. 19, at the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church. The Rev. James Heneveld of the Belltower Reformed Church officiated. Burial was in Atwood Cemetery.

Mr. Heeres was born May 8, 1938, in Banks Township, the son of Henry and Gertrude (VanderBerg) Heeres. He attended Ellsworth, High School and was employed by East Jordan Iron Works as a truck driver for many years, retiring in 1987.

He was a member of Teamsters Local No. 406.

Survivors include: two daughters, Sharon Hoffman of Ellsworth and Kimberly Necaise of Midland; one son, Keith of San Antonio Texas; six grandchildren; his mother, Mrs. Gertrude Heeres of Charlevoix; two brothers, Robert and Marvin, both of Ellsworth; four sisters, Louise Potter of Charlevoix, Eleanor Holecheck of Traverse City, Esther Jolliffe of Jenison and Janice Hartman of Richland; several nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his father in 1962.

The family suggests memorials to the American Heart Association of Michigan, Northern Region, 311 E. Front St., Traverse City, 49684. Hastings Funeral Home of Ellsworth handled the arrangements.

Dog owners fail to license pets

by PEG OHLE

The laws may protect their "best friend", but fewer than 20 percent of the people in Charlevoix County are paying any attention to those laws.

The laws referred to require the licensing of dogs, traditionally called "man's best friend."

County Animal Control Officer Julie Whitley brought this fact to the attention of members of the County Board last week in reporting on her activities during the past year.

"It's difficult when we pick up a stray dog without a license because we can't reach the owners when the time comes to get rid of it. And it's even worse when we pick up an injured dog without a license because we often have to do away with it without the owner's knowledge.

"If people want to get their dogs back when they wander away, they must have a license on them," she added.

Whitley later pointed out to the Courier some of the state laws covering dog licenses. Under the Dog Law of 1919:

"The supervisor of each township and the assessor of every city annually on taking his assessment of property as required by law, may make diligent inquiry as to the number of dogs owned, harbored, or kept by all persons in his assessing district...

"Every township or city treasurer shall, on or before December 1 each year, make application to the county treasurer for necessary license blanks and tags for the ensuing year and may issue dog licenses and tags in a manner prescribed for issuing...

"On June 15 of each year, the county treasurer may make a comparison of his records of the dogs actually licensed in each city or township of his county with the report of the supervisor of said township or assessor of said city...On and after June 15, any unlicensed dog subject to license under the provisions of this act is declared a public nuisance and the county treasurer shall immediately thereafter list all such unlicensed dogs...and shall deliver copies of such lists to the sheriff and prosecuting attorney of said county...commence proceedings against owner of the dog...(also) locate and kill or cause to be killed all such unlicensed dogs".

Needless to say, unlicensed dogs are not being killed in Charlevoix County just because they are unlicensed, but other parts of the law are not being carried out, either.

County Treasurer Joan Balch reports she believes it has been at least 10 years since a township supervisor or city assessor furnished her office with a list of dogs in his assessing district.

Balch added that in years past she has ordered 2,000 license application blanks to send to township and city treasurers. However, so many have been returned in recent years that she has now cut that number to 1,200.

Apparently that will be more than enough dog license application blanks because last year only 850 licenses were issued in the whole county. With a population of over 20,000 composed of approximately 5,700 families, it is obvious that many families are neglecting to license their "best friends".

The reason for this failure to comply with the law cannot be cost because annual dog licenses in Charlevoix County are only $3 a year for male and female animals and $1 for unsexed animals. Balch says she understands this is near the lowest in the state.

However, dogs living in Charlevoix County, be they licensed or unlicensed, keep Whitley busy. Last year, she investigated 886 complaints about dogs, including 49 reported bites and 69 reported cases of cruelty. On the bright side, 78 lost or strayed dogs were redeemed by their owners.

Whitley keeps offices hours, answering the telephone and completing paper work, until about 11 o'clock in the morning, when she leaves for her day's routine of answering complaints around the county. When she picks up a lost or unclaimed animal, she returns it to the County Animal Shelter in a building near the Sheriff's Department. By law, the county must keep the animal there for at least five days, but Whitley says they average about two weeks.

State police chief speaks to Rotary Club

—Col. Ritchie Davis, the director of the Michigan State Police and a Charlevoix native spoke to local Rotarians this past week.

Davis, who works out of Lansing, but said he tries to get back to Northern Michigan as often as possible, explained the scope of state police work and the divisions and manpower available to handle that work.

He said the Michigan State Police is probably the most complex state police organization in the United States today. The state police employ 3,000 people. Of those, about 2,000 are sworn officers and the other 1,000 are civilian support personnel. About 1,200 of the officers are troopers and an additional 350 are detectives.

Davis said the Michigan State Police have a number of specialty units such as dive teams, canine drug and bomb units and an emergency services unit to handle situations such as a barricaded gunman.

Divisions of the state police department include a forensic science, fire marshal, criminal justice data center, traffic services, training and investigative services.

Davis said the troopers are the front line in serving people. He spoke of recently riding with a trooper in the Detroit area and coming upon a family whose car had broken down. He said the family had been afraid, but was overjoyed when the trooper showed up to help them.

...police chief speaks to Rotary

"It's unfortunate in this society how afraid we have to be," Davis noted.

Problems with drugs are currently the state police department's top priority. Davis spoke highly of drug education programs such as D.A.R.E. He said he believes the ultimate answer to the drug problem is going to come through education, not through enforcement.

Correcting traffic problems also continues to be a major task of the state police. Davis said the state police are constantly fighting the problem of people driving while either high or intoxicated.

He also noted that wearing seat belts is the single most important thing people can do to reduce injuries and fatalities on Michigan roadways.

Michigan State Police are employing advanced technology to help combat crime.

Davis said that in September an automated and computerized finger print identification system will go on line. The systems carries an estimated price tag of approximately $18 million.

Currently, fingerprints are only useful in an investigation when police have a suspect to match the prints to.

When the computer system is in place, the computer will match prints from the crime scene with prints on file.

State police are also working toward having lasers replace radar for speeding. Davis says the laser units should foil radar detectors.

Police are currently using robots with explosive teams. The radio controlled robots now handle and dispose of the bombs.

State police officers are also being rearmed with 9 millimeter semi automatic pistols instead of the old revolvers. A state police officer will now be able to fire 46 rounds without taking his eye off the target.

On a kinder, gentler note police officers are also happy with the teddy bear program. Troopers are carrying teddy bears which they give to small children at accidents or other situations where children are upset. Davis said that originally some of the troopers were skeptical about the teddy bear program, but after seeing its results now like it.

Development plan approved

by PEG OHLE

Lester Turner of Harbor Springs and Lansing, who proposes to develop approximately 16 acres of land along U. S. 31 North owned by Oscar and Margaret Stroud, last week received a final go-ahead for the five acres lying within Charlevoix Township.

The Charlevoix Township Board approved the rezoning of that property from C-2 to R-4, which will permit construction of condominium units or townhouses. The rezoning had previously been recommended by the Township Planning Commission and the County Planning Commission.

However, the City of Charlevoix Planning Commission has not yet taken action on Turner's request to rezone the 11 acres within city limits from Motel-Hotel to R-4.

The hold-up on this request is due to the fact that the city zoning ordinance requires a site plan for use of the property before rezoning to R-4. Turner has not supplied such a site plan, and, in fact, calls the requirement illegal.

The property in the city includes the Wayside Inn and nearby buildings. The property in the township includes the heavily wooded tract on the hillside overlooking Lake Charlevoix, now occupied by log cabins.

The City of Charlevoix Planning Commission is scheduled to meet this week, but Turner's rezoning request is not on the agenda and no action will be taken in the matter.

Diabetes clinic scheduled next month

Michigan Masons, in conjunction with the Endocrinology Department of the Children's Hospital of Michigan, will sponsor a state-wide series of free clinics for children with diabetes.

One clinic will take place September 21 at the War Memorial Hospital in Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan. Families in the Charlevoix-East Jordan area who have children or adolescents with diabetes requiring insulin are encouraged to attend this clinic.

For more information, call Tom Carcy at (616) 547-9078.

Sunglasses for Windows

It's like putting sunglasses on a window, says David Bibler, about applying Llumar, solar-controlled window films.

The Micro-thin, polyester-mylar films are virtually invisible when properly applied to existing windows.

But the films block up to 80 percent of the heat in summer and retain up to 65 percent of the heat in the winter, says Bibler, co-owner of quality Window Tinting, both in Traverse City and Grand Rapids, with his wife, Judy.

Three types of films — reflective, non-reflective and low E series are all covered by a 7 year warranty.

Quality Window Tinting also installs solar control film on motor homes, campers, vans, boats and passenger vehicles. All installations come with a lifetime guarantee.

Park Place condominium controversy rekindled

The city of Charlevoix and developer Don Berlage are still at odds over Berlage's Park Place condominium project on Park Avenue.

Aug. 11, the issue was back in circuit court where Berlage failed in an attempt to have the court order the city to resume issuing certificates of occupancy for the project.

Previously, certificates of occupancy were issued for five of the 11 units in the complex. However, the city has asked county building inspector Howard Carson to withhold certificates of occupancy on the remaining six units and Carson is complying with that request.

City officials want Berlage to put a hedge at the eastern edge of the development and restructure an overflow parking area at the center of the parking lot before the certificates of occupancy are issued.

The hedge is called for in a court settlement that Berlage, the city and other litigants reached in an earlier case involving the Park Place project.

The overflow parking involves parking requirements called for by the city zoning code.

In order for the project to have the number of parking spaces required by the zoning code, a grassy area at the center of the current paved parking lot would have to be utilized.

The original site plan called for the central grassy area to be paved. However, this past December, Berlage asked the city to allow the center of the parking lot to stay green.

Berlage maintained that for the majority of the time, the present paved area provides adequate parking and that leaving the central area green creates a park-like atmosphere and allows two large trees to be saved.

City officials compromised. They said they would allow the central area to stay green, but wanted it to be available for overflow parking. City officials stipulated that Berlage install a turf reinforcing system which will allow cars to park on the green area without tearing it up and that the edge of the green central area be graded to allow cars access.

As of late last week, the parking area in question was still without reinforcement and a portion of it was surrounded by wooden curbing.

According to court records, Berlage has prospective purchasers for two of the six unsold units. However, the mortgage agency one of the purchasers is seeking financing from refused to make the loan until a certificate of occupancy is issued.

Aug. 4, Berlage wrote a letter to city manager Mike Wiesner demanding that the certificate of occupancy be issued immediately. Wiesner advised Berlage that the certificates of occupancy would continue to be withheld.

Berlage filed a complaint for mandamus in circuit court Aug. 9 which resulted in an Aug. 11 show cause hearing.

The complaint listed the city of Charlevoix, Wiesner and Carson as defendants.

In the complaint, Berlage claimed the city's action in withholding the certificates of occupancy is improper.

He maintained that the hedge issue is not related to zoning and may be addressed by the parties in an enforcement proceeding within the court case.

He argued that he has not received written specifications regarding the central parking area. The complaint also claimed the city could issue two of the certificates of occupancy and would still have three as a vehicle of enforcement in the future.

Aug. 11 a show cause hearing took place in circuit court, presided over by judge Richard Pajtas.

Berlage made an opening statement at the hearing, explaining the nature and reasons for the complaint.

Roberta Gubbins, an attorney associated with city attorney Jim Young, represented the city. She presented the court a copy of minutes from city meetings dealing with Berlage's overflow parking request.

The court then recessed while the parties attempted to negotiate a settlement. When the court reconvened, Gubbins recommended a cash escrow settlement. The settlement would have had the developer put $7,500 in escrow. If the zoning corrections were not completed in a certain period of time, the city would have them completed and paid for with the funds in escrow.

Berlage rejected that proposal.

Judge Pajtas then ruled that the writ of mandamus be dismissed, in effect denying Berlage's request for a court order forcing the city to resume issuing the certificates of occupancy.

As of this past Friday, Carson was still not issuing the certificates of occupancy.

"I haven't heard anything (new) from the city," Carson said.

"They've asked me to hold them (the certificates of occupancy) up and I'm complying," he explained.

City treasurer Rick Brandi sat in on a meeting with city planner Gerry Harsch, attorney Gordon Boydston and a group of people affiliated with the Park Place project Wednesday, Aug. 16. Brandi was filling in for Wiesner, who was on vacation last week.

Brandi said that in the Aug. 16 meeting, the Park Place representatives asked how the dispute can be resolved expeditiously so the remaining certificates of occupancy may be issued. Harsch advised the representatives that when the required work is done, the certificates will be issued.

Hospital scholarships awarded

Mary Henderson of Charlevoix, is one of four recipients of the Charlevoix Area Hospital's Guild scholarships awarded recently. She will receive $400 toward her last year of nursing studies at N.C.M.C.

Each year the hospital guild awards scholarships to worthy applicants to study in the medical field. Other winners were Nancy Dewey of Central Lake, who is in her second year at the University of Michigan; Nicole Kerridge, Boyne Falls, to begin her first year at the U. of M. and Jill Cary, Central Lake, for her second year to study pharmacy at Ferris State University.

The scholarships were presented by Loretta Conine and Myrtle Fulton of the Guild's Scholarship Committee. The Guild finances the scholarships by an annual bridge tournament.

Mass gathering ordinance debate continues

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Gathering Ordinance adopted by the Board of Commissioners in November, 1987 and approved by Gov. James J. Blanchard in June, 1988, is once again in trouble.

District Health Department No. 3 (of which Charlevoix County is a member) has been advised by its attorney, James J. Young, that its legal authority to enforce the health and sanitation portions of the ordinance is "extremely questionable."

The opinion is based partly on the fact that for 59 years, the District Health Board (made up of representatives from the county boards of the four counties in the District) has enacted ordinances relating to public health. If only one county, in this case Charlevoix County, enacts an ordinance, it obligates the District Health Department to perform functions for which the district may have insufficient manpower or funds and obligates the counties in the District to help pay for services over which they would have no control.

Young suggests, however, that "statutory authority would permit District Health Department No. 3 to adopt District-wide regulations for the public health aspects of mass gatherings." Then, Charlevoix County could enact a county ordinance which regulates other non-public health aspects of mass gatherings and which requires compliance with District Health Department mass gathering regulations.

Gerald Chase, Administor of the District Health Department, told the Courier that the Department Board will take up this matter in the near future. County Commissioners Ralph Harmon and Tom Breakey are the Charlevoix County representatives on the board.

Earlier this summer, Charlevoix Productions, Inc., which books concerts at The Castle, sued Charlevoix County and all the county commissioners individually, calling the mass gathering ordinance unconstitutional and a violation of its civil rights. Specificially cited is the ordinance's vesting discretion in officials to "deny or revoke licenses for the exercise of First Amendment rights, without narrow, precise and objective standards to govern such discretion; because it lacks due process procedures respecting denials, revocations and appeals; because it unequally exempts non profit organizations and governmental units; and because it is enforced unequally and disparity as to the plaintiff."

Arthur C. Reibel, owner of The Castle, has long been critical of the mass gathering ordinance and warned the county board that if an attempt were made to enforce it, he would "litigate." He claims that the ordinance was enacted for the sole purpose of regulating concerts at The Castle, with no attention being paid to other large gatherings in the county.

The ordinance was adopted by the county board after many appeals by the Charlevoix County Townships Association. Individual townships said they would be unable to cope with large gatherings with which they were threatened from time to time.

In addition to providing for the health and sanitation aspects of mass gatherings, the ordinance covers police and fire protection, vehicle access and parking facilities, public telephone facilities, noise abatement and control, illumination facilities, cleanup and waste disposal facilities, and insurance and bonding arrangements.

The biggest problem the county has had with concerts at The Castle has been police work which has resulted in many hours of extra traffic and crowd control (including alcohol and drug abuse) work for the Sheriff's Department and the resultant added burden to the courts' dockets.

Charlevoix Productions' suit against Charlevoix County now rests in the United States Federal Court in Grand Rapids, where it was filed.

Big Rock goes back on line

The Big Rock Point nuclear plant has been returned to service following successful completion of a 65-day refueling and maintenance outage. The plant's generator was synchronized to the Consumers Power Company Electric grid at 5:32 p.m. Sunday, August 13, and operators have been gradually increasing the power level since then.

The outage, which began on June 9, was scheduled so that operators could replace 22 bundles of uranium oxide fuel in the plant's reactor. Refueling of the reactor is required once a year. In addition, repair personnel completed a number of maintenance activities including a major overhaul of the turbine.

"Because of the hard work of many people, we succeeded in completing the outage right on time," said Thomas W. Elward, plant manager. "The repair crews, engineers, contractors and support personnel worked around the clock to ensure that all of the outage projects were completed properly, safely and on schedule. I am very impressed with their work."

While the plant was out of service, exhaustive inspections of components, pipes and weld in the nuclear steam supply system were carried out. The inspections confirmed that Big Rock Point's reactor and related equipment remain in very good condition after 27 years of service.

SPORTS

Yachting Notes

by A. NONY MOUSE

Only the moon eclipsed the fantastic racing of last Wednesday night! It was one of the very best with a delightful breeze, perfect weather and great competition. Thanks to the added attraction of the coming eclipse, an unusual number of spectators were on, and along, Lake Charlevoix; we heard many comments about the beauty of the race.

While Apprentice took Fleet A honors for the evening, Slapshot slid in second just ahead of Gotcha and so wrapped up the season without even having to race next week. Even if Gotcha grabs a first, Apprentice can keep its season second by placing second as they would tie on points and first place finishes, but have a 3:1 edge in second place finishes. On the other hand, if Apprentice lets Gotcha and then any other yacht correct ahead of it; then Gotcha has No. 2. Mint Julep has a theoretical chance but the others will be "also ran."

Despite the Binnacle's advise to Dr. Jim, he can't win the C Fleet (or the B Fleet, in which he races) even with Dylan's help — but he is No. 2 and will stay there if he finishes in the top five and Blasen doesn't come in more than two positions better. My-Joy, despite last week's fourth, can stay home with Slapshot while both get season First in Fleet as his then 13.50 points is less than the 14.25 that Cygnus already has. Nice Race comment to last week's 1, 2, 3 of Sandpiper, Miller Time and Lost Vermonter, but, as is true with the rest of Fleet B., it's too late!

Fleet C battles for the top four places. The odds favor Bandit, Newsense, Moisture and MIP in that order as the score sheet shows exactly 2.25 points separating each. That would seem to mean that a Newsense first, together with a Bandit third, would give it to Newsense with a tie on points and a 4:1 edge in first, but... Anony thinks Bandit's correct score is 11.75, not 12.00. So just go fight it out. Rest assured, the top boats in Fleet C will not be sitting out the next reace! Last Week's Oh Wow! race: Newsense, Bandit, MIP and Moisture, etc.

JAM Fleet has two separate dog fights; Nancy's first last week moved her to a .75 point lead over Cabaret, who drops last weeks sixth but then has to pick up the dropped fourth of the previous week. First one wins!

Looking 'way back on points finds that last weeks second moved Bald Eagle to within one point of third place finisher (and third place holder) Maureen. The Eagle only needs to finish ahead of Maureen as the bird has a 2:1 edge in second place as a tie breaker (neither has a first). The other JAM boats are semi-retired, all with 30 plus points.

ACTIVITIES! Friday, 8-25, 6 p, CYC, the Biddick's host; next day, 10 a, CYC, Hot Dog Races; Sunday, 8-27, 10 a, CYC, Twin Skipper Race skippers meeting (race start – noon) then (3p?) Pig Roast Eating Time then CYC Volleyball Tourney. NO RACE Wednesday, 8-30. Following weekend, Friday, 9-1, Michelob Cup Race (check time) – awards and lies at CYC! Saturday, 9-2 Red Fox to Boyne City – after the race lies move to Boyne! Sunday, 9-3 Red Fox to CYC – awards and lies back at CYC!

...,the End of the Mouses' Tale.

Softball results

Charlevoix's Pine Hill Nursery went unbeaten in taking the Class E Men's District Slow Pitch title this past weekend. The tournament was played at the West Carpenter street field.

Enroute to the championship, Pine Hill beat Industrial Magnetics of Boyne City 9-6, Carpet Clinic 14-9, R & H Sports of Grayling 8-6.

In the finals, Pine Hill again met Carpet Clinic and once again beat Carpet Clinic, this time by a score of 14-2.

The winning pitcher in all five Pine Hill games was Ken Peebles.

The tournament was hosted by the Charlevoix Recreation Department.

Season ticket prices announced

The Charlevoix High School Athletic Department announces that season tickets for the 89-90 school year are on sale at the High School Office on East Garfield Street. The first home varsity football game is Friday, September 1, 1989 with Lake City.

Ticket prices are as follows: Student All Sports $20, Adult All Sports $40, Family All Sports (parents and K-5 children only) $65.

All of these tickets cover only home scheduled athletic contests.

Individual ticket prices at the gate are $2.50 per person. Additional information may be obtained by calling the high school office at 547-3222.

Repeat winner in Belvedere golf tournament

For the second year in a row, Ryan Holmes won the Follansbee Golf Tournament for Belvedere Golf Course caddies.

There were 16 entrants in the tournament which was played Aug. 16. The tournament was played in a match play format like the Michigan Amateur. Tournament runner-up was David Puhl.

Both Holmes and Puhl are seniors at Charlevoix High School. Both students are being considered in the Evans Scholarship program. The program awards scholarships to golf club employees demonstrating academic excellence.

Lakes no longer threaten

Rain fall amounts in July were well below average across the entire Great Lakes Basin. During July, the water level of Lake Superior was near its long-term average, whereas, the level of Lakes Michigan-Huron was below average for the month. The water levels of all the great lakes have begun their seasonal declines.

The great lakes forecast, published in the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels for the Great Lakes, shows that Lakes Superior and Michigan-Huron are expected to be below their long-term average levels during the next six months.

Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of July were at elevation 578.54 feet above the mean water level of Father Point, Quebec, or 21 inches above Chart Datum. This was about 1 inch below what it was a year ago, and 1 inch below one month ago. The July monthly mean level of 578.62 feet was about 3 inches below the long-term average for July. The lakes, however, remained about 32 inches above their all-time low July monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1964. The forecast shows that at the end of August, the level of Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about 1 inch below what it was at the end of July. The lakes are expected to continue their seasonal decline into January. The water level in January 1990, is expected to be about 3 inches below the long-term average for that month.

Hospital receives new machine

Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey is celebrating the acquisition of the leading diagnostic tool called a Magnetic Resonance Imager (MRI) during a public open house Friday, Aug. 25.

The public is invited to tour this state-of-the-art technology from 4-7 p.m. Friday, Aug. 25. Tours will begin from the main lobby of the Little Traverse Division of Northern Michigan Hospitals. Refreshments will be served.

Magnetic Resonance Imaging - MRI for short - has revolutionized diagnostic medicine.

MRI is the newest, most advanced way for Northern Michigan Hospitals physicians to see what's going on inside the body. The procedure doesn't require surgery or the use of radiation.

Combining strong magnetic fields and radio frequency signals, MRI produces cross-sectional pictures of soft tissues. Physicians use these pictures to see past bones and muscles to peer into the inner depths of the body.

Details of the brain, spinal column, joints and optic nerve are seen with amazing clarity. In fact, MRI is often the diagnostic method of choice for detecting brain disease and spinal disorders.

Using no X-ray radiation, MRI offers a much more comprehensive view of the body, and in most cases surpasses CT (Computed Tomography) scan in its ability to discriminate between healthy and diseased tissue. Unlike CT scan, which gives images from only one plane, MRI can obtain images from any angle in any plane of the body without moving the patient or any part of the machine.

Although MRI surpasses X-ray and CT in many areas, it is not intended to replace these techniques.

The physical components of the MRI equipment include a huge superconductive magnet, high speed computer and radio frequency generator. The magnet itself can weigh up to 8 tons and when energized, creates a magnetic field equivalent to 25,000 times the earth's gravitational pull.

Following initial start-up tests, the MRI should be operational in early October.

The MRI was purchased solely through donations. In July 1986, Northern Michigan Hospitals launched a campaign to build the MRI Center.

Nursery school has opening

The Kids Corner nursery school has openings for fall classes. The program is for four and five year olds. For information, call Evelyn DeKorte, 547-6994.

Cheboygan
Cheboygan High School — August 30, 1989 (Wed.) 7-9 p.m.

SPECIAL NOTE

Because of enrollment restrictions placed on all community colleges by the State Legislature it will be necessary to make the decision concerning whether a class has sufficient enrollment to be taught at the time of registration. Therefore, it is extremely important that students register on the scheduled registration dates.

TUITION AND FEES

Tuition: Emmet County Residents — $33.50 per credit hour. Residents of counties other than Emmet — $42.50 per credit hour.

Registration Fee: Two dollars ($2.00) is charged per credit hour or partial credit hour.

FINANCIAL AID

There are several kinds of Financial Aid for which a college student may apply. However Pell Grants and Stafford Student Loans (formerly "Michigan Guaranteed Student Loans") provide a majority of the financial aid funds for our students at the present time. Part-time students are also encouraged to apply for student financial aid. Depending upon eligibility it is now possible to receive financial aid for as few as three (3) credit hours. Additional information regarding the application process for all student financial aid programs at North Central Michigan College is available from the Student Services Office, extension 2113 or 2116.

Council retains final development plan review

City councilmen have chosen not to delegate final approval of development site plans to the city planning commission and will retain the authority themselves.

Councilmen made the decision at Monday evening's work session. Although no formal action can be taken at a work session, a straw poll of councilmen by mayor Gary Probert indicated the councilmen were 5-1 against relinquishing final approval of development plans.

Councilman Bill Haggard indicated he would be willing to allow planning commission approval to be considered final approval for development plans. Councilmen Norm Probert, Butch Russell, Ken Whitley, Jim Potter and Earl Muma said they want development plans to continue coming before the council following planning commission review.

The development plans in question concern building, structural alterations, grading and changes of use on any property in the city, except that which is zoned R-1, R-2 or R-2A (i.e. limited residential properties.)

As the city currently operates, people making property changes requiring a development plan review must go to the planning commission with a development plan. The planning commission reviews the plan and may recommend alterations.

After reviewing the plan, the planning commission recommends either approval or disapproval.

Following the planning commission recommendation, the plan goes before the city council. The council then goes through the same process the planning commission goes through, reviewing the plan and often recommending alterations.

At council goal setting sessions this past winter, council members said they would like to streamline the development

Clayton Smith shows off the slab of white pine from a 130-year-old tree which will become part of his lumbering museum.

Local collector builds a museum

by PEG OHLE

When Clayton Smith heard about the big white pine stump from Bell's clearing near Phelps, he had to get a slab from it for his logging collection.

"It almost cost me a leg when it slipped and hit me, but I was lucky," Smith says of the 40-inch diameter slab that now rests in the barn he is gradually turning into a museum of local memorabilia.

The white pine slab has annual growth rings indicating it is from a tree about 130 years old, and is one of the biggest white pine slabs ever seen around here, according to Smith. Near it in the barn are slabs of cherry, maple, and white oak, and some boards of red elm. Eventually, they will all be placed along the wall to show off the different colors and grains of wood.

Something special is in store for the white pine slab, though. It will be decorated with burned-in sketches of Paul Bunyan and his Blue Ox and other logging days figures. "Whenever I see something like this, my imagination runs away trying to see what I can do with it," Smith explains.

And his imagination is vivid. He has constructed a bench from termite-eaten white pine logs taken from a swamp by Sandy Matchett. The back of the bench is made from the most "eaten" part of the log, then covered with plastic so all the termite holes and tunnels are visible. Smith then burned sketches of a mother bear and her cubs and termite-looking insects on the seat of the bench to complete nature's story of bears' love for termites, ants and other insects.

What would anyone do with an old horsehide leather belt from a sawmill at Epsilon? Smith cleaned it up and made it into the back and seat of a director's chair, but not before burning in his own touch of history.

The black leather strip is decorated with symbols of "Smith's Little Acre" farm, Clayton and Kay Smith's home on U. S. 31 South, and the seat shows drawings of the Barnard School, which Smith attended, his apple-peddling truck, and his log cabin museum.

The Paul Bunyan influence shows up again in the over-sized rocker of white pine which is on display in the log cabin.

The wall of Smith's barn is covered with tools and farm and lumbering equipment that once were common place in northern Michigan. Now, he likes to quizz young people with, "What do you think this is?" questions.

There are all kinds of interesting things in the barn at Smith's Little Acres, including four generations of sleighs from some of Smith's Vance family relatives, an old corn sheller, and one display that is only partly local, that of a swordfish surrounded by northern Michigan seagulls.

"I do this for myself and other old farm boys who like to reminisce about the old days," Smith says with a grin. "The kids like the animals and birds

Council discusses goals

City treasurer Rick Brandi updated city councilmen Monday evening on progress toward city goals which the council established and prioritized at the beginning of the year.

Brandi was pinch hitting for city manager Mike Wiesner who missed the council work session due to illness.

The council has listed goals in past years, but this year is also having quarterly reviews of progress on the listed goals. The first two reviews have been nothing elaborate, but simply a brief update as to the progress of various city projects.

Projects mentioned Monday evening included:

Ferry Avenue Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA) work. Bids have been awarded and work should begin in the next few weeks. (See related story on page 12.)

Downtown Development Authority (DDA) improvements. Bids will be opened later this week for work to be done on downtown sidewalks this fall.

Bridge Street traffic. City administrators and councilmembers are still researching the matter and have been in contact with state officials. They hope to be able to implement some changes by next summer.

Labor Day weekend will be busy

This Labor Day weekend should help propel Michigan's summer tourism season toward an estimated 4 percent growth over 1988 totals, AAA Michigan reports.

"Tourism spending on accommodations, dining and sightseeing will top last year's $15.8 billion benchmark," said AAA Michigan Touring Manager Brian Potter. "Sixty percent of Michigan's travel expenditures occur between Memorial Day and Labor Day, and we have seen generally brisk activity this summer."

Factors which point to the continuing gains in tourism this holiday weekend include:

- The Michigan Department of Transportation estimates that Labor Day weekend motorists will log 905 million miles, up 2.3 percent from last Labor Day weekend. The 78-hour holiday period officially runs from 6 p.m. Friday, Sept. 1, to midnight Monday, Sept. 4.

- AAA Michigan in-state routings so far this year show a 4 percent increase in requests to Lower Peninsula destinations, and 12 percent more for Upper Peninsula areas. The Michigan Travel Bureau also reports an upswing in requests for such information.

- Mackinac Bridge officials say vehicle crossings are up 2.8 percent from last year, with this July's count of 533,692 second to the previous July's all-time monthly high of 546,795 crossings. And June's 367,830 total was the highest ever for that month.

- At least 42 of 53 Lower Peninsula state park campgrounds expect to fill this Labor Day weekend, weather permitting, while many Upper Peninsula sites will have space available. Two-thirds of the Lower Peninsula state campgrounds surveyed added that camping activity so far this summer is about the same or better than last year.

Among the biggest attractions luring visitors this holiday weekend will be the 32nd annual Labor Day Walk across the Mackinac Bridge – expected to draw up to 55,000 pedestrians from the 7 a.m. start in St. Ignace. Other major events include the 141st Michigan State Fair in Detroit, the Governor's Cup Sailing Regatta at Muskegon and Romeo's 58th annual Peach Festival.

"Motorists will find the average cost of unleaded self-serve gasoline about 6 cents higher per gallon along state highways than last labor Day weekend," Potter added.

Last Labor Day holiday, 17 persons died on Michigan roads compared to 32 killed during the same period in 1987. Only two of the 12 victims with seat belts available were buckled up and eight of the 16 fatal accidents involved alcohol.

School prepares to open doors for '89/'90

The first subject affecting Charlevoix students this week is history. As in summer vacation is history and students now must return to school.

With the exception of kindergarteners, all students will begin school Tuesday, Sept. 5. Tuesday will be an abbreviated school day. High school students will be in school from 12:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. Middle school students will be in school from 12:35 p.m. to 2:35 p.m. and elementary school students will be in school from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Morning class kindergarteners, accompanied by their parents, are asked to come to school from 9:15 to 10 a.m. Wednesday, Sept. 6. Afternoon class kindergarteners and their parents are to come to school from 1 to 2 p.m. Wednesday, Sept 6. Kindergarteners will begin their regular schedule Thursday, Sept 7.

Cafeterias will begin serving Sept. 6.

While many aspects of the school will be the same as last year, returning students will notice some changes.

At the elementary school, students in the first through fifth grades will be studying from new science textbooks and study materials.

Elementary principal Vane Smith explained that the old textbooks had become outdated. Last year, the elementary school updated materials for the reading program and this year is doing much the same thing with science materials.

The new science materials should tie in with a new outdoor science lab developed in the woods next to the school.

The elementary school also has some teaching changes. Kathy Schofield with be teaching fifth grade and special education classes. Anne Kelly will be teaching fourth grade. Pat Miller will be switching from fifth to fourth grade. Hal Evans, who taught fourth grade last year will move to the middle school to teach sixth grade. Jim Glynn, who taught fourth grade last year, has taken a teaching assignment overseas.

Students who will be new to the Charlevoix school system this year should be enrolled as soon as possible rather than waiting until the first day of school.

The elementary school also has a new wooden sign next to the driveway welcoming people to the school.

At the middle school, the biggest change will be in the number of students. Due to a large sixth grade class, the number of students at the middle school will increase by approximately 20. This year's sixth grade class has 122 students compared to an average class size of 90 to 100.

Evans will be moving from the elementary to the middle school to teach an additional sixth grade class. Evans isn't new to the middle school. He's returning after teaching there in the past.

Middle school principal Dennis VanGuilder noted that parents of middle school students are encouraged to attend a parent walk-through mini session from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Monday, Sept. 11.

In that three hour period parents will go through a shortened versions of their child's school day. VanGuilder said the purpose of the program is to give parent's an opportunity to meet their child's teachers and find out what the child will be expected to do and learn in the classes.

Charlevoix High School will look much the same as last year. The teaching staff will be the same.

In a cooperative effort between Boyne City and Charlevoix schools, some of Boyne City's special education classes will be taught in a high school portable.

Charlevoix High School principal Dave Smith explained that the program occurred because Charlevoix had some extra classroom space this year, while Boyne City is crowded for space.

The transfer of the Boyne City program to Charlevoix was coordinated through the intermediate school district.

Operation Heart Start has raised approximately $5,000 toward a heart defribillator for the city ambulance. First State Bank recently contributed $1,000. A heart defribillator uses and electric shock to stabilize an irregularly beating heart. The machine will also monitor a heart attack victim and produce a record which a doctor can check when the patient arrives at the hospital. Charlevoix Area Hospital recently sponsored a golf tournament to raise money to purchase a machine which will transcribe the defribbilator record. Operation Heart Start needs $8,000 to purchase one machine, but would like to raise $20,000 to purchase one machine for each of the city's two ambulances and pay for operational costs. Shown with the hospital defribillator are (from left) Heart Start officials Patty Sitzema and Nomis Moll and First State Bank representative John Kurtz.

plan review process. At that time, streamlining the process was listed as a high priority goal.

Councilman Norm Probert said he felt bypassing the council and allowing the planning commission to give final approval "might be doing an injustice to many citizens of the community."

At Monday evening's meeting, the council did express approval of two other proposed zoning changes. The first is an ordinance clarifying zoning landscaping requirements and suitable materials for the landscaping. The second allows the zoning administrator to issue zoning permits in certain cases where people are seeking to build an addition which will fill in (or square up) a vacant space created by an irregularly shaped building.

provements. Approximately 60 percent of the entire project has been completed. Approximately 90 percent of the work in the downtown area is complete.

Promoting the city industrial park. Roads at the industrial park are scheduled to be paved in October. The project cost was estimated at $100,000, but the low bid came in at about $67,000. A state grant will pay 75 percent of the cost, with the city funding the remaining 25 percent. Pamphlets promoting Charlevoix's industrial park are also being developed.

Downtown parking. City police have been compiling parking information this summer. That data will be analyzed by city officials this fall.

Dixon Avenue infrastructure work. The Dixon Avenue work which began last year is nearing completion.

Golfing for geese

A flock of geese has been hanging out on the fairways of the municipal golf course in recent weeks.

These geese migrate north in the spring, south in the fall and spend a few weeks on the golf course in between. Much like some of Charlevoix's summer residents.

Local golfers report that these geese have come perilously close to getting drilled by golf balls. And cruel, heartless ogre that I am, it wouldn't bother me if that happened.

Personally, I think the golfers should get a little pool going. A golfer could buy a chance in this pool for three bucks. The first golfer to take out a goose with a golf ball wins the money.

Although the goose pool seems like a good idea to me, it'll probably never fly. State agencies, animal rights activists and the antihunting faction would have a honking fit.

If there were a pool, the state would declare goose golfing an illegal form of gambling. They'd be afraid it would cut into their lottery revenues.

Goose golfing might have more success if it were declared a new form of hunting and the state could license it.

Similar to a duck or a trout stamp, hunters would be issued goose golfing stamps with the purchase of a hunting license. A competition among wildlife artists would determine the design for the stamp, perhaps a picture of a goose holding a golf club in its beak.

Goose golfing could become every bit as popular as deer hunting. On the season's opening morning, all of the golfers could be up before dawn, sitting on benches by their favorite tees, wearing bright orange golfing clothes with goose golfing licenses pinned on their backs.

As in every other form of hunting, debates would spring up over the best equipment.

"The key to goose golfing is club selection. I prefer a wood for a goose, but find that irons work better on ganders. As a rule of thumb, I just bear in mind that what's wood for the goose isn't good for the gander."

"And another thing. When you're hunting trophy goose, clubs with graphite shafts are a must."

Like any form of hunting, goose golfing stories would be born and grow bigger and better with each passing year.

"I was playing up the fifth fairway and hit that goose with a five iron shot. I took and flush and square and the feathers flew. But he was a tough old bird and I had to track him clear to the seventh tee.

"Not only that, he was cagey. He tried to hide in a sand trap and when I found him, he took to wing. I had to bring him down with a wedge shot."

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) would have to properly regulate goose golfing. Just like anything else, there would be a certain percentage of goose golfers whose behavior just isn't up to par.

To deal with these violators, we'll have to get the DNR some little dark green golf carts and send them out to patrol the fairways.

Late some night, the DNR officers will come cruising up on some guy standing on the tee with golf clubs in one hand and a big spotlight in the other.

"Illegally shining geese are you. Drop your clubs and get in the cart. We're taking you to the clubhouse. The price of illegal goose golfing is steep. Not only do you lose your license, you have to take a two stroke penalty."

Anne Olmstead writes from LaCrescenta, California, "I keep reading about the problem of what to do with the old water tower ..." and she suggests that the council might consider the amazing solution chosen by the powers in Seal Beach. They converted "a crummy old wooden water tower into a luxury condo with maid's quarters, spa, bar, dance floor and fire pit!" It's now on sale for $3.5 million. She concludes, "I enjoy reading your column and hearing about the things nobody writes about in the Courier but you."

One of the things people are curious about is the new championship golf course on the Boyne City Road. The one Chuck MacGillivray is developing on the former Boal property. I had the privilege of a private tour in a Chevrolet Blazer over 18 holes of the roughest, hilliest, most varied scenic, woodsy terrain you can ever imagine!

The highest point is 930 feet above sea level. One can see Beaver Island in Lake Michigan and all the way from Cross Village to Northport. On Lake Charlevoix one can see all the way to Ironton.

The course covers 150 acres and from the longest tees measures 6900 yards. Six holes are laid out through the woods, six holes wind through open fields and 6 holes are partially wooded. Tucked among the maples, birches and pines are flowering apple and pear trees. In the spring the trillium abound along the wooded fairways. In summer, corn fields stand tall and green like silent spectators at a major tournament. Tenant farmers also grow soy beans and potatoes on the 900 acres to be called Dunmaglas, after the Scottish ancestral home of the MacGillivray clan.

For the time being the club house and driving range will be located adjacent to the former entrance of the Mill Restaurant. Future plans call for a semi-private clubhouse to be located on the top of the hill. At this time the holes will be renumbered and hole number one will be at the top instead of at the bottom of the property.

The irrigation system, including a 2 acre pond, will be capable of producing four to five hundred thousand gallons of water per night. I can't tell you how many man hours, or how many graders, rock pickers, loaders and bulldozers have sculptured the rolling hills and valleys of this original Civil War farm, or at what cost. But as Commodore Vanderbilt said when he was asked the price of his yacht, he replied "If you have to ask the price, you can't afford it."

At the present time it is not known if the terrain will be ready for seeding by September 15. MacGillivray speculates it may be playable by next summer. His vision of the future is to offer this area a world class golf course in summer, ski trails in the winter, and a variety of entertainment in the 100 year old barn. It's a bonnie dream on the verge of becoming a reality.

Light fight is a rematch

I see by the papers that the Charlevoix City Council and the business community are at loggerheads again over downtown street lighting.

Which is OK. Charlevoix never accomplishes anything without a battle royal.

Besides, I'm ambivalent.

I really don't mind the bright lights now in place. Merchant Mike Greeley calls them "parking lot" lights, which is a pretty good description.

But I didn't mind the old lights we had before the invention of mercury vapor lamps. They cast a pale yellow glow and weren't much better than the coal oil lamps of yore.

What surprises me is that I have lived long enough to see Charlevoix embroiled in another pitched battle over street lighting.

The last go-around was in the late 1960s, if memory serves, and lasted for weeks. Before it was over we were all winded.

Merchants, by and large, were against the brighter lights, claiming they would fade merchandise in shop windows.

Others claimed that the proposed mercury vapor lights would be so bright that drivers would be blinded when they crested the north and south hills coming into town.

Bob Lieberman, who was in the clothing business at the time, positioned himself near the light switch during one particularly heated council meeting. To demonstrate the blinding effect of mercury vapor lights, Lieberman turned off the lights in the council chamber for a few seconds and then flipped them back on.

It was a very dramatic maneuver, and one which was repeated at last week's council meeting when proponents of subdued lighting filed out of the chamber in defeat.

What we don't have this time around is the late Anne Harsha's poetry.

The scion of an old Charlevoix family, Anne lived in Birmingham but summered in Charlevoix. Anne was so incensed that anyone would dare tamper with downtown lighting that she took pen in hand and wrote a poem about street lamps which was printed in the Courier.

The merchants — or at least most of them — lost that battle. Brighter lights were installed, chiefly, I think, because engineers insisted that more illumination would enhance pedestrian safety and result in greater downtown security.

I forget now which side I was on — if any.

And I plan to sit this one out too. I don't believe street lighting is going to make or break Charlevoix, which is Michigan's most beautiful town in any light.

For the time being, the council has decided to stay with bright lamps on tall poles. But the fight is far from over — judging from some of the super-heated comments I have heard since the last council meeting.

THE BIGGEST change in downtown Charlevoix since those bygone days are the feathery locust trees on Bridge Street.

Few improvements have done as much to improve the appearance of the city.

Former councilwoman Jeannine Wallace fought for the trees against stiff opposition during her years on the council — and eventually won.

Today, few of us can remember what Bridge Street looked like without them.

HAVE YOU EVER heard of a cat eating muskmelon?

I have a mama cat — Magic Shadow — who not only eats muskmelon but dotes on it.

She would rather have muskmelon for dinner than filet of sole.

Whenever I take a melon out of the refrigerator to cut a slice, Magic Shadow is all over me — clawing my pantlegs and begging me to share.

At first I only gave her the rind, but she would lick it until there was nothing left. Lately I have started giving her a thin slice of diced melon.

She can hardly eat for purring.

Cats are supposed to be carnivores which, in the wild, dine on birds and rodents. But Magic Shadow suddenly has a hankering for Michigan Honey Rocks.

Is her unusual craving the result of a deficiency in her diet?

Probably not. She and her two offspring eat the same thing, and you couldn't get the kittens to eat melon — even with a catnip garnish.

Horton Bay plans bridge walk

by PEG OHLE

Next Sunday, Labor Day, while vacationers inch their way southward, mothers ready their children for the first day of school, and merchants prepare for quieter business days, the people of Horton Bay will be having a celebration.

The annual Horton Bay Bridge Walk will assemble in front of Banana Republic headquarters at 8:30 Labor Day evening for entertainment by local tenor Bob Munn, Irish balladeer Sean Ryan, and juggler Tom Tropic, then proceed about half a mile in a candle-light hymn-singing procession to cross 80-foot-wide Horton Creek, ending with labor rally speeches and songs and a sip of champagne.

This is the third year the people of Horton Bay have passed up the Mackinac Bridge Walk in favor of the local version, which is more to their liking.

A loosely-formed arrangements committee consisting of professional Democrat G. T. Long, man-around-town "Moon" Mullens, and Horton Bay activities director Jon Hartwell are making plans for the proper celebration to end the summer season.

Munn and Ryan will add purity and volume to other voices raised in patriotic salute to labors well performed. Long will deliver a message extolling the virtues of hard work and honesty, and Horton Bay historian Bill Ohle will make a few remarks about this latest historical event.

All area residents are invited to join in the Bridge Walk. Participants should bring their own candles, candle-holders, and matches. Everything else will be furnished.

All who finish the walk will receive a signed certificate. Corky Price's horses and wagon will be available for those who prefer wheels to shoe leather.

... traffic

Dear Sir,

After being in Charlevoix a few times this summer, I was noticing the traffic tie up on Bridge St.

Being one who likes to fool around with numbers, I started timing the stop light and and cars passing on each green light. It only took about ten minutes. It figured out to about 1 minute and ten cars for each green light. The longer the light was green the faster the cars moved through the light.

On this theory, I got to wondering why someone hasn't suggested changing the timing on the traffic light. Maybe changing the Bridge Street light to two minutes and leaving the Clinton light on for a minute duration. When the bridge is open for an undue time, do away with the light for maybe ten minutes and let a policeman replace the light.

Speaking of the bridge, I wonder what sort of emergency plan they have if the bridge would become inoperative for any period of time, say a week, or longer.

Don't say the bridge couldn't fall into such a situation. While watching the news a couple of weeks ago, there was a story and pictures of a similar bridge which dropped one side into the river. By the story it would take quite some time to repair. But they are lucky, they have a number of other bridges to use.

What a traffic jam Charlevoix would have if the bridge was out a month or so.

Postmus-Kavanaugh

JEFFREY AND KATHERINE KAVANAUGH

Katherine Jane Postmus and Jeffrey Scott Kavanaugh exchanged marriage vows Saturday evening, August 19, in the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

The Rev. Terry Smith of Ann Arbor officiated at the double ring candlelight ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Phillip Schairbaum.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Roger W. Postmus of Ann Arbor and Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kavanaugh of Ridgefield, Connecticut.

Approximately 140 guests were seated before an altar decorated with antique white wicker baskets filled with white gladiolus and summer garden flowers. The pews were decorated with statice, ferns, and eucalyptus.

The bride wore a gown of ivory silk taffeta which featured a V-neckline and a shirred Basque bodice. The puffed sleeves were adorned with silk roses and seed pearls at the shoulder, and the cathedral train was fashioned with a bow and silk roses on a center bustle. The illusion veil and gloves were also adorned with silk roses and seed pearls.

The bride's bouquet was made up of stephanotis, pink and white roses, alstroemeria, and trailing ivy.

Marla Pichon served the bride as maid of honor, and the bride's sister, Holly LeClaire, and Eileen Braun and Sarah Howatt were bridesmaids. They wore tea-length flowered chintz dresses fashioned with halter necklines and carried over-the-arm bouquets of white sweetheart roses and baby's breath tied with pink ribbons.

John Dagle served as best man, and the bridegroom's brothers, Michael and Keith Kavanaugh, and Joseph O'Brien were groomsmen. George Smith, cousin of the bride, and Paul Bunker were ushers.

Traditional wedding music was provided by organist Kathy Trumbull and vocalist Nancy MacArthur Smith.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception at their Lake Michigan home, where the newlyweds arrived by horse-drawn carriage.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at the Weathervane Inn.

Following a wedding trip to Mackinac Island, the new Mr. and Mrs. Kavanaugh are at home in Iowa City. They are both graduates of the University of Vermont and are now associated with the University of Iowa. He is a Ph.D. candidate in the biochemistry department and she is employed as a graduate registered nurse in the medical college.

An Oct. 7 wedding is planned at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church.

Nursery schools have openings

The Charlevoix Co-op Nursery School has openings for the fall term starting on Sept. 18, 1989. Located in the Charlevoix Elementary School the classes offer children a warm and fun place to learn. An experienced teacher and aid teach classes for three-year-olds on Tuesdays and Fridays, mornings or afternoons and classes for four-year-olds on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, mornings or afternoons.

Children in the 2-day class must be three years old by Sept. 1 and children in the 3-day class must be four years old by Sept. 1. For more information call Sue Macks at 547-5718.

The Sunshine Club of Charlevoix announces there are still some vacancies in its afternoon school child care program.

The program is sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association and is held at the Community Reformed Church. Children in grades kindergarten through five are eligible for the program, which provides after-school care from 3:30 to 5:30 every day school is in session for a full day.

Snacks are furnished to the children and a group of volunteers leads them in games, crafts, outdoor activities, movies, and other "just for fun" projects.

Parents pay for their childrens' care on a sliding scale based on income. Children may take the school bus direct from school to the care center.

Further information about this program is available from Connie Kramer, the Sunshine Club director, phone 547-6030, or Jan Boss, president of the board, phone 547-9482.

CHURCH

Grace B. Sexton

Grace B. Sexton, 69, of Charlevoix and Coco, Fla., died Aug. 27, 1989, at her home in Charlevoix.

Memorial service will be 11 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 31, at St. Mary's Church. The Rev. James K. Gardiner will officiate. Interment will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

The former Grace B. Bradley was born Feb. 1, 1920, the daughter of Charles J. and Myrtle E. (Douglas) Bradley. She attended and graduated from Riverside High School in Milwaukee, Wisc., and then attended business college in Rockford, Ill.

During World War II, she was a yeoman first class in the U.S. Navy, stationed at Norfolk, Va.

On Aug. 23, 1947, she married Jack K. Sexton in Frankfort, Germany.

Mrs. Sexton spent her summers on Beaver Island as a child and has summered in Charlevoix since 1953. For the past 13 years she spent her winters in Florida with her husband.

She was a member of the Blessed Sacrament Parish in Sharpes, Fla.

Survivors include: her husband; two daughters, Mary K. Sexton and Elizabeth Lee Sexton both of Greenbelt, Md.; one brother, Jack C. Bradley of Charlevoix and Citrus Springs, Fla.

Thomas C. Nielsen

Thomas C. Nielsen, 84, of Ironton, died Aug. 28, 1989, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

A memorial service was held Tuesday, Aug. 29, at the Ironton Congregational Church. The Rev. Harold E. Kruse Jr. officiated.

Mr. Nielsen was born Aug. 18, 1905, in Eveline Township, the son of Ole and Olive (Ruder) Nielsen. He was a life long resident of Northern Michigan and a self-employed stone mason, retiring in 1968.

On Oct. 28, 1933, he married the former Mary Beatie in Charlevoix. The couple resided in Ironton and Mr. Nielsen was a member of the Ironton Congregational Church.

He is survived by his wife; five daughters Doris Phend Schowald of Winston-Salem, N.C., Joyce Rhoades of Greensboro, N.C. Terry Enlund of Midland, Sharon Huff of Bryon and Mary Nestell of Lansing; 12 grandchildren; three great grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the Ironton Congregational Church or the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Arrangements were made by the Winchester Funeral Home.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Have you been watching the construction that has been going on across from the Methodist parsonage on State Street this summer? There had been a wide vacant lot there. Someone has purchased and is erecting two Wausau homes on it.

I was really fascinated to see the big trucks and the tall crane come in and assemble the pieces of the two story home. To go from a lot with virtually nothing on it to a finished shell in one afternoon was amazing. To think that all the pieces could be pre-cut pre-finished somewhere else and then loaded on a truck for assembly here is neat. But to the fellows that are doing the construction, it is all a part of following the right set of plans.

There is another set of plans available to you that will work exceptionally well in your life if you will just give them a try. They were drawn by a master architect. He knows His field better than anyone else. In fact, I would venture to say He could be called "a world class expert."

The plans I'm speaking of are collected in a single volume that is easily accessible. They have been translated into several different versions to be sure that they can be comprehended by the youngest child or the oldest saint. They have been tested and proven in thousands of different situations over hundreds of years. Few, who have truly applied them correctly to their lives, have complained about the finished product they lead to.

Have you guessed the nature of the plans I am speaking of? Chances are good to excellent that you already have a copy of them in your home. The question is why haven't you been using them? Why would anyone ignore something that is so near at hand and works so well?

Just in case you are still uncertain of what these plans are, we are talking about the Bible. God is the Master Architect. He has designed some very special things in life with you exclusively in mind. Ask around and you will find a lot of folks who are very satisfied with His plan for their lives.

But don't take their word for it. Don't even take my word for it. Try those plans for yourself. I think you'll be pleased with the results.

Frank (Butch) Left

Funeral services were Monday, Aug. 28, at St. Mary's Church. The Rev. James Gardiner officiated and burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Beaver Island.

Mr. Left was born June 8, 1941, in Charlevoix, the son of Carl F. and Anna (Gornell) Left. He was a lifelong resident of Charlevoix and worked as a chef at numerous restaurants in the area, including Parkside Restaurant; the Sugar Bowl, Judy's Restaurant (formerly Left's Restaurant) and most recently at J.R.'s.

Mr. Left is survived by two sisters, Sue Hogan of Charlevoix and Charlene Runberg of Bay City; a half sister, Clair Cull of Beaver Island and Port Charlotte, Fla.; a half brother, Bud Left of Charlevoix; and several nieces and nephews.

Oh Boix!

A compilation of praises won by Charlevoix people for good deeds, good work and hard work.

Daniel L. Batdorff of Charlevoix received a bachelor of science degree during spring commencement ceremonies at Grand Valley State College. Batdorff is the son of Delbert and Carolyn Batdorff.

Debra C. Seelye of Charlevoix was named to the spring term dean's list at Northwood Institute. In order to be recognized on the dean's list, students must have at least a 3.0 grade point average on a 4.0 scale. Seelye is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Seelye.

Lorie J. Fox of East Jordan recently graduated from Graceland College in Lamoni, Iowa. Fox is the daughter of Gilbert and Bonnie Fox of East Jordan.

St. Mary's host RCIA class

Rite of Christian Initiation for Adults (RCIA) classes will begin Sept. 19 at St. Mary's Parish. The program is designed to familiarize people with the Catholic faith and introduce them to other members of St. Mary's Parish.

Deacon Edward Vondra, Director of Religious Education at St. Mary's will be coordinating the RCIA program. Fred and Nancy Gradisher will assist him and lead the sessions.

People who are interested in the RCIA classes or would like additional information, may call 547-6652.

Give blood Thursday

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Charlevoix from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m., Thursday, Aug. 31 at the American Legion Hall.

Several local people and civic groups are organizing the drive, but per usual, the success of the event hinges upon the number of people who take the time to give blood.

Although people may walk in the day of the drive, appointments are appreciated and help things run more smoothly. To make an appointment, call 547-9314.

Homemade cookies are needed for people to eat after giving blood. People who would like to donate cookies may drop them off at the Legion Hall after 11 a.m. Aug. 31.

City sponsors flag contest

The city of Charlevoix is sponsoring a contest to design a new city flag. A prize of $50 is being offered for the winning entry.

City councilmen approved the contest Monday evening. Entries must be turned into the city manager's office by Sept. 15. For more information, call the city manager's office at 547-3270.

NCMC has corrections classes

A certificate program for people wishing to work as corrections officers is off and running at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey.

Two courses in the 15-credit program were offered this summer by NCMC. Introduction to Corrections (CJ 120) and Client Relations in Protections (CJ 250) drew enrollments of 11 and 12 students, respectively.

"And 90 percent of the students enrolled successfully completed (the courses). That says something," program coordinator Roger Allen said.

The curriculum follows guidelines set by the Michigan Corrections Officer Training Council (MCOTC) and enables students who have passed the five courses to take the state civil service exam for corrections officer.

Passing the exam doesn't guarantee a job, but employment prospects look good considering Michigan has an additional 1,500 openings in corrections in 1989, according to the National Journal for Corrections Professionals.

The program resumes this fall semester with three courses – Corrections Institutions and Facilities (CJ 121), Client Growth and Development (CJ 251) and Legal Issues in Corrections (CJ 2[illegible]0).

The courses deal with areas ranging from the rehabilitation of prisoners to the laws affecting prisoners and prison employees.

For more information, call Allen at 347-3973.

Auction to benefit swimming pool

A week vacation at a Bermuda mansion leads the list of items available at the Labor Day Auction, Monday, Sept. 4 at Irish Boat Shop.

Tom Duke will serve as auctioneer. Proceeds from the auction will go toward fundraising efforts for an indoor community swimming pool.

The auction will take place in conjunction with a Keep Charlevoix Beautiful fundraising effort where a Buick Reatta car will be given away. Tickets are available at the Chamber of Commerce.

While tickets for the fundraiser involving the car are required to attend the event at Irish Boat Shop, anyone can bid on the auction by mailing their sealed bid to P.O. Box 275, Charlevoix 49720 or dropping it off at the Chamber of Commerce, which has an up-to-date list of auction items. The list contains items covering a wide price range.

Some of the big ticket items include: the Bermuda vacation; a round trip cruise to Detroit for two couples aboard the Medusa Challenger; a cruise on the Star of Charlevoix for 25 couples; Detroit Pistons private box seats for four couples; a vacation to a house in the woods for four couples; tickets to the Buick Open for three couples; and a vacation in Breckenridge, Colorado for three couples.

A vacation in a Bermuda mansion is one of the more exotic items which will be auctioned off at a Labor Day auction.

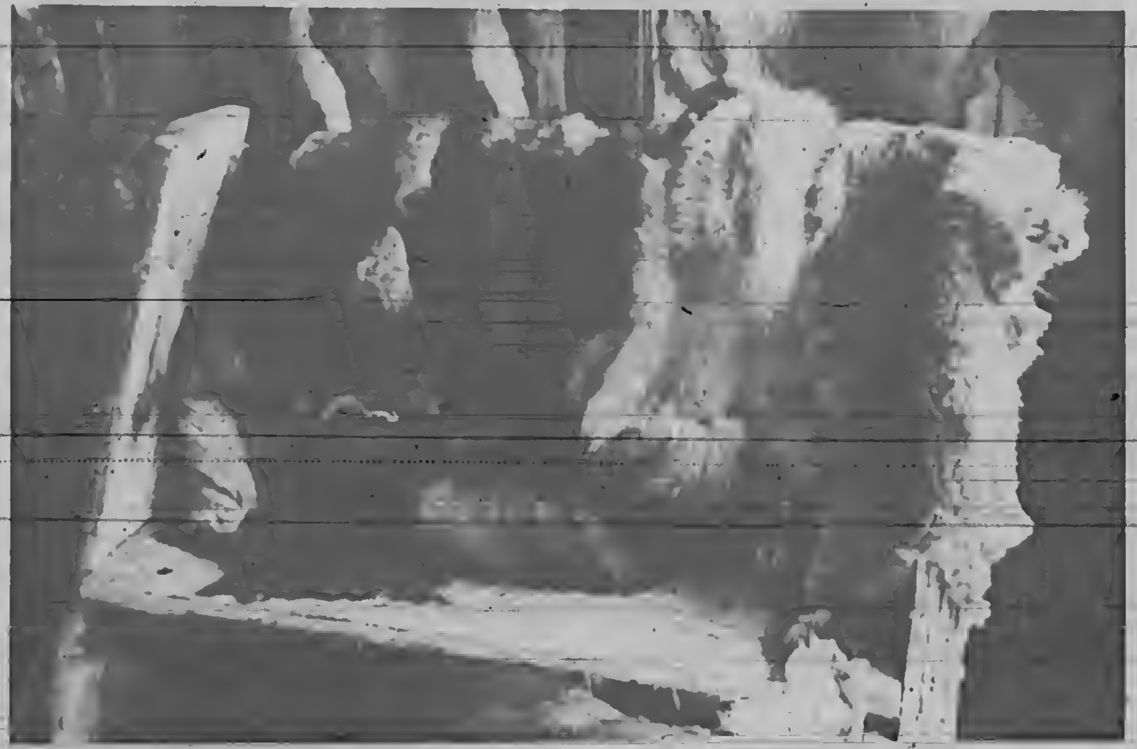
and furs in the wildlife museum in the log cabin, too," he added.

Smith is being modest when he describes himself as a farm boy. That he is, but he was once one of the best trappers and hunters in northern Michigan, and his wide knowledge of wildlife is based on years of experience.

Smith will be glad to show off his collection to school groups if arrangements are made ahead of time.



Children like to feel the animal furs when touring Clayton Smith's little log museum.

New group proposed

There may soon be a chapter of "People to People" in Charlevoix.

Ralph McRae is trying to sign up at least 20 people to join the group.

"People to People" was founded by Dwight D. Eisenhower and has headquarters in Kansas City. There are presently 63 chapters in the United States and 33 foreign countries dedicated to increasing international understanding and education at the local level.

Among the things local chapters do, according to McRae, are:

Offer home stays for international visitors, organize community missions for travel overseas, introduce foreign students to our culture and way of life, sponsor a young professional from overseas on a short-term study mission, work with local teachers in recruiting students in the High School Student Ambassador Program, nominate candidates for the high school and college scholarship and loan program.

BRAKE PRICES?
UNTIL THEY PULL THE WHEELS, THEY'RE PULLING YOUR LEG.
Think about it. How do some brake places know what your next job'll cost if they've never seen your brakes to begin with? Answer: they don't.
Fact is, there's no way anyone can figure out exactly what the price will be. There are just too many possibilities.
That's why at Midas, we pull all four wheels before every brake job. To get inside your brakes. To inspect them. To positively determine what's gone wrong. From a nine dollar can of fluid to a new master cylinder.
And when we're finished, we'll give you a pinpoint estimate of the entire job. With a price that won't go up when the job's done. That's our promise to you.
So when it comes time to pay, you'll have a leg to stand on.

Ferry Ave. bid awarded

Sewer, water and street work will begin at Ferry Avenue within the next few weeks. The work, which is being paid for primarily with money from the Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA), will cost $321,656.

The city council awarded the contract for the work to the low bidder, Manthei Development Corporation, at a special council meeting Aug. 23.

In a related matter, the council approved a special assessment role to establish a special assessment district to pay for sewer construction on Terrace Avenue and portions of Eaton Street.

Property owners in the special assessment district will be assessed $16.30 per front foot of property for the sewer construction. The bill will be added to their taxes at an interest rate of six percent.

Originally, property owners were to be assessed $22.49 per front foot, but bids came in lower than estimates and the assessment figure was reduced accordingly.

Along with the sewer work in the special assessment district, work will include sewer, water, paving, curbs, gutters and sidewalks in the special assessment district and other areas of Ferry Avenue.

To the south of Eaton Street, Ferry Avenue will be diverted west (or somewhat uphill) from its present location so that in the future it will run along what is currently an old railroad bed.

One of the primary reasons for changing the location of the road is so that a proposed parking lot will be between the road and the beach rather than having the road between the parking lot and beach. For safety reasons, it's more desirable for beach users, particularly small children, not to have to cross the road to get to and from the parking lot.

A sidewalk, curb and gutter will also be constructed on the Eaton Street hill. The purpose of the construction is to improve pedestrian safety and eliminate streetside erosion problems.

In addition to the sewer work, Terrace Avenue will also be paved.

Sewer and water line work on Ferry Avenue will be done in stages. Work done in this stage will lay the groundwork for improvements at Ferry Avenue Beach, which is being enlarged and for water system improvements which will extend to the west.

Work for the contract awarded to Manthei is to be completed by May.

The city has applied for a state grant to help fund additional park work. City officials anticipate hearing from the state in December. If the city then receives the state's final blessing in June, work would begin next fall.

Work will begin soon to move Ferry Avenue from its current path to the old railroad bed. The move will allow the park area to be expanded and a new parking lot to be built between the road and the beach.

More public access planned for Lake Charlevoix

by PEG OHLE

When the Michigan Court of Appeals declared illegal the portion of the Hayes Township zoning ordinance limiting boat dockage and "funnel development" on Lake Charlevoix, it also raised some questions about how much free public access there is to the lake.

Last week, the Courier made a survey of free public boat launching sites on Lake Charlevoix and found enough sites to accommodate a total of 325 cars and trailers which launch boats.

Sixty of these are at Ferry Beach in Charlevoix (where non-city residents pay $3 a day or $20 a season for launching privileges); 65 are in Boyne City (where a launching donation is suggested); and 70 are in East Jordan, at the city facility and tourist park.

On the south arm of the lake, there is a car-trailer launching ramp at Dutchman's Bay for 45 vehicles; on the south side of the lake there is a 45 car-trailer facility at Ironton and a 12-car-trailer facility at Whiting Park.

The story is different on the north side of Lake Charlevoix. There is only one car-trailer boat launching facility on the 18-mile stretch between Charlevoix and Boyne City. That is at Horton Bay in Bay Township, where the small facility can accomodate eight car-trailers.

The only other possible road-end launching site on the north side of the lake is at the end of Maple Grove Road in Hayes Township, where a site similar to that at Horton Bay could be developed.

County Extension Director Rod Cortright, told the Courier there are plans to build enough new sites to accommodate 75 more vehicles and trailers in the near future, bringing the total up to 400.

"Townships and cities should use grant money to buy any lake property that becomes available to them. Everyone should have a chance to use the lake," Cortright suggested.

The seven townships and three cities bordering Lake Charlevoix have a population of 15,477 (by 1980 census) of the county's 19,907 residents (same census). That means that with 400 launching sites, there will be one for approximately every 387 persons or one for every 111 families living near the lake.

That does not take into account those who live at the eastern end of the county or the thousands of vacationers who come to use Lake Charlevoix's waters every summer.

Now that townships and cities can no longer forbid lake property owners from giving lake access rights to neighbors who do not own lake property, more access sites of this type will probably become available.

However, the idea of "funneling" people to a lake from either a public or private access is not always popular. Several years ago, Bay Township was refused a grant to buy property for a park and swimming beach on Walloon Lake because of opposition from property owners, most of whom lived on the opposite side of the lake.

The Straitsland-Resorter, published near Burt Lake, recently ran a long letter to the editor from a Burt Lake riparian property owner who objected to a proposed Department of Natural Resources park and boat launching ramp on Burt Lake. In part, the letter read:

"To change the character of the neighborhood by installing a public park and beach with a launching ramp would be highly detrimental to the presently existing properties in the area. The property values would be diminished by virtue of the noise and additional pressure which would be created by such a public facility."

This car is shown before and after the demolition derby at the Charlevoix and Emmet County Fair. The car placed first in its heat and fourth in the finals. Although there were some pretty substantial radiator problems and the body was in less than perfect condition after the derby, the motor still fired right up. Standing beside the car are mechanic Rick Wells and driver Mike Whitley. The car was sponsored by Swanson's K & D and custom lettered by Bob Holtzman.

Starline directors return to place where cruise line originated

What began in Charlevoix with the cruise ship Bay Queen has now grown to the Star Line Corporation, a cruise ship operation encompassing seven port cities including Charlevoix.

Recently Star Line general managers and directors of sales from Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Louisville, Milwaukee and Toledo gathered in Charlevoix for a meeting.

The seeds of the Star Line Corporation were planted in the summer of 1981 when the Bay Queen Dining Cruise Ship began serving passengers on Lake Charlevoix. In its first season of operation, the ship served approximately 33,000 people.

The Bay Queen was renamed the Star of Charlevoix and subsequently moved to Chicago. It is now the smaller of two Star Line boats based in Chicago. Chicago mayor Richard Daley was recently one of the ship's passengers. Several large companies have chartered the ship for private cruises to provide entertainment for up to 200 guests.

The newest addition to the Star Line fleet is the Star of Louisville. This past spring the ship hosted many of the dignitaries visiting Louisville for the Kentucky Derby.

NCMC sign-up begins

North Central Michigan College of Petoskey will be starting its Fall 1989 semester Tuesday, September 5, 1989, in Petoskey, Gaylord and Cheboygan.

A full range of classes will be offered during the daytime hours, with over 80 classes on campus in the evening, and over 20 classes at each of the two off-campus sites also in the evening.

Several new efforts are underway to serve the five county – Emmet, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Otsego, and Antrim -- student population area. Among these efforts are the new Technology Center offering courses in Engineering Technologies. Courses in Electrical Circuits, Electronics, and Hydraulics & Pneumatics will be offered.

In addition, NCMC will be offering its first interactive television course in Cheboygan, Indian River, and Mackinaw City in Small Business Management. This allows a teacher to teach in three classrooms simultaneously by broadcasting on two remote locations. The remote locations can be viewed by the instructor at the main classroom site because the television picture and audio sound of the remote classrooms are broadcast back to him.

Besides expanding current program offerings, some new courses have been added such as COM 150, Introduction to Mass Media. This course will be team taught by Roger Srigley and Paula Holmes-Greeley, drawing on their respective areas of expertise.

A Corrections Officer Training program, begun this past September, will also accept new registrants this fall. A five course sequence will prepare a participant to take the Civil Service exam required for entry into the field.

Registration for fall semester is scheduled for Tuesday, August 29 from 7-9 p.m. at the Gaylord High School; Wednesday, August 30 from 7-9 p.m. at the Cheboygan High School; and at the NCMC campus in Petoskey on Thursday, August 31 from 8:30-4 and 6-9 p.m. and on Friday, September 1 from 8:30-4.

Nursing home approved

The 60-bed nursing home that Liberatore Health Care of Columbus, Ohio proposes to build in Charlevoix, has received final construction approval from the Michigan Department of Health.

The facility, to be built on seven acres behind the Charlevoix Area Hospital, will consist of 49 skilled nursing beds and 11 beds for the aged. The 21,000 square foot building will also have a main dining room, kitchen, laundry, and day room.

According to local contact Ralph McRae, as much local labor as possible will be hired for construction.

Circuit judge reports the court's been very busy

by PEG OHLE

Judge Richard M. Pajtas, who presides over the 33rd circuit court, disposed of more cases during the past year than any other judge in the northern lower peninsula and he is asking for help.

The 33rd circuit is made up of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties and maintains offices in both counties. Pajtas presented his annual report to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week with the suggestion that, "The addition of a second judge or re-alignment of the circuit should be given serious consideration in the next couple of years...It is becoming increasingly difficult to schedule court time to hear cases, particularly those that warrant priority such as criminal and custody cases. The court's docket is scheduled extremely tight well into 1990 at this time."

Pajtas also noted the need for new courtroom and office facilities in both counties. "The circuit court will be moving to new facilities in Emmet County in the spring of 1990 and, hopefully, to new facilities in Charlevoix County subject to voter approval. The needs in Charlevoix are critical."

The judge's reference to Charlevoix County is the proposed new courthouse near the Sheriff's Department on Garfield Avenue. A house at the corner of Garfield and Grant Streets has been moved to make room for the new facility and plans have been drawn for its construction. However, no definite financial arrangements have been made.

No realignment of the 33rd district can be made until this new facility is available, Pajtas pointed out. "The next opportunity to consider such a realignment is the spring of 1990 and again two years thereafter. It would seem impracticable to consider a change in the first instance in view of the lack of facilities," he said.

Automation of the Charlevoix caseload and courtroom security are also matters that warrant serious consideration at this time," the judge added.

The jurisdiction of circuit court is broad, Pajtas noted in his report:

"This court handles cases involving auto negligence, personal injury, contract and property disputes, zoning litigation, products liability, medical and legal malpractice, labor relations, and other proceedings.

"The court also has jurisdiction over domestic relations matters that include divorce, separate maintenance, support, paternity, child custody and visitation, and actions brought under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act.

"Felony cases include those where the offender may be sent to prison, from larceny in a building to first degree murder.

"The circuit court also hears cases appealed from the district court and probate court and from various administrative agencies of state government. In addition, the circuit court has superintending control over other courts within the judicial circuit, subject to final superintending powers of the Supreme Court.

Judge Pajtas, who lives in Charlevoix, was elected to office in November, 1984 and will serve a six-year term. His administrative office is in Emmet County, where his court administrator, court reporter, and assignment clerk have their offices. In Charlevoix County, Kenneth Mulka serves as probation-parole agent and George Ebenhoc as Friend of the Court.

The circuit court work load is about the same in both counties, the judge's report shows. During 1988, there were 457 new cases filed in Charlevoix County and 431 new cases filed in Emmet County. There were also 471 dispositions in Charlevoix County and 509 dispositions in Emmet County.

One-man art exhibit opens

The Crooked Tree Art Gallery in Petoskey will present Louis G. Redstone in a one-man exhibit of water color paintings which will open Aug. 29 and run through Sept. 29.

Redstone has exhibited his watercolor paintings since 1934. A reception for Redstone will take place from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the gallery. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from noon to 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 3.

Yachting Notes

by A. NONY MOUSE

Last week's final race of the summer series was competitive, to say the least. JAM Fleet ended up spending far more time on protests than in sailing the course! The rest of us fought just as hard, but had a lot more fun, so our results are firm and final – can't say the same for JAM results which yet may be revised.

Gotcha steamed around the course in 1:40:13 to take the evening honors in both Overall and A Fleet with H.S. Moisture Missile close behind for first in C Fleet and second Overall. Bandit, way back at 1:46:23, was one position behind in both. Seconds separated 4th, Allons-Y (3rd in C); 5th, Newsense (4th in C); 6th, Mint Julip (2nd in A); 7th and 8th Slapshot (3rd in A) and Minors (5th in C) – who tied at 1:48:03. The rest were back a bit more with 9th and 10th going to Cygnus and Mi-Joy; 1 and 2 in the B Fleet. Flash was 4 in A; Tireless, Foxy Lady, Blasen, Lost Vermonter, Sandpiper and Kitty Wake were 3 thru 9 in B; while Mr Breeze grabbed 6 in C.

Net of protests – we think – JAM ended up with no first, Hot Mustand and Apothecary were 2 and 3, no fourth, Maureen in 5, both Stalworth and Nancy in 6, both Cheemaun and Cabaret in 7, trailed by Bald Eagle, Spirit and Sonrise.

Final (we hope) Summer Series results:

A Fleet – it was Slapshot with 11.25 points, second Gotcha (16.50) and third Apprentice (19.50). Then Mint J, Flash, Tigger and Pygmalion.

B Fleet – it was Mi-Joy with 11.50 points, second Cygnus (15.0) and third Blasen (22.75). Then Miller Time, Lost Vermonter, Foxy Lady, Tireless, Sandpiper, Kitty Wake and Te-Gi.

C Fleet - it was Bandit with 13.75 points, second Moisture Missile (17.25) and third Newsense (18.25). Minors-In-Possession, Allons-Y, Mud Duck and Mr. Breeze were next, in that order.

JAM Fleet – it was Nancy with 14.25 points, second Cabaret (15.0) and third Maureen (27.0). Then Bald Eagle, Cheemaun, Apothecary, Hot Mustard, Canusa, Stalworth, Sonrise and Spirit.

When I left Saturday's Hot Dog races all was on hold (no wind; I mean zero!) with only one race sailed; don't know if it ever got restarted. Sunday's Two Handed Race was won by the yacht with the best corrected time while the runner up was second. All the yachts in the race were participants but the last place went to the fellow in the cheap seat. (In other words; times were not corrected when we had to go to press.)

ACTIVITIES: Pig Raft Party, Oyster Bay alongside Miss Piggy, 6 p.m. Wednesday, 8-30. This weekend, Friday, 9-1, CYC Cup Race (check time) after the race awards and beverages at CYC! Saturday, 9-2 Red Fox to Boyne City - raft off and cookout at Boyne! Sunday, 9-3 Red Fox back to CYC - awards after the race at CYC CLubhouse!

New East Jordan library opens

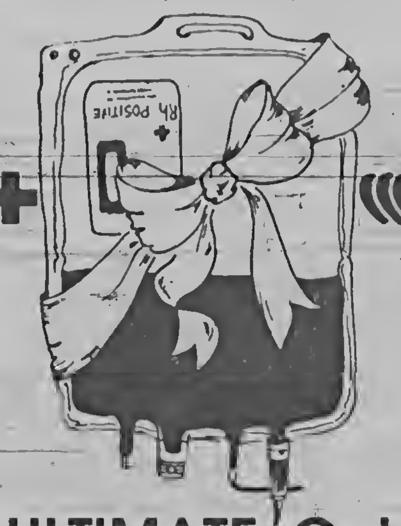
The public is invited to the official dedication of Jordan Valley District Library at 11 a.m. Saturday, September 9, followed by an open house lasting until 3 p.m.

William Malpass, representing the Malpass Foundation, will present the library keys and legal papers to the Rev. Robert Herbon, library board president.

The new 10,000 square feet, $450,000-plus building is a gift of the East Jordan-based Malpass Foundation, which was also the benefactor for the East Jordan community pool.

The two-level brick and limestone structure was designed by Jaye Miller, a Traverse City architect, and built by Petrie Construction Company of East Jordan. It is located at One Library Lane, directly south of the community pool.

The spacious building has many special features, including a children's reading area, complete with colorful stuffed animals and adult and child's rockers. It also has a separate periodical alcove-study area and a quiet room with restful home-style furniture, where patrons can snuggle up with a book in stylish comfort.



American Red Cross
Building the Heartbeat of the North

The ULTIMATE Get Well Gift

Little Traverse area patients who need life-saving blood receive it from the Red Cross Regional Center in Petoskey. So do patients from 12 other northern Michigan hospitals.

But the readily available supply of safe blood we depend on is in jeopardy. Here's why:

More than 20,000 pints of blood will be processed this year in space that was designed in 1974 to handle 8,000 pints. The seriously overcrowded conditions are becoming intolerable – the chances for human error will soon be just too great.

To ensure that the ultimate get-well gift is here when we need it, we must construct a new Blood Center entirely with private gifts. Already, $600,000 of the campaign's $975,000 goal has been pledged. The Kresge Foundation will give us an additional $100,000 if we are able to raise the final $275,000. We need your gift to qualify us for the challenge. And if we meet the challenge, we will get a new Blood Center.

Please make your tax deductible gift to the Red Cross "Building the Heartbeat of the North" Capital Campaign. If you have any questions, please call the Red Cross Blood Center at (616) 347-5984. Thanks for your get well gift!

Varsity football team begins season Friday

Charlevoix's varsity football team opens their 1989 season Friday evening at Kipke Field hosting Lake City.

Coach Roger Gowell says he feels pretty good about his team's prospects as they enter the season. Last Thursday, Charlevoix participated in a five-team scrimmage with Mancelona, Frankfort, Pine River and Houghton Lake.

"It's early, but the kids played real well," Gowell said following the scrimmage.

With only 25 players on the varsity team this year, the Rayder's depth is questionable. However the majority of those players are seniors with substantial game experience.

"If we can keep our nucleus, our seniors, all healthy, we should be competitive," Gowell stated.

The Rayders will start a small but quick, senior backfield with Greg Lewis at quarterback, Jason Corwin at fullback and James Corwin and Brian Livingston at halfbacks.

Charlevoix will operate out of a wing-T offense.

"It's a good offense for backs with quickness," Gowell explained.

Team captains Pat Elliot and Tony Warchol will anchor the offensive line. Tracey Simpson, Jim Marquardt, Mike Stoneham, Bill Sherman and Jason Parrish will also get extensive playing time.

"We have a nice sized offensive line," Gowell commented.

Many of the players will be going both ways, playing both offense and defense. Scott Campbell and sophomore Brian Coolman will be included in the Rayder linebacking corps.

Gowell plans to have the defense playing with a five man line similar to the defense employed by the University of Michigan.

Asked what teams he expects will provide the Rayders with their toughest opposition this season, Gowell said all of the Class B schools in the Michigan Huron Shores League, particularly Petoskey and Cheboygan.

"There isn't anybody we can take for granted," he noted.

Gowell said that despite the limited number of players, he's optimistic.

"We don't have a lot of kids, but we have kids who want to play...They're working very hard and they're very coachable."

Season ticket correction

A story concerning season ticket prices for high school sports events incorrectly read that family all-sports passes only covered parents and K-5 children. It should have said that family all-sports passes cover only parents and K-12 children.

Girls basketball team plays Harbor Springs

Charlevoix's varsity girls basketball team opens their season Thursday, Aug. 31 with a trip to Harbor Springs.

Coach Stan Martin is looking for some improvement following last year's 5-15 season.

"We've got a good attitude so far...I think we're a little quicker," Martin said.

Melissa Boss, a senior who will be a third year varsity player, is the only starter returning from last year's team. She is approximately six feet tall and will be an integral part of the team's rebounding success.

"We really don't have much size after Boss," Martin remarked. "We'll be smaller, but hopefully faster."

Other returning players are Tricia Sutton, Marty Bragg, Cynthia Boydston and Chrissy Dillon. All are seniors.

Martin expressed enthusiasm about the athletic ability of the players joining the varsity this year. They are: Sandy Fershee, Heather Keller, Paula Pittman, Heather Radle, Stacey Skeel, Jenny Supernaw and Sue Melke.

The Rayders will look to take advantage of their depth and team speed, by running on offense whenever the opportunity presents itself.

"It's just a matter of practice and practice and more practice," Martin said of the team's efforts to play an up-tempo game while limiting turnovers.

Defensively, the Rayders will generally play man to man, but will occasionally switch to a zone.

Martin feels Gaylord and Sault Ste. Marie will be two of the toughest teams on the Rayder schedule this season.

"They're working hard and have a good attitude," Martin said of this year's team. As evidence of their dedication, the team has been rising early in recent weeks for morning practices beginning at 7 a.m.

Post-season tournament winners

Bear hunting season to begin

The deadline to purchase a bear hunting license is September 10.

Hunters wishing to hunt on Drummond Island and the Carney Bear Management Unit will need to obtain a special permit. To obtain the permit, hunters should send a postcard with their name, address, 1989 passbook number and 1989 bear hunting license number to either Carney Bear Management Unit Hunt or Drummond Island Bear Hunt, P.O. Box 30030, Lansing 48909. Hunters may apply for both hunts but must send a separate postcard for each hunt.

Successful applicants will be notified by September 5. Unsuccessful applicants will not be notified.

Additional information on either hunt is available in the bear hunting guide, which is available from license dealers throughout Michigan.

Official Notice

ORDINANCE NO. 517

An Ordinance to amend the Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority.

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

WHEREAS, A Regular session of the Charlevoix City Council was held on August 7, 1989 at 7:00 p.m. for the purpose of holding a Public Hearing on a proposed amendment to the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan, and

WHEREAS, The Charlevoix City Council has determined that the attached amendment with any modifications as noted below constitutes a public purpose, together with the originally adopted Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan meets all statutory requirements, is reasonable and necessary to carry out the purpose of the Downtown Development Authority Act and is in reasonable accord with the Master Plan of the municipality, and

WHEREAS, The land included within the development area as amended is reasonably necessary to carry out the purposes of the Plan and of the aforesaid Act in an efficient and economically feasible manner and public services, such as fire and police protection will, if developed according to the Plan as amended, be adequate to service the project area, and

WHEREAS, Public Notice of the proposed amendment and this hearing having been given as required by statute and the Public Hearing having been held,

NOW THEREFORE BE IT ORDAINED that the Amendment to the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan as attached hereto is adopted as follows:

FIRST AMENDMENT TO TAX INCREMENT FINANCING PLAN AND DEVELOPMENT PLAN
CHARLEVOIX DOWNTOWN DEVELOPMENT AREA
CHARLEVOIX DOWNTOWN DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

The completion of some projects and the planning for other projects make it appropriate to amend the original Tax Increment Financing Plan and Development Plan (hereafter both plans are jointly referred to as the "Original Plan"). Rather than just amending specific sections to both plans, this amendment is intended as a general supplemental to both and should be read in conjunction with both plans. The Downtown Development Authority has completed or is in the process of completing those projects listed in Exhibit "H" which is attached. This amendment will also permit the implementation of secondary improvements as described in the original plan. New projects which will begin as soon as possible and will be completed by 1999 within the boundaries of the district are listed in Exhibit "I" which is attached as well as those projects called secondary improvements in the original plan. Financing for all of these projects shall conform to the original plan. Nothing in this amendment shall prohibit the Downtown Development Authority from implementing or completing Phase I and II of the primary improvements as described in the original plan.

The original plan and this amendment are also subject to existing or future contracts among different taxing entities regarding a distribution of captured tax revenue and the termination of the Downtown Development Authority. A revised projection of captured tax revenue for the Downtown Development Authority including contractually required refunds to other taxing entities is set forth in Exhibit "J" as attached. Except as modified by this amendment the original Tax Increment Financing Plan and Development Plan shall remain in full force and effect.

PUBLIC NOTICE
PUBLIC HEARING
Charlevoix City Council
Tuesday, September 5, 1989
7:00 p.m.
City Hall, 210 State Street

The Charlevoix City Council will hold a Public Hearing on the above date and time to receive public comments, written and oral on the following proposed amendment to the City of Charlevoix City Code. The amendment is as follows:

ORDINANCE NO.

An ordinance to amend the Code of the City of Charlevoix by adding to and deleting from TITLE V - ZONING AND PLANNING CHAPTER 51 ZONING, as follows:

The City of Charlevoix Ordains:

(1) That the following now Sections regarding Landscape and Land Use Buffers be added:

5.201. DESCRIPTION AND PURPOSE.

To establish regulations and standards for landscape and land use buffers in all zones.

5.202. SCOPE OF APPLICATION

(1) No site plan shall be approved under Chapter 51, Section 5.188 of this Code nor shall any site plan for a parking lot required by Section 5.32 (10) be approved, unless said site plan shall show landscaping consistent with the requirements of this Section.

(2) The requirements of this Section are minimum landscaping requirements and nothing herein shall preclude a developer and the City from agreeing to more extensive landscaping.

(3) Where landscaping is required, no zoning permit shall be issued until the required landscaping plan has been submitted and approved by the Zoning Administrator.

(4) A certificate of occupancy will not be issued unless the provisions of this Section have been met or a performance bond or other security has been posted.

(5) Where the use of land is changed so that additional landscaping would be required by this Section, all landscaping required by this Section must be installed.

5.203. PLANT MATERIALS AND LANDSCAPE ELEMENTS. Plant materials and landscape elements used to comply with this Section must meet the following standards:

(1) Quality. Plant and grass materials shall be of acceptable varieties and species, free of pests and diseases, hardy in Charlevoix County and shall conform to standards of the American Association of Nurserymen, and shall have passed any inspections required under State Regulations.

No plant materials used to satisfy some or all planting requirements of this section shall be comprised of non-living materials, such as petrochemical plants. No polyethylene film shall be used under non-living, decorative landscape materials such as stone, wood chips and gravel in a manner which will cause erosion of the decorative materials.

(2) Canopy Trees shall be species having an average mature crown spread of greater than fifteen (15) feet in Charlevoix County and having trunk(s) which can be maintained with over five (5) feet clear stem if conditions of visibility require, except however, at intersections where the requirement is seven (7) foot clear stem. Trees having an average mature crown spread of less than fifteen (15) feet may be substituted by grouping the same so as to create the equivalent of a 15-foot crown spread. Canopy tree species shall be a minimum of twelve (12) feet overall height or of a minimum caliper of two and one-half (2½") inches and a burlapped ball size of at least ten (10) times the caliper size, immediately after planting.

(3) Flowering trees and intermediate trees shall be a minimum of six (6) feet in height with a minimum caliper of two (2) inches and a burlapped ball size at least (10) times the caliper immediately after planting.

(4) Evergreen trees shall be a minimum of six (6) feet in height with a minimum spread of two (2) feet and a burlapped ball size of at least ten (10) times the caliper immediately after planting.

(5) Shrubs and Hedges. Shrubs shall be a minimum of two (2) feet in height when measured immediately after planting or two (2) feet in spread if plants are low growing evergreens. Hedges, where provided, shall be planted and maintained so as to form a continuous, unbroken, visual screen within a maximum of two (2) years after time of planting.

(6) Vines shall be a minimum of thirty (30) inches in length after one growing season and may be used in conjunction with fences, screens, or walls to meet physical buffer requirements so specified.

(7) Ground Covers used in lieu of grass in whole or part shall be planted in such a manner as to present a finished appearance and reasonably complete coverage after one complete growing season with at least three (3) plants per square foot.

(8) Lawn Grass. Grass areas shall be planted in species normally grown as permanent lawns in Charlevoix. Grass may be plugged, sprigged, seeded or sodded except that rolled sod, erosion reducing net or suitable mulch, shall be used in swales or other areas subject to erosion. When complete sodding or seeding is not used nurse grass seed shall be sown and mulched for immediate protection until coverage is otherwise achieved. Grass sod and seed shall be clean and free of weeds and noxious pests or diseases.

(9) Landscape Elements.

(a) Earth Mounds and Berms. Berms and mounds shall be constructed with slopes no greater than one (1) foot vertical for each three (3) feet horizontal with at least a two (2) foot flat on the top and with adequate protection to prevent erosion.

(b) Mulches. Mulching material for planted trees, shrubs, and vines shall be a minimum of three (3) inch deep wood chip mulch. Straw or other mulch may be used to protect seeded areas. Mulches must be installed in a manner as to present a finished appearance.

(c) Walls. Walls shall be constructed of stone, brick or other masonry materials, and shall, as much as possible, harmonize with the general character of the neighborhood. Walls shall be not less than three (3) nor more than six (6) feet in height.

(d). Fences. All Fences shall conform to Chapter 51 of the City Code. Chain link fencing will be permitted only if used in conjunction with a continuous screen of plant materials.

(e) Greenbelt. If a greenbelt is required, it shall be at least eight (8) feet wide and shall be constructed to the following standards:

1. Plant material shall not be placed so that their center is closer than three (3) feet from a fence or property line.
2. Plant materials shall be planted in two (2) or more staggered rows.
3. Evergreen trees shall be planted not more than five (5) feet on center.
4. Narrow evergreen shall be planted not more than three (3) feet on center.
5. Canopy trees shall be planted not more than thirty (30) feet on center.
6. Tree-like shrubs shall be planted no more than eight (8) feet on center.
7. Large deciduous shrubs shall be planted not more than four (4) feet on center.

5.204. GENERAL REGULATIONS

(1) Installation and Maintenance. In cases where an owner of property is required to install and maintain landscaping, the following standards shall be observed:

(a) Installation. Landscape elements shall be installed and earth moving or grading shall be performed in a workman-like manner and according to accepted good planting and grading procedures with the quality of plant materials and grading as hereinafter described. Call Miss Dig for utility staking at least twenty-four (24) hours prior to installation or grading.

(b) Maintenance. The owner of property required to be landscaped by this Chapter shall maintain such landscaping in good condition so as to present a healthy, neat and orderly appearance, free from refuse and debris. All unhealthy and dead material shall be replaced within one year, or the next appropriate planting period, whichever comes first. All landscaped areas shall be provided with a readily available and acceptable water supply, or with at least one outlet located within one hundred (100) feet of all plant material to be maintained.

(2) Screening. A continuous screen shall be achieved after two (2) complete growing seasons after installation. A continuous screen shall exist when evergreen, semi-evergreen, or densely branched deciduous plants are installed and maintained in accordance with this Section.

The screening, as required in this section, shall be placed in such a location and in such a manner as to effectively achieve the height requirements, measured from the established grade of the area to be buffered.

(a) Required screening shall be located so as to always be interior to the lot line.

(b) Such walls or other screening barriers shall only have openings for vehicular traffic, service or pedestrian purposes. Where permitted, the openings shall be so spaced as to maintain the obscuring character required, and shall not reduce the minimum height requirement.

(3) Non-Living Barrier. If such landscaping elements are of a non-living material such as a wall or fence, for each ten (10) lineal feet thereof, one (1) shrub or vine shall be planted abutting such barrier but need not be spaced ten (10) feet apart, said planting to be located on the side opposite the area to be concealed.

(4) Existing Barrier. Where an existing or proposed parking area abuts an existing hedge, berm, wall or other durable landscape barrier on an abutting property, said existing landscaping may be used to satisfy the landscape requirements of this section, provided that it meets all applicable buffering standards of this Section. Such determination will be made by the Zoning Administrator. Maintenance of the existing hedge, berm, wall or landscape barrier shall be the responsibility of the individual petitioning for approval under provisions of this Section.

5.205. PERIMETER AND BUFFER LANDSCAPING REQUIREMENTS

The owner of a parking area which abuts a public right-of-way, a public waterway or a conflicting land use shall install and maintain landscaping between such area and such right-of-way, public waterway or conflicting land use, unless the parking area is visually screened by a building or structure or existing landscaping which meets the buffering requirements.

(1) Adjacent to Public Rights of Way and Public Waterways. Where an off-street parking area in any of the zoning districts abuts a public right-of-way or waterway, screening shall be placed at all locations (excluding sidewalks and driveways) which are between any portion of the right-of-way or waterway and the parking area visible from the right-of-way or waterway as follows:

(a) A strip of land at least five (5) feet in width located between the abutting right-of-way or waterway and the parking area exposed to the abutting right-of-way or waterway.

(b) One canopy tree per thirty (30) lineal feet, or fraction thereof, located between the abutting street right-of-way and parking area.

(c) A hedge, wall, berm, change of grade, or any combination of these landscape elements forming a continuous screen at least three (3) feet in height, except that it shall comply with visibility requirements of Section 5.185, Chapter 51.

(d) Grass, ground cover, or landscape stone shall be installed and maintained on all portions of the required landscaped strip not occupied by other landscape material.

(2) Conflicting Land Uses. Where any use district abuts a different use district or an existing residential use, there shall be a screened area as follows:

(a) A strip of land at least fifteen (15) feet in width located between the conflicting land use, except that where the size or configuration of a non-conforming lot, or setback requirements of the use district, prevent a fifteen (15) foot wide strip, the Planning Commission may allow the width of the landscape strip to be adjusted, or a masonry wall or fence to be substituted for the landscape screen.

(b) A hedge, wall, berm, greenbelt or any combination of these landscape elements forming a continuous screen at least four (4) feet in height at all points. If a non-living barrier is used, the living plant material for each ten (10) lineal feet will be required on both sides of the screen.

(c) Grass or ground cover shall be planted and maintained on all portions of the required landscaped strip not occupied by other landscape material.

5.206. INTERIOR LANDSCAPING REQUIREMENTS.

Interior landscaped areas shall be installed and maintained in such a manner to: screen unsightly areas within a site from public view; define parking areas, delineate vehicular and pedestrian circulation areas, and break up the expanse of paving in parking areas containing eight (8) or more spaces; and provide a planting area to separate building and parking areas and to define building entrances.

(1) Unsightly Areas. Garbage and refuse collection areas, service areas, and outside storage areas (where permitted) shall be screened from view from a public right-of-way or waterway and from any adjacent residential uses. The screen shall be of live landscape material such as, but not limited to, trees, shrubs, and hedges to form a continuous screen. If site restriction and site layout prohibit the use of live landscape material, wood fencing or masonry wall shall be used.

(2) Parking Areas. Parking areas containing eight (8) or more spaces shall meet the following interior landscaping requirements:

(a) Notwithstanding, the provisions of 5.32 (10). Commercial and Multiple Residential Uses. For every eight (8) parking spaces, there shall be one (1) canopy tree and a planting area equivalent to the area of one parking space (180SF).

(b) Industrial Uses. For every fifteen (15) parking spaces, there shall be one (1) canopy tree and a planting area equivalent to the area of one parking space (180 SF).

Wheel stops or curbing shall be installed to prevent vehicles from encroaching more than three (3) feet into any interior landscaped area.

(3) Adjacent to Buildings. Planting areas shall be provided adjacent to the building(s) in such a manner to separate building and parking areas and direct users to building entrances. For each parking space, twenty (20) SF of planting area adjacent to the building(s) shall be provided.

5.207. EXISTING PLANT MATERIAL.

In instances where healthy plant material exists on a site prior to its development, the Planning Commission may adjust the application of the above standards to allow credit for such plant material if such an adjustment is in keeping with, and will preserve, the intent of this Section.

5.208. LANDSCAPE PLAN REQUIREMENTS.

Whenever a site plan is required by Chapter 51, landscape provisions of this Section shall be shown thereon. When no site plan is required by Section 51, ten (10) sets of plans and specifications accompanying a request for a zoning permit shall contain required information as applicable to the planned landscaping.

5.209. NOTICE OF INSTALLATION TO ENFORCEMENT OFFICIAL.

Prior to the installation of plant materials required by this Section, the owner or developer must notify the Enforcement Official of the installation schedule and provide an opportunity for inspection.

If any plant material is diseased, damaged, dead or planted in such a way to injure or kill the plant, the Enforcement Official will require immediate removal or correction.

Species of proposed plant materials may be altered pending notification and approval by the Enforcement Official.

5.210. ASSESSMENT FOR WORK PERFORMED BY CITY.

Whenever landscaping is not installed or maintained as required by this Section, the city, after notice to the persons responsible, may perform the work needed to make the landscaping comply. The cost of the work and materials may then be assessed against the premises.

(2) That Section 5.188 (3) (f) be amended to add the following:

Section 5.188 (3) (f)

6. Location of all existing plant materials showing those materials to be saved, to be moved and to be removed.
7. Location of all proposed plant materials.
8. A planting list for all proposed landscape materials showing caliper sizes, height of material, method of installation, botanical and common names, type and amount of mulch, ground cover and grasses.
9. Sections, elevations, plans and details of all landscape elements, such as earth mounds, retaining walls and planting details.
10. The proposed planting dates.
11. A statement of intent to install and maintain all such landscaped areas in accordance with the requirements of this Chapter.
12. An irrigation system plan for watering and draining landscaped areas beyond one hundred fifty (150) feet of a main water outlet, or other provision for watering.

(3) That Section 5.5, Definitions be amended by adding the following sections as indicated:

Section 5.5 (23)

"Conflicting Land Uses": Where any use district abuts a different use district, or an existing residential use lot or parcel.

Section 5.5 (24)

"Continuous Screen": A hedge, wall, landscaped berm, or combination of landscape elements which forms an unbroken visual barrier from any adjoining land.

Section 5.6 (8) (a)

"Enforcement Official". The Zoning Administrator.

Section 5.8 (4) (a)

"Landscape Elements". Living plant material such as, but not limited to, grass, ground covers, shrubs, vines, hedges or trees, and non-living durable material commonly used in landscape development such as crushed rock, brick, wood chips, cobblestones, brick, tile, or decorative blocks whether as a vertical element such as a wall, or a horizontal element such as a bed, walk, or path.

Section 5.10 (1) (a)

"Off-Street Parking Area". An area used for the parking of more than two (2) vehicles as a principal or accessory use, but not including driveways.

Section 5.10 (5) (a)

"Plant Materials". Plant materials shall include "shrubs", "trees" and "vines" as defined herein and shall be subject to the provisions of Section 5.203 (1).

Section 5.11 (1) (a)

"Shrubs". Self-supporting, deciduous and/or evergreen woody species, normally branched near the base, bushy, less than fifteen (15) feet in height, as normally grown in Charlevoix County.

Section 5.11 (13)

"Trees". Self-supporting, woody, deciduous and/or evergreen plants with a well-defined central stem or species which normally grow to a height of fifteen (15) feet or more in Charlevoix County.

Section 5.11 (14)

"Vines". Plants which normally require physical support to reach mature form.

(4) That the following Section shall be deleted:

Section 5.198 in its entirety. (Superseded by Article V, Section 5.201 - 2.210.

Section 5.52 (6) in its entirety (Superseded by Article V, Section 5.201 - 2.210.

Section 5.144 (1) (e) in its entirety (Superseded by Article V. Section 5.201 - 2.210.

ORDINANCE NO.

An ordinance to amend the Code of the City of Charlevoix by adding to TITLE V - ZONING AND PLANNING CHAPTER 51 ZONING, as follows:

The City of Charlevoix Ordains:

That Section 5.188 Development Plan shall be amended to read:

Section 5.188, Development Plan

(1) No building shall be erected or structurally altered, nor shall any grading take place in any zone district, except "R-1", "R-2" and "R-2A", nor shall any change in use as defined by use regulation within the various zone districts be permitted in any portion of the premises, until such a time as a development plan has been approved by the City Planning Commission. "Change of Use" shall also include a re-institution of any use discontinued for a period of three (3) years or more. Such approval shall terminate within twelve (12) months of the granting thereof, unless a building permit is obtained for the development plan project.

The balance of the section shall remain the same.

ORDINANCE NO.

An ordinance to amend the Code of the City of Charlevoix by adding to TITLE V - ZONING AND PLANNING CHAPTER 51 ZONING, as follows:

That Section 5.221, Continuance of Use shall be amended by adding item (3):

(3) If a residential structure on a non-conforming lot is non-conforming due to existing building encroachments into a required side yard setback; and if the non-conformance was created by the adoption of this ordinance; the City Zoning Administrator may approve and issue a Zoning Permit for construction, which will in-fill the building mass, extending the side yard encroachment:

(1) Provided, the addition will not extend into the required side yard to any greater extent than the existing structure.

(2) The addition will not encroach upon required front and rear yard setbacks.

(3) The additional will not diminish the availability of light and fresh air to a neighboring property.

(4) The addition is found, in its opinion by the Fire Chief, not to constitute a potential hazard.

Prior to issuing a permit, the Zoning Administrator shall consult with the adjoining property owner to determine the extent of the adversity of the impacts described above.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE
FORECLOSURE SALE

TO: MICHAEL J. BORTHS and DARLENE A. BORTHS of Charlevoix, Michigan 49720, and all persons claiming title through and under them

A default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortage, made the 28th day of January, 1987, by Michael J. Borths and Darlene A. Borths, husband and wife, as Mortgagor, to Old Kent Bank of Petoskey, a Michigan banking corporation, of Petoskey, Michigan, as Mortgagee. Said mortgage was recorded on February 12, 1987, in Liber 191 of Mortgages, Pages 313 through 316, in the Office of the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds; and thereafter assigned to Old Kent Bank and Trust Company of Grand Rapids, recorded February 12, 1987 in Liber 191, Page 317; and thereafter assigned back to Old Kent Bank of Petoskey as recorded March 1, 1989 in Liber 207, Page 344, Charlevoix County Records.

There is due and owing on such mortgage as of August 30, 1989, the sum of Forty-four Thousand Four Hundred Sixty and 98-100 ($44,460.98) Dollars, principal; and Two Hundred Ninety-eight and 90-100 (298.90) Dollars, interest. No suit or proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt or any part of the debt secured by said mortgage, and the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative by reason of such default.

NOTICE is hereby given that on September 27, 1989, at 11:00 o'clock a.m., at the street entrance of the Courthouse for the Charlevoix County, Michigan, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder at public sale for the purpose of satisfying the amounts due and unpaid upon said mortgage, the lands and premises mentioned in said mortgage and described as follows, to-wit:

In the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan;

Lot 21, WESTPORT, as recorded in Liber 2 of Plats, Page 211, Charlevoix County Records.

The redemption period will be six (6) months from the time of such sale. The property may be redeemed by paying the amount bid at sale, plus the rate of interest borne by the mortgage note of 9.125 percent, together with any additional advancements made on the property from the date of sale.

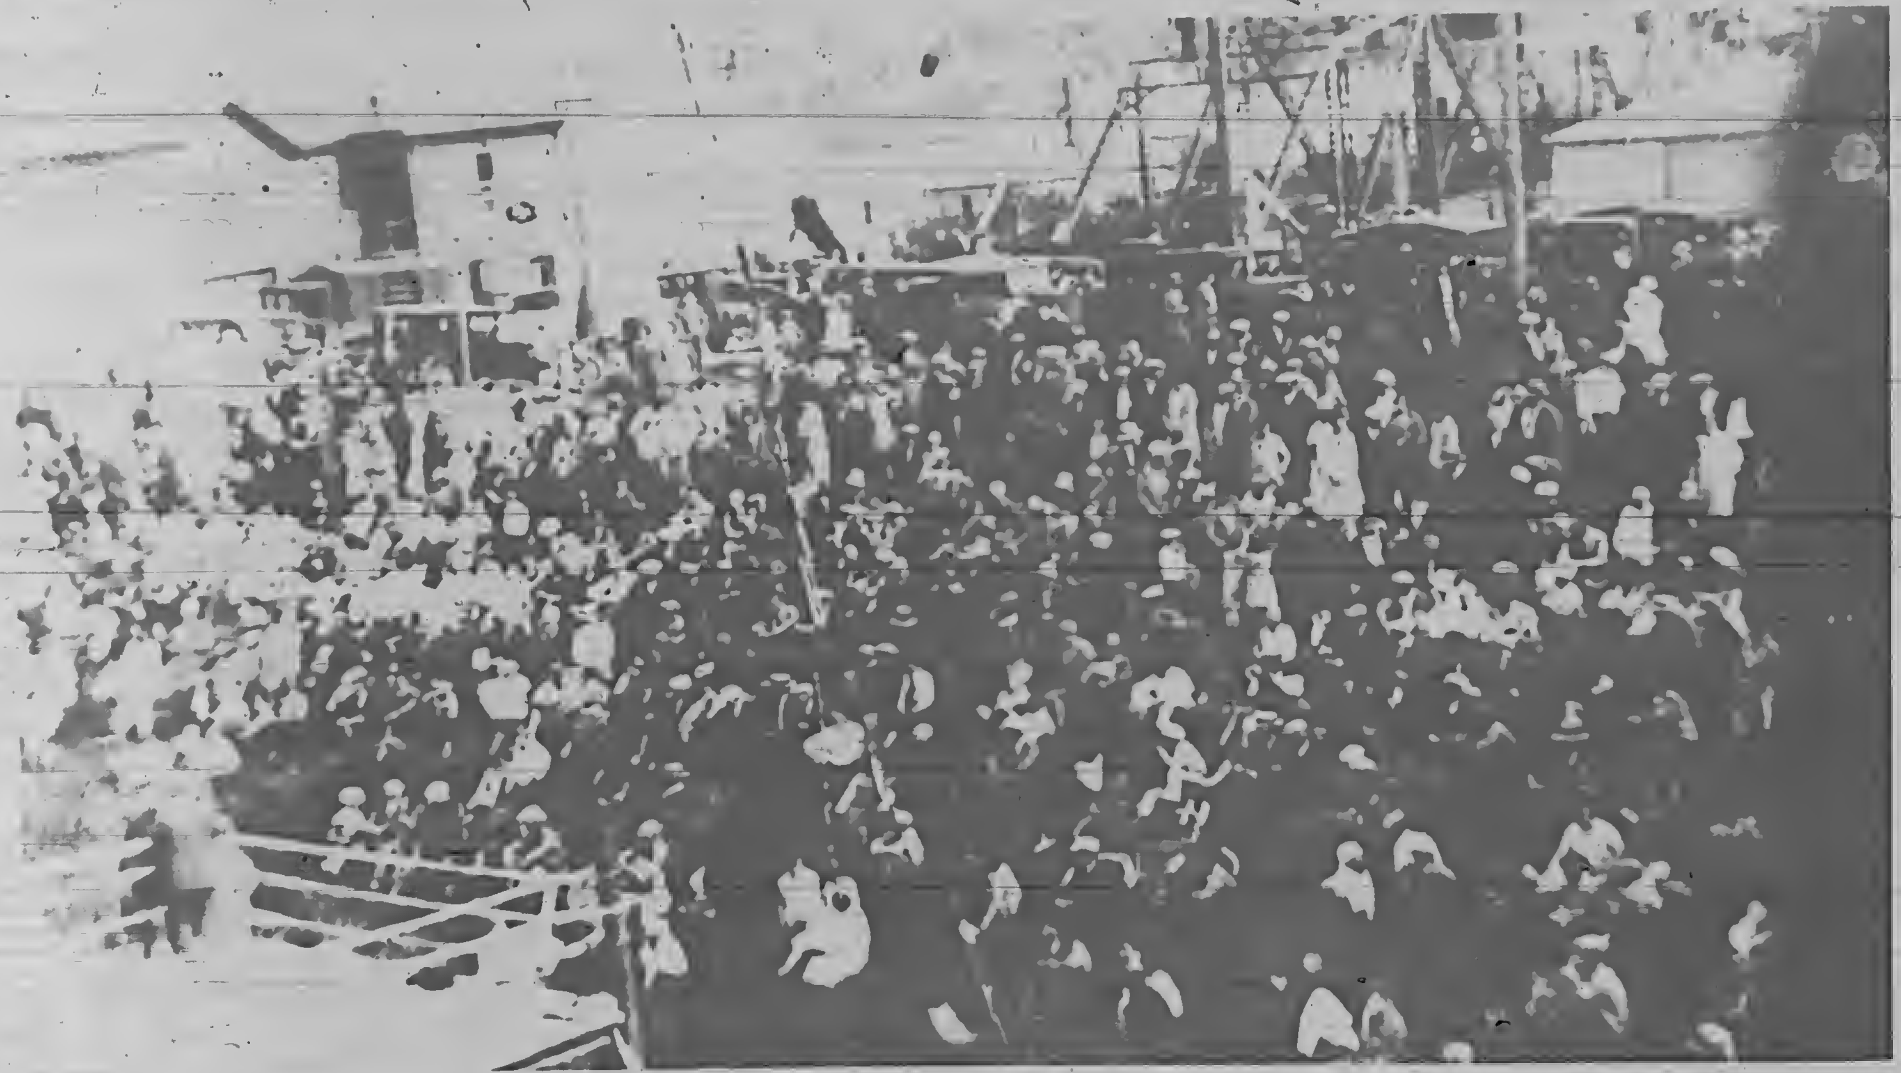
SCRAPBOOK



This picture of a crowd watching a boxing match July 4, 1927 was taken by Sims Baker. The event, which was part of the city's Fourth of July activities, was held on the north side of the Pine River Channel where Pointes North is now located. Notice the old bridge in the upper right hand corner. Baker says the boxers were young local men who received a "buck or so" for winning a match.

A new Rayder: the mascot the myth and the legend

Doubtless it was the knife, a huge and fearful knife, clenched menacingly between his teeth that drew people's eyes to this character swaggering in front of the bleachers at Friday evening's football game.

Some may have noticed the maroon suit coat with tails; peculiar attire for a damp September evening. Others may have been perplexed by the hat, which looked as though it had been plundered from some poor sailing man mercilessly besieged by this character and others of his ilk. But doubtless it was the knife that originally made heads turn.

Who was this marauding cutthroat? Where did he come from? And how did he end up at a Charlevoix High School football game?

A person can only imagine and surmise. Might the following be plausible?

Many years ago a small boy drifted ashore on a remote island somewhere near the Florida Keys. The only survivor of a terrible shipwreck, the boy clung to a piece of floating wreckage tempest-tossed for days until finally blowing ashore.

A band of pirates vacationing on the island discovered the boy. They gave him a choice, join them and become a pirate or be chopped into pieces and fed to the sharks.

Presented in that light, pirating looked like a pretty good career move.

Despite being forced into the profession, the boy, as he grew into a man, became quite proficient at being a pirate. He rose through the ranks of piratedom, first serving as an apprentice pirate, later becoming a journeyman pirate and finally achieving the much sought after status, master pirate.

In spite of his success, this pirate felt his life was still somehow unfulfilled and incomplete.

Although at first glance pirating might appear to be a glamorous profession, a person finds that after they've been at it for a few years it becomes a boring cycle of pillage, plunder, pillage, plunder, bury treasure, dig it up.

So, late one night, by the light of a full moon hanging over the ocean, the pirate climbed into a dinghy, left his pirate ship and rowed off in search of a new and more exciting life.

And the pirate's story has a happy ending. He found a new and exciting life. The next thing he knew, the pirate was the Rayder mascot, rallying fans at school functions and living in Charlevoix, Michigan; North America's excitement capital.

Recently the Rayder mascot took time from his busy

There was someone new roaming the Charlevoix sidelines at Friday evening's football game. The new Rayder mascot will be appearing at home football and basketball games. The accompanying story explains the swashbuckler's background.

TV show segment filmed at Charlevoix home

Has Charlevoix gone Hollywood? No, Hollywood has gone Charlevoix.

This past weekend, a segment for The Home Show was filmed at Virginia Olsen's home at the north end of Michigan Avenue.

The nationally broadcast show offers design and decorative tips to homeowners. Olsen's home is included in a Home Show special feature on ten of the most interesting homes from across the country. Some of the other ten homes are located in: Kennebunkport, Maine; Albuquerque, New Mexico; Baltimore, Maryland; and Oakland, California.

"We're trying to cover as many different areas of the country as possible," said Joel Riser, who directed filming in Charlevoix.

Olsen's home will appear on City looks at water intake problem

City officicals are investigating solutions to an intake problem at the city's water plant. The problem affects the quantity, not the quality, of water the system delivers.

The water treatment plant, located on the shoreline of Lake Michigan just south of the pier and swimming beach, began operation in the spring of 1987. The plant draws water through an intake, filter bed and pipe which projects into the lake.

On certain days when the lake has been rough and city water demand high, the plant has not been able to draw enough water to keep up with demand.

"We're not sure if silt gets on the bed or what, but it's just not allowing us to take in enough water," city manager Mike Wiesner explained.

During some hot, dry days in midsummer the city uses as much as two million gallons of water. On days when there are intake problems, the plant is able to take in only about 1.5 million gallons.

Although these problems have occasionally required intake pumps to be shut down for brief periods at the water plant, the problems have yet to affect homes and businesses.

A total of approximately 1.3 million gallons of water is stored in tanks at the water plant and the water tower. Thus far, when intake problems have occurred, water in the tanks and tower has been able to make up the difference between intake and demand.

So far, the intake problem has only occurred intermittently for short periods of time and then cleared up. Therefore when demand has exceeded intake and required dipping into the tanks and tower capacity, the plant has been able to replenish the tanks when the problem cleared up.

The city wants to correct the intake problem so that doesn't occur.

According to the plant's design, it should be able to process and deliver approximately three million gallons of water a day. The plant was designed and constructed by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) because of contamination in water from wells which formerly supplied Charlevoix's water.

Wiesner said he anticipates the next step toward solving the problem to be a meeting between city, EPA, Department of Natural Resources, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and health department officials will meet to discuss possible solutions.

Wiesner estimated that it will cost roughly $300,000 to fix the intake problem.

schedule to grant an interview with the Charlevoix Courier. The text of that interview follows:

Courier: Do you have a name or are you just the Rayder mascot?

Mascot: I might have one eventually, but right now I don't.

Courier: Where did you come from?

Mascot: I was ordered over the phone and shipped up from Florida. (There's a company there which specializes in costumes and mascots)

Courier: Where did people in Charlevoix get the idea for a mascot?

Mascot: There was a mascot at a Gaylord game that kind of sparked everybody's interest. This was last year.

Courier: How much did it cost to bring you to Charlevoix?

Mascot: $550. It was paid for by donations from the Sports Boosters and high school principal's internal account. (Money in the internal account derives primarily from the revenues from pop machines in the high school.)

Courier: When and where did you make your first appearance?

Mascot: My first appearance was at the Charlevoix Venetian (street) parade. I marched with the high school band.

Courier: And how did people respond?

Mascot: They flipped out. They were hollering at me. Everybody really enjoyed it.

Courier: Where else will you be appearing?

Mascot: At home football and basketball games and possibly at some away games. I may also make some surprise appearances at other school activities. Of course, being surprises, I don't want to mention where they will be.

Courier: With that suit coat and hat, you're obviously a dapper dresser, but doesn't that suit get a little warm?

Mascot: The suit I wear is extremely warm. It'll probably be all right for football games, but basketball games will be warm.

Courier: What is your purpose at the games?

Mascot: To inspire the fans to become more involved in the game and to encourage the cheerleaders to get more pumped up and get the fans involved.

Courier: You must be quite a sports fan.

Mascot: Absolutely. The Charlevoix High School Rayders are the best. We're number 1.

The Home Show became aware of Olsen's home through Carolyn Rands. Rands, who is the assistant to the supervising producer with the show, has spent several summers in Charlevoix. She is the daughter of Robert and Sandra Moers of Dixon Avenue.

for interesting homes in the midwest, she immediately thought of Charlevoix. After doing some checking around, she was directed to the home on Michigan Avenue.

Filming took place Saturday and Sunday. Early Saturday afternoon, Virginia Olsen and local mason Luigi Guidi stood before the camera with Home Show correspondent Kitty Bartholmew explaining how Olsen conceived and designed and Guidi constructed an arched brick gateway.

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Recalling a character from college

He wasn't a tall young man, maybe 5'7" or 5'8". At the time, he was barefoot and would have been bare-chested, but for the peanut butter which he had smeared liberally upon his upper body. He did have on headgear; not a hat, but stereo headphones which weren't plugged into anything.

There was this guy named Darren, who during my junior and senior years lived in the same college dormitory as I did. The first time I met Darren, he was out in the hallway on second floor, wearing a pair of jeans.

When I happened upon Darren, he was racing up and down the dormitory hallway, screaming something indiscernible, headphone cord trailing in the breeze.

This was within the first few weeks of my junior year. It was also in the first few weeks of my employment as a residence hall assistant (R.A.). (For those unfamiliar with what R.A.s are, they're students hired to help the residence hall director maintain order in the dorms.)

I had reported to college early that fall for two or three days of R.A. training. Since this training failed to specifically address what to do upon encountering a semi-clad, peanut butter-smeared, headphone-trailing freshman hollering and galloping in the hallway, my response had to be improvised.

I flagged the young man down and asked, "Who are you?".

He replied, "I'm Darren. Who are you?"

"I'm Scott. I'm the R.A. from third floor. What are you doing?" I was talking fairly loud because I wasn't sure how well he could hear me with those headphones on.

"Nothing," he answered in response to my question.

"Well you're making a lot of noise doing nothing. You're going to have to quiet down."

"No, not yet," Darren said. "It's not dorm quiet hours yet." I guess he figured he'd discovered a loophole in the residence hall handbook.

I said, "Darren, it doesn't matter when quiet hours are. You can't go running and screaming up and down the hallway at any hour of the day."

He looked at me like he was kind of disappointed, then turned and went quietly to his room.

That was by no means the last time myself or one of the other R.A.s had to tell Darren to quiet down.

Across the parking lot from our dormitory, there was a women's dorm. When the weather was warm, Darren took to opening his window and hollering things across the lot at the women; things which were neither nice nor flattering.

Usually, myself or one of the other R.A.s would have to go down and tell Darren to shut up and go to bed.

One night, Darren was hollering out the window and I went down to his room to tell him to cease and desist, but I ended up not saying a word.

We have a lot of football players in our dorm and at that time of year, they were having two-a-day practices. By the time I got down to Darren's room, there were three football players standing in their underwear pounding on Darren's door.

One of these guys was about a 240 pounder who spent so much time in the weight room that he clanked like plates of metal when he walked.

When Darren opened the door, that monster shook his finger in Darren's face. The monster said he had to wake up early the next morning and that if Darren hollered out that window again, he was going to find a monster foot placed where he most assuredly did not wish to find one.

Darren conceded that he was feeling a little tired and it was probably time for him to quiet down and call it a night.

I stood there watching this exchange and never said a word. I looked the situation over and concluded, "Everything seems to be in order here." So I returned to my room.

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

Language from ear to there

A few members of the Clock clan spent several days south of the Mason-Dixon line last week and had an opportunity to savor the English language with all the rough edges removed.

There must be something in the soft air of our southern states that melts brittle consonants and turns clarion clear vowels into cornmeal mush.

Our first night south of the border was in Hancock, Md., a sleepy little ante-bellum town not far from the Breezewood exit of the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

But the language spoken thereabouts is pure southern.

That night after supper I wandered down to the only bar in town to find out what the locals were worried about. Although it was only 9:30 p.m., the barmaid already had given last call. But she consented to draw one more beer for a thirsty stranger.

I took a seat at the bar within earshot of a group of middle-aged men and women seated near the front door. They were talking about the trauma of growing up in today's America and I couldn't help but overhear part of their conversation.

"Ah jist don't know how Ah'd handle being a young person today," drawled a nice looking blonde sipping a gin and tonic. "Thangs were so much different when Ah was growin' up. D'ya know, when Ah was a teenager Ah didn't know the meaning of air freshener."

All conversation along the bar stopped while we pondered the significance of air freshener on the aging process.

Finally a gentleman at the end of the bar spoke up.

"Perhaps Ah have missed somethin'," he apologized, speaking with the same easy accent as the blonde. "But what does air freshener have to do with growing up?"

"Why you silly old thang!" the blonde responded. "Ah didn't say air freshner. Ah said peer pressure."

A ripple of laughter passed down the bar and wafted me back onto the steamy main street of Hancock, Md.

On my way back to the motel I marveled that Southerners sometimes can't understand each other. It's one thing for a Yankee to be puzzled by the intricacies of the Dixie patois; it's quite another to confound your friends and neighbors with your peculiar pronunciation.

Some scholars maintain that the language spoken in the American South is pure English — the same tongue spoken by settlers from England who landed on these shores in the 1600s.

Since then, English has been evolving, not only in Great Britain but in the northern United States. The only place where early English is still spoken is the American South, particularly among folks who settled in the valleys of the Appalachian Mountains and have remained virtually immune to outside influences for hundreds of years.

Canada's French claim the same thing. They say the language they speak is true French, the same language early settlers brought with them from the homeland. They maintain the French spoken in Paris today — the so-called language of diplomacy — is a badly bastardized version of the same tongue.

OUR VISIT to Maryland included a day of deep sea fishing on Chesapeake Bay with our good friend Lee Mincher of Solomons Island.

Our quarry was the elusive blue fish — the same species the eluded President Bush off Kennebunkport, Me., during the first two weeks of his vacation.

We were a little more fortunate. We had scarcely been on the water three hours when a handsome 5-6 lb. blue grabbed one of our lures. He broke water once, about 100 feet behind the boat, and we knew we had a keeper.

The blue finally caught by the president weighed about 10 lbs., but it couldn't have been any tastier than our blue, which Lee fixed for supper that night along with a dozen crabs he trapped off his dock.

Down Maryland way, they call that a shore dinner.

Births increase county population

There have been some changes, but the population of Charlevoix County has not grown much since the 1980 census.

Figures recently released by the State Department of Management and Budget indicate that in eight years, the population of Charlevoix County is up by only 1,300, or 6.73 percent.

There were 2,700 births and 1,700 deaths, which accounted for 1,000 of the population gain, which, when added to an immigration gain of 300, accounts for the 1,300 population increase, bringing the county population up to 21,200.

The population of adjoining Emmet County increased by 1,800, or 7.70 percent. There were 2,900 births and 1,800 deaths, which accounted for 1,100 of the population gain, which, when added to an immigration gain of 700, accounts for the 1,800 population increase, bringing the population of Emmet County up to 24,800.

In adjoining Antrim County, the story is much the same. There was a population increase of 1,500, or 9.05 percent. There were 2,000 births and 1,600 deaths, which accounted for 400 of the population gain which, when added to an immigration gain of 1,100, accounts for the 1,500 population increase, bringing the population of Antrim County up to 17,700.

Statewide, there was a population decrease of 22,000, brought about by a difference of 504,000 births over deaths offset by out-of-state migration of 525,000. The population of Michigan in 1988 was listed at 9,240,000.

It is noted that all census figures are rounded-out to hundreds.

Support cystic fibrosis fight

Dear Editor,

It's September again... Thirty thousand young people in this country have Cystic Fibrosis... a fatal disease with half of its victims not reaching their 21st birthdays.

It's September again... Three children will die each day.

It's September again... Every five hours a child is born with CF.

It's September again... Volunteers throughout Charlevoix are mobilizing to help in the battle against Cystic Fibrosis. We urge all members of our community to join together and support us as we begin our door-to-door campaign. It will run the entire month of September, please give generously.

Camp McSauba closes season

Dear Editor,

Another successful summer has ended at Camp McSauba. The summer was filled with fun and laughter for almost 300 children who attended. Many fond memories include: meeting new friends; building extravagant sandcastles on the shores of Lake Michigan; roasting hot dogs and marshmallows over a fire; hitting a "bullseye" in B.B. Gunnery and Archery; making an Arts and Crafts project; and winning an award on Friday for Special Achievement.

These are but a few of the activities and events which bring smiles to the children's faces as they enjoy a week at Camp McSauba. Many people and organizations are what make it possible for many children to attend camp. In fact, due to many generous organizations in the community, we were able to fund 96 children on a full scholarship to attend Camp McSauba. A special thanks to all organizations that contributed.

Not only were these organizations the reason many children enjoyed a funfilled week at Camp McSauba, but also the patience and hard work of the people who worked there that also ensures that this goal is attained.

The City of Charlevoix itself should get credit for providing such a service to area children at a very moderate cost. We are one of the few communities which offer such a unique summer program for children 5-12 years of age.

Thus, thanks to all of you who help make Camp McSauba a success, year in and year out!

FAMILY

Ranger — Vita

Corinne Stricker Ranger and Peterpaul Lugtu Vita were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, August 12, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix.

The bride, who has been living in San Jose, California, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Ranger of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom, who also lives in San Jose, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgardo A. Vita of Pasadena.

Approximately 150 guests witnessed the double ring rites conducted by Father James Gardner.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. For the occasion she wore a Bianci-designed white silk gown fashioned with a chapel-length train and a bodice of French Alencon lace accented with seed pearls and sequins. The veil was fingertip length and the bride's bouquet was composed of white roses, dendrobrum orchids, stephanotis, ivy, and baby's breath.

Lisa Wiemer Lillelund served as maid of honor, and Laurie Helms, Susan Balter, Joy Ogawa, and Leonor Newman were bridesmaids. They wore two-piece powder blue dresses with white embroidery trim and carried teardrop bouquets of white roses, stephanotis, and baby's breath.

Edgardo Vita, Jr. served as best man, with Jeffrey Olin, Alan Saldinger, Robert Ranger, and William Ranger serving as groomsmen. Arthur Ranger was the usher.

Vivian Vita, sister of the bridegroom, and Arthur Ranger, brother of the bride, offered readings during the ceremony.

Music was provided by guitarist Enrico Hernandez, organist Jeanie Olach, vocalist Nancy MacArthur Smith, and pianist Lisa Ranger.

The bride's parents hosted a reception at Stafford's Bay View Inn. They were assisted by Beth Ranger, Denise Rogers, and Cathleen Felton.

The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at the Weathervane Inn.

Following a wedding trip to Montego Bay, Jamaica, the newlyweds are at home at 4928 North Lawn Court, San Jose. The bridegroom is a graduate of the California Institute of Technology and a senior design engineer for Ortel Communications Corporation. The bride is a graduate of the University of Michigan and received a master's degree in business administration from Golden Gate University. She is employed as a strategic planner for ROLM Systems, Inc.

Garden Club to tour North Point

Charlevoix Area Garden Club members will tour the North Point natural area, guided by Little Traverse Conservancy director Tom Bailey. Garden Club members are to meet for the tour at 1 p.m., Sept. 14 at the corner of Mt. McSauba and Bay Streets.

The Garden Club contributed to the purchase of the North Point area.

Following the tour, the Garden Club will have a business meeting at the home of Esther Bleha. The regular meeting date was changed because of a conflict with a district garden club conference. Hosting the meeting will be Sally Ochs and Susan Peihler.

East Jordan will host blood drive

A Red Cross blood drive will take place in East Jordan from noon to 6 p.m., Sept. 7 at the Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Social Security checks get deadline

On October 1 a new law goes into effect which requires Social Security beneficiaries to cash their Social Security or supplemental security income (SSI) check within one year or the check will be cancelled. At the present time, uncashed Government checks are good indefinitely.

On or after October 1, 1989, all Government checks will carry the legend, "Void After One Year." This means Government checks issued on October 1, 1989 must be cashed by September 30, 1990, or they will also be cancelled.

While the new laws requires Social Security and SSI checks to be cashed within one year, entitlement to payment is not affected. Any claim to replace a Social Security or SSI check must also be made within one year from the date the check was issued.

In the event of the nonreceipt, loss or destruction of a Social Security check, the Petoskey Social Security office should be contacted. Describe the check, state the purpose for which it was issued and give, if possible, its date, amount, check and symbol number.

The U.S. Government, by significantly reducing the timeframe for cashing checks, initiating claims and replacing checks, will greatly enhance the financial management of the Nation's tax resources. Approximately 550 million checks are issued annually by the Federal Government.

Social Security and SSI beneficiaries who have their checks deposited directly into their accounts at financial institutions will not be affected by the new law since it only applies to paper checks. Those who wish to have their Social Security or SSI checks deposited directly into checking or savings accounts can call Social Security to sign up by phone.

Remember that beginning on October 1, 1989, something new will appear on U.S. Government Checks: Void After One Year.

Program planned for newly single

Beginning Experience, a healing program for divorced, widowed, or separated persons, is now accepting reservations for a weekend session September 29, 30 and October 1 at Augustine Center in Conway.

The Beginning Experience is for newly single people of all faiths who want to begin a new life with renewed courage and joy. A divorce, death or separation must have already occurred. Those formerly married and single for years, as well as newly single, will find the weekend rewarding.

Beginning Experience offers an opportunity to reflect on the past and find personal renewal in the present. It is a weekend away from tensions of everyday living, with time to be by yourself and time to share thoughts and feelings with others. There is a single purpose to the weekend – to offer encouragement and support to make a new beginning in relationships with self, others and God.

The weekend is presented by a team of volunteers who are divorced, separated or widowed, and lasts from Friday evening until Sunday afternoon.

For additional information, call 616-941-0147 or 616-943-8664, or write Beginning Experience, P.O. Box 2103, Traverse City, Michigan 49684.

Co-op elects officers

Incumbents Emma Reinbold of Alanson, Fred Foltz of Petoskey and Warner Cheyne of Grayling were re-elected by Top O' Michigan's member-owners to serve another three year term on the board of directors of the company at the August 12 annual meeting.

A record number of ballots, 2595, were cast. Mrs. Reinbold, a homemaker, received the most votes with 1694 followed by Foltz, a dairy farmer, with 1504 votes and Cheyne, an electrician, with 1461 votes. Also collecting votes were Keith Lamkin of Good Hart with 1404 and Alford LaCount of Harbor Springs with 1030. There was a record number of people at the business meeting with over 800 in attendance.

The guest speaker was Jim Hough, veteran writer for 34 years with the Lansing State Journal. Hough has a regular column in Michigan Country Lines, the magazine published for Michigan's electric cooperative members.

After the annual meeting, the board of directors met to elect the officers for 1989-90. The officers are Warner Cheyne, president; Howard Carson, vice-president; Fred Foltz, secretary; and Jack Tanner, treasurer.

CHURCH

Gleneth MacLaughlin

Gleneth (Sears) Maclaughlin, 80, of Okeechobee, Fla., died Aug. 29, 1989, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral services were Friday, Sept. 1, at Stone Funeral Home, Petoskey. Pastor Wilbur Woodhams of the Seventh Day Adventist Church officiated and burial was in Greenwood Cemetery, Petoskey.

The former Gleneth Snyder was born March 8, 1909, in Metamora, Ohio, the daughter of Perry R. and Nora E. (Ashenfelter) Snyder. She moved to Chicago with her family as a young girl and attended school there. In 1934 she moved to Petoskey and on June 30, 1936, she married Edward Sears in Petoskey. The couple resided here and Mr. Sears preceded her in death on Feb. 11, 1974.

Mrs. Maclaughlin had been employed as a saleswoman with J.C. Penney Co. for 17 years, retiring in June, 1972.

On Nov. 1, 1986, she married Stanley Maclaughlin in Okeechobee, Fla. She has made her home there since that time and Mr. Maclaughlin died Aug. 2, 1989.

Mrs. Maclaughlin was a life member of Beulah Chapter No. 63, Order of Eastern Star; a member of the White Shrine and a member of the Ladies of the Elks Lodge No. 2588 in Okeechobee, Fla.

Survivors include: three grandchildren, one brother, Charles Snyder, of Las Vegas, Nev.; two sisters Juanita Burnett and Virginia Burnett, both of Charlevoix; several nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by a son, Dennis Sears, on Feb. 24, 1971.

The family suggests memorials to the Michigan Heart Association.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

This last weekend, like many of you, our family crew will have celebrated the finals rites of passage for summer with a Labor Day weekend get-away. We have been blessed with the use of a lodge near Grand Junction in southern Michigan and that includes fishing privileges on a little lake. This adventure will be much better than our first one there because we know a little more of what to expect.

I tell you this, to confess something to you. It was there on Lester in Grand Junction that I learned one of life's fundamental truths. The pointed end of a row boat goes through the water much better than the flat end. Now before any of you die of laughter, realize that I had never used a row boat before. And when the fellow in an adjacent cabin saw Daddy taking his kids fishing, he thought he'd help Daddy add to his children's delight by letting him use his row boat.

I really hadn't rowed a boat before. So when he set us in it and shoved us off from the shore with the pointed end at the back and the flat end at the front, I just figured that's the way it was meant to be. Fighting a growing breeze and some waves, I quickly figured out that having the pointed end first was the only way we were ever going to get back to shore!

Now I am sparing you some of the more interesting details of my first lesson in seamanship because it's more fun to leave something to your imagination. The overall lesson I hope you will get out of this is much more important.

There are a lot of folks going through life the hard way because they've been rowing with the wrong end of the boat facing forward. David writes in the Psalms "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path." If you aren't using the word of God to guide your life and to point its best side forward, then you are going about things all wrong.

My friend at the lake was well intentioned. He just assumed I knew what I was doing. God knows you, so He doesn't assume. He gives you everything you need in His Word and more to journey through life in the best possible fashion. The choice is yours. Go through life the hard way fighting even your own energies or let the Lord get you pointed in the right direction to where you can get the most out of every day with Him and those you love.

Arthur J. Tache

Arthur J. Tache, father of William Tache of Charlevoix, died Aug. 30, 1989, at Mercy Hospital in Port Huron.

Funeral services were held Saturday, Sept. 2, at St. Mary's Church in St. Clair.

Mr. Tache, 63, was born Nov. 7, 1926, in Plymouth, Mass. He earned a bachelor's degree in engineering from Massachusetts Institute of Technology and moved to Michigan to work for Chrysler Corp. as a metallurgist. He retired from Chrysler in 1988.

He married Norma L. Scotti in 1949 in Plymouth, Mass.

Surviving are: his wife; three sons, Dr. George Tache of Port Huron, William Tache of Charlevoix, and John Tache of Utica; and two daughters Jill Bury of Port Huron and Renee Westrick of St. Clair; nine grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to Mercy Hospital Oncology Unit, 2601 Electric, Port Huron, Mich. 48060.

Women's retreat planned

A women's prayer retreat will take place from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 9 at the Charlevoix Community Church of God Family Camp on Loeb Road. Jalene Jones, from Sears, Michigan will be the guest leader. Her subject will be "Glorifying God."

All area ladies are invited. Ladies attending the retreat are asked to bring a sack lunch.

County discusses Mercer Boulevard rezoning

by PEG OHLE

A request to rezone 2.47 acres of property on Mercer Boulevard in Charlevoix Township from single family R-1 to multiple family R-4 was conditionally recommended by the County Planning Commission last week.

The property in question is owned by James and Marilyn Marshall and consists of three separate parcels across the road from Char-Em School District headquarters and directly north of the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course.

The Charlevoix Township Planning Commission denied the rezoning application on August 16, noting that the area is "predominately R-1", the rezoning would be "spot zoning", and the 30-foot access road was inadequate for the proposed project.

The project proposed for the property is a 32-unit apartment complex financed by the Farmers Home Administration which would be built by Brooks-Dietz Development, Inc. of Grand Rapids. This company has built a 96-unit complex in Boyne City.

The condition upon which the County Planning Commission qualified its recommendation is that the access road be widened to 66 feet, even if the developers have to purchase adjoining footage. The County Planners also suggested that two other pieces of property on the access road be rezoned from R-1 to R-4.

At a public hearing preceding the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission's decision on the rezoning request, the need for apartment-type housing was expressed. While the Marshall property is bordered by some recreational and industrial properties, there are several single-family homes on Mercer Boulevard, and it is not far from Waller Road, where several new single-family homes have recently been built, especially in what is called "Boulder Farm Estates."

The rezoning request now goes to the Charlevoix Township Board, who may or may not follow the advice of their Planning Commission.

Judge attends families conference

Judge Frederick Mulhauser of the Charlevoix-Emmet Probate Court was one of two state judges invited to attend a recent three-day forum sponsored by the Governor's Cabinet Committee on Children and Families.

The judge says he found the conference important to citizens of northern Michigan. "Our children and families face an economic crisis in northern Michigan. The cost of delivering services, such as counseling, foster care, and institutional care is pressing upward at a time when our tax revenues are under enormous pressure," he explained.

Compassionate Friends meet

Compassionate Friends, a support group to help parents deal with the death of a child, will meet at 7 p.m., Sept. 12 at the Community Reformed Church. The topic of the meeting will be "Healthy Ways to Cope When Grieving."

For additional information, phone 547-6124 or 547-6976.

Parents invited to school

Parents of Charlevoix Elementary School kindergarten and first grade students are invited to attend "Parents' Back to School Night" Tuesday, Sept. 12.

Parents of first graders are asked to come to the school from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. while parents of kindergarten students are asked to attend from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Similar nights for parents of third, fourth and fifth grade students will take place Sept. 18 and 19. There will also be time set aside for parents to talk with art, music and physical education teachers.

The schedule for parents is as follows: Parents of second grade students, 7 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., Monday, Sept. 18; Parents wishing to speak with art, music and physical education teachers 6 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 19; Parents of fourth and fifth grade students, 6:30 p.m. to 7 p.m., Sept. 19; Parents of third grade students, 7 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., Sept. 19.

CCC vets to meet

Members of Chapter 129 of the Civilian Conservation Corps Alumni will hold a meeting Wednesday, September 13, at the Snowmobile Club on Mt. Bliss Road in East Jordan.

Lunch will be served at noon and the meeting will start at 1 p.m.

Everyone who served in the CCC's is invited to attend the meeting as well as spouses or other family members.

BUSINESS

Engineer serves as expert witness in court cases

by PEG OHLE

Charles H. Butcher, Jr., a professional engineer, has opened an office in Charlevoix from which to operate his consulting business.

Butcher spent most of his professional life working for manufacturers of automotive and heavy industrial equipment, and now uses his expertise to help others with problems of product safety and liability. He is experienced in testimony, management, regulations, research, and design development, and tells prospective clients he can save them time because he knows "Where to look, What to look for, and Who to interview".

Butcher spent several years working for the Koehring Company, manufacturers of big items such as cranes and power shovels, and while there he gained a reputation among defense attorneys as an expert witness on the safety of such equipment.

In 1982, when Butcher decided to "go out on his own" as a consultant, he was well-known and readily called upon by attorneys. He is able not only to use his engineering background, but to illustrate his testimony by use of scale models of equipment he designs and makes himself, models which look like toys for over-privileged children.

"Every product liability case is different but the end results are often similar," Butcher says of his courtroom experiences. "It is challenging work that draws on my total experience in engineering and manufacturing".

Most of the claims are for malfunctioning of equipment which cause accidents. While Butcher usually represents the equipment manufacturer in court, he has worked for plaintiffs in selected cases.

It is not only in the courtroom that Butcher does his work. He helps manufacturers design develop, research, and engineer products, and even builds and rents models for them.

Butcher grew up in Fenton, He received a bachelor of mechanical engineering degree from the University of Michigan following service in the Air Force as a flight engineer during World War II. He started his engineering career with the Buick Motor Division of General Motors, near his home town, and later worked for the Ford Motor Company and several equipment companies. Butcher was awarded three patents, the subjects of which indicate the diversity of his background:

"Hollow Stem Poppet Valve" (for Buick); "Stabilizer Unit for Mobile Crane Apparatus and the Like" (for Marion Power Shovel Company); and "Guide Roll Assembly for Telescopic Boom" (for Marion Power).

"I came from an automobile family" Butcher says of his interest in things mechanical.

When asked what he does in his spare time, Butcher said he helps the Ward Brothers with their fishing tugs, a job he first undertook as a young man when he spent summers in the Lake Charlevoix area.

One of Butcher's proudest accomplishments, he says, was completing an Air Force contract "on time and on budget."

While living in Delafield, Wisconsin, Butcher served as a member of the Police & Fire Commission and as an Alderman. Asked if he had any political ambitions in Charlevoix, he replied, "Not really, but if I see something that doesn't look right, I'll get involved. I watched them cutting up the sidewalks and laying new ones around town. I didn't want to see the taxpayers, including myself, get taken."

Star ships featured in magazine

The Star of Charlevoix is featured in the September issue of Michigan Living magazine.

The ship's dinner cruise is one of the best ways to view the radiant color that surrounds the area. Rick Sylvain, Detroit Free Press travel editor and author of the article titled, "A Harvest of Bargain Travel" writes, "Maple-lined Lake Charlevoix is radiant in fall and a boat cruise aboard the Star is an ideal way to take in the leafy panorama."

The cruise departs Round Lake in Charlevoix, travels to the south arm of the lake and returns to Oyster Bay.

Michigan Living, the official publication of AAA Michigan, is circulated monthly into the homes of its 1.5 million members.

HIGH SCHOOL COMPLETION PROGRAM

The schedule below lists the classes which are being offered each night beginning the week of Sept. 18-21 and continuing for 17 weeks. These classes are FREE to those 18 or older who do not have their high school diploma or those under 20 who have their diploma. Any others are welcome in these classes for a fee of $25. Upon successful completion of each class you will be given 1/2 credit toward the credits needed for your diploma. If you have already completed a number of credits, call us so we can find out how many classes you should take to complete your work. Age does not matter; an older person may be given credits for life experiences, military service, or G.E.D. tests that have been taken. You may be surprised at how close you are to that diploma ... so call and find out. The phone number to call to enroll or inquire about your situation is 547-3222.

SPORTS

Football team wins opening game 12-6

Behind a strong second half rushing attack, Charlevoix's varsity football team opened the season with a 12-6 win over visiting Lake City Friday evening.

Penalties and fumbles prevented the Rayders from winning by a larger margin. Early in the second quarter, the Rayders had a long run off a fake punt called back because of a penalty. The Rayders also fumbled the ball away twice inside Lake City's 30 yard line.

Lake City scored in the first quarter on a 94 yard run. Due to fumbles and penalties, the Rayder defenders spent much of the second quarter backed deep into their own territory. Brian Livingston and James Corwin each batted away Lake City passes that otherwise could have been scoring plays.

In the second half, Charlevoix took the game to Lake City. The Rayder offensive line opened holes which the backs took advantage of for several long runs.

Lake City attempted to stop the Rayder running attack by blitzing its linebackers. That was foiled when quarterback Greg Lewis connected on some short passes to keep the Lake City linebackers playing honest.

Although Charlevoix moved the ball well throughout the second half, they didn't score until there was 1:32 left in the third quarter.

Livingston scored the Rayders first touchdown of the season on a two-yard run. The kick for the extra point missed, wide to the right.

Charlevoix continued moving the ball well in the fourth quarter. Lewis capped off a long drive on a half-yard quarterback sneak. Again, the extra point attempt failed.

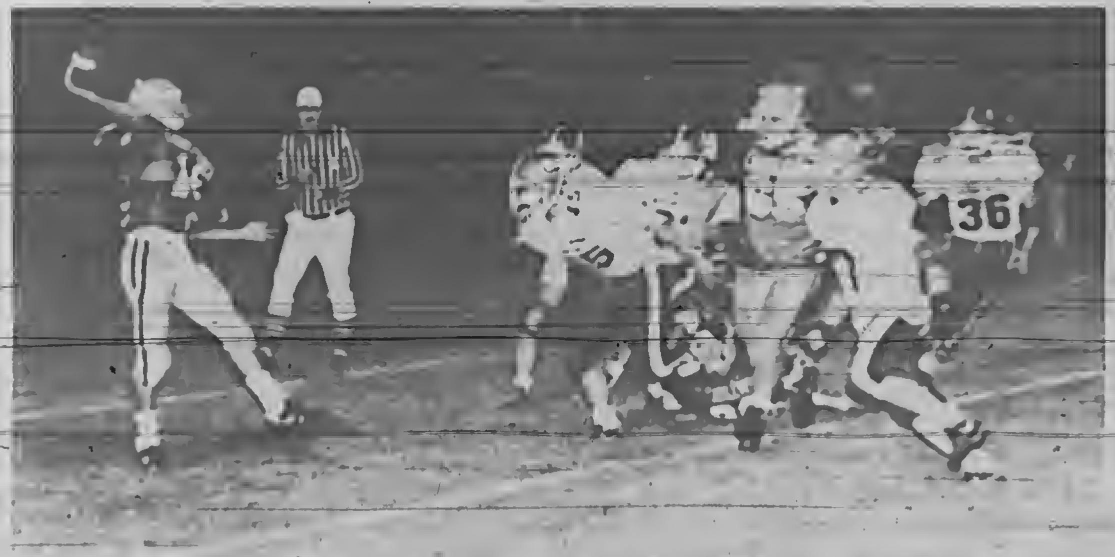
Following the touchdown, Lewis was pressed into service as a defensive back when one of the Rayders starting defensive backs went out with an injury. Moments later as Lake City attempted a final drive, Lewis found himself in the right place at the right time when the Lake City quarterback put up a pass that floated like a balloon and drifted right into Lewis' arms.

Charlevoix gained 312 yards rushing in the game. Livingston had 125 yards, Jason Corwin 120 and James Corwin 71.

Linebacker Patt Elliott led the defense with eight solo tackles and six assists. Scott Campbell had nine solo tackles and one assist.

KIPKE FIELD

Despite the Lake City runner's reluctance to cooperate in the process, Brian Livingston (20) moves in for a tackle.



Charlevoix quarterback Greg Lewis prepares to loft a short pass over the Lake City defense during the second half of the Rayder's season opener.

Girls lose to Harbor

Charlevoix's varsity girls basketball team scored well and hung tough early, but faded in the second half losing to Harbor Springs 48-35 last Thursday night in the season opener for both teams.

Baskets for both teams were few and far between in the first quarter, with Harbor Springs closing out the quarter with an 8-4 lead.

Prior to the season, Rayder coach Stan Martin indicated that he wanted more of an uptempo game from his team this year. In the second quarter, he got his wish.

Charlevoix center Melissa Boss began asserting herself and scoring under the basket. In the second quarter the Rayders outscored the Rams 19-18.

The half closed with Harbor Springs clinging to a 26-23 lead.

In the third quarter, the Rayder fortunes took a dramatic turn for the worse and Harbor Springs put away the game. The Rams packed in their defense to shut down Boss. That left the Rayders open for shots from the perimeter, but they couldn't get them to fall.

Charlevoix scored but three points in the third quarter and went into the fourth trailing 39-26. They were unable to overcome that deficit.

Boss led Charlevoix with 13 points. Sandy Fershee contributed eight and Paula Pittman seven.

Charlevoix won the junior varsity game 48-35 as Gina Webster led the Rayders with 22 points.

Tuesday, Sept. 12 Charlevoix will travel to Gaylord.

Yachting Notes

by A. NONY MOUSE

The Summer of '89, 'twas a very good year! Hank, sailing my old Bandit, took just about every series he sailed in. Luckily, he chose not to sail Red Fox or Irish Cup, or there might be a few less of us displaying new first place flags. The P-26's had their usual great competition, at least up to Red Fox, where those top names seem to be missing from the honors list. The J 22's had fun on many more days than most of the others with their Thursday night series and other special events (is it true? Round Lake Races 'til Christmas?) but didn't really get a full fleet out for most of the summer. JAM Fleet seems to be a mixture of those that know the rules and those that need a bit of book work – fun, but too many incidents. I've enjoyed writing all about it, but I'm also happy that the old mouse can now rest easy without that weekly deadline.

The CYC Triangle started five divisions: I, a Jib and Main fleet; II, the smaller yacht (except trailerable); III, a new "Arrive on a Trailer" Fleet; IV, the middle range yachts and V, the Big Machines!

It was I: Shoo Fly, Flash and Mi-Joy, the JAM Fleet winners.

II: Bandit, Blazen III and Cygnus – a 525 and 2 P-26's.

III: II Marvelous, Hussy and Coal Pie Express – the J 24's.

IV: Spike, Mint Julip and Reckless – can't forget J Boats.

V: Gotcha, Traveller, Elusion – yet another J Boat!

Red Fox Regatta started out with a great Saturday 20 plus mile race but ended in frustration with a shortened 8.7 mile Sunday race that took the first boat over five hours to finish! When it was all over..

Division 1, the "slower" (higher rated) Jib and Main Fleet; Stalworth (Ow Wow!!!), Cabaret and Maureen in 1st, 2nd and 3rd.

Division 2, the other (lower rated) Jib and Main Fleet: Flash, Maritime, Bald Eagle (a hollow victory, you can bank on it!).

Division 3, PHRF almost all but the fastest ratings (Why????) Merry Hell, Spar Wars, Mint Julip and all the P-26's, etc.

Division 4, J-24's, S2 7.9's and ? (on trailers?): II Marvelous, Coal Pile Express and Night Moves.

Division 5, PHRF fast, but not quite the fastest, ratings???: Apprentice, Top Gun and Spike.

Division 6, PHRF fastest few (keep them away from us little guys?): Traveller, Lionheart and Attitute.

Division 7, just J 22's: Wing Nut, Minors in Possession, Assault.

Mouse's Comment... Used to be that all the Red Fox Spinnaker Fleets raced against each other for Overall Honors with the dividing lines set so as to provide roughly equal fleet sizes (except where such a line would separate a group of similar yachts). Let's go back to that concept for Red Fox as Lake Charlevoix's sheltered waters helps reduce the large wave effect on smaller yachts. Time-on-time is already proven to be a great equalizer and also should be adopted. Daily point scores should be weighted by actual course miles that day (this also breaks ties). One design starts should NOT be included in this great annual event, unless the fleet dividing lines naturally cause it to happen. Even then they should race PHRF rules and participate in Overall.

Now it's time for the other authors; so this is...

...the End of this Mouse's Tale.

9th SUPER CLASSIC

Michigan State University football coach George Perles spoke to several local golfers following a recent tournament which raised money for a heart machine for the city ambulance.

Perles speaks to local golfers

The 9th Super Classic Golf Tournament was played Aug. 28 at the Belvedere Golf Club and attracted 72 guests for the 18 hole four-man scramble.

First place was captured by the team of Ken Judd, Joe Beaudoin, Nick DeYoung and Mike Moore - all of Charlevoix. Their score was 12 under par, 60. Larry White, Ron Conners, Guy Swanson and Jack Sutherland were second at 61.

Tournament director Bill Supernaw presented a $500 check from the golfers to Patty Sitzema of Operation Heart-Start which is raising money to further equip Charlevoix's two emergency medical vehicles.

A surprise guest speaker at the Grey Gables Inn banquet following the tournament was Michigan State Football Coach George Perles. His appearance was arranged by Jon Runquist and Jim Vanderberg, Charlevoix area businessmen and Spartan sports boosters.

Tournament arrangements were handled by Supernaw, Tom LaBlance, Joe Etienne and Sam Supernaw.

LIKE CHILDREN? Up to a challenge? The Professional Parenting Program is looking for couples who care about children and their families, and are willing to take a troubled child into their home. We provide paid training, extensive support services and monthly income for qualified couples. Professional parenting families can receive between $550 to $700 per month to provide a home for a child. The Professional Parenting Program will work with you to decide if this would be a good decision for your family. If you like children and have good skills with young people or feel you could develop such skills with our help, we would like to talk with you. For application information contact: The Professional Parenting Program, 347-6701.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE
FORECLOSURE SALE

TO: ALLEN L. MUMA of Manton, Michigan 49663, and CHERYL R. MUMA of Charlevoix, Michigan, and all persons claiming title through and under them

A default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, made the 20th day of October, 1986, by Allen L. Muma and Cheryl R. Muma, husband and wife, as Mortgagor, to Old Kent Bank of Petoskey, a Michigan banking corporation, of Petoskey, Michigan, as Mortgagee. Said mortgage was recorded on November 20, 1986, in Liber 189 of Mortgages, Pages 481 through 484, in the Office of the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds; and thereafter assigned to Old Kent Bank and Trust Company of Grand Rapids, recorded November 20, 1986 in Liber 189, Page 481; and thereafter assigned back to Old Kent Bank of Petoskey as recorded February 10, 1987 in Liber 191, Page 241, Charlevoix County Records.

There is due and owning on such mortgage as of August 30, 1989, the sum of Thirty Thousand Eight Hundred Sixty-two and 42-100 ($30,862.42) Dollars, principal; and One Thousand Three Hundred One and 49-100 ($1,301.49) Dollars, interest. No suit or proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt or any part of the debt secured by said mortgage, and the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative by reason of such default.

NOTICE is hereby given that on September 27, 1989, at 10:00 o'clock a.m., at the street entrance of the Courthouse for Charlevoix County, Michigan, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder at public sale for the purpose of satisfying the amounts due and unpaid upon said mortgage, the lands and premises mentioned in said mortgage and described as follows, to-wit:

In the Township of Norwood, Charlevoix County, Michigan;

Commencing on the East and West ¼ line of Section 17, Town 33 North, Range 8 West, 1821.5 feet East of the West ¼ corner of said section; thence North perpendicular to said East and West ¼ line, 545. feet to the point of beginning of this description; thence continuing North perpendicular to said ¼ line 545 feet; thence East parallel with said ¼ line to the North and South ¼ line of said section; thence North along said North and South ¼ line to the North ¼ corner of said section; thence West along the North line of said section to the East line of the West 360 feet of the East ½ of the Northwest ¼ of said section; thence South parallel with the West ⅛th line of said section to a point 545 feet North of the East and West ¼ line of said section; thence East parallel with said ¼ line to the point of beginning; being a part of the East ½ of the Northwest ¼ of Section 17, Town 33 North, Range 8 West; subject to an easement over the West 66 feet of the East 960 feet of the Southeast ¼ of the Northwest ¼ of Section 17, Town 33 North, Range 8 West.

The redemption period will be one (1) year from the time of such sale. The property may be redeemed by paying the amount bid at sale, plus the rate of interst borne by the mortgage note of 9.875 percent, together with any additional advancements made on the property from the date of sale.

ORDER TO ANSWER

On the 16th day of August, 1989, an action was filed by ARCHIE R. KLEIN and BETTY E. KLEIN, Plaintiffs, against the above named Defendant, in the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, to quiet title to real property situated in the Township of Eveline, County of Charlevoix, Michigan, and more specifically indentified as follows:

Commencing at a point on the South eighth line of Sec. 33, T33N, R6W, 431.3 feet East of the South eighth post on the West line of Sec. 33; thence North, parallel with the West line of said section, 749.6 feet to a concrete monument at the Southerly corner common to Lots 11 and 12 of the unrecorded plat of Gaza Beach; thence South 53 degrees 34' East along the Southerly line of said plat 291.8 feet; thence continuing along the Southerly line of said plat South 49 degrees 56' East 153.6 feet to the Southwesterly corner of Lot 19 of the unrecorded plat of Gaza Beach; thence South 17 degrees 26' West on the Westerly line of Lot 19, if extended Southerly, to a concrete monument; thence South 88 degrees 29' East 197.85 feet to a concrete monument; thence North, parallel with the East line of Government Lot 1, 318.6 feet to a concrete monument on the Southwesterly line of County Road, being the point of beginning of this description; thence continuing North, parallel with said East government lot line, to the shore of Lake Charlevoix; thence southeasterly along said shore to a point North 72 degrees 34' West 100 feet from the East line of Government Lot 1 of said Sec. 33; thence South, parallel with said East line of said Government Lot 1, to the Southerwesterly line of said County Road; thence along said County Road North 72 degrees 34' West to the point of beginning; being a part of Government Lot 1, Sec. 33, T33N, R6W.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the Defendant above named, and any heirs, successors, assigns, or others claiming thereunder, shall answer or take such other action as may be permitted by law on or before OCTOBER 4, 1989. Failure to comply with this order will result in a judgment by default against Defendant for the relief demanded in the complaint.

PLEASE NOTE that a hearing will be held on OCTOBER 9, 1989 at 1:30 p.m. in the Circuit Courtroom of the Charlevoix County Building in Charlevoix, Michigan, in connection with this matter.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE
FORECLOSURE SALE

TO: MICHAEL J. BORTHS and DARLENE A. BORTHS of Charlevoix, Michigan 49720, and all persons claiming title through and under them

A default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortage, made the 28th day of January, 1987, by Michael J. Borths and Darlene A. Borths, husband and wife, as Mortgagor, to Old Kent Bank of Petoskey, a Michigan banking corporation, of Petoskey, Michigan, as Mortgagee. Said mortgage was recorded on February 12, 1987, in Liber 191 of Mortgages, Pages 313 through 316, in the Office of the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds; and thereafter assigned to Old Kent Bank and Trust Company of Grand Rapids, recorded February 12, 1987 in Liber 191, Page 317; and thereafter assigned back to Old Kent Bank of Petoskey as recorded March 1, 1989 in Liber 207, Page 344, Charlevoix County Records.

There is due and owing on such mortgage as of August 30, 1989, the sum of Forty-four Thousand Four Hundred Sixty and 98-100 ($44,460.98) Dollars, principal; and Two Hundred Ninety-eight and 90-100 (298.90) Dollars, interest. No suit or proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt or any part of the debt secured by said mortgage, and the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative by reason of such default.

NOTICE is hereby given that on September 27, 1989, at 11:00 o'clock a.m., at the street entrance of the Courthouse for the Charlevoix County, Michigan, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder at public sale for the purpose of satisfying the amounts due and unpaid upon said mortgage, the lands and premises mentioned in said mortgage and described as follows, to-wit:

In the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan;

Lot 21, WESTPORT, as recorded in Liber 2 of Plats, Page 211, Charlevoix County Records.

The redemption period will be six (6) months from the time of such sale. The property may be redeemed by paying the amount bid at sale, plus the rate of interest borne by the mortgage note of 9.125 percent, together with any additional advancements made on the property from the date of sale.

Preparations begin for this year's CROP walk

The Church World Service-CROP Walk is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 16. Walkers will start from Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan completing their walk at the Ironton Congregational Church. Walkers from Charlevoix will meet at the high school at 9 a.m.

Michigan Church World Service-CROP had the most successful fund raising year in its 41-year history with a total income of $1,508,066 for 1988. The 1988 total is the fourth consecutive million-dollar-plus year for Michigan Church World Service, and the third successive year the Michigan region has led the nation in income.

Community hunger agencies in Michigan received $260,389 in funds designated by the community CROP Hunger Walks. Community hunger agencies receiving major designated funding include: food banks, Salvation Army, FISH, community gardens, Community Food Depots of St. vincent de Paul, and Meals-for-Shut-ins, as well as church food pantries serving the public.

One hundred and seven local volunteer Hunger Walks throughout Michigan resulted in the record income of $1,228,414 in 1988. The 1988 Walks organized by local volunteers had 25,402 participants and averaged $48.79 per walker.

The largest community CROP Hunger Walk in Michigan for the sixth consecutive year, was Holland with an all-time high income of $112,181. The Walks in nine southern communities had income increases of more than $5,000. There were also seven new Community Walks in 1988. Additional community event incomes is received from: Fasts, Canvasses, a marathon run and the Mackinac Bridge Walk participants.

Twenty-five percent of the money raised will be returned to the community. Last year $1508.75 was returned to be divided among the Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City food pantries.

People in Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan are invited to become a participant in this effort to alleviate world hunger by joining the CROP Walk on Sept. 16. Walkers and sponsored are needed for this event. Contact your church or call 547-9515 to transform your steps into food and be a part of the CROP Walk.

Sr. Citizen bowling starts

The Charlevoix Senior Citizen's Bowling League starts Thursday, September 7, at the Paul Bunyan Lanes on U. S. 31 South in Charlevoix.

BRAKE PRICES?

UNTIL THEY PULL THE WHEELS, THEY'RE PULLING YOUR LEG.

Think about it. How do some brake places know what your next job'll cost if they've never seen your brakes to begin with? Answer: they don't.

Fact is, there's no way anyone can figure out exactly what the price will be. There are just too many possibilities.

That's why at Midas, we pull all four wheels before every brake job. To get inside your brakes. To inspect them. To positively determine what's gone wrong. From a nine dollar can of fluid to a new master cylinder.

And when we're finished, we'll give you a pinpoint estimate of the entire job. With a price that won't go up when the job's done. That's our promise to you.

So when it comes time to pay, you'll have a leg to stand on.

Council opposes pavilion in park

Prefer fine arts center elsewhere

Rather than a band pavilion in East Park, city councilmen favor a pond and small platform in East Park and a fine arts center elsewhere in the community. Councilmen indicated this preferance by consensus at Monday evening's council work session.

Earlier this year, the council voted in support of a band pavilion in East Park. At that time, the pavilion carried an estimated construction cost of $186,500. However bids for construction opened in late July indicated it would cost $285,000 to construct the proposed pavilion.

Bandshell committee cochairman Gary Stutzman reviewed the project cost and funds available Monday evening.

Currently there is approximately $110,000 available for the project. Of that money, $40,000 is from a state grant, which will be awarded when construction begins. Fundraising has generated about $30,000. Various city funds contributed to the project account for the other $40,000.

That leaves the project $185,000 short.

The proposed project includes not only a fish pond and performance facility, but also public restrooms and an area to house a city electric transformer.

At Monday evening's meeting, Stutzman suggested that the needed funds (i.e. $185,000) come from the following sources:

-$10,000 from the city electrical fund to pay for the transformer.

-$15,000 be subtracted from the project cost by eliminating a sound system. (The bandshell committee would then attempt to raise money for the sound system after the pavilion was in place.)

-$86,000 of city Downtown Development Authority (DDA) funds be used for the pavilion.

-$75,000 be generated through continued fundraising efforts by the bandshell committee.

Councilman Butch Russell said he had a problem with the city using DDA funds for a band pavilion in East Park.

Councilman Bill Haggard said he did not have a problem with DDA money being used on the project and noted that the council has set aside DDA money for bathrooms somewhere in the downtown area.

Councilman Earl Muma suggested building a fine arts center elsewhere in the community.

"For the amount of money we're going to spend down there, I'd like to see a building that could be utilized 12 months out of the year instead of three months," he said.

Mayor Gary Probert noted that there is a problem with unstable soils at the East Park site and said that in a different location the city might get more building for the same amount of money.

Muma and councilman Ken Whitley both noted that they would like to do something in the park. They suggested a fish Fishing has been improving in the area both out in the lake and along the shoreline. Nicholas Paul Pizzuro, 5, of Charlevoix recently showed Richard Rankl of Midland some of the prime fishing spots off of Charlevoix's north pier.

Rayders beat East Jordan

Charlevoix's varsity football team improved its record to 2-0 Friday evening with a 34-0 win over East Jordan. Jason Parrish (87), Pat Elliott (66) and the rest of Charlevoix's defense shut down East Jordan's offense.

Planning commission recommends denial of rezoning request

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix Planning Commission Monday night turned thumbs down on a rezoning request by Lester Turner of East Lansing and Harbor Springs that would have made possible a large condominium development on the north side.

Members of the Planning Commission as well as persons from the public hearing audience cited the impact of the development on city sewers and utilities, increased traffic in residential neighborhood, changing a single family neighborhood, and the questions of the development not conforming with the city zoning ordinance.

City Planner, Gerry Harsch, stated that Turner had, in fact, met with minimal zoning ordinance requirements, but the planning commission felt they need more definitive engineering plans before they could approve the project.

Eventually, a motion was made to table the rezoning request until more information is available. However, Turner said he would prefer that the request be approved or denied. A denial motion was then made and passed.

The development in question is planned for 13.1 acres in the City of Charlevoix and 3.5 acres in Charlevoix Township on the south side of Highway U.S. 31 west of Mercer Boulevard, owned by Oscar and Margaret Stroud.

Turner presented his plans for a 157-unit apartment complex which would consist of 37 separate buildings containing 99 two-bedroom units and 58 three-bedroom units.

One-hundred and twenty-nine units are planned for the property within Charlevoix City limits, for an average density of 9.3 units per acre, and 28 units are planned for Charlevoix Township, for an average density of eight units per acre.

There are provisions for parking 422 cars, 64 in garages and 358 in uncovered areas.

The wooded areas of the property on the hillside between the highway and the railroad tracks are indicated on the site plan as being preserved, and the corner lot at Mercer Boulevard and the highway now occupied by the Wayside Inn is indicated as the location of two buildings surrounded by lawns.

Charlevoix Township rezoned the Stroud property under its jurisdiction to R-4 on July 19, but the township has not yet been asked to act upon the site plan.

pond, a performing platform and possibly a gazebo.

Whitley and councilman Butch Russell also spoke favorably of constructing some type of fine arts center somewhere other than in East Park.

At the end of the discussion, Stutzman indicated he isn't sure what direction the bandshell committee should take from here.

"I'm confused. I'm totally dismayed," he said.

Probert attempted to summarize the council's position. He said council consensus seems to favor looking at money for an arts center in a location other than East Park while putting a fish pond and performance platform back in East Park.

Senior citizens plan several activities

by PEG OHLE

Activities at the Charlevoix Senior Center are under way for the fall and winter season.

On the first Tuesday of the month, at 1:30 p.m., there will be bridge and other card games. Interested persons are encouraged to make up a table, come alone, or bring along a friend or two. There will be a small charge for each player to cover the cost of first and booby prizes.

On the third Thursday of each month, interested senior citizens will gather for dinner at a selected restaurant. They receive group prices and have plenty of time to socialize. On September 21, they will eat at the Ellsworth Country Kitchen at 5:30 p.m. All interested senior citizens are welcome to join the group.

On the fourth Sunday of each month, there will be a special Sunday dinner, from noon to 2 p.m., at the East Jordan Senior Center. All senior citizens in the area are welcome. The next dinner will be served September 24.

Among the upcoming special events is a "Pink Tea," scheduled for Tuesday, September 26, at the Charlevoix Senior Center, to which senior citizens from Emmet and Antrim Counties will also be invited. The special entertainment this day will be the "Silly Song Review," featuring "The Merry Musical Singers" from East Jordan, the "Boyne City Kitchen Kuties," the "Pine River Gang," the "Singin' Swingin' Senior Saints" from Charlevoix, and the music group from the Petoskey Friendship Center.

The Charlevoix Senior Center's Bazaar and Luncheon will be held November 18, and a trip to Detroit in December to see the "Red Skelton Show" is planned.

Charlevoix Senior Center members had hoped to be in their new home in the old Charlevoix Township Hall on Norwood Road by now, but their request for grant money with which to renovate the building was turned down. Since that time, they have been assured of some help, and hope that by the middle of November they will know how much money they will have to spend, looking forward to getting into their new home by next spring. Senior Center members have raised almost $13,000 toward the building fund by their own efforts. This money will be used as the need arises.

The Charlevoix Senior Center is also still serving daily lunches provided by the Commission on Aging.

Construction crews are nearing completion of work on Charlevoix's south pier.

Bridge Street sidewalk work begins

Construction of new sidewalks, curbs and related items in the Bridge Street business district is scheduled to begin Sept. 18.

At the Sept. 5 city council meeting, councilmen awarded a bid of $634,379 to Manthei Development Corp.

City and Manthei officials will meet for a preconstruction discussion Sept. 14. Merchants and owners of property in the construction zone will be invited to an informational meeting the evening of Sept. 14.

At one time, new street lights were included in the planned work. Last month, despite pleas from several downtown business people, councilmen removed street lights from the plans.

Although the council has not changed its position on the street lights, at the Sept. 5 meeting councilmen voted to allow electrical conduit for street lights to be added to the sidewalk work.

Installing the conduit with the new sidewalks means that should the council change its mind about the lights in the future for some reason, new lights could be installed without having to tear up the sidewalks.

The street light conduit is expected to add $4,000 to $6,000 to the $634,000 project.

Downtown Development Authority (DDA) funds will pay for the project.

City manager Mike Wiesner suggested that electric fund money might be used to pay for two parts of the project involving electrical conduits and vaults. According to the bid, those two items cost a total of $97,176.

Council chose not to have electrical funds pay for that portion of the work and instead will have DDA money fund the entire project.

The project will be completed in phases. This fall and next spring, construction will be initiated and completed on the west side of Bridge Street and on side streets as far back as the alley between Bridge and State Streets. Work on the east side of Bridge Street will be completed next fall.

Although the primary purpose of the project is replacing the sidewalks, other work will also be done. That work includes replacing some old lead water pipes with copper, storm sewer renovation, a watering system for trees and installing conduit for a soundsystem and Christmas lighting.

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Bee gone from my vehicle

As I washed my truck this past weekend, a bee kept buzzing around.

It apparently wanted to land, and stay, on the hood of the truck. Why, I do not know.

Since my washing the truck disturbed the bee, it responded in kind and flew up and started buzzing around to disturb me.

I stepped back and vainly fanned my sponge at it a couple of times. That didn't have much effect so I picked up the hose and tried to spray the bee out of the air. That didn't work either. You've got to have just the right caliber garden hose if you hope to gun down a bee on the wing. And just like roughed grouse, you've got to swing and lead them.

After the bee had driven me back a suitable distance, it returned to the hood of the truck.

I wasn't about to concede my truck to a bee. My wife's car maybe, but not my truck. I need that truck. It's got four-wheel drive and hunting season's coming up.

So I dipped my sponge in the bucket and sloshed soapy water on the bee. The soapy water immobilized him. Grounded, he was a sitting duck, or in this case a sitting bee, as I moved in for the kill. I took the hose and sprayed him off the hood of the truck to the ground.

Just think how it would be to be a bee and get washed off a truck hood with a full-blast spray from a garden hose. It'd be comparable to a person standing in the middle of a shopping mall parking lot and suddenly getting hit by a tidal wave and washed out into the street.

At the very least it would wrinkle your clothes and ruin your day. At worst it might prove fatal.

After washing the bee off of the truck, I walked over and looked at him.

He was lying on the ground, pretty much motionless. I'm not sure if he was dead or alive, but he didn't look well.

I've taken some first aid courses. If I were to come upon a person lying motionless on the ground, I could tell if he were dead or alive.

The way to do this is to check for respiration and a pulse. If a person is breathing and his heart is beating, chances are he's alive.

But sometimes an unconscious person's breathing can be very shallow and you can't tell just by looking at them whether or not they're breathing. According to the first aid lessons I took, if this is the case, you can put your eye near the victim's mouth and nose. Supposedly, your eye is sensitive enough to be able to tell if the victim is inhaling or exhaling.

I didn't figure this technique would work with a wet bee so I didn't try it. I also passed up putting two fingers on the bee's neck to see if I could locate a pulse.

I watched the bee for a few seconds. His little chest may have been rising and falling. I can't be sure. Either way, figuring he might have a chance for recovery, I didn't stomp on him.

This Monday morning, when I got in the truck to go to work, there was a bee on the hood. It looked a lot like the bee I'd seen before, but not exactly like it. As I looked at it through the windshield of the truck, I couldn't be sure if it was a different bee entirely or the same bee wearing its hair different.

But as I drove to work and the bee continued clinging to the hood, I grew more convinced that it was the same bee. I could just tell by the look in his eyes.

Why this bee is so fiercely determined to spend life on the hood of my truck, I do not know. But if this keeps up, he will be spending his death on that truck. I'm going to get some epoxy glue and make a hood ornament out of him.

Letters to the Editor:

Grange says thanks

Dear Editor,

We, the members of Barnard Grange, wish to express our gratitude to those who gave of their time, effort and goods to make our auction sale on Saturday, September 9, a tremendous success.

Our goal was to raise enough money from this sale in order to purchase and install a new furnace for the grange hall.

Even though it turned out to be a rainy cool day, through the determination and fine help of everyone involved, we met our goal with flying colors.

Once again we offer you a special thank you.

Deer population rebounds

A major tourist attraction in the Charlevoix-Petoskey area is no more.

For several weeks this summer, drivers on U.S. 31 have slowed and sometimes stopped in the vicinity of the former drive-in theater to watch two spotted fawns grazing along the road shoulder.

Many of them got out of their cars to take pictures of the obliging little animals as they nibbled clover and gamboled along the right of way. Sometimes they would kick up their heels and chase each other in circles.

Real show-stoppers, these two.

Their mother must have brought them up right, because I never saw them on the highway.

Until last week.

I was driving from Charlevoix to Petoskey early one morning when I noticed a car parked on the westbound shoulder. Next to it in the road lay one of the fawns — dead.

The other fawn was nowhere to be seen.

I wonder if it misses its little playmate?

THANKS TO A series of mild winters, the deer population in Northern Michigan is probably higher than it has ever been.

Gordon Neff of Charlevoix recalls a time when whitetailed deer were practically nonexistent in the Charlevoix area.

He remembers how excited his father was one day in 1928 when he returned from his job at Loeb Farm and reported seeing a doe. Few Charlevoixans had ever seen a deer before, Neff says.

When I was a boy, southern Michigan was also bereft of deer. I remember walking with my father in a woods in Livingston County — probably about 1937 — when dad stopped short and pointed to some odd marks in the earth under a tree.

"Deer tracks," he said. "I thought all the deer were gone from Livingston County."

There was a time, of course, when deer were plentiful in southern Michigan. Dad used to tell about his grandfather — my great-grandpa — shooting 80 deer one winter on his farm in Monroe County. The critters were so plentiful and so harmful to crops that he had to thin the herd if he wanted to continue farming.

I imagine the family dined on venison quite frequently that winter.

Before I left southern Michigan in 1965, deer were making a comeback. A sizable herd had taken up residence at Henry Ford's old estate — Fairlane — on the banks of the Rouge River in Dearborn. Occasionally one of them would stray onto Michigan Avenue and get hit by a car.

Today deer are found throughout southern Michigan. In fact, most of Michigan's car-deer accidents happen 'way down south in Kent County, location of Michigan's second largest city, Grand Rapids.

EFFORTS TO rebuild the bandshell appear to be collapsing.

And a good thing it is, if the promoters intended to construct any kind of elaborate "center for the performing arts" in little old East Park.

What we need is a little bandshell — artistic by virtue of its simplicity — that will leave our view of Round Lake intact. A gazebo-type structure to accomodate 10 or 15 musicians would be ideal. Such a structure would provide the park with a focal point and help keep band members and their instruments dry in case of a sudden rain.

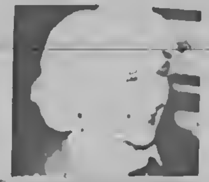
We certainly don't need a pond and waterfall. The old pond was cute because it was so hokey. But it's gone and we don't need another phony body of water vying for attention with beautiful Round Lake only a stone's throw away.

Of course, we could use more public johns — but not necessarily in the park. An ideal location would be the recently acquired city property on the south side of Clinton Street next to the parking lot.

The council should check immediately to find out if the $40,000 state grant for the bandshell lavatories could be used for restrooms in a different location.

And then get humping before Charlevoix's grant eligibility expires.

EDITH



EDITH GILBERT

Let me introduce you to Sue and Don Atwood. They bought the Moses cottage on 403 Michigan Ave. They remodelled the exterior, added a porch, and the house is now a cheerful yellow, surrounded by a white picket fence. Unfortunately, there was a bit of flack because the Charlevoix Planning Commission noticed the fence was too close to the sidewalk. But more about that later –

Don has had an interesting career. He was formerly vice chairman of the Board of General Motors. Two days before last Christmas he received a call from a staff member of John Towers, who, you recall, was being considered as Secretary of Defense. Don was asked if he would be interested in the job of Deputy to the Secretary of Defense. He met with Towers, and was appointed by President Bush. When Towers was nixed, and Dick Cheney was appointed Secretary of Defense, Don again was invited to be the Number 2 man at the Pentagon. So, you see, he was appointed to the job not once, but twice!

"What is your major concern at the Pentagon today?" I asked Don.

"It's the debate over the budget," he replied. "Congress is split, and there may have to be a compromise budget." The focus of Don's job is to improve the management of the Pentagon, and he spends 80 percent of his time in the day to day operation. Twenty percent of his time is spent with the Secretary on forming policy decisions.

The Pentagon is also very involved in the war on drugs. Don informed me that the compulsory random drug testing program for all services, including civilians in the Pentagon, has resulted in a drop from 25 percent to five percent positive test results.

The national attack on drugs is threefold. 1) Stopping drug flow at its source. 2) Intercepting the drug flow by planes and ships. 3) Assisting law enforcement agencies, including the Justice Department, in stopping the flow of drugs in our communities.

The Atwoods discovered Charlevoix when they started to ski at Boyne Highlands in 1963. Every year they headed north from Milwaukee via the Ludington Ferry. As they drove through Charlevoix at Christmas and saw all the holiday lights on Bridge Street, they said "How pretty!" In 1978 they bought a condo at the Dunes, but as the family expanded, they needed more space.

Daughter Susan married Robert Lavoie city engineer from Pontiac, and they now enjoy playing on the sandy beach with their child.

Son Jesse brings his dog when he comes to visit his parents. The Michigan Avenue home seemed perfect as a retirement place for the Atwoods, who enjoy boating, golf and all those good things.

But the pressures in the nation's capitol have delayed the fulfillment of the retirement dream. Instead of dealing with house keeping in Charlevoix, Sue Atwood is dealing with the Department of Protocol at the Pentagon. Here security oriented entertainment is planned for the wives of Defense Ministers of foreign countries, (Israel, Korea, Belgium and Russia).

What about the flack with the white picket fence? It seems that the Charlevoix Planning Commission requirements are that either the fence has to be removed, or moved back one foot from the sidewalk. This entails taking out poured concrete where the poles were inbedded.

"How do you feel about this?" I asked Don. "Well" he softly replied, "It doesn't rank very high on my list of serious priorities."

Loeb gathering

Richard and Gina Lepman of Loeb Farms are inviting all "Old Timers" to a reunion with refreshments Saturday, September 30 at 3 p.m. in the Big House.

"We want to hear from all the people who have recollections about Loeb Farms", their invitation reads.

The farm and houses were built after 1917 and many Charlevoix residents participated in the operation during the years it was a working farm.

Mrs. Lepman, who is a member of the Loeb family, adds, "Help us record the history."

The Lepmans ask that those planning to attend the re-union reply to them at Box 552 Charlevoix, or call Pat Martin at 547-5357.

FAMILY

Arvilla — McCombs

DENIS ERIN AND JOHN MCCOMBS

Denis Erin Arvilla and John Wayland McCombs exchanged marriage vows Saturday evening, August 19, at the United Methodist Church of Charlevoix.

The Rev. Benton Heisler and the Rev. Craig Adams officiated at the double ring ceremony before approximately 70 guests.

The bride has been living in Toledo while completing her residency in psychiatry, and her bridegroom is a resident of Traverse City. Their parents are Lyla McMillan Arvilla of Charlevoix and Orville and Natalie McCombs of Adrian.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Eric Fraley Arvilla, wore a long royal blue taffeta gown fashioned with an off-the-shoulder neckline and shirred bodice. She carried a bouquet of pink roses, white carnations, white orchids, and lavender statice and wore a matching spray of silk flowers in her hair.

Dana Ellen Arvilla assisted her sister as maid of honor, wearing a light blue street-length silk dress. The bridesmaids were Louise Dickerson, who wore a rose silk dress, and Michelle McCombs, who wore a fuschia and black silk dress. Each attendant carried a long-stemmed pink rose with baby's breath.

Holly Stewart, as flower girl, wore a long blue dotted Swiss dress and carried a basket of pink chrysanthemums and white carnations. Eric Joseph Arvilla and Dawson McMillan Arvilla were ringbearers.

Michael Lee McCombs served as best man, John McCombs, Jr. and Marc McCombs were groomsmen, and Jerry and Jon Stewart were ushers.

Music for the ceremony was provided by vocalist Helen Moerland and organist Elizabeth Humphries, who offered "The Gift of Love," "Hymn to Joy," and "The Lord's Prayer."

A reception, catered by Dave Phillips at the bride's Park Avenue home, followed the wedding ceremony. Mable Slone and Laura Chew assisted with the arrangements. The rehearsal dinner was held at Nanny's, hosted by the bridegroom.

The bride has returned to Toledo with her son, Dawson Arvilla, to complete her work there. The bridegroom has returned to his job in Traverse City as an engineer for the Amoco Corporation.

Local artist looks to New York

Mike Fels

The Koucky Gallery will serve as a launching pad, this month, for four Michigan painter-print makers who have opened an all out, well planned campaign to focus attention on their work and intrique major national galleries. Gallery owners Charlie and Nancy Koucky predict the campaign will succeed.

Mike Fels, Charles Steele, Ching Khan Tseing and Dominique Iott, each Michigan State University trained artists, formed the Iguana Art Coalition, two years ago, dedicated to obtaining joint showing of their works with the goal of "making it to a major New York Gallery within four years," according to Fels.

With a show of each of their work opening at the Koucky Gallery September 23 and running through October 8, the Iguana Art Coalition is on the road to New York.

"These works are impressive," stated Charles Koucky.

"They are extraordinary," continued Nancy Koucky. "They display an unusual range of print making techniques and painting styles, all highly professionally finished and presented. That's why we even considered hanging these works.

"This is not student art. These four are young professionals with a lot of potential for national recognition. We're extremely excited to be a part of their launching."

Three of the artists, all of whom use mixed print medias and painting, worked together as undergraduates. The fourth, Steele, also a printmaker and painter, is a professor in the MSU art department. Fels, a Charlevoix native, is now completing his Masters of Fine Arts at Penn State University. Iott, of Canada, holds a Masters of Fine Arts from MSU. Ching Khan Tseing, recently graduated with a Bachelor's of Fine Arts from MSU and has returned to his native Taiwan for further studies.

Their travelling show displays a broad range of painting and print making styles. Each uses distinctive symbolism. Their styles and use of color, are very different.

Fels creates pieces which are challenging socially and politically. His colographs are over-painted in "somber tones, colors which sometimes make you uneasy," the artist stated recently. While he says he does not want his work to be easily interpreted, environmental themes are apparent.

Ching Khan Tseing's paintings and drawings on rice paper employ bright colors and Oriental symbols. Ching's works have a playful quality. He works with a wet brush, painting over block prints.

Iott uses highly simplified landscape themes in combination with strong basic colors in her limited edition prints.

Steele's works reflect an influence of children's art in his large uncontrived approach. Rich colors dominate the finely executed prints.

A few collaborative pieces, by Ching and Steele, will be included in the Charlevoix showing.

The group, born in Lansing when all four were at MSU, is now dispersed, which Fels says offers the cooperative a rare opportunity to promote each other.

"We made a 100 percent commitment two years ago to work together. We each carry a full set of slides of everyone's works. We have set up a bank account to underwrite our own promotions and we have determined to take a thoroughly professional approach. Each gallery opening should be a positive step forward. We've shown in Lansing. The Koucky Gallery is our first out-of-town show. Our immediate future includes shows in Chicago and Harrisburg. Our goal is New York," the lanky young artist smiled.

CHURCH

Helen Belding

A memorial service for Helen Halverson Belding of Charlevoix will be held Saturday afternoon, September 16, at 2 p.m., at the United Methodist Church of Charlevoix. The Rev. Benton Heisler will officiate. Belding died September 5 at Provincial House Care Center in Gaylord at the age of 72, following a long illness.

The deceased was the twelfth child of Samuel and Marie (Hanson) Halverson, a turn-of-the-century fishing family in Charlevoix, and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1933. She was a member of the Eastern Star and White Star of Jerusalem and became worthy matron of both organizations. She was also a member of a branch of California's Sons of Norway and the Norwegian Historical Society at Iowa's Viesterheim.

Her career as a seamstress began at Ada Beeman's Shop in Charlevoix, and later she joined her sister, Irene deCastro, and friend, Polle VerWys, at the Hip Shop on Park Avenue. She moved to California in 1968 and was employed there by I. Magnin Department Stores, from which she retired in 1985. While in their employ, she designed and made the wedding dress for astronaut John Glenn's daughter.

Helen Belding and her husband, Wayne, had three children: Sharon Knutson of Deborah, Iowa, and Warren and Paul Belding, both of Charlevoix. Eight grandchildren also survive.

The family suggests that memorials may be made to the United Methodist Church of Charlevoix or the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, 205 East 42nd Street, New York, N. Y. 10017.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

"How beautiful on the mountains are the feet of those who bring good news..." This verse from the prophet Isaiah is just a reminder that I think you need to tell your pastor that you feel he's a pretty special guy every once in awhile.

The folks at Christ Episcopal will tell you that's a flat fact this week. They are welcoming Lander and Gretchen Carter as their new rectors. It took the faithful service of two interim priests and the prayers of a lot of people for this special time to arrive. You'll find the Christ Church people are really rejoicing just now.

Larry and Mickey Grooters are the most senior members of the Charlevoix clergy family. The Reformed Church has been blessed with their shepherding for over a decade. His wisdom and stability have touched many lives with the love of the Lord.

Phil and Ginny Schairbaum bring a special sense of grace and enthusiasm to the life of the Congregational Church. His gift for music has a way of reaching down into your soul and drawing out your praise. The twinkle in his eyes and peace in his words reminds you that God will help you do great things.

Benton and Linda Heisler have come to know the joys of what calling Charlevoix the Beautiful home can mean. Their vision and dreams for their flocks at the United Methodist Church and at Greensky Hill have breathed a sense of assurance and happiness into their worship that can easily be seen.

I still call Duane and Sherry Nelson our resident preacherly newlyweds. This has been quite a year for their Church of the Nazarene family. To see their pastor marry and be ordained has stirred up a special sense of pride and thanksgiving in their hearts.

Many of the community activities that our association sponsors find a home with Lowell and Sandy Anderson at Charlevoix Assembly. It take a lot of work, dedication and care to open your doors to everyone in the special fashion that they do.

There is Father Jim at St. Mary's. He's a blessing. The Hederson's at East Upright ground their folks in the Word. In his words, "God'll bless you real good," when you worship with Thom and Doris Black at First Baptist.

I could go on but the sweet folks at the Courier won't be too happy with me if I don't put a ribbon on things. Your Charlevoix pastors have willingly devoted their lives to bringing you the good news of Christ. They deserve your encouragement, you love, your presence and your support. I hope you will tell your favorite pastor how much you appreciate him in person this Sunday morning.

Witnesses return from conference

Jehovah's Witnesses from the East Jordan Congregation have returned from their semi-annual Bible seminar. The two-day event took place Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 2 and 3, at the Assembly Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses in Holt.

"Keep Watching How You Walk", based upon the scripture at Ephesians 5:15, was the featured theme for the weekend program.

Highlight of the event came Sunday afternoon with the principal talk entitled, "Light Bearers in a Dark World" which helped the audience focus on Jesus Christ's example of preaching, a method the Witnesses use to share the light of Scriptural truth today in 212 countries.

"Requiem" to be performed

The John Rutter "Requiem" will be performed at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix, on Sunday, October 29, by the Chancel choir of that church, a soloist, and members of the Charlevoix Community Chorus. They will be accompanied by an instrumental ensemble and organ.

Rehearsals are at 8 p.m., Thursday evenings in Fellowship Hall of the Congregational Church.

Anyone wishing to sing with the group would be most welcome. For further information contact Ellen Addington at 536-7018 or the Congregational Church at 547-9122.

Adult Ed program begins

by PEG OHLE

When Community Education classes started at the Charlevoix Adult Learning Center this past Monday, 20 eager students were on hand to begin the class work that will lead to a high school diploma.

Everyone over 18 is eligible for the classes. This year, students range in age from the early twenties to social-security years, and it will take them anywhere from one semester to two and-a-half years to earn the required credits.

Community Education Director Sherry Black reports that 11 of this year's students attended classes last year and most of them will have enough credits for graduation by the end of this year.

High school completion classes meet at the V. F. W. Hall on U.S. 31 North five days a week, some in the morning and some in the afternoon. In addition to Black, the teachers are Jim Sturdevant and Debbie Puroll. The class schedule is as follows, with teacher's name in parenthesis:

Monday: Health (Black) 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.; Humanities (Sturdevant) 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; Math (Puroll) 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Tuesday: Current Events (Sturdevant) 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; Government (Black) 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; Basic Writing (Black) 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Wednesday: Film Study (Sturdevant) 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; Geography (Black) 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; Psychology (Black) 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Thursday: Spelling-Vocabulary (Sturdevant) 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; History (Black) 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Friday: Health (Black) 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.; Science (Black) 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

For the first time, this year some Community Education classes are being offered at Pine River Place, the apartment complex for senior citizens located on Garfield Street. The schedule there is:

Monday: Basic Writing (Black) 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Tuesday: Health (Puroll) 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

The writing class is new this year, according to Black, and it will cover not only basic writing skills but writing for historic value and writing for media. It is hoped that through this class, participants will become more involved with writing their memories and life experiences and take part in putting out the monthly Senior Center publication, Senior Hi-Lites.

Puroll will also conduct the High School Completion program at the Charlevoix County Jail. Last year, one of the Community Education graduates completed her class work while an inmate at the jail.

For "frosting on the cake", the Charlevoix Adult Learning Center is coordinating practice of the "Singin', Swingin' Senior Saints" band on Mondays from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., bowling on Thursdays at 9:30 at Paul Bunyan Lanes, and bingo games Mondays at 1:30 in the soon-to-be senior center on Norwood Road.

Further information about Adult Learning Center activities is available from Sherry Black at 547-5361 or 547-2790.

The schedule below lists the classes which are being offered each night beginning the week of Sept. 18-21 and continuing for 17 weeks. Those classes are FREE to those 18 or older who do not have their high school diploma or those under 20 who have their diploma. Any others are welcome in these classes for a fee of $25. Upon successful completion of each class you will be given 1/2 credit toward the credits needed for your diploma. If you have already completed a number of credits, call us so we can find out how many classes you should take to complete your work. Age does not matter; an older person may be given credits for life experiences, military service, or G.E.D. tests that have been taken. You may be surprised at how close you are to that diploma ... so call and find out. The phone number to call to enroll or inquire about your situation is 547-3222.

Council proposes parking lease

The city council is willing to place a curve in the road being constructed behind Nanny's Restaurant provided that Nanny's owner Mike Barnard agrees to lease small portion city property east of the new roadway for $500 per year for 10 years.

Putting a curve in the roadway rather than running it straight and closer to Nanny's will allow the restaurant to retain 18 parking spaces.

Councilmen reached this conclusion at a committee of the whole meeting Monday evening. At a regular meeting, Sept. 5, the council chose not to act on a proposed site plan for Nanny's and raised questions about the road alignment and lease.

At a regular council meeting in June, the council indicated they wanted the road to go straight and closer to Nanny's. However in July, when the option of a curve preserving parking yet keeping an intersection aligned was suggested, councilmen agreed at a work session to allow the curve.

Work on the new roadway began last week prompting city manager Mike Wiesner to bring the matter before the council again to make sure there is a firm council directive as to where the road is to go.

At the Sept. 5 meeting, a proposed lease was presented by Barnard and his representative John Ferguson.

That lease called for Barnard to pay the city approximately $3,000 plus $1 per year for 30 years to lease the property for parking.

At the Sept. 5 meeting, councilmen questioned the length of the proposed lease. Monday evening, they also questioned the money.

Following discussion, councilmen settled on a 10 year lease with no $3,000 up front payment, but $500 or rather than $1 per year.

Barnard, who was at Monday evening's meeting, was asked if he is willing to consider those terms. Barnard said that once attorneys draw up a lease proposal, he will review and consider it.

Little Caesars and police sponsor benefit run

Little Caesars Pizza of Charlevoix will be among more than three dozen Michigan outlets in the franchise to participate in the 4th Annual Michigan Law Enforcement Torch Run for Special Olympics.

Police officers from throughout the state will run a total of approximately 2,500 miles and hope to $150,000 for Michigan's Special Olympics program. The officers will carry an Olympic-style torch as they run through several Michigan communities in both the upper and lower peninsula.

Runners are scheduled to stop at Little Caesars of Charlevoix at 11 a.m., Sept. 18.

Kit Carson's sold

Kit Carson Lumber Inc. of Charlevoix has been purchased by Wolohan Lumber Co. of Saginaw. Negotiations for the company began earlier this year and were completed this spring, however transfer of ownership will not take place until January, 1990.

Kit Carson founded the business in the mid 1930s. Glenn Kenny purchased it in 1959.

For many years the business was located in town on the west side of U.S. 31. In 1971, the business moved to M-66. Last winter the store remodeled and added approximately 4,500 square feet of sales area. The sales area now totals approximately 12,000 square feet.

Dick Kenny, owner-manager of Kit Carsons, said, "Under the Wolohan ownership, we're going to continue to offer the same fine service that we've always had."

Kenny noted that the advantage of the sale to Wolohan will be the resources of the larger company behind the store.

Wolohan operates 47 lumber yards around the country, including yards in Gaylord, Grayling and Traverse City.

A news release quoted Wolohan president Jim Wolohan as saying, "Kit Carson Lumber offers us a store size and customer mix that is a perfect match for our corporation. Current management and employees will remaing the same with continued growth planned for the future."

Wolohan Lumber was named "Retailer of the Year" for 1989 in the chain store category by Building Supply Home Center Magazine.

Childbirth classes to be offered

Expectant parents in mid to late term are urged to enroll in childbirth classes beginning Wednesday, Oct. 4, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Kay Beatty, R.N., is the instructor for the six weekly classes which will run until Nov. 8. The sessions are held four times a year with the next series to be held in January. Beatty requests that expectant parents choose the class series which is closest to their due date.

Topics covered during the six sessions include the discomforts of pregnancy and how to get relief from them, exercises in preparation of childbirth; the physiology of labor; the newborn; what to expect postpartum; breastfeeding; C-section delivery and parenting. All classes include a discussion with audiovisuals and breathing exercises. A tour of the hospital and doctor's lecture is held the fifth evening.

Expectant mothers should be accompanied by either the father-to-be or a "coach" of their choice. A $20 per family fee covers the entire series and is payable at the first class. To register call Kay Beatty at 547-6347.

Hospital schedules CPR classes

A four-hour course in Basic Cardiac Life Support (BCLS) will be taught at the Charlevoix Area Hospital on Thursday, Sept. 28, from 6 to 10 p.m. in the hospital classroom.

CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) to save victims of heart attack, drowning, and other similar incidents, will be included along with life-saving techniques to help someone who is choking. The evening will include intensive hands-on experience using mannikins and a written examination.

The class is open to anyone, however, registration is limited to 25. Cost for the class is $20 and includes a manual which should be picked up at the hospital switchboard at the time of registration and studied prior to the class.

Nurses on the Charlevoix Area Hospital staff will conduct the class in cooperation with the American Heart Association. Following successful completion of the course, participants will be certified in BCLS by the American Heart Association.

Those interested may call 547-4024 for further details. Deadline for registration is Monday, Sept. 25.

Hospital Guild seeks new members

Anyone interested in joining the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild is invited to a membership coffee on Thursday, Sept. 28, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 12 noon at the home of Anna Belle Webb, 707 Park Avenue, Charlevoix.

Membership in the Guild can be very rewarding for both newcomers to the community as well as those who may now have time to devote in a meaningful way to serve the hospital and its patients. "Volunteers are the glue that holds the hospital together," says Virginia Rountree, Guild president.

Guild volunteers have the opportunity to choose among a variety of services which best suit their skills, personal preference and desired time commitment. Workers are needed in all areas.

Both men and women provide such important support as service to patients on the medical and surgical floors; operating the switchboard and information desk; staffing the Showcase Gift Shop; patient TV placement; and special fundraising projects to purchase new and replace hospital equipment.

Dues are $3 per year for either active or inactive membership. Guild members will be present at the coffee to explain all the services of the Guild. No reservations necessary.

Rayders easily beat East Jordan 34-0

Too much. Much too much.

Charlevoix's football team had too much size and too much speed for the visting East Jordan Red Devils Friday evening.

A 34-0 victory brought Charlevoix's record to 2-0 on the season. With home field victories over Lake City and East Jordan, Charlevoix's 1989 season can be summarized as "so far, so good." But from here on in, the sledding gets tougher. Enough of the nonconference warm-ups, Gaylord, Grayling, Sault Ste. Marie, St. Ignace, Cheboygan, Rogers City and Petoskey remain on the Rayders schedule.

Friday evening Charlevoix opened the scoring early in the first quarter with a touchdown pass from midfield delivered express from Greg Lewis to Brian Livingston.

Charlevoix's next score came with 11:16 left in the second quarter as Jason Corwin scored on a two-yard run.

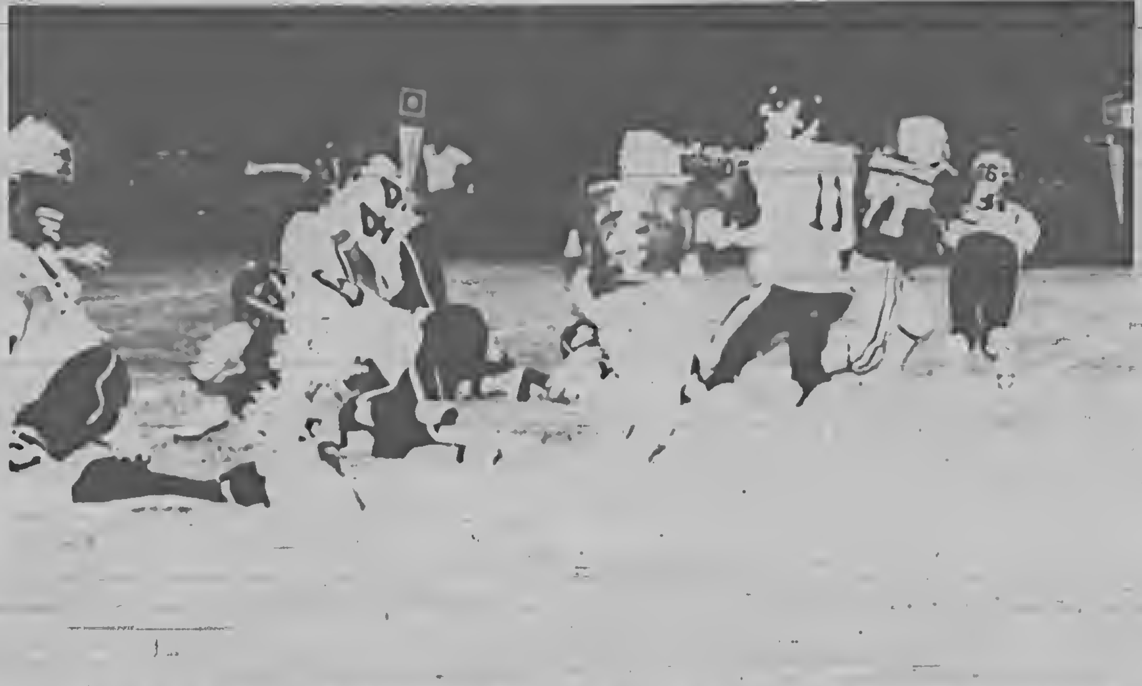
The Rayders third touchdown of the half was scored by offensive lineman Mark Rowbotham who fell on a fumble in the endzone.

Leading 21-0 at the half, early in the third quarter Charlevoix picked up where they'd left off. Following two East Jordan fumbles which Charlevoix recovered, Corwin scored on runs of 39 and 11 yards.

The Rayder offense gained almost 300 yards in the game, 191 rushing and 106 passing. Corwin gained 119 yards on nine carries. Lewis passed for 91 yards, completing two of six passes.

Defensively, Pat Elliott had eight solo tackles and four assists. Tony Warchol had four solos and four assists. Mike Stoneham had five solos and three assists, including a second half sack in which he tracked the East Jordan quarterback halfway across the field.

Charlevoix will be at home against Gaylord this Friday.



Dan Terryberry (7) zeros in on East Jordan quarterback Steve Poole (11). In the background, Jim Marquardt sheds a block.

Cross country team wins opener

Charlevoix's boys cross country team opened this season just as it closed last season - winning.

In the Kingsley Invitational this past Saturday, Charlevoix placed first under a scoring system which used combined times rather than places of the team's top five runners.

Charlevoix finished with a winning team time of 88:28 while the runners-up, host school Kingsley, finished with a combined team time of 92:21.

Charlevois ran without their toop runner, Scott Miller, who has been injured. Charlevoix's top five finishers were Bill Crook, Paul Wakulat, Fred Almonrode and Gehry Wiesner. Matt Smith placefirst in the race for underclassmen.

Charlevoix's girls placed second in the girls meet which used the traditional team scoring system. Kingsley's girsls totalled 44 points while Chalarlevoix totalled 91. The traditional scoring system adds the places of the school's top five runners. Charlevoix's top five girs were: Julie Bush, Tracee Smith, Maria Seaman, Michelle Jacobs and Kendra Olinger.

Sports Boosters plan fundraiser

The Charlevoix Sports Boosters, in cooperation with Alexander's Restaurant and the municipal golf course, will host a golf outing and pig roast Thursday, Sept. 14.

The golf outing will take place all day with normal fees at the clubhouse and a tournament scored on the Calloway system. There will be golfing for both men and women.

Alexanders has donated a pig and preparation of the dinner which will take place from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Tickets to the dinner are available for $5.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the Charlevoix Sports Boosters. Tickets are available at Alexanders or by calling Bob Jess at 547-5400.

Somewhere in the midst of this chaos, a football was rolling on the ground. Bob Scholey (69), Tony Mervyn (13), Keone Cardenas (14) and Chris Dobrowolski (80) are among the Rayders looking for it.

Yachting Notes

by A. Nony Mouse

It will never again be the same on a Wednesday night on Lake Charlevoix. After eight years of racing together on Cygnus, we actually began to think alike regarding our tactics. One would always play the devil's advocate when it came to decision-making, but we had each become able to read the other's mind on the course. And over the past year or so, as I became more conservative at the helm, I relied upon him to challenge me with his youthful enthusiasm to add more sail. He practiced sail trim with a near religious zeal and taught us the art by merely observing him. His credo was "He who wins the start, wins the race," but after starting well back in the pack of the fleet, the lake would become his chessboard and the other ingots were mere pawns for his queen.

His pawns now are Organic Chemistry and Great Books and Anthropology, as he has traded in his deck shoes and his sea gloves for his Macintosh and bookbag. His race triangle now runs from East Quad to Modern Languages to East Engineering. His time limit is seven years.

Cygnus still races each Wednesday night and those of us who work her sheets and trim her sails still think of him and ask ourselves what he would have done in certain situations, but we all believe that while he may, someday, again briefly work our foredeck, "for old times sake," he has outgrown the ingots, and when he returns from the University, his time will be spent on J-Boats, or Soverels of Freres, not in disrespect of the yacht from which he learned so much, but in a young man's desire to sail faster and to win. Work hard, Kid, and win.

The Fudgies have finally pulled their Liberators and Avengers and "Macho Motors" from the lake and taken them back south for another year, so those of us who hold more respect for our lake still have two months of relatively unmolested sailing.

The exciting and almost always steady air fall series began this week with a bang of Phil's gun and a shifty light air breeze. I've heard comment though that this is "the last light air race of the year!", and it wasn't Bill Spencer speaking so they may be correct. Those of us who went to the right on the first shift had a little left to be desired when it came to rounding the first mark and the course was appropriately shortened at the Belvedere Club mark, thanks to mother nature.

Racing results here by overall corrected position:

First: Bandit 1:0:45 (C fleet, first), even without using the new genoa onboard. Second: Moisture Missile 1:1:30 (C-2). Third: Flash 1:1:58 (A,1). Fourth: MIP 1:3:53 (C,3), the minors are getting much older. Fifth: MiJoy 1:4:44 (B,1): 6 Blasen 1:5:2 (B,2), 7 Newsense 1:5:7 (C,4) 8 Mint Julip 1:6:27 (A,2), 9 Noname (which is Mike Miller's boat and I believe he has christened the name to be "the original sin", as it carries hull number 1 for the P-26's. Time for Mike at 1:6:39 (B,3), 10 Sizzle 1:7:59 (C,5), 11 Sandpiper (B,4), 12 Allons Y (C,6), 13 Cygnus (B,5), 14 Tireless (B,6), 15 Kittywake (B,7), 16 Mud Duck (C,7), 17 Nancy C,8).

In the JAM fleet it was close racing for the first position by 9 seconds corrected time. First Cabaret, second Cheemaun, third Stalworth, fourth Hot Mustard, fifth Maureen with Canusa, Sonrise and Apothecary close behind.

It's not official as of yet but this October there will be Sunday racing for all boats, and it will be three Sundays starting at, or shortly after, noon. Plan to race, as last year proved the winds to be up and exciting racing is there to be had by all. Details to come....

The Fleet welcomes its newest yacht, Polestar, to the lake. Doug and Kim Simpson launched their new Precision-23 last week and hope to have her competing in the JAM fleet in 1990. Welcome aboard.

Thanks to Senior Mouse for a job well done.

Till next week,
watching the western skies...

Official Notice

ORDINANCE NO. 518

An Ordinance to amend the Code of the City of Charlevoix by adding to and deleting from TITLE V - ZONING AND PLANNING CHAPTER 51 ZONING, as follows:

The City of Charlevoix Ordains:

(1) That the following new Sections regarding Landscape and Land use Buffers be added:

5.201. DESCRIPTION AND PURPOSE.

To establish regulations and standards for landscape and land use buffers in all zones.

5.202. SCOPE OF APPLICATION.

(1) No Site Plan shall be approved under Chapter 51, Section 5.188 of this Code nor shall any Site Plan for a parking lot required by Section 5.32 (10) be approved, unless said Site Plan shall show landscaping consistent with the requirements of this Section.

(2) The requirements of this Section are minimum landscaping requirements and nothing herein shall preclude a developer and the City from agreeing to more extensive landscaping.

(3) Where landscaping is required, no Zoning Permit shall be issued until the required landscaping plan has been submitted and approved by the Zoning Administrator.

(4) A Certificate of Occupancy will not be issued unless the provisions of this Section have been met or a Performance Bond or other security has been posted.

(5) Where the use of land is changed so that additional landscaping would be required by this Section, all landscaping required by this Section must be installed.

5.203. PLANT MATERIALS AND LANDSCAPE ELEMENTS.

Plant materials and landscape elements used to comply with this Section must meet the following standards:

(1) Quality. Plant and grass materials shall be of acceptable varieties and species, free of pests and diseases, hardy in Charlevoix County and shall conform to standards of the American Association of Nurserymen, and shall have passed any inspections required under State Regulations.

No plant materials used to satisfy some or all planting requirements of this Section shall be comprised of non-living materials, such as petrochemical plants. No polyethylene film shall be used under non-living, decorative landscape materials such as stone, wood chips and gravel in a manner which will cause erosion of the decorative materials.

(2) Canopy Trees shall be species having an average mature crown spread of greater than fifteen (15) feet in Charlevoix County and having trunk(s) which can be maintained with over five (5) feet clear stem if conditions of visibility require, except however, at intersections where the requirement is seven (7) foot clear stem. Trees having an average mature crown spread of less than fifteen (15) feet may be substituted by grouping the same so as to create the equivalent of a 15-foot crown spread. Canopy tree species shall be a minimum of twelve (12) feet overall height or of a minimum caliper of two and one-half (2½") and a burlapped ball size of at least ten (10) times the caliper size, immediately after planting.

(3) Flowering trees and intermediate trees shall be a minimum of six (6) feet in height with a minimum caliper of two (2) inches and a burlapped ball size at least (10) times the caliper immediately after planting.

(4) Evergreen trees shall be a minimum of six (6) feet in height with a minimum spread of two (2) feet and a burlapped ball size of at least ten (10) times the caliper immediately after planting.

(5) Shrubs and Hedges. Shrubs shall be a minimum of two (2) feet in height when measured immediately after planting or two (2) feet in spread if plants are low growing evergreens. Hedges, where provided, shall be planted and maintained so as to form a continuous, unbroken, visual screen within a maximum of two (2) years after time of planting.

(6) Vines shall be a minimum of thirty (30) inches in length after one growing season and may be used in conjunction with fences, screens, or walls to meet physical buffer requirements so specified.

(7) Ground Covers used in lieu of grass in whole or part shall be planted in such a manner as to present a finished appearance and reasonably complete coverage after one complete growing season with at least three (3) plants per square foot.

(8) Lawn Grass. Grass areas shall be planted in species normally grown as permanent lawns in Charlevoix. Grass may be plugged, sprigged, seeded or sodded except that rolled sod, erosion reducing net or suitable mulch, shall be used in swales or other areas subject to erosion. When complete sodding or seeding is not used nurse grass seed shall be grown and mulched for immediate protection until coverage is otherwise achieved. Grass sod and seed shall be clean and free of weeds and noxious pests or diseases.

(9) Landscape Elements.

(a) Earth Mounds and Berms. Berms and mounds shall be constructed with slopes no greater than one (1) foot vertical for each three (3) feet horizontal with at least a two (2) foot flat on the top and with adequate protection to prevent erosion.

(b) Mulches. Mulching material for planted trees, shrubs, and vines shall be a minimum of three (3) inch deep wood chip mulch. Straw or other mulch may be used to protect seeded areas. Mulches must be installed in a manner as to present a finished appearance..

(c) Walls. Walls shall be constructed of stone, brick or other masonry materials or other suitable materials, and shall, as much as possible, harmonize with the general character of the neighborhood. Walls shall be not less than three (3) nor more than six (6) feet in heights.

(d) Fences. All fences shall conform to Chapter 51 of the City Code. Chain link fencing will be permitted only if used in conjunction with a continuous screen of plant materials.

(e) Greenbelt. If a green belt is required, it shall be at least eight (8) feet wide and shall be constructed to the following standards:

1. Plant material shall not be placed so that their center is closer than three (3) feet from a fence or property line.
2. Plant materials shall be planted in two (2) or more staggered rows.
3. Evergreen trees shall be planted no more than five (5) feet on center.
4. Narrow evergreens shall be planted not more than three (3) feet on center.
5. Canopy trees shall be planted not more than thirty (30) feet on center.
6. Tree-like shrubs shall be planted no more than eight (8) feet on center.
7. Large deciduous shrubs shall be planted not more than four (4) feet on center.

5.204. GENERAL REGULATIONS.

(1) Installation and Maintenance. In cases where an owner of property is required to install and maintain landscaping, the following standards shall be observed.

(a) Installation. Landscape elements shall be installed and earth moving or grading shall be performed in a workmanlike manner and according to accepted good planting and grading procedures with the quality of plant materials and grading as hereinafter described. Call Miss Dig for utility staking at least twenty-four (24) hours prior to installation or grading.

(b) Maintenance. The owner of property required to be landscaped by this Chapter shall maintain such landscaping in good condition so as to present a healthy, neat and orderly appearance, free from refuse and debris. All unhealthy and dead material shall be replaced within one year, or the next appropriate planting period, whichever comes first. All landscaped areas shall be provided with a readily available and acceptable water supply, or with at least one outlet located within one hundred (100) feet of all plant material to be maintained.

(2) Screening. A continuous screen shall be achieved after two (2) complete growing seasons after installation. A continuous screen shall exist when evergreen, semi-evergreen, or densely branched deciduous plants are installed and maintained in accordance with this Section.

The screening, as required in this Section, shall be placed in such a location and in such a manner as to effectively achieve the height requirements, measured from the established grade of the area to be buffered.

(a) Required screening shall be located so as to always be interior to the lot line.

(b) Such walls or other screening barriers shall only have openings for vehicular traffic, service or pedestrian purposes. Where permitted, the openings shall be so spaced as to maintain the obscuring character required, and shall not reduce the minimum height requirement.

(3) Non-Living Barrier. If such landscaping elements are of a non-living material such as a wall or fence, for each ten (10) lineal feet thereof, one (1) shrub or vine shall be planted abutting such barrier but need not be spaced ten (10) feet apart, said planting to be located on the side opposite the area to be concealed.

(4) Existing Barrier. Where an existing or proposed parking area abuts an existing hedge, berm, wall or other durable landscape barrier on an abutting property, said existing landscaping may be used to satisfy the landscape requirements of this Section. Such determination will be made by the Zoning Administrator. Maintenance of the existing hedge, berm, wall or landscape barrier shall be the responsibility of the individual petitioning for approval under provisions of this section.

5.205. PERIMETER AND BUFFER LANDSCAPING REQUIREMENTS.

The owner of a parking area which abuts a public right-of-way, a public waterway or a conflicting land use shall install and maintain landscaping between such area and such right-of-way, public waterway or conflicting land use, unless the parking area is visually screened by a building or structure or existing landscaping which meets the buffering requirements.

(1) Adjacent to Public Rights of Way and Public Waterways. Where an off-street parking area in any of the Zoning Districts abuts a public right-of-way or waterway, screening shall be placed at all locations (excluding sidewalks and driveways) which are between any portion of the right-of-way or waterway and the parking area visible from the right-of-way or waterway as follows:

(a) A strip of land at least five (5) feet in width located between the abutting right-of-way or waterway and the parking area exposed to the abutting right-of-way or waterway.

(b) One canopy tree per thirty (30) lineal feet, or fraction thereof, located between the abutting street right-of-way and parking area.

(c) A hedge, wall, berm, change of grade, or any combination of these landscape elements forming a continuous screen at least three (3) feet in height, except that it shall comply with visibility requirements of Section 5.185, Chapter 51.

(d) Grass, ground cover, or landscape stone shall be installed and maintained on all portions of the required landscaped strip not occupied by other landscape material.

(2) Conflicting Land Uses. Where any use district abuts a different use district or an existing residential use, there shall be a screened area as follows:

(a) A strip of land at least fifteen (15) feet in width located between the conflicting land use, except that where the size or configuration of a non-conforming lot, or setback requirements of the use district, prevent a fifteen (15) feet wide strip, the Planning Commission may allow the width of the landscape strip to be adjusted, or a masonry wall or fence to be substituted for the landscape screen.

(b) A hedge, wall, berm, greenbelt or any combination of these landscape elements forming a continuous screen at least four (4) feet in height at all points. If a non-living barrier is used, the living plant material for each ten (10) lineal feet will be required on both sides of the screen.

(c) Grass or ground cover shall be planted and maintained on all portions of the required landscaped strip not occupied by other landscape material.

5.206 INTERIOR LANDSCAPING REQUIREMENTS.

Interior landscaped areas shall be installed and maintained in such a manner to: screen unsightly areas within a site from public view; define parking areas, delineate vehicular and pedestrian circulation areas, and break up the expanse of paving in parking areas containing eight (8) or more spaces; and provide a planting area to separate building and parking areas and to define building entrances.

(1) Unsightly Areas. Garbage and refuse collection areas, service area, and outside storage areas (where permitted) shall be screened from view from a public right-of-way or waterway and from any adjacent residential uses. The screen shall be of live landscape material such as, but not limited to, trees, shrubs, and hedges to form a continuous screen. If site restriction and site layout prohibit the use of live landscape material, wood fencing or masonry wall shall be used.

(2) Parking Areas. Parking areas containing eight (8) or more spaces shall meet the following interior landscaping requirements:

(a) Notwithstanding, the provisions of 5.32(10), Commercial and Multiple Residential Uses. For every eight (8) parking spaces, there shall be one (1) canopy tree and a planting area equivalent to the area of one parking space (180 SF).

(b) Industrial Uses. For every fifteen (15) parking spaces, there shall be one (1) canopy tree and a planting area equivalent to the area of one parking space (180 SF).

Wheel stops or curbing shall be installed to prevent vehicles from encroaching more than three (3) feet into any interior landscaped area.

(3) Adjacent to Buildings. Planting areas shall be provided adjacent to the building(s) in such a manner to separate building and parking areas and direct users to building entrances. For each parking space, twenty (20) SF of planting area adjacent to the building(s) shall be provided.

5.207. EXISTING PLANT MATERIAL.

In instances where healthy plant material exists on a site prior to its development, the Planning Commission may adjust the application of the above standards to allow credit for such plant material if such an adjustment is in keeping with, and will preserve, the intent of this Section.

5.208. LANDSCAPE PLAN REQUIREMENTS.

Whenever a Site Plan is required by Chapter 51, landscape provisions of this Section shall be shown thereon. When no Site Plan is required by Chapter 51, ten (10) sets of plans and specifications accompanying a request for a Zoning Permit shall contain required information as applicable to the planned landscaping.

MENT OFFICIAL.

Prior to the installation of plant materials required by this Section, the owner or developer must notify the Enforcement Official of the installation schedule and provide an opportunity for inspection.

If any plant material is diseased, damaged, dead or planted in such a way to injure or kill the plant, the Enforcement Official will require immediate removal or correction.

Species of proposed plant materials may be altered pending notification and approval by the Enforcement Official.

5.210. ASSESSMENT FOR WORK PERFORMED BY CITY.

Whenever landscaping is not installed or maintained as required by this Section, the City, after notice to the persons responsible, may perform the work needed to make the landscaping comply. The cost of the work and materials may then be assessed against the premises.

2. That Section 5.188 (3) (f) be amended to add the following:

Section 5.188 (3) (f)

6. Location of all existing plant materials showing these materials to be saved, to be moved and to be removed.

7. Location of all proposed plant materials.

8. A planting list for all proposed landscape materials showing caliper sizes, height of material, method of installation, botanical and common names, type and amount of mulch, ground cover and grasses.

9. Sections, elevations, plans and details of all landscape elements, such as earth mounds, retaining walls and planting details.

10. The proposed planting dates.

11. A statement of intent to install and maintain all such landscaped areas in accordance with the requirements of this Chapter.

12. An irrigation system plan for watering and draining landscaped areas beyond one hundred fifty (150) feet of a main water outlet, or other provision for watering.

3. That Section 5.5, Definitions be amended by adding the following sections as indicated:

Section 5.5(23)

"Conflicting Land Uses": Where any use district abuts a different use district, or an existing residential use lot or parcel.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE
FORECLOSURE SALE

TO: ALLEN L. MUMA of Manton, Michigan 49663, and CHERYL R. MUMA of Charlevoix, Michigan, and all persons claiming title through and under them

A default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, made the 20th day of October, 1986, by Allen L. Muma and Cheryl R. Muma, husband and wife, as Mortgagor, to Old Kent Bank of Petoskey, a Michigan banking corporation, of Petoskey, Michigan, as Mortgagee. Said mortgage was recorded on November 20, 1986, in Liber 189 of Mortgages, Pages 481 through 484, in the Office of the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds; and thereafter assigned to Old Kent Bank and Trust Company of Grand Rapids, recorded November 20, 1986 in Liber 189, Page 481; and thereafter assigned back to Old Kent Bank of Petoskey as recorded February 10, 1987 in Liber 191, Page 241, Charlevoix County Records.

There is due and owning on such mortgage as of August 30, 1989, the sum of Thirty Thousand Eight Hundred Sixty-two and 42-100 ($30,862.42) Dollars, principal; and One Thousand Three Hundred One and 49-100 ($1,301.49) Dollars, interest. No suit or proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt or any part of the debt secured by said mortgage, and the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative by reason of such default.

NOTICE is hereby given that on September 27, 1989, at 10:00 o'clock a.m., at the street entrance of the Courthouse for Charlevoix County, Michigan, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder at public sale for the purpose of satisfying the amounts due and unpaid upon said mortgage, the lands and premises mentioned in said mortgage and described as follows, to-wit:

In the Township of Norwood, Charlevoix County, Michigan;

Commencing on the East and West ¼ line of Section 17, Town 33 North, Range 8 West, 1821.5 feet East of the West ¼ corner of said section; thence North perpendicular to said East and West ¼ line, 545. feet to the point of beginning of this description; thence continuing North perpendicular to said ¼ line 545 feet; thence East parallel with said ¼ line to the North and South ¼ line of said section; thence North along said North and South ¼ line to the North ¼ corner of said section; thence West along the North line of said section to the East line of the West 360 feet of the East ½ of the Northwest ¼ of said section; thence South parallel with the West ⅛th line of said section to a point 545 feet North of the East and West ¼ line of said section; thence East parallel with said ¼ line to the point of beginning; being a part of the East ½ of the Northwest ¼ of Section 17, Town 33 North, Range 8 West; subject to an easement over the West 66 feet of the East 960 feet of the Southeast ¼ of the Northwest ¼ of Section 17, Town 33 North, Range 8 West.

The redemption period will be one (1) year from the time of such sale. The property may be redeemed by paying the amount bid at sale, plus the rate of interst borne by the mortgage note of 9.875 percent, together with any additional advancements made on the property from the date of sale.

Explorers group formed

by PEG OHLE

An Explorer Scout Post for young men and women ages 14 through 20 has been organized in Charlevoix.

It is sponsored by the Zonta Club of Charlevoix and meets in members' homes, with David Arnold serving as Post Advisor.

So far, nine young people have joined the Post and their first outdoor activity, a canoe trip, took place recently. Cave-exploring and a stage play are being planned as future projects.

Arnold is being assisted as Post Advisor by Dick and Lee Schnackenberg, John and Lani Ochs, and Jan McKay.

Exploring is a branch of Scouting, designed by the Boy Scouts of America to provide young adults with an effective program designed to build good character, promote good citizenship, and develop personal and mental fitness.

As explained in Explorer literature, career-wise, Explorers gain a better understanding of America's social, economic, and governmental systems and some insight and practical experience in careers.

Socially, Explorers learn personal values based on religious concepts and skill in dealing with all people.

In promoting good citizenship, Explorers achieve a sense of pride in our American heritage and are prepared to give leadership and fulfill their responsibility to American society and to the people of the world.

Service-wise, Explorers are encouraged to help others and gain a keen respect for the basic rights of others.

In outdoor activities, Explorers develop self-reliance based on courage, initiative, and resourcefulness. They gain understanding and appreciation of the wise use of resources and protection of our environment.

In addition, Explorers have good times with others their own age and develop friendships which often last a lifetime.

Explorer Post No. 11 welcomes all interested young people in the Charlevoix area. Call Arnold at 547-9030, or any other adult advisor, for more information.

Constitution topic for essay contest

Michigan students, from kindergarteners to college graduate students, will be able to show their literary skills, as well as their patriotism, this fall in a new writing contest sponsored by the Michigan Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution.

The theme of this year's competition is "200 Years of Establishing Justice; The American Court System." Entries will be judged in two divisions: essays and poetry. Grade categories include: kindergarten - Grade 3, Grades 4-6, Grades 7-9, Grades 10-12, and College-Adult Education.

Each student may submit one entry. All entries must be received by the Michigan Bicentennial Office no later than Friday, Dec. 15, 1989 (Bill of Rights Day).

Entry forms and guidelines may be obtained from the Michigan Bicentennial Commission, Dept. of Management & Budget, P.O. Box 30026, Lansing, MI 48909. For more information call 517-335-4460.

Official Notice

ORDINANCE NO. 519

An Ordinance to amend the Code of the City of Charlevoix by adding to TITLE V - ZONING AND PLANNING - CHAPTER 51 ZONING, as follows:

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

That Section 5.221, Continuance of Use shall be amended by adding item (3):

(3) If a residential structure on a non-conforming lot is non-conforming due to existing building encroachments into a required side yard setback; and if the non-conformance was created by the adoption of this Ordinance; the City Zoning Administrator may approve and issue a Zoning Permit for construction, which will in-fill the building mass, extending the side yard encroachment:

(a) Provided, the addition will not extend into the required side yard to any greater extent than the existing structure.

(b) The addition will not encroach upon required front and rear yard setbacks.

(c) The additional will not diminish the availability of light and fresh air to a neighboring property.

(d) The addition is found, in the opinion of the Fire Chief, not to constitute a potential hazard.

Prior to issuing a Permit, the Zoning Administrator shall consult with the adjoining property owners to determine the extent of the adversity of the impacts described below.

Ordinance No. 519 was adopted on September 5, 1989 with the following yea and nay vote:

YEAS: Councilmembers Potter, Haggard, Whitley and Probert
NAYS: Councilmembers Muma and Russell
ABSENT: None.
Arlene L. Staley, City Clerk Gary N. Probert, Mayor

Developer sent back to planning commission

At Monday's city council meeting, the council sent developer Lester Turner back to the planning commission to give the commission more information on his rezoning request.

Earlier this month, after Turner refused to provide additional information, the planning commission recommended Turner's request to rezone the Stroud property at the corner of Mercer and U.S. 31 be denied. Turner wants the property rezoned from Motel-Hotel (M-H) to Planned Residential (R-4).

In action taken Monday evening, city councilmen indicated that unless Turner provides the planning commission certain additional information, they will deny the rezoning request.

The information requested by the planning commission concerns: the density of the proposed project; the effect of the project on Lake Charlevoix water quality; landscaping and elevations; the percentage of wooded area which will be lost due to the project; and how harmonious the project will be with surrounding property.

A significant portion of Monday evening's discussion was devoted to interpretations of the city zoning ordinance and state zoning laws by Turner and city attorney Jim Young.

Turner said that according to the city zoning ordinance, a rezoning request to R-4 is a two-step process. He said that first a request is made for preliminary rezoning approval. After preliminary approval is given, a detailed site plan for the project is drawn up. After the city and developer agree on a site plan, then the issue of final approval for the rezoning request is addressed.

Turner maintained that what he's currently seeking is preliminary rezoning approval. He said he refuses to go to the expense of having detailed engineering plans, including plans to handle the project's utility needs, drawn up before receiving preliminary rezoning approval.

Young agreed that the process for handling Turner's rezoning request is a two-step procedure, but he said there are objective factors which the city has to consider at both steps in the process. He said that in the preliminary phase, the city may consider density, surrounding land features, residences, parking, streets and whether the project would be harmonious with surrounding property. He said that in the final stage, the city could consider demand load on utilities and review engineering.

Young also noted that while city officials may consider public input, "the courts have made it clear that zoning decisions aren't just popularity contests."

Several people were present in the audience Monday evening and spoke against the rezoning request.

Preliminary drawings indicate a project which will place 37 buildings containing a total of 157 apartment units on the property. Of those, 129 units would be on the portion of the property in the city and the other 28 units would be on the portion of property in Charlevoix Township. The township portion of the property has already been rezoned.

Jerry Puhl, president of the WATCH environmental group, called the proposed project a "classic funnel development." He said that if something is developed on the property, it should be developed on a much smaller scale.

Bill Mosher, who owns shoreline property to the east of the property in question, said that with the density of units proposed the project will result in people "stacked three high" on the property's beachfront.

Mosher questioned Turner's initial proposal of 157 units, saying, "I get the impression Mr. Turner is coming up here with a poker hand asking for three times more units than he really needs."

Turner said he felt Mosher is like many people who cross a bridge (i.e. acquire shoreline property) and then want to raise the bridge so nobody else can be

Fatal accident stuns community

Charlevoix residents were stunned this week by the deaths of Bob and Maxine Drenth, two pleasant and decent people who, in their own quiet way, did a number of things which made the community a better place.

Bob Drenth, 52, and Maxine Drenth, 50, were killed in a two-car accident Sunday evening on a curve near the intersection of Marion Center and Stover Roads. Funeral services will take place at 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 20 at the high school gym.

Sunday evening, the Drenths had attended services at the Community Reformed Church. They were returning to their home when the accident occurred. According to a sheriff's department press release, the accident occurred at 8:51 p.m.

The driver of the second vehicle was Kenneth A. Schrum, 26, of Warren. Scott R. Hartley, 27, of Roseville was a passenger in the Schrum vehicle. Schrum and Hartley were transported by ambulance to Charlevoix Area Hospital. Schrum was treated and released. Hartley was transported to Munson Medical Center in Traverse City where he was listed in serious condition as of Monday morning.

Many people from Charlevoix, and throughout Michigan, knew Bob and Maxine Drenth through their affiliation with the school, Community Reformed Church and high school and college athletics.

The Drenths' four sons attended Charlevoix High School and Central Michigan University (CMU). Many young people who visited the Drenth's home came to know Bob and Maxine Drenth not as parents of friends, but just as friends.

Their son Jeff, an All-American runner for CMU, died unexpectedly from a heart problem in 1986. Annual Jeff Drenth Memorial Races take place in Charlevoix and Mount Pleasant.

Bob and Maxine Drenth were an integral part of the running success of their sons and of the Charlevoix Cross Country program.

The Drenths were regulars at Charlevoix Cross Country meets. Although usually soft-spoken, Maxine Drenth cheered loudly enough at the cross country finish line so that in spite of the concentration and exhaustion of the race, Charlevoix runners always could hear her cheering, "Come on Rayder. Come on Rayder."

Bob Drenth served as vice president of the Charlevoix Board of Education. His demeanor as a school board member was generally reserved, but when matters arose which he felt strongly about, he spoke up and made his feelings known.

Doris Pearl, who served on the board with Drenth, noted, "He certainly had the interest of young people first and foremost in his heart and in his mind and that came through at the school board level."

Bob Drenth was a self-employed plumbing and heating contractor. He also was a veteran official of high school track, football and basketball. He officiated at several state championship games, including the 1988 Class D basketball finals.

Maxine Drenth cofounded the Compassionate Friends group in Charlevoix. The self-help group's goal is to comfort parents following the death of a child. She was also assisting in the formation of a similar group in St. Ignace.

Both of the Drenths taught Sunday School at the Community Reformed Church.

School board members told to be team players

by Wendl Wright

At a special planning meeting recently, the Charlevoix school board got a lesson on how to behave in public. Carl Brautigan, a representative of the Michigan Association of School Boards, spoke to the board about the roles of individual school board members in the community.

One of the key points in Brautigan's speech concentrated on what he felt were the three primary roles of a school board member: supporter, listener, and team player.

First, Brautigan said board members must support the school system at all times, and remain informed of its activities.

Second, board members must listen to the concerns of the people they represent, and respond to those concerns thoughtfully and sincerely.

Finally, Brautigan said, it is absolutely necessary for each board member to remember that he or she is a "team player." Although the board is comprised of individuals, it must work as a unit; and this, he said, means that each member must support every board decision, regardless of his or her personal feelings about it.

When asked about how members should handle the media in light of these concepts, Brautigan elaborated on the idea of a "team player." He said also that board members should be careful not to give the impression they are speaking for the school board as a whole when asked for comment by a representative of the media.

Before Brautigan began his speech, he congratulated the Charlevoix school board on its encouragement of participation by school administrative personnel in school board meetings. Gordon VanWieren, school superintendent; Vane Smith, elementary school principal; Richard Swenor, high school vice-principal; David Smith, high school principal; Dennis VanGuilder, middle school principal; and Richard Kelly, school business manager, attend all school board meetings. Brautigan said that such participation is rare in Michigan school systems, and was to be commended.

At its regular meeting Monday night, the board approved the appointment of Leanna Mosoryak as eighth grade basketball coach. School board president Max Novak explained to the board that Mosoryak was being recommended because no faculty member was available to fill the position this year.

The board conducted a brief meeting, discussing only essential business, due to the death Sunday night of Robert Drenth, vice-president of the board. The board will hear presentations and petitions at its next regular meeting in October.

Citizens group sponsors dance

Approximately 150 Charlevoix High School students attended a sock hop Friday, September 8, following the football game.

The dance was sponsored by the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix, who say the success of this dance will lead to future dances under their sponsorship.

The "right kind" of music was presented by the D J's of East Jordan with Extended Play.

Chaperones for the evening, who also enjoyed the event, were Phil and Carol Havens, Chris and Dominique Havens, Joan Carlson, Toni Felter, Donna Bonar, Clyde and Nancy Allison, Mike Fenestrom, and Benton Heisler.

there.

Turner said that with the property's present motel-hotel zoning, he could build a 350 unit hotel and have 700 people on the property. Opponents of the rezoning said that was a "pipedream" and not feasible.

Prior to the council vote to send the matter back to the planning commission, Turner attempted to clarify his position on dealing with the commission.

"I didn't say I wouldn't work with the planning commission. I said I wouldn't provide final engineered drawings," he maintained.

OPINIONS

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

An organic love story

The relationship between blades of grass and tree leaves is nature's finest tale of romance. It is the "Romeo and Juliet" of the organic world.

In spring, a leaf buds above and grass sprouts below. Although they live in close proximity, in spring neither knows the other exists.

The grass is busy putting down roots and establishing its place on a lawn fraught with weeds and other perils.

The leaf is also new to the world. No longer a bud, it begins to broaden its horizons.

Summer comes and the grass and leaf still have yet to notice one another.

In the mid summer heat, the grass has all it can do just to avoid burning up. Growth is too much to hope for. Just maintaining its present stature is a challenge.

The leaf too is occupied. Nurturing a big tree is a challenge. Photosynthesis might look easy from the street, but there's a trick to it.

Then one day in late summer, when the sun is shining just right, a small act of kindness changes forever the lives of the leaf and grass.

On a blazing hot day, as the grass suffers beneath the scorching sun, suddenly a welcome coolness comes into his life. As he looks up, he discovers that his benefactor is the leaf.

Leaves are very maternal and this maternal instinct prompts the leaf to shade, protect and comfort the grass.

Although the grass appreciates the shade of the leaf, he finds it difficult to express his gratitude. The poor grass leads a rough life. Kind gestures are rare, he's often walked on.

The grass wishes he could find sweet, tender words to say to the leaf. He feels awkward and inadequate as he gropes in his mind for just the right thing to say. Finally, he just meekly mumbles, "Thank you."

But a simple "Thank you" is enough for the leaf. It is all the appreciation and compensation she desires. She is charmed by the timidity of the grass and she smiles warmly to reassure him.

In the days that follow, the leaf and grass have conversations every day.

Before long, the grass begins to look forward to these conversations more and more. Early in the summer, the grass had been infatuated with a sweet, young dandelion, but now he finds that this leaf, this one leaf, means more to him than any dandelion ever has or ever could.

With the cool days of autumn, the leaf and grass grow closer not only emotionally, but physically as well. Nourished by the early autumn rains, the grass looks his best in deep green and he rises toward the leaf.

One day the grass, this grass which normally has so much trouble putting his feelings into words, speaks from his heart instead of his mind. He calls up to the leaf, saying, "Come to me. Come to me and stay with me forever."

The leaf blushes, turning a vibrant red.

When the leaf recovers from her initial shock, she says, "Yes. Oh yes. I'll be with you forever."

The leaf separates from the tree and gently settles to the grass below and they unite in joyful bliss.

One would like to say the leaf and grass live happily ever after, but alas it is not to be. Much like "Romeo and Juliet" this is a romantic tragedy and one day an evil rake comes along. Desperately and vainly, the leaf and grass attempt to cling to each other, but they are torn apart.

Separated from her lover, the forlorn leaf breaks down and becomes compost. The grass also does not fare well. Heartbroken, he withers and dies with the onset of winter.

Town provides wedding setting

Dear Editor:

On August 12, 1989, we had the privilege of being married on the waterfront in your beautiful city. I am writing this note to thank the people of Charlevoix for the warmth and friendly atmosphere they provided for us and our guests. You have every right to be very proud of your townspeople, city, and especially your mayor, Mr. Gary Probert.

Mr. Probert and his wife were most gracious by inviting us into their home, selecting accommodations, and they even suggested a beautiful park on your channel for the service. I am truly grateful we had the opportunity to meet Mr. and Mrs. Probert and visit Charlevoix. You have provided us with memories we will cherish forever.

Thank you,
Jim and Kathy Brown

Editorial

Vote no Oct. 2

In June, Charlevoix voters rejected, by a vote of 588 to 486, a school district request for a millage increase of nine-tenths of a mill.

Less than two weeks from now, Oct. 2, voters will make a return trip to the polls to act upon a very similar millage request, this time for an additional .79 of a mill.

Why? Why must voters travel again and again the path to the polls?

Because, now and for too long, when there has been a choice of increasing taxes or controlling educational expenses, the path of increased taxes has been the path of least resistance.

Only when voters respond with strength and consistency in opposing repeated requests for higher taxes will members of the educational establishment in Charlevoix and elsewhere finally realize the time has come when they must start living within their budget.

During discussion at the July school board meeting, a rationalization was offered which is standard educational fare in the wake of a millage increase denial. The rationalization was that the school apparently hadn't gotten its message out well enough for voters to understand the school's need.

But in reality, what happened isn't that voters didn't receive the school's message. What happened is that on June 12, 588 voters sent the school a message. Control your costs.

The nine-tenths of a mill request was, and the .79 of a mill request is being, promoted under the banner of more money for school transportation (i.e. school buses, vans and pick-ups). But the transportation banner simply diverts attention away from the real problems within the school's general operational budget.

It doesn't take a prophet to realize that school buses wear out and need to be replaced on a routine basis. Routine expenses, such as school bus replacement, should be included in the school's general operational package.

In fact, at one time school bus replacement was in the general operational budget and the school purchased two new buses every other year to update the bus fleet.

But bus purchases stopped about four years ago. Why? What was the problem?

The problem wasn't that the price of school buses rose exorbitantly. The problem was, and is, other school operational costs and expenditures rising faster than inflation and tax revenues.

Stopping bus purchases did nothing to address these problems. It just made transportation a tool in a tax increase request.

Increasing taxes also fails to solve these problems. Worse, increasing taxes is counterproductive in that it funds the continued existence and growth of these problems.

These problems will be addressed when voters in Charlevoix and elsewhere make tax increases the path of greatest resistance. Voters should vote "No," Oct. 2 and repeat the message sent in June - the time has come for the educational establishment to make hard choices and control costs.

Pier job well done

Before the weather turns waspish, you might want to visit the south pier.

The pier has been redesigned and rebuilt this summer by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and it is a beautiful piece of work.

It is now possible to walk on both sides of Pine River Channel from Bridge Street to the suburbs of St. James without getting your feet wet.

The crib under the lighthouse has been widened, meaning you don't have to be an acrobat or a dare-devil to reach the end of the pier.

The light, which was tilted seven degrees off perpendicular by ice, now stands straight and tall. It still needs a coat of paint, but that's no big deal.

The corps did such a fine job that I am beginning to wonder if the fishermen of Charlevoix really need a catwalk across the dogleg to give them more fishing access.

There is plenty of fishing space around the new lighthouse crib, not to mention the north pier and the length of the channel on both sides.

I am afraid a steel bridge across the dogleg might clutter up the aesthetics of the new pier. Maybe not, but it's a possibility.

I also wonder if a bridge across the dogleg might be vulnerable to wave and ice damage in the teeth of a northwest wind.

We know that multi-ton ice floes can inflict severe damage on sturdy steel structures, witness the damage done by ice to the railing on the north pier several years ago.

Incidentally, that damage was recently repaired by the corps, and the north pier is presently as handsome as the new south pier.

CATFISH? In Charlevoix? You bet. And I'm told they're delicious.

A number of pier fishermen are going after cats this year, dropping their bait close to the channel wall.

Time was when catfish were considered strictly Southern fare, and no self-respecting Northerner would bother to catch one intentionally, much less clean it and cook it.

But times have changed. Catfish is now a respected entree on many seafood menus and I have read about catfish farms covering hundreds of acres in Louisiana.

Apparently channel cats are plentiful in Pine River Channel. Maybe someday Charlevoix will have a catfish contest, with prizes for the cat with the longest whiskers.

I HAVE NEVER been able to work up a full head of steam against condominium development because I'd rather have condos in town — on sewer and water lines — than out in the country, polluting our lakes with septic tank drainage, destroying our woodlands with blacktop roads and encroaching on the natural vistas that all of us love in Northern Michigan.

Now along comes Lester Turner with plans for 157 condominium units on the Oscar Stroud property in the city and Charlevoix Township just north of Mercer Boulevard.

Maybe it's time to say whoa. That seems to be just too many units to build in Oscar's beautiful grove of hardwoods overlooking Lake Charlevoix.

Oscar and his dad built several rustic log cabins on the site a couple of generations ago and the cabins are so natural they appear to be a part of the landscape.

But the multiple condos planned by Mr. Turner are another matter.

There is little doubt the property is under-utilized at present. But before it is over-utilized, I hope the Charlevoix City Council, the Planning Commission and companion governing bodies in Charlevoix Township, and Mr. Turner can come up with a plan that will put the property to better use without jamming it with housing units, driveways, parking lots, dumpster pads and all the appurtenances of modern civilization.

How about a few nice single-family building lots, hang the price? Or even a nice, small resort hotel?

High school hosts parent session

Parents of Charlevoix High School students are invited to a "mini-session" program from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 25. The program will give parents a chance to go through a shortened version of their child's school day.

Parents should write down their child's daily schedule and bring that list with them to the mini-session.

Individual parent-teacher conferences will take place from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., Nov. 6.

Planning seminar scheduled

The Michigan Society of Planning Officials will hold its 44th Annual Educational Conference October 5-7, 1989 at Boyne Highlands Resort in Harbor Springs. The Conference theme is Having It All! Finding the Common Ground Between Development and the Environment.

In addition to six early-bird sessions and 15 workshops, Christopher J. Deurksen, Director, Airport Gateway Development, City of Denver, will be the Keynote luncheon speaker. Awards will be presented to individuals who have made significant contributions to comprehensive community planning and to a community(s) with a meritorious project or plan.

Workshop speakers will cover a number of "Quality of Life" issues, such as pro-growth, anti-growth: the life style dilemma, groundwater protection, balancing development needs and local environmental regulations, redevelopment in mature communities, protecting wetlands, farmlands, coastal lands and scenic lands as well as quality of life for special needs populations. Planning commissioners attending will hear a debate on environmental preservation versus economic development and learn about methods for resolving conflicts during the public meeting and review process.

On Saturday, the conference will include a mock zoning trial, based on an actual Michigan zoning case. This unique learning experience will shed light on what judges consider when handing down decisions on zoning cases. A mobile tour of development in the Little Traverse Bay region will provide an opportunity to see at first hand the potential impacts of large developments on the resort communities in the area.

The Michigan Society of Planning Officials is a 3,300 member organization composed primarily of local planning and zoning commissioners. It is a 501 (c) 3 nonprofit educational organization. The conference registration rate of early registration, prior to Sept. 21, 1989, is $85 for MSPO members and $105 for non-members. Late registration fees are an additional $20. Spouses are welcome.

For more information or a free preliminary conference program, write MSPO, P.O. Box 1217, Rochester, MI 48308-1217: or call (313) 651-3339.

Lakes fall

The entire Great Lakes basin experienced below average amounts of rain fall during August. The water levels of Lakes Michigan-Huron were below their long-term average water levels for the month. The water levels of all the Great Lakes continued their seasonal declines.

The Great Lakes forecast, published in the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels for the Great Lakes, shows that Lakes Michigan-Huron are expected to be below their long-term average levels during the next six months.

Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of August were at elevation 578.37 feet above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec, or 19 inches above Chart Datum. This was about 1 inch below what it was a year ago, and 3 inches below one month ago. The August monthly mean level of 578.50 feet was about 4 inches below the long-term average for August. The lakes, however, remained about 30 inches above their all-time low August monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1964. The forecast shows that at the end of September, the level of Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about 2 inches below what it was at the end of August. The lakes are expected to continue their seasonal decline into January. The water level in February 1990, is expected to be about 4 inches below the long-term average for that month.

March of Dimes plans auction

The March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation will hold its 8th Annual Auction and Jamboree at the Nordic Bar in Boyne City on Sunday, October 1, 1989 from 1 p.m. until 10 p.m. Several bands will perform during the day with Rawhide as the host band.

Dozens of items donated by merchants and individuals in Boyne City, East Jordan, Ellsworth, Charlevoix, and Petoskey will be auctioned off between sets. Items will range from clothes, to furniture, dinners, appliances and knickknacks.

A menu featuring fried chicken and sloppy joes will be offered along with all the fixings. The food has been donated by area stores so all the proceeds go to the March of Dimes.

A donation of $2 at the door covers the entry fee and puts everyone in the drawing for the door prize. For more information call 947-2488.

E.J. Health Center to host cholesterol clinic

The East Jordan Family Health Center will host a Blood Pressure and Cholesterol Clinic on Tuesday, Oct. 3, from 1-2 p.m. The blood pressure check is free and there is a $5 charge for the cholesterol test. This clinic is offered as a community service to assist in maintaining good health.

Gross-Boss

Sue Marie Gross and Daniel Lee Boss exchanged marriage vows Saturday, July 22, at St. Joseph the Worker Church in Beal City. The Rev. Larry Fussman officiated at the ceremony, with Mark Gross, brother of the bride, assisting as server.

The bride is the daughter of Raymond and Theresa Gross of Beal City, and the bridegroom is the son of Herbert and Beverly Boss of Charlevoix. Both young people are employed in the Traverse City area, she as a teacher of special education classes in Northport, and he as a reporter for television station 9 and 10.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore a period gown of satin, lace, and beading with a short veil and crown of pearls entwined with white silk flowers. She carried a bouquet of Sonia roses, stephanotis, ivy, and orchids.

Ann Pasch assisted her sister as matron of honor, and four other sisters, Jane Becht, Julie Murphy, Donna Gross, and Laurie Gross, were bridemaids. Alissa Pasch, niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. They wore white lace blouses with full tea-length peach taffeta skirts, and carried bouquets of peach, pale yellow, and white silk flowers arranged with netting and satin ribbons.

Scott Boss served his cousin as best man, with Doug Boss, brother of the bridegroom, Tom Taylor, friend of the groom, and Gary and Ed Gross, brothers of the bride, assisting as groomsmen. Four other brothers of the bride, John, Dan, Dave and Pat Gross, were ushers.

Music for the ceremony was provided by vocalist Sue Mitchell, sister of the bridegroom, and pianist Eddie Kay Walling.

The bride's parents hosted a reception at the Mt. Pleasant Country Club, assisted by masters of ceremonies Dawn and Dave Farley and Pat and Les Heintz. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at The Embers in Mt. Pleasant.

Following a wedding trip through the Rockies and the southwest, the newlyweds are at home at 213 Madison Street, Suttons Bay.

Robert J. and Maxine B. Drenth

Robert J. Drenth, 52, and Maxine B. Drenth, 50, of Charlevoix, died Sept. 17, 1989, in Charlevoix.

Funeral will be 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 20, at the Charlevoix High School gymnasium. The Rev. Larry Grooters of the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix will officiate and burial will be in the Barnard Cemetery, Charlevoix County.

Robert Drenth was born Jan. 14, 1937, in Charlevoix, the son of Gerrit J. and Cora (VanderHeide) Drenth. He moved to Ellsworth from East Jordan as a small child and attended and graduated from Ellsworth High School in 1955.

Maxine Drenth was born June 2, 1939, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Floyd and Mary (Gates) Black. She attended and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1957.

On July 5, 1958, Robert and Maxine were married in Ellsworth. The couple had resided in Charlevoix for many years. Robert Drenth was a master plumber and was self-employed as a plumbing-heating contractor in Charlevoix for the past 15 years.

He was active in sports and had served as a referee for high school basketball and football games for more than 30 years. He also served as a high school track official and a baseball and softball umpire. Currently, Mr. Drenth was serving as vice president of the Charlevoix School Board.

As a sports official, he was often called upon to referee at state finals for basketball, football and track.

Robert and Maxine Drenth were members of the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix and both taught Sunday school there. Maxine Drenth also taught the Bethel Bible series for adults and was a former Weight Watchers lecturer. She was a co-founder of the local Compassionate Friends group, an organization for bereaved parents whose children have died. Through her efforts another chapter is being established in St. Ignace. Maxine Drenth was very active in volunteer work in the community.

The Drenth home was always open to runners and other athletes as a retreat. They were currently working to complete a memorial retreat in memory of their deceased son, Jeffery.

Mr. and Mrs. Drenth are survived by three sons, Walter J. Drenth and his wife, Cara, and Mark E. Drenth, all of Mt. Pleasant and Douglas A. Drenth of Franklin, Ind. They were preceded in death by a son, Jeffery Drenth on June 2, 1986.

Mr. Drenth is also survived by his mother, Cora Drenth of Ellsworth; two brothers, Donald J. Drenth of Grand Rapids and Kenneth G. Drenth of Cedarville; one sister, Mrs. Norma J. Storer of Allentown, Pa.; his mother-in-law, Mary Black of Charlevoix.

In addition to her three sons, Mrs. Drenth is survived by her mother, Mrs. Mary Black of Charlevoix; three sisters, Mrs. Ed (Shirley) Wilbur of Kalamazoo, Mrs. Art (Jean) Drenth of Ellsworth and Mrs. Richard (Mary Lou) Johnson of Elmhurst, Ill.; her mother-in-law, Mrs. Cora Drenth of Ellsworth.

The Drenth family suggests memorials to the Bob and Maxine Drenth Memorial Fund. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix, where arrangements are being handled.

Memorial envelopes will also be available at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix where visitation will be 2-4 and 7-9 p.m. today (Tuesday).

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Beacons of Blessing

For six years of my life, my work day revolved around an airport. My duties found me doing just about everything you could imagine around an airliner. I have sold tickets, loaded bags, pumped the fuel. You name the function and I've probably done it. One of the things I did that I didn't used to think too much about was helping folks who were not able to walk get on and off planes.

Picture the scene. The family rolls Grandma's wheelchair out to the boarding area. They talk about what a great visit it was and how much they love her. Without even thinking, they form a little circle of love around her as they wait for the boarding call to come. Finally, the gate agent comes to put her aboard. They all wave and shout their love and fond farewells.

At the other end of her flight, Grandma is not alone. As she is wheeled off the plane, there is another circle of love waiting to welcome her. Did you have a good time Mom? How were the grandkids? You can probably add in your own version of what the dialogue would be. It really is kind of special to watch it happen, to know that someone is there for us at both ends of the journey!

There is a reason behind my relating this story. Charlevoix is saying good bye to two very special people this week. Bob and Maxine Drenth gave of their love and devotion in so many ways. His work on the school board and her ministry with Compassionate Friends are just two of a number of things that stand out in my mind. Their blessings, their smiles and their care will never be forgotten.

They have left us on a journey that all of us will one day have to take. My hope is that you will find at the end of your journey what Bob and Maxine have already found. Jeff was waiting to welcome his Mom and Dad.

Think of the many times Bob and Maxine cheered him on to victory in the races he had run. This time, Jeff watched his Mom and Dad cross the finish line. The circle of love that we will gather around their sons and family here will be special. But never forget the circle of love that has already surrounded them in heaven.

Paul said, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith." No one would ever have dreamed or wanted such an accident to happen. But in saying our farewells, I hope all of us can agree that we are richer for having shared the journey, run the race with folks like the Drenths.

Never forget, God loves you and I love you too.

Several awards presented

by PEG OHLE

Three Department of Social Services volunteers and 12 operators of foster homes for children were recognized for their outstanding service to the community at a luncheon Aug. 30 in Boyne City.

Approximately 95 people were on hand at the Dilworth-Wolverine Hotel as C. Patrick Babcock, State Director of Social Services, presented the awards.

Sara Cummings of Charlevoix was awarded a silver pin for exceeding 200 hours of volunteer acitivity in the capacity of a friendly visitor and telephone reassurance person.

Janette Walden of East Jordan received both silver and gold pins for exceeding 500 hours of volunteer activity in driving persons on needed errands.

Raymond Ecker of Boyne City was awarded a 6,000 hour plaque for his volunteer activity in providing needed transportation and supervising visitations of parents and children. Vasco Zuechiatti, supervisor of volunteer services for the Department of Social Services, noted that Ecker has given more hours of service to the Department than any other person.

Four organizations were also recognized for their volunteer services: R.S.V.P., the volunteer program for senior citizens, headed by Darla Evans of Boyne City; Care and Share, the food pantry in East Jordan, headed by Walter Goebel; the Community Food Pantry in Charlevoix, headed by Lucille Martin; and the Community Service Center in Boyne City, headed by Kathleen West.

The Department of Social Services has a list of 35 county residents who volunteer their services one way or another. Among the services rendered are:

Delivering surplus food to shut-ins, providing companionship to lonely people, telephoning persons who live alone, handling the finances of those who are not able to do so, providing outdoor activities for persons in adult foster care homes, transporting people as needed, accompanying drivers with persons who may need extra care, supervising parent-child visitations, working in the offices of Social Services, helping children with camp scholarships, and operating food pantries.

The operators of foster care homes for children who were honored for years of service were: Lawrence and Maudie Streeter of Charlevoix, for six years; Gary and Sharlene Spencley of Charlevoix, for seven years; James and Joyce Raveau of Boyne City, for five years; John and Charlene Bush of Boyne City, for eight years; Patrick and Gail Kubesh of Boyne City, for 17 years; and James and Janet Rathbun of East Jordan, for 17 years.

Eighteen approved foster homes for children are operating in Charlevoix County under the jurisdiction of the Department of Social Services. Each home is headed by a foster "father" and a foster "mother," many of whom have been helping young people "over the hump" for many years, as noted above.

Among those recently receiving awards from State Director of Social Services C. Patrick Babcock (third from left) were: Raymond Ecker of Boyne City; Sara Cummings of Charlevoix; Gary and Sharlene Spencely of Charlevoix; and John and Charlene Bush of Boyne City.

Jr. Grange group formed

The Barnard Grange recently received a charter for a Junior Grange Chapter, which now has 14 active boy and girl members between the ages of five and 14.

Ginger Stevens, Junior Grange Leader, explained the purpose of the organization is to promote leadership, patriotism, and communication, with emphasis on community service.

The young Grange members will have plenty of fun things to do, too, according to Stevens: "We will have a field trip or special meeting every month. This month we're going to the fish hatchery and next month we're going to have a Halloween party."

Meetings take place the first Thursday of every month at the Grange Hall. Parents of children who are between the ages of five and 14 and are interested in joining the Junior Grange may contact Stevens at 547-2517. "They'll be more than welcome," she noted.

Ginger Stevens (right) receives the charter for the Barnard Junior Grange from Beulah Winter, wife of State Grange Master Roland Winter, and Peggy Johnston, State Junior Grange Director.

Oh Boix!

Two Charlevoix people received degrees from Central Michigan University at the conclusion of the summer session in August. Judith A. Clock received a Master of Arts degree. Michael R. Wiesner received a Master of Public Administration degree.

Tax hearing scheduled

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners has set October 11 as the date for a truth in taxation public hearing on their proposal to increase operating tax levies.

The increase proposed is for .3877 mill, which represents an additional mill rate increase of 8.77 percent. County Equalization Director Joan Blanchard explained that this increase will not cause an increase in local taxes, but will, instead, make it possible for the county to spend $44,045 it will receive from the state's distribution of cigarette tax money and $55,604 it will receive from the state's distribution of convention facility-liquor tax money.

A law passed in 1987 increased the tax on cigarettes by four cents a package, one-and-a-half cents of which is distributed to each county which has never received a loan authorized under the emergency municipal loan act.

Charlevoix County will distribute $28,501 of its cigarette tax money to the District Health Department, $12,954 to jail, juvenile, or court operations programs and $2,590 to the county general fund.

Charlevoix County will also distribute $32,802 of its convention facility-liquor tax money for promotion of substance abuse services and $32,802 to the county general fund.

Nanny's parking resolved

Although it took several months of wrangling, the city council and Nannys' owner Michael Barnard have finally agreed on a lease. The lease will preserve several parking spaces for the restaurant while allowing the north end of Ferry Avenue to be aligned with the south end.

According to terms of the lease, which was approved by councilmen Monday evening,

Nannys will be able to lease a slice of land from the city for ten years at a cost of $500 per year.

Northern Michigan ground water will be studied

The University of Michigan Biological Station has received a $589,237 grant from the Kellogg Foundation to study groundwater problems in northern Michigan.

The three-year grant will establish a Regional Center for Groundwater Education in Michigan in an effort to halt the growth in groundwater contamination in that region. The regional center will help local governments and individuals improve groundwater quality and human health through protection programs.

The program is part of the statewide Groundwater Education in Michigan (GEM) Program that is being implemented through the Institute of Water Research at Michigan State University.

The GEM regional center will serve 13 counties in northern Michigan and include a Technical Resource Center, a Policy Resource Center, an educational program and a prototype Geographical Information System (GIS).

The 13 counties to be served by the GEM are: Antrim, Otsego, Montmorency, Alpena, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Presque Isle, Emmet, Chippewa, Luce, Mackinac, Alger and Schoolcraft.

"The Kellogg grant will enable the Biological Station to fill a great environmental need in northern Michigan," said James A. Terri, director of the U-M Biological Station. "Individual, government and business decisions are made daily with little or no regard for their impact on groundwater resources.

"Although Michigan's natural resources are affected largely by local community regulation and individual actions, few of these communities and individuals have access to technical or policy information that could help make educated decisions regarding groundwater. Without the GEM regional center, groundwater contamination would continue to increase because the decision-making process would remain unaltered."

The Technical Resource Center will include a database of information regarding groundwater contamination prevention that will be on-line for easy access throughout the region. The center also will provide expertise to interpret and summarize this technical information.

The Policy Resource Center will include a database of policy-strategy information — such as examples of local initiatives and programs from across the state and country — relevant to ground water protection, use and preservation.

Since resource protection demands understanding of groundwater at the local level, the GEM regional center will serve as a public forum for information and education programs. Talks, slide shows, fact sheets and brochures on groundwater contamination will be developed on specific technical and policy issues such as agricultural practices and protective groundwater zoning.

One of the regional center's main goals is to increase community participation in the prevention of groundwater contamination, according to Teeri. Thus, help can be obtained by groups such as lake associations, public interest groups, concerned citizens, colleges and public agencies to develop proposals for public funding to create local groundwater centers. Once established, the centers can use the GEM's resources to design strategies for reducing groundwater contamination.

Finally, the GEM regional center will set up a prototype system for predicting the likelihood of groundwater contamination. The GIS (geographical information system) will be set up in Emmet County because it currently has a good base of information, Terri said. The GIS will include information such as well log data, available well-water chemistry, land cover information, soil types and current land use.

The regional center will cooperate with the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, a non-profit organization that protects water quality and promotes the wise use of water resources in Emmet, Charlevoix and Cheboygan counties. Staff also will work closely with state and local governments, regional planning agencies and the state's two other GEM centers at Western Michigan University and Grand Valley State University.

The W.K. Kellogg Foundation, established in 1930 to "help people help themselves," has distributed more than $1 billion in support of programs in agriculture, education and health. Areas of emphasis within those broad fields include adult continuing education; community-based, problem-focused health services; a wholesome food supply; and broadening leadership capacity of individuals. Projects in opportunities for youth are concentrated mainly in Michigan; support for economic development projects is provided only in Michigan.

Football team is 3-0

The Rayder varsity football team ran its record to 3-0 Friday evening with a 19-6 win over Gaylord. The game was the Michigan Huron Shores League opener for the Rayders who had warmed up with non-league wins over Lake City and East Jordan.

Four interceptions played a key role in the Rayder victory. A Charlevoix interception in the first quarter, followed by a 43-yard pass from Rayder quarterback Greg Lewis to Brian Coolman set up the Rayder's first touchdown which came with just more than two minutes left in the quarter. Brian Livingston scored the touchdown on a four-yard run.

Livingston was injured later in the first half. Lewis replaced him at defensive halfback and Dan Terryberry stepped in at quarterback.

As time ran out in the first half, Terryberry threw a 29-yard touchdown pass to James Corwin and the Rayders took a 13-6 lead into the locker room.

In the second half, Terryberry completed a 29-yard pass to Coolman which set up the game's final touchdown which was also scored by Corwin.

Defensively for the Rayders: Pat Elliott had eight solo tackles, four assists and a fumble recovery; Jason Corwin had six solo tackles and three assists; Tony Warchol had five solos and four assists. Coolman, Lewis and both Corwins had interceptions.

Offensively: Jason Corwin had 79 yards on a dozen carries. The Rayders totalled 278 yards, 149 on the ground and 129 through the air.

Charlevoix's Melissa Boss looks for a shot during last week's basketball game against Ellsworth. Other Rayders in the photo are Sandy Fershee (20) and Cynthia Boydston (50). Lancers are Nikki Drenth (15), Lori Ruis (25) and Michelle Strange (13).

Basketball team loses to Ellsworth

Charlevoix's girls basketball team stayed with Ellsworth early Sept. 14, but faded as the game went on and ended up on the low side of a 71-34 score.

Charlevoix played well enough in the first quarter so that at the quarter's end they found themselves leading the highly-ranked Lancers 16-13.

But in the second quarter, Charlevoix's offense began to unravel. Several turnovers in the back court were damaging and when the Rayders were able to get the ball upcourt, they had problems with the Lancer's tall defenders.

Ellsworth's Carrie Kaley closed out the half with a three-point shot that sent the Lancers into the locker room leading 35-21.

Early in the third quarter, Charlevoix lost senior center Melissa Boss. Boss sprained an ankle and is expected to miss several games.

Without Boss, the Rayders found it difficult to get off shots anywhere close to the basket. Sandy Fershee was the only Rayder having any success scoring as she led the team with nine points. Stacey Skeel and Chrissy Dillon had some success rebounding.

Ellsworth was led in scoring by Shelly Essenberg and Tonia Egger, each with 16 points and Lori Ruis with 10. Ruis, Nikki Drenth and Amy Alward keyed the Lancer's defense.

Cross country team still winning

Charlevoix's boys cross country team continues to win. Force of habit, you know.

Although the varsity team was without two of its top runners, they still won the Ludington Invitational handily Saturday. Charlevoix had a team score of 89 points, which was 67 points better than second place Edwardsburg.

Charlevoix's Scott Miller finished first among all runners from the six schools participating in the race. Miller finished with a time of 16:36. Other top Rayder boys finishers were Bill Crook, Paul Wakulat, Matt Smith, Tim Henne, Matt Stargardt and Matt Schnackenberg.

Charlevoix did not field a complete team in the girls' division. However four Rayder girls did run. Julie Bush placed fourth with a time of 21:59. Tracee Smith and Maria Seaman also finished in the top 20 and Kendra Olinger finished with a time of 26:00.

In the boys junior varsity race, Charlevoix's Chris Meier finished first at 17:53 while teammate Mike Sevenski finished second.

Sports Boosters raise funds

The Charlevoix Sports Boosters hosted a golf outing and pig roast at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course and Alexander's Restaurant, Sept. 14.

Eighty-seven golfers enjoyed a beautiful fall day as they competed in a highly competitive tournament.

Walt Franeck took men's medalist honors with a score of 33. Arlene Blissett was tops among the ladies with a score of 41.

Using the Calloway handicap scoring system, Quinton Walker was best among the men with a net score of 31. Rosemary Corraddi, Kay Fiedorek, Dianne Long, Gorgia LaBlance, Glenda Ferguson and Lynette Webb tied for best ladies net score, each with a 33.

A dozen people correctly predicted their score to win "Honest John" awards. (See accompanying photo and cutline for their names.)

Combining the golf match with a pig roast lent credence to the belief that there are more people who eat than golf. Approximately 250 people dined on two roast pigs, corn on the cob, beans, potato salad, cakes, pies and other desserts.

Money raised from the golf match and pig roast will help support Charlevoix's sports programs. Sports Boosters officials said they wish to thank the many local businesses and volunteers who contributed to making the event a success.

"Honest John" winners in the golf outing and pig roast sponsored by the Sports Boosters last week were (from left): Jill Washburn, Louie McKenzie, Gene Steele, Keith Stewart, Marilynn Swanson, Pat Donnelly, Karen Pierce, Lysle Ance, Wayne Blosh, Warren Shapton, Bill Supernaw and Rich Michanowicz.

Yachting Notes

by A. Nony Mouse

It's been a great week for spending some time on the lake, the crisp mornings and the warm evenings have been near weather perfect to enjoy the wonderful northwest. Now we can enjoy the beauty of Northern Michigan that makes it what it is, with the confusion of summer past us and a slower pace at hand.

I spent a couple of nights this weekend sailing, I didn't have to dodge or get dodged by other boats and I enjoyed a gorgeous moonrise from the east! The moon really lights up the sky on a clear night, and is a welcome friend.

The long-dreaded Fall Racing series is 25 percent past and none of the feared 25-knot, rain-laced winds have as yet made their appearance. Those intrepid skippers who have coerced, bribed, threatened and fallen to extortion in an effort to man their short crews have sailed, to date, a total of 5 legs of flukey whiffs that would be an exaggeration to refer to as wind.

One more race like last Wednesday's and this skipper is apt to suffer a boycott of the crew to which he promised wind, excitement and a levogage of thirty degrees. We suspect on our boat that old race committee Phil, our hall of fame starter, concludes these races when he tires of watching flies mate on the pontoons. That's probably the most exciting thing that Phil has seen to date. On well, for what it's worth....

Flash was the only starter in Fleet A to appear. Let's all get together and cut a stick for Piggie so that Gordon can have some competition.

Mi-Joy repeats in Fleet B, and proved the third overall finisher. The Piries were followed by Mike Miller in Hull 1, Sandpiper, New England Bossie, Blasen, Tireless, Foxey, Cygnus and Kitty-without-a-wake.

Bandit again won Fleet C followed by Minors, Newsense, Sizzle, Allons-Y, HSM, Mud Duck and Nancy.

Hot Mustard, that yellow-hulled menace from down Grayling way captured first overall and won the Jam Fleet with Cheemaun, the Chemist, Maureen, Cabaret, Stalworth, Sunrise and Canusa padling close behind.

A Sunday series is being organized and planned so show up at the Club Wednesday nite for details.

Till then,....

watching the western skies...

LEGAL NOTICE 210

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

TO: ALLEN L. MUMA of Manton, Michigan 49663, and CHERYL R. MUMA of Charlevoix, Michigan, and all persons claiming title through and under them

A default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, made the 20th day of October, 1986, by Allen L. Muma and Cheryl R. Muma, husband and wife, as Mortgagor, to Old Kent Bank of Petoskey, a Michigan banking corporation, of Petoskey, Michigan, as Mortgagee. Said mortgage was recorded on November 20, 1986, in Liber 189 of Mortgages, Pages 481 through 484, in the Office of the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds; and thereafter assigned to Old Kent Bank and Trust Company of Grand Rapids, recorded November 20, 1986 in Liber 189, Page 481; and thereafter assigned back to Old Kent Bank of Petoskey as recorded February 10, 1987 in Liber 191, Page 241, Charlevoix County Records.

There is due and owning on such mortgage as of August 30, 1989, the sum of Thirty Thousand Eight Hundred Sixty-two and 42-100 ($30,862.42) Dollars, principal; and One Thousand Three Hundred One and 49-100 ($1,301.49) Dollars, interest. No suit or proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt or any part of the debt secured by said mortgage, and the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative by reason of such default.

NOTICE is hereby given that on September 27, 1989, at 10:00 o'clock a.m., at the street entrance of the Courthouse for Charlevoix County, Michigan, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder at public sale for the purpose of satisfying the amounts due and unpaid upon said mortgage, the lands and premises mentioned in said mortgage and described as follows, to-wit:

In the Township of Norwood, Charlevoix County, Michigan;

Commencing on the East and West ¼ line of Section 17, Town 33 North, Range 8 West, 1821.5 feet East of the West ¼ corner of said section; thence North perpendicular to said East and West ¼ line, 545. feet to the point of beginning of this description; thence continuing North perpendicular to said ¼ line 545 feet; thence East parallel with said ¼ line to the North and South ¼ line of said section; thence North along said North and South ¼ line to the North ¼ corner of said section; thence West along the North line of said section to the East line of the West 360 feet of the East ½ of the Northwest ¼ of said section; thence South parallel with the West ⅛th line of said section to a point 545 feet North of the East and West ¼ line of said section; thence East parallel with said ¼ line to the point of beginning; being a part of the East ½ of the Northwest ¼ of Section 17, Town 33 North, Range 8 West; subject to an easement over the West 66 feet of the East 960 feet of the Southeast ¼ of the Northwest ¼ of Section 17, Town 33 North, Range 8 West.

The redemption period will be one (1) year from the time of such sale. The property may be redeemed by paying the amount bid at sale, plus the rate of interst borne by the mortgage note of 9.875 percent, together with any additional advancements made on the property from the date of sale.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

STATE OF MICHIGAN
BEFORE THE MICHIGAN
PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

In the matter of the application of ISLAND TELEPHONE COMPANY for authority to revise its depreciation rates.

Case No. U-9421

NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY TO COMMENT OR REQUEST A HEARING

On August 1, 1989, Island Telephone Company (Island) filed an application with the Michigan Public Service Commission (Commission) for authority to revise its depreciation rates. Depreciation measures the value of the equipment that is used up each year to provide telephone service. Since depreciation expense is a part of the cost of telephone service, any changes will affect the cost of service and may eventually show up in rate cases.

Any interested person may review the application at the offices of Island, 108 East Broad Street, Chesaning, MI, or at the office of the Commission's Executive Secretary, 6545 Mercantile Way, Lansing, MI, between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Further notice is given that any interested person may submit comments on the application or request a public hearing by sending comments or a request for hearing in writing to the Michigan Public Service Commission, P.O. Box 30221, Lansing, MI 48909, with a copy to Mrs. Louise Shapley, President, Island Telephone Company, Box 215, Chesaning, MI 48616. The comments or hearing request should reference Case No. U-9421 and must be received by the Commission no later than (insert date).

Soviets to visit

Four Soviet visitors will be in Charlevoix September 29 through October 2. They are part of a group of 20 Russians who are traveling throughout the United States under the sponsorship of "Soviets, Meet Middle America".

The visitors will land in New York City on September 15 and spend time in San Francisco and Berkeley, California, and Evergreen (Denver suburb), Colorado before coming to Charlevoix.

The group consists of two men and two women, three of whom speak English. Brief biographies of the visitors follow:

Natalia Moskaleva, born in 1953, is interested in computer research at the Institute of Cinematography.

Ludmila Hitkova, born in 1949, is from Moscow and graduated from the Moscow Pedagogical Institute. She is an interpreter and speaks excellent English.

Daniel Serebrennikov, born in 1958, is a specialist in computer equipment at the Institute of Cinematography.

Valery Brannikov, born in 1939, graduated from Moscow University in the Journalism Department. He is the founder and director of a Moscow cooperative, "Simvol". He is part of the new wave of Soviet businessmen and is interested in meeting with American businessmen to talk about joint enterprises. He does not speak English.

Ralph McRae is coordinating the Soviets' visit. Among activities already planned are a joint meeting of the Service Clubs, a community dinner to give the general public a chance to meet the visitors, and trips by the visitors to local schools.

Mayor wants to annex township

Mayor Gary Probert and councilman Norm Probert indicated Monday evening that they want to see the extension of city sewer service play a role in the city's "annexing" Charlevoix Township.

"I think we (the city council) should definitely be talking to the township and seeing if they would like to annex in with the city," Gary Probert said at Monday evening's council work session. He said that unless annexation takes place, he will oppose extending sewer service to the township.

Rick Lobenherz and Al Shindorf each have developments which they would like served by a sewer rather than septic system planned in Charlevoix Township. The Charlevoix city sewage treatment plant was designed to serve a geographic area larger than the city and currently operates at only 50 to 60 percent of capacity on a peak summer day.

Treatment plant manager Sam Creswell and John Adams of the engineering firm McNamee, Porter and Seeley Inc. spoke to the council Monday evening. McNamee, Porter and Seeley Inc. was hired by the city, but paid for by developers to assess the city sewers current flow rates on the north side of town.

Creswell explained that the city had sent small TV cameras through the north side pipes to check their condition.

"Basically we didn't find any problems. The lines are in remarkable shape," Creswell said. He noted there were a few root intrusions, where roots had grown into the lines at pipe joints, but he said those can be removed through standard maintenance procedures.

Creswell also said that there doesn't appear to be any problem with groundwater seeping into the lines although most of the pipes are at least 50 years old.

Adams said that currently city sewer lines exceed flow capacity and back up near Bridge Street between Dixon Avenue and the bridge during hard rains. The problem is that some north side sanitary and storm sewer lines are still joined.

The city previously separated some storm and sanitary sewer lines and plans to separate those which are still joined.

Adams said that when those lines are separated city lines will be able to handle the additional sewage flow from the township developments.

After hearing Adams' report, three councilmen Jim Potter, Bill Haggard and Butch Russell said that it appears the city's first move is to finish separating

School seeks millage increase Oct. 2

Voters in the Charlevoix School District will go to the polls Monday, Oct. 2 to vote on a proposal to raise the school's operational tax levy by .79 of a mill for two years.

Revenue the school will receive if the proposal passes will be used to update the school's transportation fleet.

School officials estimate that .79 of a mill for two years will net the school $355,351. That money would be used to purchase approximately eight new school buses and a large van.

The number of buses purchased will depend on what bus prices are when bids are opened. School officials estimate the money will allow the purchase of about eight buses. The van would be used to haul small groups. It's more economical to use a van instead of a bus to haul small groups.

A proposal to increase operational millage by .90 of a mill for transportation purposes was rejected by a vote of 588-486 in June. The .79 mill proposal differs from that proposal in that it does not propose to build a bus garage or purchase a new Rayder bus. (The Rayder bus is a bus which has reclining seats and other features to make passengers more comfortable on long trips.)

A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of a home or property's State Equalized Value (SEV). SEV is a figure set by a tax assessor and is supposed to by one-half of a home or property's market value.

According to information compiled by school officials, the .79 of a mill will offset a reduction of .767 of a mill necessitated by the Headlee tax limitation amendment.

The Headlee tax limitation amendment allows schools and other taxing entities to increase their property tax revenue from year to year through increased property evaluations (State Equalized Evaluation (SEV) increases) enough to offset inflation (as measured by the Consumer Price Index), but not more than that.

This year the tax limitation amendment allowed school revenues from SEV increases to rise by 4.1 percent. Since the school district SEV increased by more than 4.1 percent, the school had to roll back millage by .767 of a mill.

Charlevoix's 18 school buses travel approximately 1,100 miles each school day in transporting about 850 students. Eleven of the buses have traveled more than 118,000 miles. Nine of the buses have traveled more than 132,000 miles.

School superintendent Gordon VanWieren said that if the millage passes, that at this time the school doesn't plan to renew the .79 mills at the end of two years. However, he added that doesn't mean the school won't ask for more money for the general fund if it is needed.

School buses are inspected for safety each year by the State Police. Currently, Charlevoix buses all passed that inspection as of last year and have yet to be inspected this year.

However, school officials note that repairs and the purchase of new parts to keep the old buses safe gets more expensive each year.

Up until approximately four years ago the school purchased,

Bow hunting season begins Sunday

They're out there, lots of them. In fact there are getting to be too many of them for their own good.

Deer populations are so high that Department of Natural Resources (DNR) officials are concerned that a harsh winter could cause significant starvation. However, this Sunday, several thousand bow hunters will take to the woods and do what they can to thin Michigan's deer herd.

The deer population is up drastically according to Roger Bush, Charlevoix area DNR officer. Bush says that following last years mild winter the does had a lot of fawns and that triplets were not uncommon this year.

Bush said crop damage permits to kill deer are up at least 100 percent in Charlevoix County. Corn and young fruit trees are among the crops deer have damaged.

"It's like having too many cows in the pasture," Bush explained. "Pretty soon, they start eating the fenceposts and barn door."

Hunters are being encouraged to help trim the herd.

"It's questionable now if the (natural) deer food would carry the deer through a hard winter," Bush noted.

Hunters are being encouraged to help trim the herd.

Bowhunting popularity has increased dramatically in the past dozen years and is expected to play a more significant role in controlling deer populations. Last year between 250,000 and 260,000 hunters participated in the Michigan archery hunt which opens Oct. 1. Those hunters killed 76,800 deer and more than half of those deer were killed in Northern Michigan.

In spite of the number of bowhunters, they're not as visible as firearm deer hunters. DNR district wildlife biologist Glen Matthews says bowhunters aren't as apparent to the general public because bow season is spread over a longer period of time and bowhunters generally don't wear blaze orange hunting gear.

Matthews notes that the success of bowhunters has improved markedly in recent years. As recently as 10 years ago, bowhunters took fewer than 20,000 deer in a season. He attributes that to improvements in hunting equipment, hunter skills and an increased deer population.

He hopes hunters in this area will be successful this year. Matthews said western Charlevoix County is an area where deer numbers are even higher than in other areas of the district. Deer are creating problems not only for farmers, but also for drivers. The worst time of the year for car-deer accidents is late October and early November.

Bowhunters may take two deer. Their first deer may be a buck or a doe. They then may purchase a second license which is good only for bucks.

Matthews says he's hoping bowhunters won't restrict themselves only to bucks this year. He said the DNR is encouraging bowhunters to take a doe and then trophy hunt on their second license.

Bow season begins Oct. 1 and runs through Nov. 14. Bowhunters may hunt during the firearm season (Nov. 15 through Nov. 30) but they must have a firearm license and wear blaze orange. Bow season begins again Dec. 1 and runs through Dec. 31.

Bush is encouraging hunters to get written permission from property owners and help trim the herd on private property.

Anyone with questions about hunting seasons and regulations should refer to the Michigan Hunting and Trapping Guide, available where hunting and trapping licenses are sold.

One significant change this year, which affects firearm hunters, is a regulation stating that all firearms must be enclosed in a case and completely unloaded when being transported. Having the gun broken down will no longer suffice.

with money from the general operational fund, two new buses every other year to update the bus fleet. School officials say that program stopped because there are no longer funds available.

Asked what the school would do about the bus fleet if voters again turn down the millage proposal, VanWieren said that eventually money for buses would have to come out of the general fund, but for the present the school would have to struggle along with the buses it has right now.

Asked if the school would at some time consider stopping bus transportation, VanWieren replied that the board would have to consider priorities.

School officials did investigate the possibility of attaching new bus chassis to old bus bodies. Private companies which handle buses for other school systems said that option is, in the long run, more trouble than it's worth.

... city discusses sewers

storm and sanitary sewer lines.

"According to these reports, I think the sooner we separate the storm from the sanitary (sewer lines) the better off we are no matter what we do," Haggard commented.

Councilmen Ken Whitley and Earl Muma raised the possibility of having township lines separate from city lines and running directly to the treatment plant.

Township residents are currentiy charged a sewer tap in fee of $750, which is 1.5 times what city residents pay. They also pay a higher service charge than city residents.

City manager Mike Wiesner spoke of raising that tap in fee even more, possibly to $1,500 or $2,000 and putting the revenue into a capitol fund which would pay for future expansion of the treatment plant and other sewer system work.

Councilman Norm Probert, who like Gary Probert spoke favorably of annexing Charlevoix Township, said he is concerned that hooking township developments into the city's 50-year-old sewer lines might cause problems which city residents might end up paying for.

Adams said to Probert that adding township users at a charge which is 1.5 times what city residents pay "will in fact reduce the cost to residents of the city of Charlevoix for maintaining that 50-year-old sewer system."

Wiesner said that if the city is interested in "consolidation" with Charlevoix Township, then monetary matters will be the driving force toward that. He said that providing sewer service is offers a means of financially linking the two entities. He said that may in the future provide township residents with a motivation for consolidation in comparing lower utility rates with the higher millage levy they would pay.

With the paddle-wheel Star of Charlevoix in the background, the antique cars created a scene reminiscent of days past.

Antique cars visit Charlevoix

Other than clothing fashions and pavement in the parking lot, a section of Charlevoix's waterfront looked like a page from history last Friday morning.

Twenty-five antique cars parked in front of the Star of Charlevoix. Later in the morning the antique car owners had lunch aboard the cruise ship.

If it may be said that antiqueness comes in varying degrees, than it could also be said that these 25 cars were "antiquer" than most. The cars were all built in 1912 or earlier.

Jim Saylor, one of the car owners, explained that the cars are owned by members of the Brass and Gas Chapter of the Veteran Motor Car Club of America. Saylor said the cars are from all over the Great Lakes region.

The cars were in Charlevoix as part of a two-day tour. Each year the antique car chapter takes three tours. This past week they were based at Hidden Valley near Gaylord and visited Charlevoix Friday and Petoskey Saturday.

Saylor said the cars, which have an average top speed of approximately 40 miles per hour, usually tour about 100 miles per day.

When asked how the owners of the antique cars felt about the winding roads between Gaylord and Charlevoix, Saylor commented, "We like odd roads."

The cars reached Charlevoix at a time when the downtown area was torn up for construction. That wasn't something which threw the antique cars with their large hard rubber tires.

"In the era (when) these cars were made, there were very few hard-surface roads," Saylor noted.

For their Friday morning trip, the tour group was blessed with good weather, but later in the morning the skies began to look threatening.

Saylor said that some of the cars have snap in side curtains for bad weather, passengers in the other cars "just grin and bear it."

When some of the cars were originally made, windshields were an option. However, all of the antique cars which visited Charlevoix Friday had windshields.

Saylor said that owning and touring in antique cars is a good family hobby. It's also an expensive hobby. Saylor estimated that each of the 25 cars is worth between $20,000 and $60,000. He added that it's not uncommon for an antique car collector to own more than one car.

Fundraisers benefit Heart Start

The Heart Start fundraising campaign has two events planned for Oct. 1.

From 8 a.m. to noon the American Legion will host a pancake breakfast. Obviously the heart and soul of this breakfast will be pancakes. Trimmings include eggs, sausage and milk, orange juice or coffee. A mere $2.50 purchases all you can eat.

From 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Paul Bunyan Lanes will host a bowl-a-thon. Local bowlers will be seeking sponsors on a per pin basis. For information contact Shirley Roloff at the Flight Deck.

Proceeds from both events will be used to purchase and operate heart machines in the city ambulances. The fundraising project has a goal of $20,000 and at this time is more than halfway home.

OPINIONS

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

A better mouse trap?

My wife has this habit of waking up and discovering things that aren't right around the house. She then promptly wakes me up and clues me in on the problem. She likes to keep me informed.

Exciting newsbreaks I've awoken to in the past include: "There's water all over the basement. It's coming from the hot water heater;" and "Do you know we have a serious septic system problem?"

So one night last week, at 4 a.m., one hour after the middle of the night, my wife elbowed me out of a sound sleep and into the best semblance of consciousness I could muster on short notice.

"What's the problem?" I mumbled.

"I heard something downstairs."

And I thought to myself, "Oh good."

"What'd you hear?" I inquired.

"Something was rattling those empty cans." (We rinse and crush empty cans so they can be recycled.)

"You're sure it wasn't the cat?"

"She was up here when I heard the noise."

Useless cat anyway. I tossed off the nice, warm covers and pulled on some clothes and went to investigate.

Although I hunt and have guns, bows and knives readily accessible, I chose to venture into this mission unarmed.

I figured chances were slim that it was some evil burgler rattling our household's empty cans. And what if, in a worst case scenario, it had been an evil burgler? Big deal. I'd have just let him have the empty cans.

"Here buddy. You want these empty cans? Take 'em. Just hit the road so my wife will me get some sleep."

But my investigation did not reveal a burgler as the culprit. In fact, it didn't reveal anything as the culprit. I looked around downstairs for a few minutes and didn't find anything.

"I didn't see anything," I reported to my wife as I climbed back into bed.

"Well, I heard something," she maintained.

"I don't doubt it," I said. "Maybe it was a mouse. Sometimes one of those will find its way in this time of year. I'll get a trap tomorrow."

So the next morning, I stopped by the hardware store to purchase a mouse trap. The price was right; 89 cents purchased a package of two, no assembly, only setting, required.

So I set the two traps and then tried to find suitable place for them. Since I was after a mouse and not a cat or a dog paw, I had to find a couple of places accessible to one, but not to either of the others. You'd think that any cat or dog that was worth anything would be an asset instead of a liability in this process.

I slid one trap under a low shelf and put the other trap in the basement.

The opening day of mouse season was unsuccessful, but by the second day I'd bagged one long-tailed can rattler.

As I looked at the rodent corpse in the trap, I recalled what people are always saying about the man who builds a better mouse trap having a well-worn path to his door.

But why should anyone want to build a better mouse trap? The old fashioned ones work just fine. They're simple and effective.

Millage vote Monday

Event: Charlevoix school millage election this coming Monday, Oct. 2.

The proposal: "Shall the limitation on the amount of taxes which may be assessed against all property in Charlevoix Public Schools, Charlevoix and Antrim Counties, Michigan, be increased by .79 mill ($0.79 on each $1,000) on state equalized valuation for a period of two years, 1989 and 1990, to provide aditional operating funds for transportation purposes?

Proponents contend:

Eleven of the school system's 18 school buses have been driven more than 118,000 miles. Nine of those 11 buses have been driven more than 132,000 miles.

Each year it gets more expensive to replace parts and repair old buses so they will pass state inspection.

Costs increase from year to year for most businesses. The school is no exception.

Of all federal, state and local taxes and social security contributions, only about seven cents of every dollar goes toward local property taxes.

Opponents contend

Transportation and busing aren't the real issue in this election. They've just been made a tool in seeking an operational millage increase.

Replacing school buses should be, and for many years was, included in the school's general operational budget. That was stopped when the school started spending money previously used to replace buses to cover other costs which the educational establishment not only allows, but encourages, to increase faster than the general rate of inflation and tax revenues.

Letters to the Editor:

Reject tax increase

Editor,

Congratulations on your stand to stop the new taxes by control of spending at our schools. The funds are already available to continue a good transportation system. A new contract will soon be up for negotiations and a good hard look at the run-a-way fringe benefits and inflationary salary schedules can occur if the people will go to the voting booth on October 2nd and vote "no new taxes".

There is no lack of increased funds for our schools. Revenues have risen dramatically since 1982. It's time for restraint on spending. "Read my lips" School Board and Administration members. "NO" to more taxes.

Ken Staley

Berlin's music is American

Irving Berlin died Friday at age 101.

To everyone in my generation, as well as to members of preceding generations, Irving Berlin was music.

I wonder if any of today's rock 'n' rollers could relate to the excitement I experienced in 1939 when Irving Berlin published a song called "God Bless America."

I thought it was the most beautiful piece of music ever written and begged my piano teacher — a woman devoted to the classics — let me play it. She agreed reluctantly and I made tracks for downtown Detroit and Grinnells Music Store to buy the sheet music.

My sister and her friends went into the same kind of rapture in the early 1940s when Irving Berlin wrote "White Christmas." They bought the record and played it on the Victrola until they wore it out.

Irving Berlin couldn't read music, but he played the piano by ear and was one of the most prolific lyricists and composers in the world, with something like 1,500 songs to his credit.

Although he was born in Russia, Berlin's music was peculiarly American. In addition to "God Bless America," he wrote many other patriotic songs, including the macho "Over There" — probably the most popular song to come out of World War I.

During World War II he wrote the official U.S. War Bonds song, "Any Bonds, Today?" and an entire musical about military life called "This Is The Army."

I particularly liked "Any Bonds, Today?" because the sheet music was distributed free to anyone who would play it. I still have two copies in the piano bench.

"This Is The Army" was a fairly popular musical, but Irving Berlin was out of step with the popular jargon of the day. A lot of us teenaged smarty-pants thought it was odd that he insisted on calling GIs "doughboys," a word that went out of vogue with World War I.

But the man who wrote "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Always," and "Easter Parade" never really struck out. His songs were singable and danceable.

Although Irving Berlin was Jewish, his two songs about Christian holidays — "White Christmas" and "Easter Parade" have never lost their appeal.

But maybe I'm mistaken in my estimation of Irving Berlin's importance to the world of music. The Universal Standard Encyclopedia, copyrighted in 1956, doesn't even acknowledge his existence.

I scanned copies of the Detroit Free Press on Saturday and Sunday and didn't see any mention of Irving Berlin's death. The Detroit News gave him only a cursory obituary on Sunday. He was worth a full page at least.

Both papers must be run by teenaged smarty-pants.

"IF ONLY..."

It is a wistful game many Charlevoixans played last week as word spread of the deaths of Bob and Maxine Drenth in an auto accident on Marion Center Road on their way home from church.

"If only they had dawdled at the church door a few seconds longer."

"If only they had stopped at McDonald's for a cup of coffee."

"If only they had decided to go the long way home, through East Jordan and Ellsworth or by way of Atwood."

All of the "If Only" scenarios would have had Bob and Maxine at some spot other than the junction of Marion Center Road and Stover Road at 8:51 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 17, 1989.

Bob and Maxine were loved and respected far beyond the narrow confines of hearth and home and many Charlevoixans, in addition to members of their immediate family, are still struggling to come to grips with the enormity of their loss.

"If only they had stayed home that night and watched television."

"If only their car wouldn't start or they had a flat tire."

As church-going Christians, Bob and Maxine would probably say God had a good reason for putting them where they were that night. Period.

Card-carrying fatalists would say the accident was inevitable.

It is those of us who are neither strong in our faith nor secure in our fatalism who must play "If Only" while we search for answers.

Letters to the Editor:

Property taxes limited and local

Editor,

None of us want to pay higher taxes, unless there is an apparent need.

We have no choice when it comes to paying federal tax, state tax, social security, sales tax, etc. However, we do have a choice when it comes to local property taxes. According to the latest figures, only about seven cents out of every tax dollar goes to local property tax. For the most part, local tax dollars are spent in the local economy on food, housing, cars, clothing, hardware goods, newspapers, insurance and other items.

For most of us, the other taxes are deducted from our pay checks and we become accustomed to our "take home" pay. Our other taxes may be much more significant than local property tax, but because we don't write a check once or twice a year for the total amount, we do not really make an issue of them. On the other hand, we do receive a bill twice a year for local property taxes and therefore, they do get our attention. These taxes are used, among other things, to pave and maintain streets, protect our homes and property, remove snow, and to me most important, educate our children.

Unfortunately, we do have the opportunity to vent our frustrations on the total tax dollar by voting against the seven cents out of the total tax dollar which is used locally for the above mentioned purposes. We can vote for the seven cents which affects our quality of life right here at home, but have little or no say about the other ninety three cents of the remaining tax dollar.

If at anytime, you feel your tax dollars are being misspent in the schools, a visit to the superintendent's office would be in order.

Next Monday, October 2, 1989, you will be asked to improve the transportation fleet by approving .79 of a mill for two years. If the millage passes all revenue from this source will be spent on upgrading the transportation system. If it fails, it will be a matter of spending more money on labor and parts.

If you feel more information is needed prior to making a decision, please call the superintendent of school's office at 547-3200.

Your consideration on this issue is appreciated.

Gordon VanWieren,
Superintendent, Charlevoix Schools

Vote yes on millage request

Editor,

Attn: Charlevoix School District Voter's

On Monday, October 2, the Charlevoix School District will be asking the voters to approve .79 mills for two years to update the bus fleet.

The school district has eighteen (18) buses. Nine (9) of those buses have over 132,000 miles on them. The fleet is getting old and it is time to replace the buses. If the millage passes, the school district plans to upgrade the fleet by purchasing as many buses as possible over the next two years. The buses daily travel about 1,100 miles and transport over 800 students.

Good transportation of our students for educational and extra-curricular activity is important for the community.

Please review the facts before you vote. I am asking you to vote yes on October 2.

Donald R. Voisin

Burleson-Graf

Donna Rose Burleson became the bride of Thomas Ross Graf on Saturday afternoon, August 12, at the First United Methodist Church of Midland.

The bride is the daughter of Dale and Rose Burleson of Midland, and the bridegroom is the son of Ralph and Dorothy Graf of Charlevoix.

Dr. Robert Grigereit officiated at the double ring rites in which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Arrangements of rubrum lilies, white and sterling silver roses, and white gladiolus and a unity candle adorned the altar for the ceremony.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of silk tissue taffeta fashioned with tiered lace-edged full skirt and cathedral train, a bodice of lace, seed pearls, and sequins, and a fingertip veil with silk flowers and pearls. She carried a modified cascade bouquet of white lilies, sweetheart roses, white and sterling silver tea roses, greens, and baby's breath.

Nina Chang assisted the bride as maid of honor, and Lisa Rohde served as bridesmaid. They wore tea-length gowns of daphne rose jacquard taffeta fashioned with a gathered asymetrical bodice, basque waist, and a full skirt. They carried bouquets of lilies and roses.

Brian Sheehy served as best man, and Christopher Barbeau was groomsman. Randy Burleson, brother of the bride, was usher.

The bride's parents hosted a reception at NADA Center of Northwood Institute following the wedding. Disk jockey Terry Lee furnished music for the occasion.

The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at the Midland Holiday Inn.

Both bride and bridegroom are graduates of the University of Michigan with degrees in biomedical sciences and both are currently in their second year of training at the University of Michigan Medical School.

Following a wedding trip to Quebec, the newlyweds are making their home in Ann Arbor.

Jason serves with MASB

East Jordan school board president, Mary Jason, has been re-elected to a three-year term on the board of directors of the Michigan Association of School Boards (MASB).

Jason is a past president of MASB, a non-profit organization that provides leadership training and support services to the state's 4,200 locally elected school board members. This year, she will chair MASB's adhoc committee on educational technology.

"If you want to help make a difference in the quality of education for all students in Michigan, MASB's Board of Directors is the place to be," Jason explains. 'MASB is making the difference in the quality of our boardsmanship.'

As a 12-year veteran of the East Jordan board of education, Jason has served as president for 6 years. She also served as vice-president.

With her reelection, Jason continues an active 8 years of the MASB board of directors. She has also helped at the national level, including National School Board Association (NSBA) Central Region vice-chair, NSBA Resolutions Committee and Federal Relations Network Conference.

People's law school starts

The "Peoples' Law School" is a program to provide basic information about fundamental legal principles to members of the Emmet-Charlevoix County community. It has been offered in various cities throughout Michigan for over 11 years.

It will meet two hours a night from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., for seven weeks starting Tuesday, Oct. 3, 1989. It will be held at North Central Michigan College, Petoskey, Room 122.

The school is sponsored by the Emmet-Charlevoix Bar Association and co-sponsored by the Emmet-Charlevoix Legal Secretaries Association and the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association.

Scheduling is as follows:

Oct. 3-The Courts and How They Operate-Stephen J. Tresidder, Attorney at Law.

Oct. 10-Buying, Selling and Leasing Real Estate-John Rohe, Attorney at Law.

Oct. 17-Estates, Wills and Trusts-Lynn G. Stedman, Attorney at Law.

Oct. 24-Divorce-Domestic Relations-Timothy D. Arner, Attorney at Law.

Oct. 31-Social Security Disability-Edward Waud, Attorney at Law.

Nov. 7-Landlord-Tenant Relations-Kevin G. Klevorn, Attorney at Law.

Nov. 14-Criminal Law, Victim's-Rights, Plea bargaining and Sentencing-Diane M. Smith, Prosecuting Attorney.

The program is open to all residents of Emmet and Charlevoix counties. The total cost of the entire seven week program is only $1. The program is limited to the first 250 who register. Each participant will receive a free Seminar Handbook.

Registration forms can be obtained in Boyne City by calling Timothy D. Arner at 582-6741, or from his office at 110 Water St., P.O. Box 100, Boyne City, MI 49712, or in Petoskey by calling Justis and Buckingham at 347-6580, or from their office at 616 Petoskey St., Suite 201, Petoskey, MI 49770. Checks or money orders should be made payable to Peoples' Law School. Cash is accepted.

Persons who attend five of the seven sessions will receive a certificate. For more information call 582-6741.

Healey-Davis

Mary Healey and Mike Davis enjoy their engagement dinner on a grassy knoll at the Ransom Nature Preserve. Chef Dave Phillips is "doing the honors."

Mike Davis had it all planned. He invited his friend Mary Healey to dinner on the evening of August 22.

Mary thought they were going to eat shrimp at The Argonne, but when Mike drove right past that restaurant with the remark, "They're all filled up," hunger pangs beset her and they didn't get any better as they continued the ride through the countryside.

Eventually, they were at the top of Maple Grove Hill, at the Ransom Nature Preserve, which overlooks miles and miles of land and water.

A dining table complete with white linens and two chairs soon appeared on the grassy knoll and a white-coated chef poured champagne into crystal glasses.

To the stem of Mary's glass was attached a diamond engagement ring, which was duly untied and placed on her finger as she answered, "Yes."

Chef Dave Phillips then proceeded to serve a complete meal, fit for a king as well as lovers.

A sampling of foods from the earth, the ground, the air, and the sea, which Phillips calls a "Traditional New Year's Blessing," cheese and fruit appetizer, tossed Caeser salad with croissant, seafood en brochete (composed of crabmeat, scallops, and shrimp), broccoli and cauliflower served with Hollandaise Sauce, and strawberry cheesecake.

The sunset over Lake Michigan that evening was golden red and the sun seemed to linger longer than usual before dropping into the water. Mary and Mike watched until it was out of sight and darkness covered the hillside.

Mary, who works for District Health Department No. 3., and Mike, who is Charlevoix County Director of Recreational Activities, plan to be married next year.

Shop benefits hospital

by PEG OHLE

There's a little specialty shop in Charlevoix that not only sells special items but provides a special service.

It is The Showcase gift shop in the Charlevoix Area Hospital, run by the Hospital Guild. The shop, which is stocked with a variety of small items for adults and children, was started several years ago as a convenient place for persons visiting a patient to stop and buy a little rememberance for the patient. The general public has since "found" The Showcase and many people make special shopping trips to buy birthday, Christmas, and other special occasion gifts.

The Showcase is run by volunteers who purchase the merchandise and work as salespersons. Profits from Showcase sales are used to buy needed equipment for the hospital. Recent items purchased by the hospital with Showcase money include a blood bank refrigerator, instruments for eye surgery, and infusion pumps.

Patti Moore was recently appointed co-ordinator of Showcase activities and also buys jewelry and other gift items for the shop. Hospital surroundings are not new to Moore, who worked for several years as a medical technologist. Other buyers are Sue Gettinger, for children's items, and Marge Dinwiddie, for candy and flowers. Jewelry is the most popular item sold in The Showcase, these workers agree.

A quick survey of gift items in The Showcase reveals stuffed animals, books, games, crayons and coloring books, and doll clothes among gifts for children. For adults, there are greeting cards, playing cards, stationery, candies, hair ornaments, jewelry, Kleenex, and tins of aspirin.

This year, The Showcase became the sole Charlevoix distributor of Wintergreen Herbs and Potpourri, whose gardens are located between Charlevoix and Petoskey.

The Showcase is like most volunteer undertakings: It needs more help. It needs salespeople to work three-hour shifts (10 to 1, 1 to 4, and 6:30 to 8) twice a month, or more if possible. Sunday and evening help is especially needed. Jo Cannan is in charge of volunteers for The Showcase. Anyone with even a little time to give is invited to call her at 547-5512.

Patti Moore is the new coordinator of The Showcase gift shop at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. The shop will have its annual Christmas Showing Nov. 3 and 4.

Local women who are now on The Showcase list of volunteers are Opal Barrett, Janet Buchanan, Jo Cannan, Marge Coleman, Loretta Conine, Marge Dinwiddie, Myrtle Fulton, Virginia Gebeau, and Sue Gettinger.

Also, Rebecca Haney, Ella Ingalls, Helen Juilleret, Stephanie Krell, Margaret Landman, Doris Lundteigen, Mary Malpass, Ester Miles, Jeanne Miles, Patti Moore, Keith Morris, Hazel Murray, Sally Ochs, Rita Orlowski, Ann Racignol, Virginia Rountree, Eleanor Schultz, Bertha Smith, Dorothy Smith, Joyce Totten, Nan VanderBerg, Nancy Abfelter, and Eileen Sutherland.

WW II vets renite in Charlevoix

Their most recent gathering took place under far more pleasant circumstances than their first.

Sept. 7-9, a group of 15 men from 11 states gathered in Charlevoix for a reunion. They shared memories from more than 40 years ago when they served together in World War II on a patrol boat in the South Pacific.

Bruce Henley of Charlevoix was 22 years old when he served on PC 1120. He offered his hometown as a host community for his World War II shipmates who came from Illinois, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Colorado, Florida, Rhode Island, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota, North Carolina and Idaho to attend the event.

Henley said he was aboard PC 1120 for 28 months. The 173 foot ship spent much of that time in the South Pacific and saw plenty of action.

While in Charlevoix, the veterans and their spouses headquartered at the Edgewater Inn. Each of the men got a PC 1120 cap. In between reminiscing, the crew found time to tour Department of Natural Resources fishery boat "Steelhead," the U.S. Coast Guard Lifeboat Station and Consumers Big Rock Point nuclear power plant. They also ate at Alexander's and Nannys restaurants.

Henley said that as far as he knew none of the men had visited Charlevoix before, but he noted, "They all expressed a desire to come back."

Bruce Henley, top left in the checked jacket, hosted several of his WWII shipmates at a reunion which recently took place in Charlevoix.

K-5 school plans grandparents day

Grandparents of Charlevoix Elementary School students be advised: the school's annual grandparents luncheon is scheduled for 11 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. Friday, Oct. 6.

The luncheon is one of the school's most popular events and provides grandparents with an opportunity to visit their grandchildren at school. Tickets for adults cost $2 and may be purchased at the elementary school office through Oct. 4.

Due to limitations on the number of people who can be accommodated, the school asks that only grandparents attend. However, if grandparents are unable to attend, substitutes are welcome.

CHURCH

Assembly hosts missionaries

Charlevoix Assembly of God church will hold its annual missionary convention starting the week of Sunday, October 1 through October 8. Rev. Lowell Anderson says this year's theme is "Now Unto Harvest, While It Is Day."

On Sunday, October 1, the Jim Peterson's will be ministering in both services. The Peterson family has served with the Assemblies of God missionary program in Tanzania, East Africa.

Wednesday, October 4, emphasis will be placed on missions right in our own backyard. There will be a service at 7 p.m. with a light snack and fellowship afterward.

Sunday, October 8 at 10:30 a.m. our director of Michigan District of Foreign Missions, Rev. Ernie Zelch will be speaking. A very special communion service will be held followed by an international fellowship dinner. Otto Wagner, Home Missions-Urban Church Planting, will be the guest speaker.

For more information call 547-6530.

The Jim Peterson family, missionaries who have served in Africa, will be the guests of the Assembly of God Church this weekend.

OF BLESSINGS

When you think of radical you perhaps think of a long-haired, unkempt individual marching in protest against perceived injustices of one sort or another. Radicals, by nature and definition, depart from the norm, disturb the status quo, and make us uncomfortable. We often feel negatively about them and sometimes outright hostile toward them.

Interestingly, one generation's radicals often become another generation's heroes! Martin Luther King Jr, just to cite an example and illustrate my point, was viewed by many as a radical in his time but today few would dispute that the causes he championed and the injustices he challenged have resulted in some very positive changes in American society. As I view the history of the World War II era, England's Winston Churchill was considered by many as a radical yet is seen in retrospect as a key factor in the survival of his nation and the triumph of the allied forces against the tyranny of Nazism and cruel dictatorship.

A true Christian is a radical! Like the radical Jesus Christ, of whom we are disciples, we stand against the "establishments" of a world which operates in contradiction to His divine nature and in opposition to the commandments of His word. Jesus' words like "turn the other cheek", "if someone asks for your coat give him your shirt too" was then and is now a radical departure from the norms of society. "Love your neighbor as yourself" is just as radical today as it was to those original disciples when He spoke it.

Yes, Jesus Christ was a radical and so His followers must be also. Though we may depart from what have unfortunately become the norms in our society, though we disturb some by threatening their status quo, we have a Lord to follow and a cause to champion that is worth giving all our heart, soul, mind, and strength to. Be a radical. Time and eternity are both in our favor!

Ethel M. Rice

Ethel M. Rice, 87, of Charlevoix, died Sept. 13, 1989, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility, East Jordan.

A memorial service was held Sept. 16 at Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. The Rev. Aubrey Donahue of The Faith Community Church of Massillon, Ohio, officiated. Interment and graveside services will be at 4 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 20, at Chestnut Hill Cemetery, Salisbury, N.C.

The former Ethel M. Link was born May 3, 1902, in Salisbury, N.C., the daughter of John C. and Esther R. (Reeves) Link. She grew up in Salisbury and married William Y. Allen in 1923. They moved to Newport News, Va. in 1929 and Mr. Allen preceded her in death in 1954. She then married Judson Rice in 1958 in Newport News and he preceded her in death in 1964.

In 1970, Mrs. Rice retired from the dietary department of Riverside Hospital in Newport News where she had worked for 15 years. She moved to Charlevoix in 1982.

Mrs. Rice is survived by: one son, William J. Allen of Newport News, Va.; one daughter, Jewell Crickenberger of Charlevoix; seven grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; one brother, Robert Link of Salisbury, N.C.

Eleanor M. Snyder

Mrs. Eleanor M. Snyder, 68, of Charlevoix died Sept. 24, 1989 at the Little Traverse Division, Northern Michigan Hospitals.

The former Eleanor M. Miller was born March 20, 1921 in Flint the daughter of William and Elizabeth (Liscomb) Miller. She moved to Saginaw as a child and graduated in 1939 from Arthur Hill High School.

She was employed at Lutheran Social Services of Michigan for 28 years, retiring in 1983.

She married Russell J. Snyder on Dec. 14, 1940. The couple has made their home in Charlevoix since 1983.

Mrs. Snyder was a member of St. James Lutheran Church in Saginaw.

She is survived by her husband, Russell; one son and daughter-in-law, Russell and Judy Snyder of Perrysburg, Ohio; one daughter, Karen Vassell of New Paltz, N.Y.; two grandchildren, Erica and Jacquelin Synder; several nieces and nephews.

Funeral for Mrs. Snyder will be held at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 27, at St. James Lutheran Church, Saginaw with the Rev. Lyle Kleman officiating. Burial will take place at Eastlawn Memorial Gardens, Saginaw.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to St. James Lutheran Church of Saginaw or to the American Lung Association. Envelopes for either purpose are available at the W.L. Case and Company Funeral Chapel, 409 Adams St., Saginaw where friends may call from 3-5 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 26. Friends may also call from 12:30 p.m. until the time of service on Wednesday, Sept. 27, at the church.

Soviet visitors will have full schedule

The four Soviet visitors who will be in Charlevoix from September 28 to October 3 will be guests of honor at a public reception at the Grey Gables Inn from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday evening, September 30.

The host committee hopes many local residents will take advantage of this opportunity to talk and listen to the two men and two women who are traveling through the United States under the sponsorship of "Soviets, Meet Middle America". Three of them speak English.

Soft drinks and finger food will be included in the $3.50 ticket price. Student tickets will be $2.

Many other special events and informal meetings are scheduled for the five days the Soviets are in the area.

Included are walks around town, stopping in stores, going to public buildings, and viewing our waterfronts. The Zonta Club will conduct the city tour Friday afternoon, following visits to the Medusa Cement Plant, Big Rock, and Lexalite.

Saturday morning there will be a press and media session in the Weathervane Terrace at 10 a.m.

On Sunday morning, two of the visitors will go to services at the Congregational Church and two will attend the Community Reformed Church. Lunch at Stafford's Bay View Inn will precede a trip to the Mackinac Bridge in the afternoon.

On Monday, the Soviet visitors will go through the three Charlevoix schools, talking and listening to the students. They will also observe people at the voting booths casting their ballots on the school millage proposition.

Monday noon the four service clubs will have a joint meeting for the visitors. This will be followed by trips to the fire station and a court session. At 3 p.m., they will board the Star of Charlevoix for a dinner cruise. Anyone wishing to join the group on the cruise is welcome to do so, but reservations should be made in advance at the Star of Charlevoix office.

There will be two private dinners for the Soviets, one in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Wiemer, and the other in Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Pair's Weathervane Inn condominium. Ten to 20 local persons will be invited to each dinner.

The Dennis VanGuilders and the Ronald Pair family will provide lodging and breakfast for the visitors for their five nights in Charlevoix. Both families have three children.

Charlevoix's Soviet guests will arrive at the Pellston Airport at 3:30 p.m. Thursday, September 28, from Evergreen, Colorado, another of their host cities. They will depart for Washington Tuesday, October 3, at 11:15 from the Pellston Airport.

Further information about the Soviet visitors and their activities is available from Ralph McRae, 547-6764; Donald Danneeker, 547-2629; or Darrel Linder, 547-4708.

Sex ed material may be reviewed

Parents of sixth grade students will have an opportunity to review materials used by the school to teach sex education and reproductive health. The parental review session is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 28 at the Charlevoix Middle School Library.

All sixth grade students are eligible to participate in the course. By law, parents have a right to review course materials and to excuse their children from participating in portions of the course which deal with reproductive health or family planning instruction.

Parents who wish to excuse their children from that segment of the course are asked to send written notice to the Charlevoix Middle School. For additional information, call 547-3206.

Recyclers host monthly meeting

The Recyclers Support Group will meet at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 27 at North Central Michigan College.

A representative of Waste Management Inc. will discuss local recycling possibilities.

A video titled "Waste Management As If The Future Mattered," will also be shown.

The public is welcome to attend and join the discussion. For additional information, call Recycle North at 347-0314.

Vital Options purchased

Candy Smith has purchased Vital Options North. Smith has worked for Vital Options for nearly 10 years as an aerobics instructor, area coordinator in Northern Michigan and in training Vital Options instructors across the street.

Smith reached a verbal agreement last September to purchase Vital Options North, but it took several months to get the paperwork in place.

Along with total body conditioning classes, Vital Options North also offers "Hips 'N Thi's" classes, tots, teens and "Lite" classes.

Smith was certified by The Aerobics and Fitness Foundation of America in January 1987, by America's Certification Trainers in March of 1987 and by the International Dance Exercise Association in April 1987. Since 1987, she has updated her certifications.

Vital Options North emphasizes exercise and wellness and recognizes that sound nutrition plays a role in both.

The fall kickoff for Vital Options North includes a total body conditioning program in four communities with 20 classes being offered each week in the home studio in Charlevoix.

The one-hour program includes a warm-up and pre-aerobic stretch before the mostly low-impact aerobic segment (which lasts from 20-28 minutes.) After cooling down and more gentle stretching, the focus shifts to muscle strength and endurance, maintaining a priority on back care techniques.

The program is designed and tested so that it can be done at a variety of intensity levels. The noon hour class in Charlevoix offers a 40-minute program (no aerobics) which focuses on stretch and strength.

Programs which are new to vital options this fall include: a weight loss support group facilitated by Donna Smith; and a walk and talk program.

School budgets from the old Undine School District

by PEG OHLE

School budget-balancing isn't easy, as the Charlevoix Board of Education has learned in recent years, but it never has been from the time schools came to Charlevoix County. The figures look bigger now, but considering available funds now and in earlier years, the problems were much the same.

One hundred years ago, Charlevoix County School District No. 3, the Undine School in Hayes Township, spent $581.28 to build a school house. The cost of the building was $536, plus "two privies, $30, paint for same, $2.00, and $2.25 for three gallons of oil and $1.00 to oil the floor". The year ended with a balance of 72 cents.

There is no indication in school district minutes that there was any objection to these expenditures as the school district embarked on over 68 years of educating its children, from raising funds to hiring teachers, to buying school supplies and wood for heat, taking the school census, and year after year living within its meager budgets.

The moneys spent for school operations over the years reveal the pace of progress in education and school operation:

In 1892, the purchase of a dictionary for $8.50, in $897 fire insurance for $11.00, and in 1905, a well and pump for $92.50. Before the pump was installed, students, teachers, or nearby neighbors were paid to haul water to the schoolhouse.

In 1915, the district school board purchased "one clock for children" at $3.64; in 1916, paid Sears, Roebuck $45.30 for seats; and in 1917 made the first recorded payment to the Teachers Retirement Fund, $1.17.

The year 1917 was an important one, the year a telephone was installed. It cost, including some "chalk", $2.02.

By 1920, the school's expenditures reached $1,000 for the year, the first time in four figures.

In 1924, Undine School students were treated to $55 worth of "books" from F. E. Compton, probably encyclopedias. Even the smallest expenditures were being recorded in 1916, with $2.00 for drawing paper and $1.75 for "paste and a broom".

In the year 1919, the 40-year-old school house apparently needed repairs. The district spent $80.72 for new flooring, $50 for laying it, $272.65 for a new furnace, $20.75 for desks, $97.10 for chairs, and $28.50 for maps. And; to top it all off, they bought a Victrola for $70.

The cost of wood for heating the school house and teachers' salaries were the biggest monthly expenses of operating the school from the very beginning. The wood was always bought from area residents, with beech and maple usually requested. In the early days, it was bought and paid for in small quantities, from $1.00 up. As time went on, annual contracts were let, as in 1928, when H. C. Stephens was paid $52.50 for the year's supply.

Despite the earlier repairs, the old school house was apparently doomed by 1932, when the Undine School District sold its school property to the Charlevoix County Board Commission for $200 and bought two acres from Joseph Halstead for $100. This is the location of the building today, across from the Undine Cemetery on the Boyne City Road.

In 1933, the school purchased a shipment of coal for $12.00, the only such purchase noted in the minutes. During the depression year 1933, they bought $5.04 worth of books for one family's children, white noting that $172.84 of school funds were "impounded in bank". However, the same year they spent $3.00 to repair the organ (which must have been given to the school).

The teacher, Margaret Hurd, received $25 a month for teaching in 1934, less than the $50 Sue Bala received in 1908. The depression was on!

There was enough money in 1936, however, to pay $330.13 for a septic system and $16.90 to Sears for kitchen furniture. On the other hand, perhaps they borrowed this money because in 1937 they paid $125.00 to the Charlevoix County State Bank for "payment on loan".

In 1939, electricity came to the Undine School at a cost of $64.50 for wiring and fixtures. It was also the year a flag pole was bought for $10.

State School Aid found its way to Undine in 1941, when $268.95 was received.

The year 1942 was the last one that District No. 3 school children were taught in their own school. They were about to enter the Charlevoix or Boyne City school systems.

In 1943, School District No. 3 paid $30.05 to the Charlevoix School District for tuition of students and $275.00 to the Boyne City School District. The next year, the cost of transportation was added to the tuition bills–$99.68 to Charlevoix and $174.00 to Boyne City. That same year, the School District sold its piano for $50.

By 1952, there were 12 District No. 3 students in the Charlevoix school system, for which the district paid $60.00 each for grades kindergarten through six and $94.00 for grades eight and nine. Transportation for each student cost $45.00 additional.

The District No. 3 school board carried on its duties of collecting moneys and paying bills until the school house and grounds were sold during the 1956-1957 school year for $262.50.

During the years, a long list of district residents took turns handling school affairs, and a long list of teachers (almost all young women) worked faithfully year after year to provide a basic education for over-large and diversified classes.

The number of students varied considerably from year to year. Consider a teacher listed as "Miss Groeseneck", who was paid $45.00 a month in 1916 to each 48 students. There were 30 girls and 18 boys, ranging in age from 19 to five. Occasionally, a teacher also took on janitorial duties, for which she received a small additional stipend.

While present-day school boards have their "work cut out for them", it is probably not as hard as was the work of earlier, smaller boards. In the old days, a board member traveled around the district to learn the ages of all children who would be in school the next year. He reported to the board, who then proceeded to lay plans for collecting enough tax money to keep those children in school.

In the earliest days, it is possible that available tax money had something to do with shorter school years, since teachers were paid by the month. In 1893, the school year was nine months; in 1894, eight months; in 1895, five months; in 1897, six months; and in 1915 it was back to nine months.

Anyway, someone else collects the school tax money these days, but the school system has to "sell" the public on its need.

(Thanks to Clayton Smith of Hayes Township, a former moderator of the Undine School District, for a peek at the records).

People encouraged to recycle oil

As environmental awareness is increasing in households across America, so is the trend to recycle more and more of our waste. Congress is presently addressing ways to recycle discarded oil which is dumped down the drain, into sewers and into the trash each year.

Every year Americans dispose of more than 400 million gallons of used oil. To put that figure in perspective, it is about 40 times the amount of the Valdez, Alaska oil spill. The problem is that people do not know how to properly dispose of used oil. As Congress deals with the oil recycling issue, one of the considerations is that the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) conduct a public education campaign on proper disposal of used household oils. Small businesses and the public in general should be better informed of ways to safely dispose of used oil.

Ninety-five percent of used automobile oil from do-it-yourself mechanics winds up either in storm drains or in landfills. Much of this oil could be recycled and reused. However, one problem with recycling used oil is that it now costs more to recycle than to produce new oil.

To address the needless, wasteful and environmentally dangerous disposal of used oil, Congress is considering using market incentives to lower the cost of recycling. For example, oil manufacturers could be encouraged to buy back recycled oil or buy recycling credits to show that a certain percentage of their products were made from recycled oils. These types of incentive programs are also being considered for lead acid batteries, tires, pesticides, antifreeze, and some solvents.

The possibility of directing the EPA to remove household oil from its list of hazardous wastes is also being discussed. This designation discourages community collection projects because of the expense and risk of liability associated with hazardous waste handling. The cost of depositing the oil in hazardous waste receptacles as well as the inconvenience of complying with special regulations are burdens not even the most environmentally conscious citizens want to assume. The result is that most used oil just gets dumped down the drain or thrown into the trash.

Congress also is considering having the federal government purchase used oil where it is an acceptable substitute for unused petroleum products. This would save taxpayers money while having a positive effect on the environment.

Too much waste oil winds up in our rivers, streams and lakes. Recycling is really the safest way to handle this problem.

Charlevoix Boy Scout Troop 11 canoed on the Manistee River Sept. 15-17. Fourteen scouts were accompanied by four adults on the trip. In the left canoe are Fritz Sommerfeld (front) and James Pfluecke. In the right canoe are (front) John Chase and Gary Arnold.

East Jordan Garden Club tours preserve

The East Jordan Garden Club met Sept. 18, and carpooled to the 500 acre Grass Bay Preserve, on Lake Huron in Cheboygan County. The preserve was purchased by the Federated Garden Club. Eighty acres were purchased last year with assistance from the East Jordan Garden Club.

The preserve is a haven for wildflowers, birds, and trees. A hike was conducted by the preserve director, Dave Evert, and assisted by Lyn Scringer. Lunch was enjoyed at the Cheboygan State Park, adjacent to the preserve.

Football team still undefeated

Sure, the going supposedly gets tougher for Charlevoix's football team in coming weeks. But they've heard that before, yet they're still undefeated at 4-0.

Charlevoix traveled to Grayling last Friday evening and spotted the Vikings a touchdown before putting the offense into overdrive and going on to a 31-13 win.

Once the Rayder running game got started Friday night it rolled over the Vikings like one of those tanks that frequent the Grayling neighborhood.

Charlevoix totalled 406 yards rushing. Jason Corwin picked up 173 yards, a nice total for two games, let alone one. Scott Campbell picked up a nice round 100 yards while James Corwin ran for 90 yards.

Charlevoix's first score came with just less than three minutes left in the first quarter when Dan Terryberry scored on a one-yard quarterback sneak. Terryberry kicked the extra point.

In the second quarter, the Rayder's Pat Elliot recovered a fumble on the Grayling 15 yard line. Charlevoix capitalized on the turnover a few plays later when Terryberry again scored on a short quarterback sneak. The extra point attempt was blocked.

Midway through the third quarter, Jason Corwin scored on an eight-yard run. The extra point attempt failed.

Charlevoix wrapped up the game in the fourth quarter with a second touchdown run by Corwin and a touchdown run by Campbell.

Defensively, Elliott had seven solo tackles and eight assists. Campbell had three solo tackles and six assists. Tony Warchol had three quarterback sacks.

Rayder coaches credited the Rayder linemen for excellent play. Gusty winds made passing difficult and therefore controlling the line of scrimmage was even more important than usual.

Cross country domination continues

Flat out dominating. It's the only suitable way to describe the Charlevoix boys cross country team's performance at the Petoskey McDonald's-Optimist Cross Country Invitational this past Saturday.

Charlevoix placed four runners among the top five finishers in the varsity Class C-D race for upperclassmen. And Rayder sophomore Mike Sevenski turned in a time of 18:16 in the underclassmen race which would have placed him fifth among the C-D upperclassmen.

Defending Class C cross country state champion Scott Miller, coming off a pre-season injury, was the top C-D runner with a time of 17:11. Other Rayders finishing in the top echelon and their times were: Bill Crook 17:52; Paul Wakulat 18:12; Gehry Wiesner 18:18; Matt Stargardt 18:43.

In the girls Class C-D upper class race, only East Jordan and Charlevoix fielded complete teams. East Jordan came out on top by a score of 43-45.

Sutton Bay's Jane Cookman was the top individual finisher. East Jordan's Holly Johnson placed second and Charlevoix's Julie Bush third. Bush finished with a time of 21:38.

Charlevoix golfer Randy Wurst prepares to drive during a golf match last week. The Rayders beat Harbor Springs in both varsity and junior varsity play.

Basketball team fades in second half, loses 40-29

Charlevoix's varsity basketball team faded in the second half in losing their sixth straight game, 40-29 to Petoskey.

The visiting Rayders led Petoskey 20-13 at halftime, but nine second half points were too few to hold the lead.

Early in the game, the Rayders Melissa Boss dominated Petoskey's players underneath the basket and scored Charlevoix's first ten points. At the end of the first quarter the score was Boss and Petoskey tied at six.

The second quarter was Charlevoix's strongest. They Rayders outscored Petoskey 14-7 to build a seven point halftime lead.

But in the second half the Rayder offense withered and turned to dust. Charlevoix scored a dismal five points in the third quarter and an even more dismal four points in the fourth quarter.

Leading Charlevoix's scoring, what there was of it, was Boss with 16 points for the game and Sandy Fershee with 10 points. The only other Rayder to score was Paula Pittman who hit a three-point shot.

Charlevoix's junior varsity lost a nail-biter 39-37. For the Rayders, Shiela Siegwart scored 16 points and Gina Webster 12.

Golf team defeats Harbor Springs 179-199

Charlevoix's varsity golf team defeated Harbor Springs 179-199 Sept. 26 at the Harbor Point Golf Club.

Josh Hastings and Luke LaBlance of Charlevoix shared medalist honors scores of 43. Rounding out the Rayder scores were Randy Wurst with a 45, Jordan Spencer with a 48 and Corey Crain with a 51.

The top Harbor Springs golfer shot a 45.

Charlevoix also took the junior varsity match be a score of 227-239. For the Rayders, Doug Sineway shot a 52, Jason Voorheis 56, Wayne Joy 57, Travis Blissett 62 and Josh Scheels 64.

Yachting Notes

"Hugo this way, we go that way!" spelled on the back of a northbound South Carolina car is the phrase for the week, and pretty much describes the intensity of mother nature this hurricane season. Some of those winds must've been bestowed upon us (finally!), with sunny skies this week for ideal sailing conditions!

The Apprentice made it back this week taking line honors in the A fleet and overall. Close behind were Mint Julip and Flash.

Tireless in fleet B "pulled it out of the hat" with a win and a third overall (even over the J-boats!). Following up, it was Sand Piper, Foxy Lady, Kittywake, Original Sin, Blasen and Lost Vermonter.

After being pushed over the starting line early, Newsense rerounds and finishes first, with Bandit and Sizzle (how 'bout that "mast to beam"!) within ten seconds, then Allons Y, HS Moisture, and the Mud Duck.

Jaming it up with Cabaret boat speeding up to first, with Stalworth, Hot Mustard, Apothecary, Maureen, Cheemaun, Canusa and Son Rise.

The Sunday series has finally been decided and will be from October 1st thru October 15th, with two 4-leg races the first two weeks and one 6-leg race the last. Starting time will be at one o'clock, and a skippers meeting planned for 7 o'clock Friday evening September 29th at CYC. A jam fleet and spinnaker fleet will be included and racing instructions can be picked up at CYC, Irish or Gleasons.

Don't forget that hot food and beverages are still being served after Wednesday night sailing, and the doors are open 'til whenever to get together for whatever on Friday evenings!

Notice of Public Hearing on Increasing Property Taxes

The Board of Commissioners of the County of Charlevoix will hold a public hearing on a proposed increase of .3877 mills in the operating tax millage rate to be levied in 1989.

The hearing will be held on Wednesday, October 11, 1989 at 10:30 a.m. o'clock in the a.m. at County Building Annex, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

If adopted, the proposed additional millage will increase operating revenues from ad valorem property taxes 8.77% over such revenues generated by levies permitted without holding a hearing.

The taxing unit publishing this notice, and identified below, has complete authority to establish the number of mills to be levied from within its authorized millage rate.

This notice is published:

CHARLEVOIX CITY COUNCIL
REGULAR MEETING
September 18, 1989
7:00 p.m.
SYNOPSIS

Charlevoix City Council met in regular session on the above date and time with Mayor Probert presiding and all Councilmembers present.

Mayor requested a few moments of silence in memory of Bob and Maxine Drenth.

INQUIRY INTO POTENTIAL CONFLICTS OF INTEREST: Mr. Les Turner suggested that Mayor Probert and Councilman Probert may be in conflict of interest in the discussion of Mr. Turner's request to re-zone the property he is purchasing from Oscar Stroud. After questioning by City Attorney, it was determined there would be no conflict.

Minutes of September 5th meeting approved.

PUBLIC HEARING: REQUEST FOR REZONING FROM M-H & SR TO R-4, Stroud's Wayside Motel requested by Les Turner.

Mr. Turner reported on the progress of his application to re-zone the property and the reasons he feels the property should be zoned R-4 to allow 157 units per his Site Plan.

The audience was given the opportunity to state their views regarding the rezone. City Attorney informed Council of the possible options.

Motion to return the Application to the Planning Commission with the stipulation that the Applicant should furnish the information requested by the Planning Commission or the application will be denied. Approved unanimously.

FINE ARTS PAVILLION discussion was cancelled by request of the committee.

NANNY'S LEASE CONTRACT AND DEVELOPMENT PLAN reviewed and motion to authorize the City Manager to execute a Lease Agreement to include Liability and Indemnity stipulations acceptable to the City Attorney and to approve the revised Site Plan as presented. YEAS: Russell, Potter, Haggard, Whitley & Muma. NAYS: Probert

ELM STREET RELOCATION DISCUSSION was postponed at the request of Charlevoix Reformed Church.

CONTRACT FOR INDUSTRIAL PARK GRANT FOR PAVING approved unanimously.

Bills/Payroll totalling $306,138.36 approved as presented.

Received a report on the City Flag Contest.

Meeting adjourned at 10:05 p.m.

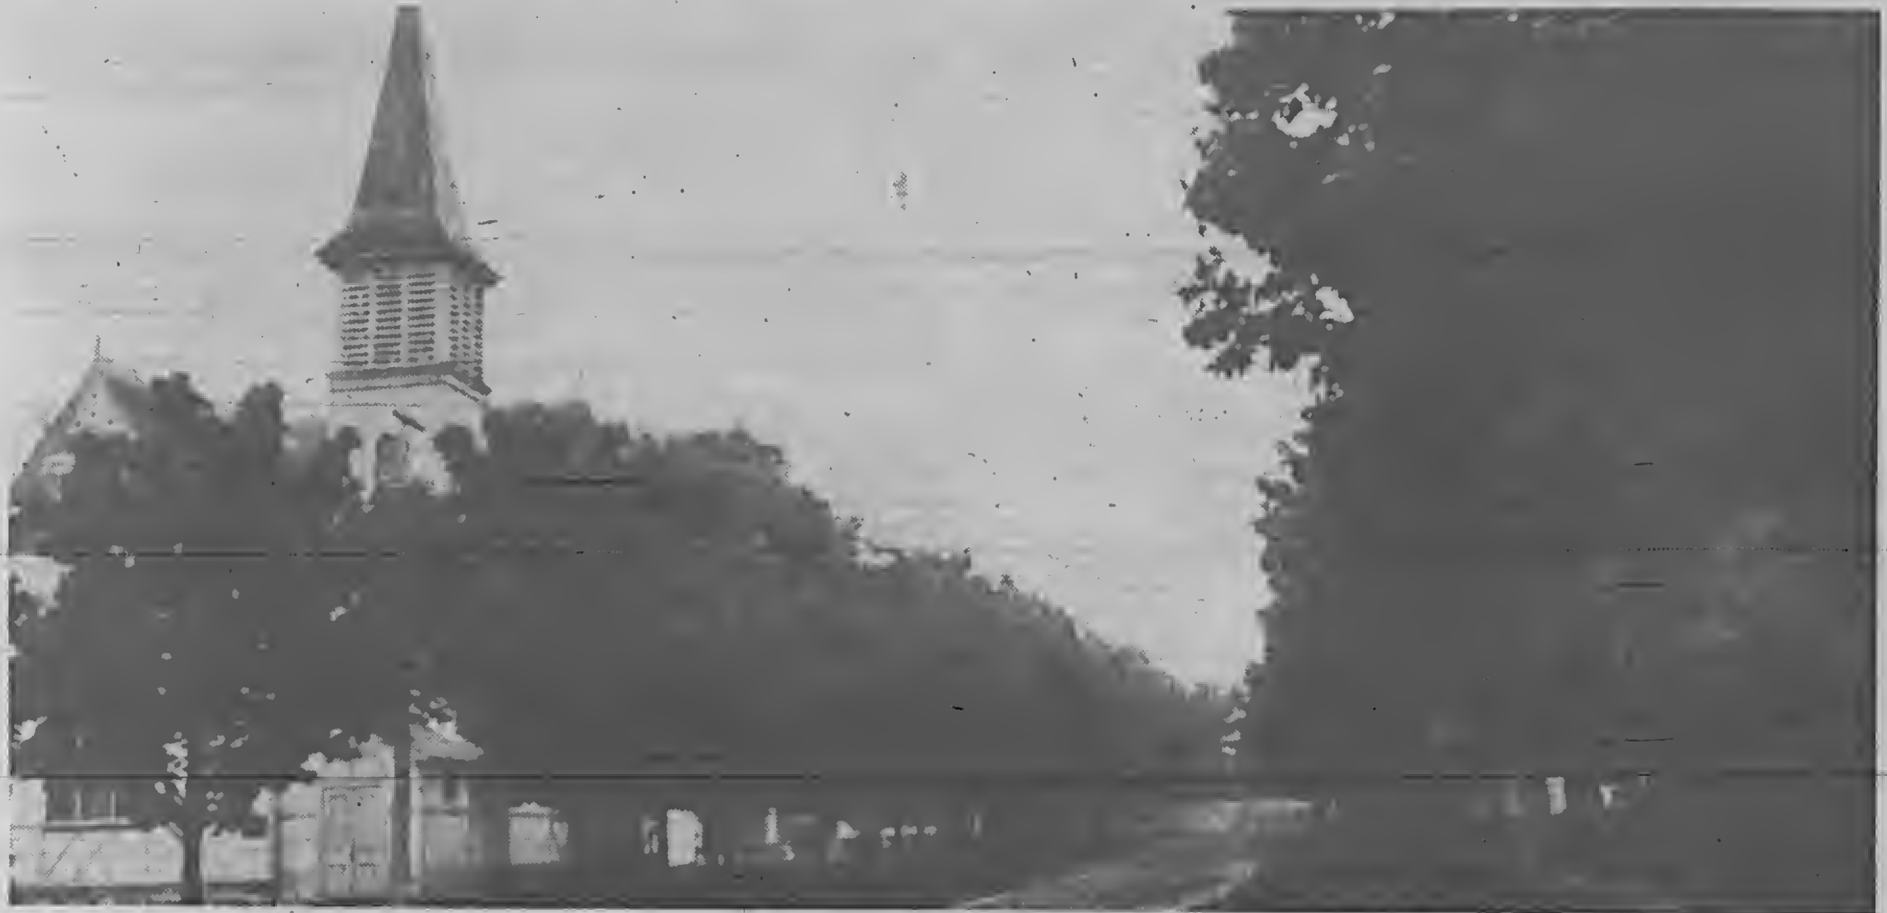
SCRAPBOOK



The street wasn't paved, but the trees along Park Avenue were in full leaf when this picture of the Congregational Church was taken. The picture appeared in the 1900 promotion book of the Charlevoix Board of Commerce. (Picture courtesy of Virginia Emery.) Our thanks to the many "oldtimers" who told us that the fire pictured in last week's Scrapbook burned down the old Charlevoix Hotel on Bridge Street June 7, 1935. With the hotel gone, Round Lake came into view, planting the idea for a park down to the water's edge. That was the beginning of East Park, with the city buying up other buildings as they became available.

Sidewalks and streets discussed

Discussion focused on city sidewalks and streets during Monday evening's city council meeting.

Regarding construction currently taking place on Bridge Street, councilman Earl Muma asked if more work than originally planned can be done this fall. Muma said he would like to avoid a repeat next fall of the disruption of business and traffic which is currently taking place.

City manager Mike Wiesner said the city has talked to the contractor about getting as much work as possible done as soon as possible. Wiesner also noted that work on the east side of Bridge should go faster than work on the west side. He said work planned for the east side is less complicated and the contractor will benefit from the experience of the west side.

City councilmen also approved installing some larger water lines and additional fire hydrants in conjunction with the downtown work. The lines and hydrants will be placed along Mason and Clinton Streets on the block between Bridge and State Streets. The lines will offer the downtown area better fire protection. Cost of the lines is not to exceed $33,186.

On another construction project the city is currently in the midst of, councilmen approved additional funds to complete sidewalk work in residential areas.

Councilman approved increasing the original contract for sidewalk work from $225,000 to $340,000. The increase will allow the Champagne and Marx construction firm to do not only the originally specified work, but to go ahead and complete the rest of the sidewalk work specified in the city infrastructure program.

According to Wiesner, all of the city's specified residential sidewalk work should be completed by the end of next year.

In approving the increased work the council also specified that a sidewalk be constructed along Garfield Street from the senior citizen apartment complex to the end of the present Garfield Street sidewalk between Bridge and State Streets.

In a matter concerning streets, representatives of the Community Reformed Church appeared before the council requesting that Elm Street be relocated.

Plans formulated by the church in conjunction with discussions with the city planning commission propose to move the west end of Elm Street south toward Cherry Street.

Moving the street would allow the church building and also keep the parking lot on the same side of the street as the church.

Warren Shapton, who lives at 107 Cherry Street, said he objects to the plan. Councilman Norm Probert noted that members of several other churches in the community have to cross streets from where they park to go to church.

Mayor Gary Probert suggested that church representatives talk to all of the neighbors living near the church and then return to the council. The council supported that suggestion.

School millage proposal passes by 26 votes

Charlevoix school district voters passed a .79 of a mill increase Monday by a vote of 556 to 530.

The increase will be for two years and will net the school approximately $355,351 which will be used to purchase several new school buses, a van and possibly a pick-up.

Prior to the election, school officials estimated that the money will allow the school to purchase approximately eight new school buses, depending upon price figures when bids are received.

The passage the .79 of a mill proposal follows the defeat of a similar proposal for .90 of a mill in June. That proposal included funds to build a bus garage and was defeated 588 to 486.

A mill is $1 per every $1,000 of State Equalized Evaluation (SEV). A property's SEV is calculated to be one half of its market value.

Charlevoix to help victims of Hugo

Charlevoix is helping Sommerville, South Carolina victims of hurricane Hugo.

At Monday evening's city council meeting, Sommerville was proclaimed a sister city of Charlevoix. In an effort to help the residents of Sommerville, goods will be collected at the Assembly of God Church until Friday.

Friday afternoon a Way Transportation Company semi truck will leave for Sommerville. The truck will carry goods to help victims of Hugo.

Among the items most needed are baby supplies, food, building materials and charcoal.

Ralph McRae, Charlevoix Host Coordinator for the visitors from the Soviet Union, is shown with Ludimila Hitkova, Valery Drannikov, Dave Knight, local Press Coordinator, Natalia Moskalera, and Daniel Serebrennikov.

Soviets visit Charlevoix

by PEG OHLE

The two men and two women walked along the North Channel to the pier and back to Bridge Street and East Park last Friday afternoon.

Passersby did not turn their heads and apparently no one around saw anything different about the group.

Valerie Drannikov, Ludimila Hitkova, Natalia Moskalera, and Daniel Serebrennikov from the Soviet Union blended into the scene, as do visitors from the many tour buses who come to Charlevoix each year.

Members of the Charlevoix Zonta Club who were escorting the Soviets on their "walk around town" could have been showing the city to a group of school teachrs from Minneapolis.

On other occasions during the five days the Soviets spent in Charlevoix, they easily participated in the many events—eductional, ceremonial, and social—planned for them.

At a Saturday morning press conference, with Hitkova assisting as interpreter, they told of the increased freedom in their country following the ascendency of Mikhail Gorbachev. They also expressed hope for continued improvement of relationships between the United States and the Soviet Union, now tht George Bush is at the helm.

In answer to a pointed social question, the Soviets admitted to having drug and alcohol (mostly the latter) problems among their young people. They also confessed they did not quite know what to do about it.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION

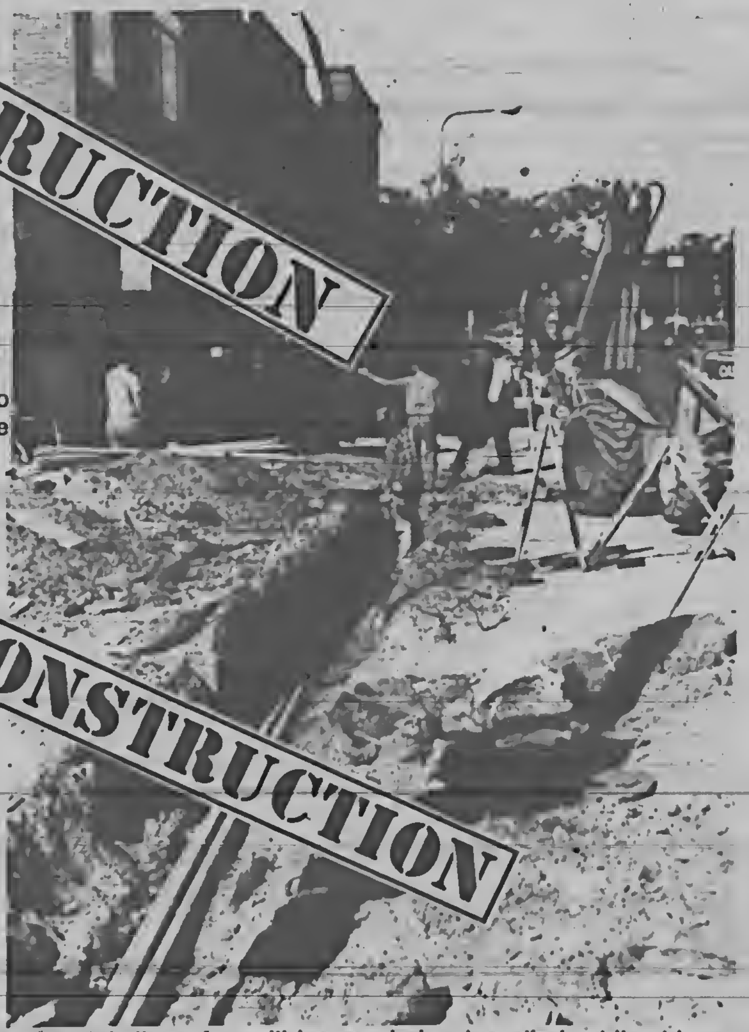
Traffic has been detoured from Bridge Street to State Street during construction of new business district sidewalks.

Plywood boardwalks are providing temporary access walks to stores.

Although downtown businesses are somewhat difficult to get to at the moment, prices are right. Several stores are having "No Sidewalk" sales.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION

This piece of machinery hovered like a mantis next to the Clothing Company last week.



Conduit lines for utilities are being installed while things are torn up.

Dispositional rustling

After bowhunting for a while, you get so you can identify different animals by the rustling sounds they make. Not that I'd recommend taking any shots based on sound identification.

In a way, the different rustling noises reflect the different dispositions of the animals which make them.

Deer and porcupines offer an excellent example for comparison.

Deer make a dull and heavier rustling noise than other animals. With deer, the rustling sound doesn't stay in one place, but moves slowly and deliberately through the woods. Occasionally, there will be a pause, a silence lasting several seconds, even minutes. When you're a hunter straining to follow this rustling sound, several seconds or minutes seems like an eternity.

But that's the way deer are. They've got nowhere special to be. They take their time. While willing to rush away from everything, deer never rush into anything. The word "impetuous" is not in the deer dictionary.

Remember former president Reagan's pet phrase he used in talking about negotiating with the Soviets: "Trust, but verify."

Deer live by a different philosophy: "Never trust. Just verify."

A porcupine views life from a completely different perspective. Porcupines realize that on the food chain of life, they're pretty much confined to the consumer end.

Porcupines make a constant and moving rustling noise. No pausing to look things over. No deliberation.

When a porcupine decides to make for an apple tree, he just puts his head down and marches. He is single-minded. None of this sniffing the wind. No pausing to listen for strange sounds.

A deer and a porcupine can be standing at the edge of an apple orchard under the same circumstances, yet have completely different thoughts.

The deer thinks, "Well, I'm pretty hungry...and those apples sure look good...but, oh...I just don't know if the time is right...and there are other apples in other places."

Meanwhile, the carefree porcupine is thinking, "It's suppertime and I'm going to chow down on apples. Better move fast deer, or I'll eat them all."

Foxes and squirrels also provide a contrast in rustles.

Foxes are the quietest animal in the woods. They move like orange ghosts. Maybe they are from the dog family, but they slink like cats.

Foxes have a reputation for being sly, but it may not be deserved. Foxes probably do a lot of stupid things. They just do them so quietly that nobody notices.

Squirrels are as noisy as foxes are quiet. Squirrels feel guilty about all of the noise they make, but they just can't help themselves.

A squirrel will drop from a tree, scramble through the leaves with a symphony of rustles, then pop up onto a stump and worry about what might have heard him.

"I hope a hawk didn't hear that. Or a fox. Oh I'm as good as dead. I'd better get down from this stump. It's not safe here."

So down from the stump, another big rustling and up a tree. But the squirrel won't stay there long. He worries that he will starve if he doesn't keep gathering nuts for winter.

Squirrels worry a lot. It might be suspected that a large percentage of squirrels suffer from high blood pressure. But no research has been done to verify this. Rubber blood pressure sleeves won't stay on little squirrel arms.

A lot of people are asking me "What is happened to the Odmark Band Pavilion project?"

It's a legitimate question! I co-chaired the project with two dedicated workers–Gary Stutzman, former band instructor, and John Hess, Parks and Recreation Director. We worked long and hard together with a dedicated board of builders, financial advisors, etc. We checked the needs and desires of local musicians. We checked the acoustics with acoustical engineers. We checked the design, the location. We had the blessings of Mayor Ralph McRae and the approval of the council, the support of the Chamber of Commerce, the Lions, Kiwanians, Rotarians, the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, the Charlevoix Historical Society, and Keep Charlevoix Beautiful. We had the drawings and were waiting for the specs to go out for a lovely wooden Victorian Pavilion. We had a variety of programs scheduled for the summer of '89. And best of all we had a good share of the money raised, including a grant from the Department of Commerce for $40,000.

Then there was a city election! A new mayor and two new city councilmen took office.

If you will bear with me, I would like Aesop, who lived over 2000 years ago, to wrap up the band pavilion fiasco for us by recounting one of his appropriate fables.

A miller and his son were driving their donkey to a neighboring fair to sell him. They had not gone far when they met a group of girls returning from town laughing and talking together.

"Look there!" cried one of them. "Did you ever see such fools, to be trudging along the road on foot, when they ought to be riding!"

So the man put the boy on the donkey, and they went on their way. Presently they came up to a group of old men in earnest debate. "There!" said one of them. "That proves exactly what I was saying. No one pays any respect to old age in these days. Look at that idle young rogue riding, while his poor old father has to walk. Get down, you lazy lout, and let the old man rest his weary limbs."

The miller made his son dismount, and got on the donkey's back in his place. And in this manner they proceeded along the way until they met a company of women and children.

"Why, shame on you, lazybones!" they cried. "How can you ride while that poor little lad can hardly keep up with you?" The good miller, wishing to please, took up his son to sit behind him.

But just as they reached the edge of the village a townsman called out to them, "I have a good mind to report you to the authorities for overloading that poor beast so shamelessly. You big hulking fellows should better be able to carry that donkey than the other way round."

So, alighting, the miller and his son tied the beast's legs together, and with a pole across their shoulders, carried the donkey over the bridge that led to the town. This was such an entertaining sight to the townsfolk that crowds came out to laugh at it. The poor animal, frightened by the uproar, began to struggle to free himself. In the midst of the turmoil, the donkey slipped off the pole and over the rail of the bridge into the water and was drowned.

The moral of the story is that the miller had no donkey to sell and the town of Charlevoix has no band pavilion. The present mayor and council also listened to disparaging voices, "The pavilion is too high...the roof line is impractical...it's too wide...we don't need bathrooms upstairs...we need bathrooms downstairs for the public...forget the Victorian design...use an Earl Young roof...do away with wood sides...use boulders for pillars...we don't need a band pavilion in the park...put it somewhere else...we need an auditorium more..."

At this point Ralph McRae resigned from the committee. Lou Hollow resigned and I resigned. The committee is still limping along in confusion. The lesson to be learned by our bewildered officials is that by trying to please all, you end up by pleasing none.

Womens Club hosts autumn dinner

The annual fall dinner of the Charlevoix Women's Club will take place Tuesday, October 17, at Alexander's Restaurant on U. S. 31 North. Cocktails will be served at 6:30 and dinner at 7:30.

The Women's Club extends an open invitation to all women in the area to join them for dinner.

Members are reminded that this is also the occasion for gathering items for the Safe House, the shelter division of the Women's Resource Center.

There will be three dinner entree choices: chicken mornay, whitefish, and deep-fried shrimp for $14, including tax and gratuity.

Jan Mancinelli of the Women's Resource Center will present the program.

Reservations should be made by Saturday, October 14. Mail checks to 201 West Dixon Avenue, Charlevoix, or call Nancy Wood, 547-9447, or Stephanie Krell, 547-6806.

John Friedly, Jan Biddick and Sue Dixon prepare children's books and place them on the book cart for use by children in Charlevoix Area Hospital's pediatric unit. The books and cart were purchased by memorial funds designated for the Marilyn Friedly Children's Fund.

Books bought for hospitalized kids

More than 50 books have been purchased for the pediatrics unit at Charlevoix Area Hospital with funds from the Marilyn Friedly Children's Fund.

Contributions to the fund in memory of Marilyn Friedly now total nearly $4,000. The education and welfare of children was a major part of Marilyn Friedly's life and it was decided that contributions would be designated for children.

A committee including John Friedly, Sue Dixon, R.N., Jan Biddick, Pat Sherman and Pat Gaskin determined the pediatric unit was in need of books for children of all ages. The books selected include some of the most popular children's books.

Later more books will be added to the library and the committee is considering purchasing videos and books for parents on child guidance.

Students to sell garbage bags

The annual fall garbage bag sale by Charlevoix Performing Arts students will be conducted, door-to-door, Thursday evening, October 5.

The garbage bag sale is a fund raising event which helps the Charlevoix High School students underwrite the costs of their competition in state-wide debate, speech and drama competitions.

The garbage bags are top-grade two-ply 30 gallon leaf and garbage bags, sold in boxes of 100 for $13.00. The students will canvas Charlevoix during the sale, which begins at 6:00 p.m. Bags can also be purchased by contacting Mrs. Connie Ford at Charlevoix High School. (547-3222).

Charlevoix's Performing Arts Team has gained state-wide recognition as a top competitor in each of the three fields: debate, speech and drama. In the past several years the team has won a berth at the state championships in each, winning the Class C-D State Drama Championship three out of the past four years, qualifying 20 Performing Arts students for the two-day Forensics State Championship in Ann Arbor, and Charlevoix's Varsity debate team placed 5th in Michigan.

Garden Club to meet

Rod Cortright, Charlevoix County Cooperative Extension Service agent, will discuss the care of shrubs at the Tuesday, October 10 meeting of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club. The meeting will begin at 1 p.m. at the home of Inge Ledahl.

In his talk, Cortright will explain how to control disease and insects and the best methods of pruning. As some outdoor activity is planned, members are advised to wear comfortable shoes.

Co-hostesses are Marie Slone and Reatha Trentham.

Boss-Bemis

Cynthia Ann Boss and James Addison Bemis were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, August 19, at the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix.

The Rev. Larry Grooters officiated at the double ring rites before approximately 400 guests, many of whom came from other parts of the country.

The bride is the daughter of Kenneth and Myrna Boss of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Edward and Linda Bemis of Derby, Kansas.

Fresh cut flowers and candelabra decorated the altar before which the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a lace and silk taffeta gown trimmed with English lace, pearls, and sequins, fashioned with a scalloped neckline and dropped waist. The skirt was of bubbled silk taffeta with a three-foot train, and the waist-length veil fell from a crown of pearls and sequins. The bride's bouquet was an arrangement of long-stemmed white roses, baby's breath, netting, and pearls.

Brenda Boss Wilson served her sister as matron of honor, and Barb Boss, Nancy Bemis, and Jill Robinson were bridesmaids. Sarah Veenstra served as junior bridesmaid and Candace Boss was flower girl. The attendants all wore pastel floral print chintz gowns and carried long-stemmed pink roses with pink netting. Mark Veenstra was ringbearer.

The bridegroom's father served as best man, with Andy Bemis, Scott Boss, and Randy Wilson assisting as groomsmen. Collis Parrish was junior groomsman, and Chip Bemis and Chip Piper were ushers.

Esther Vandenberg, aunt of the bride, provided organ music for the ceremony, and Phil and Betty Falr offered vocal selections.

The bride's parents hosted a reception at the Belvedere Casino following the wedding ceremony. The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at the Belvedere Golf Club Thursday evening, August 17.

Following a vacation at a southern Michigan resort, the newlyweds are at home in Big Rapids. Both are continuing their education.

Harrison-Dannecker

Michelle Marie Harrison and Gary Andrew Dannecker exchanged marriage vows Saturday evening, July 29, at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

Parents of the newlyweds are Trueman and Modesta Harrison of Alpena and Donald and Joann Dannecker of Charlevoix.

The Rev. Philip Schairbaum officiated at the double ring ceremony in which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

For her wedding, the bride wore a white satin gown laced with pearls. She was attended by Stacy Bonar of Laramie, Wyoming as maid of honor, and Elizabeth Harrison of Alpena, her sister-in-law, as bridesmaid. The attendants wore aqua color lace tea-length gowns and carried bouquets of aqua and white flowers.

Dennis Wagner of Grand Rapids served as best man; Rick Van Eck of Milwaukee was groomsman; and Gary Malison of Charlevoix was usher.

Organist Elizabeth Hemphrey provided music for the ceremony.

The parents of the bride and bridegroom hosted a reception at the Petoskey Holiday Inn following the ceremony. The rehearsal dinner was held at Alexander's, hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Following a wedding trip to Tahquamenon Falls and the Pictured Rocks, the newlyweds are at home in Charlevoix, where the bride is employed by Stafford's Hospitality and the bridegroom by Oleson's Food Market. He also works part time as a musician.

International Club meets

The Charlevoix International Club, a chapter of People to People International, held an organizational meeting September 20, with election of officers, appointment of some committee chairmen, and adoption of bylaws.

The officers are Ralph McCrae, president; Mary Lou Norton, first vice president; Dan Bourcier, second vice president; Terry D'Angelo, secretary; Patty Muma, treasurer; and Gail Wiemer, home coordinator.

Committee chairmen include Dan Bourcier, youth activities; Terry D'Angelo, travel; and Darrel Linder, publicity. Chairmanships still to be filled include telephone, fund raising, program, historian, newsletter, nominating, membership, and budget.

The Charlevoix International Club has set a number of goals which it hopes to achieve in the future. They include:

–Offer home stays or some hosting to international visitors from chapters overseas.

–Organize community missions for travel overseas, frequently involving home stays or home hosting by overseas chapters.

–Introduce foreign students at local colleges and universities to our culture and way of life, and us to theirs.

The next meeting of the Charlevoix International Club will be held Thursday evening, Oct. 5, at 7 p.m. at the Weathervane Restaurant. Every interested person is encouraged to attend. It will be a social and business meeting where further organization activities can be discussed. This is not a dinner meeting, but anyone interested in going early for dinner should contact Ralph McCrae so arrangements can be made for eating together.

CHURCH

New minister joins Episcopals

Philander Lothrop Carter, III, a recent graduate of Trinity Episcopal Seminary, has been called by the Vestry to serve as Rector of Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix.

Lander, as he likes to be called, is presently a Deacon and celebrated his first worship service on Sunday, September 17. The celebration of Carter's new ministry is scheduled for Sunday, October 22, and his ordination will be Sunday, December 10. Bishop Ed Lee will be present for both celebrations.

Carter received his bachelor of arts degree from Stanford University, a secondary education teaching certificate from Central Michigan University, a master of international management from the American Graduate School of International Management, and a master of divinity from Trinity Episcopal School for Ministry.

His secular work experiences include two years as First Lieutenant in the United States Army Artillery, president-operations manager of a construction company and salesman of municipal bonds. Prior to entering the seminary, Carter served as a lay minister. Through his years as a layman, he was Sunday School teacher for a junior high group and an adult class, as well as a leader of a home fellowship study group. He was also a rector-leader of retreat weekends for the Kairos Prison Ministry and pastored at a drug rehabilitation center.

Philander Lothrop Carter, III

While in the Seminary, Carter's ministry experiences included observing and evaluating pre-marriage counseling programs, preaching and leading in children's worship, leading small study groups, and pastoring small group leaders.

He says his vision for ministry is to "see the parish family grow in love and commitment to Jesus Christ as their personal and corporate Lord and Savior."

Carter, his wife, Gretchen, and children Taylor, 12, and Alexander, seven, are becoming acquainted with the community, their schools, and the parish. Another son, David, who is 21, is working in Georgia.

Carter's interests and hobbies include chess, woodworking, camping, exercising, and reading.

BEACONS
OF BLESSINGS

by Pastor Duane Nelson
Church of the Nazarene

Have you ever really wondered about the aspect of prayer within one's life? I have and found that prayer is quite the interesting facet of a Christian's walk with God. By definition, prayer is the direct communication of a repentant believer with the unseen Creator of the universe. Prayer, by and large, is the Christian's foundation for God's guidance, encouragement, and support.

However there is an important biblical fact to be established before one can experience God's guidance, encouragement, and support through prayer. When we are continuously living in defiance of God and His precepts, He cannot hear our prayers. Our prayers cannot penetrate the walls of sin to reach the ears of God. (It needs to be pointed out that God will hear the prayers of a sinner seeking forgiveness for his sins. It stands to reason that God will hear that sinner's prayer, since forgiveness is His business.) The Bible directs our attention to the problem between unforgiven sin and God's listening ears, "but your iniquities (sins) have separated you from your God; your sins have hidden his face from you, so that he will not hear" (Isaiah 59:2, NIV). How can we expect God to hear us, let alone answer our petitions, if we choose to defy His love by not seeking His forgiveness and to openly trample his holiness by not obeying His life-changing precepts?

Some of us could possibly be thinking that God, being as loving as He is preached to be, should and will listen to all our prayers no matter what spiritual condition we find ourselves in. Biblically, as proven with the above scripture, our prayers don't stand a chance of reaching God with sin in the say. And logieally it doesn't hold much water. The telephone is an excellent earthly example. If one wishes to communicate with a friend or family member across the state, he must first establish a line of communication by plugging in his telephone system with the mainline system provided by the contracting company. We establish our lines of communication with God by plugging in our system through the forgiveness of our sins.

From personal testimony and experience, I can say beyond any shadow of any doubt that prayer has provided from God all the guidance, encouragement, and support I have ever needed, but I needed to take the first step and seek God for the forgiveness of my sins. He has the communication system all set up, willing and ready to listen to us. We just have to plug into the existing system - God's system. It just won't happen any other way!

Guest speakers at Assembly

The Begay family, Art, Raelene and their daughter, Jolene are presently pastoring at the Bay Mills Assembly of God on the Bay Mills Indian Reservation, located near Brimley.

Art is a Rosebud Sioux Indian from Rapid City, S.D. Raelene is a Chippewa Indian from Great Falls, Mt. Art gave his heart and life to the Lord as a wino living on the streets. Raelene accepted Jesus into her life as a senior in high school. Art and Raelene are graduates from Central Indian Bible College, located at Mobridge, S.D. The couple travelled for a total of 3 years with the college ministry team, "The Good Shepherd Singers."

The Begay family will be ministering in song and "The Word" at Charlevoix Assembly of God on Wednesday, Oct. 4, at 7 p.m.

CHURCH

Leala G. McGinnis

Leala G. McGinnis, 57, died Sept. 26, 1989 at McLaren Hospital in Flint.

Funeral services were held Sept. 29 at Brown Funeral Home, Flint. Rev. Bruce J. Badder officiated. Interment was in Tanner Cemetery in Flint.

McGinnis was born in Lake City on Oct. 20, 1931, to Joel and Violet (Loucks) Pardee. On Oct. 28, 1947, she married Marvin McGinnis of Charlevoix.

They made their home in Charlevoix for several years, and have resided in Flint for the past 37 years.

She attended Genesee Road Church of God.

Surviving are her husband Marvin, 3 daughters and sons-in-law Jean and Dick Mason of Burton, Joyce and Allen Roberts of Davison, Bonnie and Kevin Snider of Burton; 2 sons and a daughter-in-law, Jerry and Jane McGinnis, and Michael McGinnis all of Flint; 15 grandchildren; her father Joel and brother Bill Pardee of Charlevoix; 4 sisters Joella Williams of Florida, Melva Armstrong of Three Rivers, Hope Sarasin of Charlevoix, Vivian Belford of Boyne City.

She was preceded in death by her mother and one sister.

Special speaker at Assembly

Reverend Otto Wegner, Assemblies of God Urban Church Planting Field Director, will be guest speaker Sunday, Oct. 8, at 6 p.m. at the Charlevoix Assembly of God, Highway M-66.

Wegner is assigned responsibility to initiate and supervise the planting of new Assemblies of God churches in the urban Northeast, home to more than 400 million people in the Boston-Washington, DC corridor.

The rallying theme of the Assemblies of God during the 90's is "Decade of Harvest" and the Urban Church Planting project is a key ingredient in the strategy of the Assemblies to plant 5000 new churches during the decade.

Prior to his appointment Wegner pastored churches in Belding and Lansing, and Wyckoff, New Jersey.

Lawrence L. Elzinga

Lawrence L. Elzinga, 70, died Sept. 30, 1989, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral services were held Oct. 3 at the Stackus Funeral Home, Boyne City. The Rev. Lane Eddy of the Boyne City Free Methodist Church and the Rev. Milton Walls Jr. of the Boyne City First Presbyterian Church officiated. Burial was in Eveline Township Cemetery, Advance.

Mr. Elzinga was born June 17, 1919, in Atwood, the son of Harry and Gertrude Andre Elzinga. He resided all his life in Northern Michigan. Mr. Elzinga was a farmer and also worked at the East Jordan Iron Works for 25 years, retiring in 1979.

On June 18, 1938, he married the former Margery Scott in Charlevoix.

During World War II, Mr. Elzinga served in the U.S. Army from May of 1944 until May of 1946.

He was a former member of Leslie T. Shapton Post, American Legion, Charlevoix.

Survivors include: his wife; one son, John and wife Patricia of East Jordan; three daughters, Yvonne Karlskin of Boyne City, Geneva Clark of East Jordan and Gail Farley of Boyne City; seven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren; four half brothers, William Archer of East Jordan, Harrison Elzinga, Gerrit Elzinga and Charles Elzinga, all of Charlevoix; one step brother, Raymond Dodd of Detroit; three step sisters, Rose Elzinga of Charlevoix, Iris Dodd of Grand Rapids and Mignotte Moore of California.

Wanda MacDonald

Memorial service for Wanda I. MacDonald, 61, of Charlevoix, will be held at 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 7, at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix. Pastor Bruce E. Hamilton will officiate.

She died Sept. 27 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

She was born April 12, 1928, in Hoquim, Wash., the daughter of George and Arlene (Bond) Mobley. She spent most of her life in Hoquim.

In 1962, she moved to San Francisco where she was employed as an executive secretary for the John L. Forbes Co., an investment broker. She moved to Charlevoix in 1987.

She is survived by two sons, Jim Russell Cornett of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and Jeffrey A. Cornett of Charlevoix; four grandchildren; her mother, Mrs. Arlene Mobley of Hoquim, Wash.; two brothers, Jerry R. Mobley of Tacoma, Wash., and Sonny Mobley of Cordova, Alaska; two sisters, Beverly Petersen of Cosmopolis, Wash., and Sandra Mobley of Seattle, Wash.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

BUSINESS

Local home to appear in catalogue

by Edith Gilbert

A new kind of scout arrived in Charlevoix last week. Not an Indian scout or a boy scout but a location scout in the person of Holly Rothschild, long time summer resident.

The assignment for her company, Scoutmasters, Inc., was to find a setting for a line of furniture to be shown in the 1990 spring-summer catalog for Spiegel's of Chicago. More than 50 houses were previewed before the Frederick VanDuyne "summer cottage" on 431 Michigan Ave. was selected.

"Not one house held a candle to this house when it comes to the architectural details of the panelling and beams on the walls and ceilings," says Michael Garcia, account executive for Silver Lining Graphics. He arrived with a crew of twelve including a softgood stylist, and a designer from New York, three merchandise people who transported all the furniture, lamps, rugs, and accessories here from Chicago, a photographer and photo stylist plus two assistants also from New York, and an art director from Spiegel's.

"The two style trends featured at the VanDuynes are a look called Newport – the casual resort look, clean whites and blues – while the flower Show style offers soft pastel print fabrics, wicker and ratan furniture, lace curtains and casually layered pastel braided rugs with antique accents from the 30's," confides Spiegel's art director Bertha De Priest.

Rothschild has been in this scouting business for eight years now. Involved in hundreds of TV ads and commercial photography sessions, she is looking forward to doing an outdoor setting by a lake with a hot air balloon in two weeks. "Every assignment is different," Rothschild says. "Whenever I am really stuck, I can always turn to my parents. We shot a catfood commercial for Nine Lives, at their home in Highland Park with Morris, himself," she recalls laughing.

Always on the lookout for high quality, choice locations, scouts travel far and wide in search for just the right setting. At the moment she's on the hunt for a rustic house for another project called Spiegel American Homestead.

"Everyone loves working in Charlevoix. People have been so friendly and gone out of their way for us," says Rothschild.

"Our housing is divided between Edgewater Inn and the Lodge. Stafford's has catered our dinners within our budget. We've rented props from Sisters' Antiques and Judy Carey at the Antique Mall has been most helpful. Greenleaf Gardens ordered flowers from downstate and rented plants and everything arrived on time. Bonnie's Country Spice also supplied us with fresh flowers. We couldn't be happier and we'd love to come back to Charlevoix."

After the trucks are loaded with Spiegel's furniture for the return trip to Chicago, Rothschild sees to it that a cleaning crew will wipe the floors and all the home owners' furniture, ornaments, pictures, curtains and bric-a-brac will be carefully positioned in its original location in the house.

School board discusses sportsmanship and Soviets

by Wendi Wright

At its regular meeting Monday night, the Charlevoix Board of Education covered several topics, including sportsmanship, and a tour of the schools by the Russian delegation visiting Charlevoix.

Richard Swenor, High School Vice-Principal, told the board of the high school's involvement in a campaign designed to promote good sportsmanship among athletes, students, parents and fans involved in high school sports in Michigan. The campaign's slogan is "Good sports are winners!" and focuses on positive attitudes while supporting or participating in a sports program. The program is sponsored by the Michigan High School Athletic Association, and will continue throughout the school year, and will involve all team sports.

"We've always been fortunate enough to be able to hire coaches from within the system who understand the importance of sportsmanship as an extension of the classroom," Swenor said.

The campaign is designed not only for the athletes, however, but for the parents, fans, and students as well. The understanding that anyone at the sports event, not just the athletes, is a representative of the community, is at the heart of the campaign's message.

This discussion of sportsmanship prompted Max Novak, board president to point out the problems caused by the length of the football season, and by the emphasis placed on the "playoffs." Others on the board expressed similar concerns, citing the weight placed on winning in high school sports, and questioning whether this emphasis might overshadow some of the lessons participation in sports is designed to teach, such as sportsmanship.

The board also heard reports from the principals present at the meeting about Charlevoix's Soviet visitors, and their tour of the Charlevoix schools. All three schools participated in welcoming the four Russians, who visited the schools Monday before leaving to continue their tour of the United States. Several events were planned for the Soviets as they toured the schools, including a "press conference" at which the students were allowed to ask questions about life in Russia.

Also, Larry Levengood, board member, informed the board of a discussion at a recent transportation committee meeting involving the procedure for coordinating and informing parents of the early release of students from school in the case of a power outage or other similar situation. According to Levengood, some parents had expressed concern after an incident last year in which buses dropped off some students at the wrong addresses, when school closed early due to a power outage. Levengood said that the committee had tenatively decided to institute a "phone tree," making certain individuals responsible for contacting parents when such a situation arises.

In other business, the board approved an overnight trip to Stratford, Ontario, Canada for Mr. Smith's senior English class, and discussed the procedure for filling the vacancy on the board left by the death of Robert Drenth. The board has 45 days to fill the vacancy, and plans to appoint someone to the position at the next board meeting.

Singers host open house

The Northern Michigan barbershop singing group, based in Boyne City, is inviting the public to an open house from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 10 in the lower level of the Assembly of God Church on Division Street in Petoskey.

Members of the group come from Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan Counties. People attending the Oct. 10 meeting may sing along if they like or just sit back and enjoy the chords and harmony.

Rayders beat Sault 12-0

Now 5-0

The Rayder football team passed the halfway point of the season Friday night with the number in the win column growing and the number in the loss column still holding at zero.

Last Friday evening, Charlevoix traveled halfway to the North Pole and used a sturdy defense and versatile offense to beat Sault Ste. Marie 12-0.

The game was scoreless until junior quarterback Dan Terryberry found James Corwin for a 35 yard touchdown pass with less than half a minute remaining in the half.

In the second half, Charlevoix found the endzone, but had a hard time getting points to stick on the scoreboard. Two touchdowns were called back due to penalties.

However, late in the game Terryberry scored on a five-yard run during which the referees kept their laundry in their pockets.

Charlevoix's offense totalled 275 yards; 159 rushing and 116 passing. James Corwin carried for 70 yards. Brian Coolman caught two passes for 56 yards.

Defensively, Charlevoix stonewalled the Sault. Linebacker Pat Elliot led the Rayders with 11 solo tackles, six assists, one fumble recovery and a sack. Mike Stoneham had nine solos and an assist. Coolman intercepted two passes and Jason Corwin one.

Charlevoix is currently tied with Petoskey and Cheboygan at the top of the Michigan Huron Shores League. This Friday the Rayders travel to St. Ignace.

Salmon were harvested from the weir at the end of Lakeshore Drive this past week. The fish were herded to one end of the enclosed area and scooped out with a large net.

Golfers tie for second in league

After an undefeated season in league duel meets, Charlevoix's golf team tied for second with Petoskey in Monday's league championship meet at Petoskey. Gaylord won the meet.

Josh Hastings led the Rayders with a score of 88. Randy Wurst shot a 92, Jordan Spencer a 94, Doug Sineway a 101 and Luke LaBlance a 103.

Hastings was named to the all conference team.

Last Thursday, Charlevoix took a duel meet victory over Cheboygan. Along with their six league wins, the Rayder golfers are 3-2 in nonleague play for an overall season record of 9-2.

Charlevoix's Josh Hastings shot the lights out at Cheboygan to take medalist honors. Hastings shot at 37 which was six strokes better than the second place finish by teammate Luke LaBlance. Randy Wurst and Doug Sineway rounded out the Rayder top four with scores of 44 and 45.

Charlevoix's team total of 169 bettered the Cheboygan squads total by 12 strokes.

In junior varsity action, Charlevoix's golfers slipped to 5-2 on the season with at 190-208 loss. For Charlevoix, Corey Crain and Travis Blissett shot 49s while Wayne Joy had a 53 and Jason Voorheis a 57.

This Friday, Charlevoix golfers will compete in the Traverse City Invitational.

Basketball team still winless

Problems for the girls varsity basketball team continued last Thursday evening as a 64-29 loss to Cheboygan dropped the Rayders season record to 0-6 in league play and 0-8 overall.

Things started bad for the Rayders against Cheboygan and only got worse as the game progressed: Cheboygan led by 13 at the end of the first quarter, 22 at the half, 26 after the third quarter and by 35 at the end of the game.

As has been the problem in earlier games, the Rayder offense disappeared for significant portions of the second half. The Rayders scored only one point in the fourth quarter.

Melissa Boss led the Rayders with a dozen points.

Charlevoix travels to Rogers City this Thursday evening.

Alumni players reunite for clinic and game

Alumni from the Charlevoix girls high school basketball program will host a clinic for middle school girls and will play a pick-up game Oct. 7.

The clinic for sixth, seventh and eighth grade girls will take place from 1 p.m.-4 p.m. The game will start at approximately 7 p.m.

Spectators are invited to watch the game. Any donations at the door will be contributed to the middle school girls basketball program.

Former girls coach Toni Felter is organizing the event. Alumni players wishing to participate are asked to contact her at 547-3226 during the day or 547-5315 in the evening.

Yachting Notes

Autumn colors are almost in full bloom and it was "prime time" viewing for many boaters this past weekend. The shores of Lake Charlevoix and surrounding areas have opened their arms in welcome to the eyes that will gaze upon their beauty. But don't wait too long to accept this gift of nature, or it will pass you by.

In the Wednesday Night Racing Series, four faces have been completed thus far, with two to go and in all fleets the racing has been competitive with no "for sure" victors as of yet.

In the JAM was a little Hot Mustard (1st overall for season in fleet) taking line honors with a cool Stalworth (3rd) taking second, close behind were Apothecary (5th), Cabaret (2nd), Canusa (7th), Sonrise (8th) and Maureen (6th).

In the A Fleet, Pygmalion finally got her pole in the hole and made a great showing but was overshadowed by the Apprentice (1st) which took the gun, just behind Piggy (4th) was Flash Gordon (3rd), and a Mint Julip (2nd).

Blasen (3rd) led the whole pack for a couple of legs and continued on to take first in the B Fleet with Sandpiper (2nd) second and then Mi-Joy (1st), Lost Vermonter (6th), Original Sin (5th), Kittywake (7th), Tireless (4th), Foxy Lady (8th) and Cygnus (9th).

The J-Boats in Fleet C are ganging up on old Hank! Starting with Newsense (2nd), Sizzle (3rd), Reach Around (7th), Bandit (1st), HS Moisture (5th), Allons Y (6th) and Mud Duck (8th) with a DNF (did not fly!).

The Sunday series started this week with the race results not yet tallied, but the excellent wind and sunshine added up to be great sailing for sure!

... Soviet visitors kept busy

of their occupations, had automobiles, and one, a business man, also had the services of a driver.

Drannikov, the 50-year-old head of a Moscow Cooperative, was looking at things with a business man's eye and learned much about how Americans manufacture T-shirts from Roger Nesburg, who, with Mrs. Nesburg, served as his host while in Charlevoix. He is interested in setting up "joint enterprises" with the United States.

Hitkova, a former school teacher now working in electronic engineering and professional interpreting, revealed an educated grasp of the English langugage with her quick, interpretive responses. Just for fun, she recited a Shakespearian sonnet in English for one group.

Serebrennikov is young and revealed a serious nature. He works with computers at the Institute of Cinematography, which is apparently a respected school of higher learning in Moscow. He expressed a sense of hope for better relationships between the United States ánd the Soviet Union through visits to each other's country by groups such as his.

Moskalera, at 37, the youngest of the group, is also connected with the Institute of Cinematography in a research position. She speaks fluent French and is interested in eduction.

By the time the four travelers left Charlevoix, they had visited Medusa, Lexalite, and Big Rock. They had been guests of honor at several luncheons, dinners, and teas, and had spent many hours of just visiting with the people of Charlevoix.

They had had an opportunity to see American democracy in action at the polls on Monday, at a court session, and at a city council meeting.

They visited Charlevoix schools, where students had a chance to talk with them, ask questions, and even take pictures.

They attended church on Sunday morning and travled northward to view northern Michigan's man-made wonder, the Mackinac Bridge.

After leaving Charlevoix for Washington Tuesday, they were allowed time to rest up before visiting the White House to meet President Bush. They were joined there by the 16 other Soviet citizens who have been traveling in other parts of the country under th sponsorship of "Soviets, Meet Middle America"".

Charlevoix trip coordinator Ralph McRae gives credit for the success of this "people to people" visit to the arrangements committee:

Daniel Barron, Jackson Beatty, Moussja Clason, Don Dannecker, Dennis Halverson, Kenneth Heininger, Glen Kenney, Dave Knight, Darrel Linder, Dr. Robert Martin, Barbara MacArthur, Jackie Merta, Ronald and Mary Pair, Rev. Philip Schairbaum, Vane Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis VanGuilder, Gail Wiemer, and Lisa Winchester.

Children design plates

Area children and their families can design their own plates and mugs during Charlevoix Co-op Nursery School's annual plate night next week.

Materials will be available for $4 from 3:30-8:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 11, in the nursery school room at Charlevoix Elementary School.

Participants will be given a special type of paper and colored markers to use in designing the pattern. The designs will then be sent to the factory to be printed on sturdy, diswasher proof, white plastic plates and cups.

Organizers say the dishes make great Christmas gifts and note that in the past they've encouraged younger children to participate in the project so they can make their own Christmas presents, but have found that middle and high school students enjoy making cups and plates as well.

Many art students and area artists have designed one-of-a-kind plates as gifts, organizers said.

Adult helpers will be on hand to assist plate designers.

The project benefits the co-op nursery and funds will be used to purchase new equipment.

The plates will be returned to designers by the end of Octover.

College night scheduled

The 36th annual College Night will take place at Petoskey High School at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, October 4. More than fifty representatives from colleges, universities, nursing schools, vocational and business schools, and all of the armed services will be represented.

Students from thirty area high schools have been invited. Representatives are always pleased by the large number of parents who attend.

College Night takes place in the fall each year so that graduating seniors will have sufficient time to choose a college and make application for admissions and scholarships.

The following institutions will send admission staff members:

Adrian College, Albion College, Alma College Aquinas College, Alpena Community College, Calvin College, Carleton College, Central Michigan University, Concordia College, Davenport College, Eastern Michigan University, Ferris State University, Grand Rapids Baptist College, Grand Valley State University, Hillsdale College, Hope College, ITT Technical Institute, Kalamazoo College, Lake Superior State University, Lawrence Institute of Technology, Michigan Army National Guard, Michigan State University, Michigan Technological University, MTU-Forestry and Wood Prod., Muskegon College, National College of Chiropractic, North Central Michigan College, NCMC Allied Health, Northern Michigan University, Northwood Institute, Oakland University, Olivet College, Petoskey Beauty Academy, Princeton University, Saginaw Valley State University, Sault College Canada, Siena Heights College, Spring Arbor College, University of Michigan, U.S. Air Force, U.S. Army, U.S. Coast Guard Academy, U.S. Marine Corps, U.S. Navy, Western Michigan University, University of Detroit.

Cliff Denay, Counselor and Director of Financial Aid at NCMC will again be available to explain Federal Aid and the State of Michigan Scholarship and Financial Aid programs. All students who wish to apply for any type of scholarship or financial aid should make this one of their visits. Julie Micheal, MSU Extension Home Economist, will also be available to assist with computerized financial planning for college.

There will be three 30 minute sessions so students will have time to visit three different college presentations. Or if they wish, they may browse in the cafeteria and receive information from several different schools.

Junior and senior students are encouraged to attend, but all students as well as the general public are welcome.

The program is coordinated by Miss Onalee Lark, guidance counselor at Petoskey High School. For further information call 616-347-6023, ext. 222.

Group meets

Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix is inviting all parents and teachers to a meeting at 10 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 7, at the High School.

Parents of seventh graders are receiving letters especially urging them to attend a talk by Joseph Arcand of Traverse City.

Arcand is the Director of the Adolescent Department of the Traverse City Munson Alcohol Drug Treatment Center.

9%

IT'S SOLID AND LIQUID AT THE SAME TIME.

Most things are pretty much black and white. Oil and water don't mix. East is East. West is West. Something can't be solid and liquid at the same time. Well, not so with The FirstRate Fund. Because it earns you a great rate, without tying up your principal.

Earn 9 Percent For Up To 60 Days.

From October 2 until November 30, The FirstRate Fund earns interest at an annual rate of 9 percent.

THE FirstRate FUND

After that, it's tied to the 91-day Treasury Bill, guaranteeing a highly competitive rate.

All it takes is a $10,000 deposit to start. And you can add to it, whenever you like.

Make a withdrawal and you won't have to pay a penalty.

So, by all means, open your FirstRate Fund now, and earn an annual rate of 9 percent for as long as possible.

Solid. And Liquid, Too.

Unlike some other investments with a high return like the FirstRate Fund, you can get to your money, whenever you need to.

All you have to do is drop us a line. Seven days later, you'll have your money.

We'll even call to tell you when you can pick up your check.

Insurance For Your Money.

Most investments like this require some risk taking. Not so with The FirstRate Fund.

Your bank deposits are FDIC insured for up to $100,000. Meaning your principal's safe to the maximum amount allowed by law.

In short, you have nothing to lose. But an awful lot to gain.

Where's The Fine Print? You Just Read It.

If you're going to name something FirstRate, it ought to be just that.

So there are no funny restrictions or conditions. Just a straightforward investment that, unlike a lot of competitive investments, is unquestionably attractive. Which leaves us with one last question. What are you waiting for? The FirstRate Fund. Only from First of America.

Stop by any one of our First of America offices to invest in one, or call 1-800-544-6155.

Remember, this offer may not last forever, is available to individuals only, and may change without notice.

Council discusses city manager position

The city council attempted to discuss city manager's Mike Wiesner's contract, and-or performance, Monday evening. However, right from the beginning, not everyone involved was on the same page as to what was to be talked about and the discussion ended up being muddled, vague and frought with generalities.

At the Oct. 2 council meeting, councilman Earl Muma said he would like to review the city manager's contract. Other councilmen agreed and the review was scheduled for this past Monday evening.

The matter was placed on the agenda, but when it came up, Muma was the only councilmen with a copy of the contract in front of him. Other councilmen indicated it would be hard to review the contract without having a copy of it handy for reference.

Wiesner said copies would have been furnished in the council's information packets, but he had interpreted Muma's earlier request to be a request to review his performance as city manager.

With that premise, discussion began. By streaks it focused on contract. By streaks it focused on performance.

Billie Smith, an audience member, asked if the discussion might be a prelude to the council terminating Wiesner's employment. She asked if the fiscal

Nature trail completed at elementary school

Charlevoix School Board members recently went to the woods. That is, they toured the wooded nature trail constructed behind the Charlevoix Elementary School this past summer.

In March, 1988, a group of elementary teachers were returning from a seminar in Grand Rapids. During the ride, they began discussing things which could be done to improve the school. The idea for the nature trail came up during that conversation.

Funding for the project came from the Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation Inc. which was founded in 1987. The purpose of the foundation is to provide funding and resources for educational programs not covered in the school's traditional budget.

The teachers approached the foundation and the nature trail became the first major project funded by the foundation.

This summer approximately 10 people, comprised of teachers and volunteers, used wood chips to form the approximately half-mile trail through the woods. Wooden markers, made by Bill Parton, and numbered metal tags were also erected.

The woods behind the school are blessed with a wide variety of plant life. Numbers on the markers and tags correspond with page numbers in a booklet compiled for the trail. The booklet identifies and explains the characteristics of each of the 20 tagged varieties of trees.

Marked trees include: white cedar; sugar maple; ironwood; white birch; June berry; beech; hemlock; red oak; balsam; white pine; red maple; wild black cherry; maple leaf viburnum; juniper; pin cherry; sumac; aspen; wild apple, white ash; and hawthorne.

Trail developers hope to identify and mark other plants along the trail in the future.

A seating area for an outdoor classroom was also constructed, but was destroyed by vandals. Some of the markers have also been damaged.

Development of the trail came at an opportune time for the elementary school as the trail compliments new elementary science textbooks and teaching

Foundation offers educational extras

A culinary analogy might make it easier to understand the objectives of the Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation Inc.

While a basic meat and potatoes meal is fine, a steaming ear of fresh sweet corn certainly adds something to it.

The enrichment foundation was founded in 1987. Its purpose is to provide Charlevoix students educational opportunities above and beyond the school's normal offerings.

The foundation is not funded by property taxes nor meant to ... council discusses manager

year beginning date on Wiesner's contract might affect termination. The fiscal year date is Oct. 9.

Mayor Gary Probert said that at that point in the discussion councilmen were indicating they wanted to have copies of the contract. He said he didn't see how the fiscal year date applied and that he understands a 60-day notice would be needed if discussions led to a decision to terminate employment.

Muma said Wiesner has been city manager for six years. Muma said he wants to discuss the contract and get a good contract or a new city manager.

Muma didn't specify what's wrong with the current contract.

The most specific aspect of the discussion concerned the spending limit that the city manager must observe in purchasing items without formal council approval.

Currently, the spending limit is $10,000. Councilman Butch Russell said he would like that reduced to $2,500 so the council would have more control of city purchases. Other councilmen said they would be interested in reviewing the purchasing limit.

Wiesner didn't object to reviewing the purchase limit. However, he noted that there are times, especially in making electrical system purchases, where a decision to purchase something costing $5,000, $6,000 or $7,000 might need to be made in a timely fashion. Requiring council approval for such items could at times hold up projects.

Wiesner said that he normally isn't the one to make out requisitions for items in that price range. Those requisitions are normally filed by the heads of the various city departments. Wiesner said those requisitions must indicate the reason for the purchase and also price options.

Wiesner asked if the council has concerns about any specific purchases which have been made. He noted that what the council is proposing will probably be time-consuming with the council making the same purchasing decisions as are currently being made.

Chamber of Commerce president Dan Barron said reducing the purchasing limit would be just adding another layer of bureaucracy.

Barron also said the council is blurring two separate issues. He said it's appropriate for the council to review the performance of the city manager. But he said that if the council is reviewing the scope of the city manager's role, that is not appropriate. The scope of the city manager's role is addressed in the city charter.

Muma said the council's role is to set policy, but they must have information from the manager to set policy. Muma also referred to council approval of city hirings and department heads making hiring decisions.

Wiesner said department heads are making hiring decisions although he has input in determining the selection process. He said he favors a rigorous hiring process so the city will get good people.

Councilman Ken Whitley said he wasn't satisfied with Wiesner's handling of the Ferry Road relocation near Nanny's.

Wiesner said there was confusion created by one council directive given at a council meeting and a conflicting directive given at a subsequent work session.

Councilman Norm Probert said he didn't think of Wiesner as a team player. He complained about Wiesner not giving a written or verbal update on the bandshell at a meeting this summer.

Wiesner said that he had worked on that issue with members of the bandshell committee, including Gary Stutzman. He said that when it came time to update the council, Stutzman updated them. Wiesner said he didn't put the update in writing because he didn't see a lot of complexity in what was to be said.

materials which were purchased this year.

Some of the teachers involved with developing the trail and who served as guides for the school board tour were: Mary Ann Chew, Betty Hoffmann, Carol Elliot and retired elementary teacher Barb Wilson.

Prior to touring the trail, members of the school board and enrichment foundation read letters of appreciation written by elementary students.

One of the several letters read, "Thank you for raising money for the nature trail and everything else. We love it."

"Thank you for the nature trail. Now we can study nature out-of-doors instead of in a textbook." read another.

replace property taxes. It is meant to supplement the school's program, to provide the ears of corn.

During the past two years, the foundation has received approximately $119,000. The money has all come from contributions. Thus far, the foundation hasn't had to do a single fundraising event.

Foundation officers say the school staff and public have been supportive, both in contributions and developing programs.

The elementary school nature trail was one of the first major programs funded by the foundation. The foundation has also provided full or partial scholarships to send 11 students to college summer programs ahd.

Last year the foundation sponsored a special art program for eight elementary students. This year the art program will continue with an $1,100 grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts.

A portion of a large private contribution has been set aside as the beginning of an endowment fund for the eventual construction of a performing arts auditorium.

The foundation is also setting up an endowment fund to provide mini-grants to help fund special and creative learning projects teachers devise for students.

Mary Lee Campbell is the current foundation president. John Frey is the incoming president. Scott Beatty serves as treasurer.

Contributions to the foundation are tax deductible and can be arranged by writing to the Charlevoix School Enrichment Foundation Inc., P.O. Box 151, Charlevoix MI 49720.

Star members attend meeting

The 123rd Annual Session of the Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star of Michigan, the "Cathedral of Angels" session, will be held October 10-12, 1989 at the Wings Stadium in Kalamazoo, Mich.

Delegates and members from 332 Chapters in Michigan will be there with approximately 3,000 members attending.

Local delegates from Charlevoix Chapter 72 attending will be Worthy Matron Diane Rosendahl, Worthy Patron Robert Kelley, Associate Matron Hazel Rehkopf, Janada Rehkopf, Past Grand Adah Alice Bellinger and Past Grand Marshal Dorothea Kelly.

Local charity projects were $200 to Heart Start and money to the local Food Pantry.

There was a total of $209,366.35 given to charities through Michigan Grand Chapter this year.

Grandvue concludes bargaining

About 65 employees of Grandvue Medical Care Facility who several months ago voted to join the Service Employees International Union have completed salary negotiations.

The three-year package, which totals a raise of 50 cents an hour, calls for increases retroactive to January 1, 1989 of 18 cents an hour from January 1 to September 2, 1989; seven cents an hour from September 3 through the end of 1989; and 25 cents an hour during 1990 (entry level jobs will carry a 20 cents an hour increase.

Employees included in the contract are nurses aides, residential aides, diversional activity aides, physical therapy aids, housekeeping employees, dietary employees, laundry employees, and plant operations employees.

OPINIONS

Editorial

Review maybe, replace no

City manager Mike Wiesner's position was discussed at Monday evening's council meeting. The discussion was so nebulous that it's difficult to figure out exactly what councilmen are trying to get at.

If councilmen are merely seeking to review Wiesner's job performance, fine, no problem. Everyone can benefit from occasional review and constructive criticism.

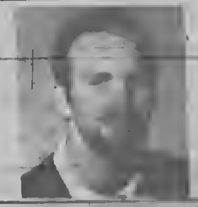
If councilmen are trying to drum up some reason to fire Wiesner, that's a bad move and not in the best interest of the community.

As city manager, Wiesner has been competent and productive. Executing council policy and keeping track of projects on a day to day basis in an enterprise as complex as the city of Charlevoix isn't a simple task.

Concerns councilmen voiced Monday evening seemed more related to problems of misunderstandings and misinterpretation than anything else. Maybe Wiesner's to blame for some of the misunderstanding and misinterpretation. But then as Monday evening's discussion indicated, the Charlevoix City Council, like many public bodies, isn't always easy to understand and interpret.

At this time, there's no valid reason for changing city managers.

Alumni of Charlevoix's girls basketball program staged a clinic for middle school girls this past Saturday. Winning teams of three-on-three tournaments capping the clinic were (front from left) sixth grade - Heidi Miller, Amy Friedinger, Angie Schmidt, (middle) seventh grade - Andgela Buday, Kerrie Hunter, Nikki Perron, (back) Carrie Wakulat, Ellie Frey and Christy Meier.



REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

A fall illness - No thank you

There's no way I'm going to get as sick this fall as I was last fall. I don't have time for it. And even if I did have the time, I don't think I'd enjoy it.

Last fall I started with a cold, worked my way up to bronchitus and for a grand finale finished off with pneumonia.

With that in mind, my motto for this fall has been, "Not again. No, not again." It's a motto which has left me on the brink, if not over the edge, of the pit of hypochondria.

If I even sniffle a little bit, I think, "Not again. No, not again."

Cough? It makes me nervous just to clear my throat:

I did enough coughing last year to last a lifetime. There were times when I coughed so hard I was afraid I would cough up some internal items which were meant to be fixed assets.

"Not again. No, not again."

This year, I'm constantly keeping my guard up. No germ or virus is going to catch me unaware. The minute I notice any sign of them, I spring into action.

The other day, I noticed I felt a little stuffy. I sprang into action that very evening. Planting myself on the couch, I piled on two or three blankets, found a hockey game on TV and sweated this perceived malady out.

As my wife will readily attest, there's not much I hate more than being forced to relax and watch sports on TV. But under the circumstances, it seemed the only prudent course of action.

And I'm not only reacting to the possibility of illness, I'm also being proactive.

Take the battle to the enemy. An ounce of prevention is worth not blowing your nose a thousand times.

I stopped by the drug store and picked up a bottle of vitamin C. Every morning I faithfully chew up and swallow down one of these bitter little pills.

Technically, these vitamins are orange flavored. The taste may bring to mind an orange, but it's not the same as the taste of a real orange. No orange grown on a tree has ever produced a taste so intense.

The natural orange taste of a real live orange flows over your tongue and pleases your taste buds. The artificial orange taste of orange flavored vitamin C crashes down upon your tongue, grabs your taste buds and beats them into submission.

But I've been persuaded that traumatizing my taste buds in this fashion each day is in my best interest. So I do it.

Along with a vitamin each day, I'm also taking a dose of magic elixir a couple of times each week.

The magic elixir consists of hot tea with some lemon juice and a shot of whiskey thrown in. Taken individually, none of these items will cure much, but mixed together they form a potent brew.

Some of the value of the stuff isn't even derived from drinking it. Just the fumes make a stern impact.

My dog caught a whiff of magic elixir the other night and it made his eyes water. I figure if magic elixir will stagger a 100-pound, furry brute of a dog, then a little germ or virus doesn't stand a chance.

And the little germs and viruses know when they're whipped. Faced with a cup or two of magic elxir, germs and viruses holler, "Oh no! We're in trouble now. This body's not safe any more. Head for the kidneys. It's our only chance for escape."

The fumes of the magic elixir offer a fair prelude to its taste. The taste is not something for the timid. But still, it's better than that bronchitus and pneumonia stuff.

"Not again. No, not again."

Senior citizens raise funds

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Charlevoix VFW Post number 1153 recently donated $1,000 to the Charlevoix Senior Citizens Building Fund.

The senior citizens now have approximately $15,000 in the fund and have submitted a grant application to the state for additional funds. Their immediate goal is to put a furnace in their building on West Carpenter Street. They expect to break ground on building renovations sometime in November.

This Saturday, during the Apple Fest, senior citizens will be selling tags and seeking contributions for the project.

Hurricane victims appreciate Charlevoix generosity

Between 15,000 and 20,000 pounds of food and other items donated by Charlevoix people arrived in hurricane ravaged Summerville, South Carolina this past weekend.

Doug Way Sr., who drove the Way Transportation semi truck which delivered the items, said the damage done by hurricane Hugo is awe inspiring.

"It was just total, total devastation," he said.

Way and his brother Dawson drove through both Charleston and Summerville.

Charleston, which is on the sea suffered extensive damage from a wall of water brought in by the hurricane. Way said huge boats were picked up like toys and deposited in piles on the shore.

Summerville, which is off the sea and on higher ground, suffered wind damage. Traditionally, Summerville has been known for beautiful flowers and large pine trees. Hugo took away the flowers and tipped over most of the trees.

As of this weekend, several thousand people still weren't back in their homes. Downed power lines created a sea of cables along the streets. Most road signs and traffic signals had been blown away.

"People are just dazed," Way observed.

He said the people of Summerville are extremely grateful for Charlevoix's generosity. He also noted that the federal government is doing a good job in coordinating clean up efforts.

Charlevoix recently shipped between 15,000 and 20,000 pounds of food and other goods to hurricane victims in South Carolina. Loading the goods are (from left) Lowell Anderson, Joe Johnston and Troy Bonar.

Local recycling center now open

Northwest Recycling Center is now up and operating in Charlevoix. The center is located in the former Hufford Industries building on U.S. 31 near the entrance to the industrial park at the north end of town.

Skip Canfield is the owner of the center. He has been operating a similar center in Traverse City for the past eight years.

Canfield says the center is not a nonprofit charity operation, but is a privately owned business. "We try to make a living doing this," he explains.

Materials turned into the recycling center are sold directly to mills which use the material to make new products.

"We only accept what we can process," Canfield said.

People interested in recycling can stop at the center and pick up a list of materials the center can take. That list includes: tin cans, aluminium, glass, newspapers, cardboard, computer print-out and office paper, various types of plastic jugs, car batteries, appliances and used oil.

The list also explains how these items should be brought to the center and notes certain items the center can't accept.

"What we would really like from the community is just to get with us to learn what we can accept and what we can't," Canfield explained.

The center will be open for drop-offs from the public Fridays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m.

If there is enough demand, the center may begin curbside pickup of recyclable materials. There would be a charge for the curbside pickup, but it would take into consideration the resale value of the material.

The center is also working with industrial and commercial establishments to recycle their waste products.

Canfield said that he had considered establishing a recycling center in Emmet County, but had problems finding a suitable building. One day while driving through Charlevoix, he saw the former Hufford Industries building and began discussions with Walt Hufford.

"I'd love to see us utilizing this whole building with quite a few people working here," Canfield said. He said the Northwest Recycling Center in Traverse City employs seven people, including himself.

Skip Canfield prepares a bale of recycled newspapers for transport to the paper mill.

Charlevoix is ripe for Applefest

by PEG OHLE

This weekend, the annual Apple Festival will bring dozens of area farmers to Charlevoix, where they will line Bridge Street and East Park with hundreds of bushels of apples and other fruits of their land.

This last large community gathering of the season sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce is not only a market for apples, one of the county's largest crops, but a tribute to a food product that many feel is the best-tasting, most nutritious, most healthful product of the earth.

"An apple a day keeps the doctor away."

"An apple for the teacher."

"As American as apple pie."

"Don't upset the apple cart."

Some believe the forbidden fruit Eve ate in the Garden of Eden was an apple. If so, apples have been around a long time.

The story of William Tell with an apple bisected by an arrow on his head has left a lasting impression on thousands of school children.

But probably it is the story of Johnny Appleseed that most applies to Northern Michigan.

Johnny Appleseed was the name given to one John Chapman, who, in the early 1800's, planted large numbers of apple trees along the frontier from Pennsylvania, through Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. Eventually he owned about 1,200 acres of apple orchards and gave seeds and saplings to everyone he met.

Among those who benefited from Johnny Appleseed's gifts were hundreds of people who later migrated to Northern Michigan and who, being experienced apple growers, planted apple trees on the land they cleared for their new homes. Just about every farm had an apple orchard which provided fruit for the family and often enough for shipment to Great Lakes cities.

There are stories in newspapers in the 1880's and 1890's of hundreds of bushels of apples being shipped from docks at Charlevoix, Horton Bay, Boyne City, and East Jordan Some of these apples were grown in commercial orchards, which were forerunners of the several orchards now being operated in Charlevoix County and nearby.

One of the oldest commercial orchards in the area is run by Walt and Michelle Rosenthal on Barnard Road. According to Walt, the orchard dates back to the 1870's. It consists of about 600 apple trees of 41 different kinds, with McIntosh, Delicious, and Yellow Delicious in greater numbers, followed by Wealthies and Wolf Rivers.

The Rosenthals sell their crop in local markets and from their own stand. Any that is left-over is taken to a canning factory in Traverse City. They also make and sell cider. Some of the 100-year old trees are still bearing, Rosenthal says, although each year the orchard is replenished with the newer dwarf trees. The Rosenthals will have their produce at the Apple Festival, as they have had every year.

Another old orchard is that run by the Friskies in Ellsworth. Richard Friskie says he believes the old part of this orchard is about 100 years old. His parents bought it about 40 years ago and two families operated the orchard before that.

The Friskie orchard has about 15,000 apple trees representing all the main varieties – McIntosh, Delicious, Yellow Delicious, Ida Red, Spartan, Empire, Cortland, Rome, and many others. Richard says they have been replacing the old full-height trees which used to bear 40 bushes of fruit for the semi-dwarf trees which bear only six to eight bushels. "It's the number of bushels per acre that counts," he explained, "and we can plant the dwarf trees much closer together. They're easier to pick, too."

The Friskies sell about 20 percent of their apple crop right on the farm, with most of the rest going to grocery stores in three- and five-pound bags. Some also go to wholesalers downstate. Cider processed by the Friskies is also sold in grocery stores. "We use our sort-outs, undersized, and blemished apples for cider," Richard explained.

Friskie produce will be available at the Apple Festival.

John King's Orchard in Central Lake is younger than either of the above. "We have some trees that are 40 years old," King said, "but we don't go back before that."

The orchard consists of about 2,200 trees of many varieties—McIntosh, Delicious, Northern Spy, Empire, Mutsu (a Japanese variety), Snow, Jonathan, and Cortland—were the ones King reeled off.

King sells some of his apple crop from the stand at his orchard, some to local grocery stores, and some to a processing plant in Traverse City. He also makes and sells cider.

As with most of today's fruit growers, King is replenishing his orchard with dwarf-size trees.

"Sure, I'll be at the Apple Festival," he answered. "It's a lot of fun."

These local apple growers are part of the large Michigan apple industry which produced 26,190,000 bushels in 1985, the second largest state production in the United States. World-wide, the Soviet Union is the largest grower of apples, with a production of 367,400,000 bushels in 1985. The United States is the second largest grower world-wide, with a production of 185,930,000 bushels the same year.

There are thousands of varieties of apples which mature to various shades of red, green, and yellow, with flavors that range from tart to sweet. Three varieties---Delicious, Golden Delicious, and McIntosh—make up 60 percent of apples grown in the United States. Rome Beauties and Jonathans are also listed as "popular" varieties.

Rod Cortright of the Charlevoix County Extension Service says that apple trees are much hardier than cherry trees and bear crops for as long as 40 years. Trees planted until recently grew as high as 40 feet and many lived over 100 years. Today, most trees planted are the dwarf size.

... local orchards at festival

Remnants of old apple orchards can be seen all over Charlevoix County, along country roads and busy highways. One of the more visible old orchards is located on the Boyne City Road between U. S. 31 and Brown Road.

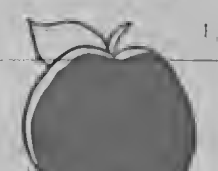
These old apple orchards stand as weary reminders of long fruitful lives, but it is possible that many of them could be rejuvenated to bear once again, according to Cortright.

A new technique is being used to bring back old orchards. As explained in a Cooperative Extension Service bulletin, "A tree that is reasonably structurally sound may be renovated and brought back into production. The trunk should not be severely rotted and large lateral limbs should not be hollow".

The renovation process consists largely of severely pruning the trees to get rid of dead and dying limbs so latent buds within the tree can produce new, vigorous limbs. The result can be a smaller, more manageable tree that will bear fruit and provide a shapely shade tree for the landscape.

The bulletin, titled "Renovating Old, Abandoned Apple Trees," is available from the Extension Service in Boyne City.

Apples popular throughout state



A sip of golden apple cider captures the flavor of autumn, and can be savored at picturesque mills across the state, AAA suggests.

"For many people, fall doesn't officially start until the first trip to the cider mill," said Brian Potter, AAA Michigan Touring manager. "The combination of fresh cider, autumn color and rustic settings is irresistible."

Cider can be enjoyed fresh from the mill or at home where it will last one to two weeks if refrigerated between 32 and 36 degrees. Cider also retains its quality for at least a year when frozen. Just remove about 10 percent from the container to allow for expansion during freezing.

Cider is a little more expensive this year, costing an average $2.64 a gallon, 12 cents higher than 1988. Prices range from $1.50 to $4, depending on the location.

And a stop at the cider mill is not complete without some doughnuts. The average price is $2.70 per dozen, with costs ranging from $1.80 to $4.

Most of Michigan's cider mills are open through the end of October or early November. Many remain open into December, and a few sell cider year-round. Visitors should call ahead for days and hours of operation.

In addition to cider, some mills offer crimson jams and jellies, tasty homemade pies, "U-Pick" orchards, wagon rides, and mill tours.

Charlevoix's Apple Festival is one of eight taking place in Michigan this fall. Armada and Bangor are celebrating this weekend, and Lansing and Mt. Morris have festivals scheduled for next weekend.

Applefest has extras

While apples will be the centerpiece for this weekend's Apple Festival, all kinds of other fall fruits, vegetables, and flowers will be available to tempt the public.

There will be golden pears, blushing peaches, bright orange pumpkins, yellow squash, red tomatoes, apple butter, jams and jellies, honey, and fresh cider.

Local non-profit and church organizations will be selling home-made delicacies, and many local restaurants will feature apple specialties. There will also be an authentic cider press in operation for everyone to see and taste fresh-pressed cider.

The autumn gift show will provide an opportunity to buy gifts for Christmas, birthdays, and anniversaries.

On Sunday, the American Legion will sponsor a pancake breakfast at the Legion Hall on West Garfield Street from 8 a.m. to noon.

Apples are nutritious

The nutritional value of apples has long been heralded by health professionals.

Apples contain Vitamin A, essential for the development of skin tissue and maintaining good eyesight.

The pectin and the pulp, or skin, of the apple contributes bulk, or fiber, to the diet, aiding digestion.

Apples are virtually fat-free and low in sodium. A medium apple contains only 80 calories.

Apples are great for dental health. They clean and massage the gums much like a natural toothbrush.

Apples reduce tooth decay, eliminating 96.7 percent of bacteria. In contrast, three minutes with a toothbrush, plus a mouth rinse, eliminates only 64.3 percent of the bacteria.

Apples are associated with maintaining proper cholesterol levels, which many studies show can prevent or reduce the risk of coronary heart disease.

CHURCH

The Community Church of God had a mortgage burning celebration this past Sunday. Burning the mortgage are Larry Boog and Leola King, chairman and vice chairman of the church's board of deacons. Behind them from the left are: Gene Llotta, Jock Gigg, Millard Hand, Ruth Ann Campbell, Betty Inman and Bill Purdy.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Philip G. Schairbaum
First Congregational Church

Several weeks ago Miss America 1989 was crowned before a live audience of thousands and a television audience of millions. Interest in this very prestigious beauty pageant has not seemed to wane over the years, inspite of the growing concern that perhaps it does not communicate the right message, or at least the complete message, about the true meaning of beauty.

While it is important for all of us to keep ourselves healthy, neat and attractive within the acceptable standards of our society, external beauty amounts to very little if it is not accompanied by our attractive internal spirit. All of us know people who are outwardly glamorous but, because they lack an inner beauty, are not very appealing to us. The recent trials of some top-name Hollywood personalities are good cases in point. In reverse, all of us know people who are very plain externally, but, who are very attractive because of the wonderful spirit they have within.

The Apostle Peter once wrote, "Your beauty should not come from outward adornment, but in the innermost center of your being, with its ornament a gentle and quiet spirit." (I Peter 3:3-4 NEV). He was referring to that sense of joy and peace that come over us with the blessing of Christ's presence, a presence that can make our life absolutely radiant. There may be nothing very special about us on the outside, but when we have Christ's loving spirit within, then our whole life becomes something beautiful -- our speech is beautiful, our actions are beautiful, and our relationships are beautiful.

No, beauty cannot be defined as simply as the Miss America Pageant wants to define it, by how well we walk, how talented we are, or how nice we look in a bathing suit. God knows, quite literally, that true beauty transcends all these things, and has more to do with what's in us, than what's on us. Let each of us be clear about that, and help our children and teenagers understand it too.

Church burns mortgage

The Community Church of God celebrated a mortgage burning Sunday. The church burned the mortgage on a $90,000 loan taken out in 1974 to remodel and enlarge the church.

The loan was scheduled to be paid off in January, but through special fundraising efforts which included ringing the church with $1,100 in pennies the loan was paid off Sept. 12. In another project, 79 people were given silver dollars and asked to use their talents to make the dollars grow. The $79 was turned into $1,490.

The Community Church of God was founded in the 1890s and has been at its present location since 1912.

Grief sessions offered

A series of weekly sessions will take place from Thursday, October 26 to November 30 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church in Boyne City to help those recovering from a loss. The sessions will be held weekly excluding Thanksgiving week.

Rev. Buzz Walls will be the program leader for the sessions which are co-sponsored by the Charlevoix County Hospice and Charlevoix Area Hospital. Anyone who has suffered a loss and who would benefit from the support of others along with informative discussions which will help them deal with their grief are invited to attend. Please call the Hospice office at 536-2842 to indicate your desire to participate.

Hospital volunteers trained

A training session for volunteers interested in providing bedside assistance at Charlevoix Area Hospital will take place from 9 a.m. to noon October 26.

The hospital is in need of volunteers who can help a few hours each month with such duties as passing meal trays and water, delivering mail and flowers, and helping to entertain patients.

For further information or to offer your assistance, please call Nancy Ellison at 547-4024.

Leola McGinnis

Leola G. McGinnis, 57, died Sept. 26, 1989 at McLaren Hospital in Flint.

Funeral services were held Sept. 29 at Brown Funeral Home, Flint. Rev. Bruce J. Badder officiated. Interment was in Tanner Cemetery in Flint.

McGinnis was born in Lake City on Oct. 20, 1931, to Joel and Violet (Loucks) Pardee. On Oct. 28, 1947, she married Marvin McGinnis of Charlevoix.

They made their home in Charlevoix for several years, and have resided in Flint for the past 37 years.

She attended Genesee Road Church of God

Rayders face showdown with Chiefs

It's showdown time. Following last week's 9-6 win over St. Ignace, Charlevoix's undefeated football team now will play host to the equally undefeated Cheboygan Chiefs this Friday evening.

Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Petoskey are all tied for first in the Michigan Huron Shores League with records of 6-0 overall and 4-0 in league play. Cheboygan is among the top ranked Class B teams in the state. Charlevoix is currently in a position to qualify for the Class C postseason playoffs.

At the beginning of the season, Cheboygan and Petoskey were highly regarded. Charlevoix was considered an interesting team with some potential. But as the weeks have passed, Charlevoix has consistently met every challenge.

The St Ignace game provided the Rayders' with the biggest challenge to date this season. The game proved to be a battle dominated by defense.

In the first quarter Charlevoix took a 2-0 lead on a safety. An errant snap to the St. Ignace punter led him into the endzone where he was pounced on by Charlevoix's Mike Stoneham.

St. Ignace scored in the second quarter on a broken play which turned into a 55 yard scoring pass.

The extra point attempt failed and the game remained tied until the fourth quarter. Following a St. Ignace fumble, Charlevoix running back James Corwin scored on a 28-yard run. Brian Livingston kicked the extra point and the defense held to preserve the 9-6 win.

Corwin carried 17 times for 84 yards. He also buried St. Ignace deep on two punts. Stoneham, Jason Parrish, Brian Coolman, Bill Sherman, Pat Elliot and Tracy Simpson keyed the Rayder defense.

St. Ignace was held to 153 yards in the game. The Charlevoix offense mustered only 156 yards.

Charlevoix CC

Michelle Jacobs (front) was Charlevoix's top finisher in the girls race. Close behind her is teammate Tracee Smith.

Miller wins local race

Charlevoix's boys cross country team stepped up a notch in competition as they hosted the Claire Martin Invitational this past Saturday.

Although the Rayders are a Class C team, they chose to run with the Class A and B schools Saturday. Charlevoix's Scott Miller won the race, but as a team the Rayders finished behind Class A Traverse City and Class B Cadillac. Both teams are ranked in their classes.

Miller finished in 16:07, 14 seconds ahead of the second place finisher. Bill Crook was the next Charlevoix finisher, placing ninth in a time of 17:07. Other top Charlevoix runners and their times were: Mike Sevenski - 17:21, Paul Wakulat - 17:29.

Charlevoix finished fifth in the girls race with Michelle Jacobs the team's top finisher.

Two of Charlevoix's top runners, Gehry Wiesner and Julie Bush, were unable to run in the race due to injuries.

Charlevoix CC

Mike Sevinski (front) continued to improve this season with a strong race Saturday. In the background is Charlevoix's Chris Meier.

In an effort to rejuvenate Charlevoix's girls basketball program, former coaches and players staged a clinic Saturday for middle school girls. The clinic drew 29 middle schoolers and 15 alumni. Saturday evening, the alumni divided up into teams and played a game.

Basketball team loses in overtime

Charlevoix's girls basketball team came close to getting rid of that ugly zero in the team's win column, but lost 54-52 in overtime to Rogers City last Thursday night.

The loss dropped Charlevoix to 0-10 on the year, but there were some bright spots. During several games this season, the Rayders have had terrible scoring droughts during portions of the second half. Against Rogers City, the Rayders not only avoided the drought, but even came from behind in the fourth quarter to send the game into overtime.

But the Rayder comeback wasn't quite enough as they were outscored by a basket in overtime.

BRAKE PRICES?
UNTIL THEY PULL THE WHEELS, THEY'RE PULLING YOUR LEG.
Think about it. How do some brake places know what your next job'll cost if they've never seen your brakes to begin with? Answer: they don't.
Fact is, there's no way anyone can figure out exactly what the price will be. There are just too many possibilities.
That's why at Midas, we pull all four wheels before every brake job. To get inside your brakes. To inspect them. To positively determine what's gone wrong. From a nine dollar can of fluid to a new master cylinder.
And when we're finished, we'll give you a pinpoint estimate of the entire job. With a price that won't go up when the job's done. That's our promise to you.
So when it comes time to pay, you'll have a leg to stand on.

Council says stop work on northside sewer extension

Until separation of sewers on the city's north side is completed, no more city staff time will be spent researching the possibility of extending sewer service to proposed developments north of the city.

Councilmen adopted this position at the urging of mayor Gary Probert during Monday evening's city council meeting.

Rick Lobenherz and Al Shindorf, developers of two proposed projects in the section of Charlevoix Township to the north of the city, are interested in having the projects served by the city sewer system. They were not at Monday's meeting and could not be reached for comment following the meeting.

The city's waste water treatment plant, constructed in the early 1970s, is designed to serve a larger geographic area than the city of Charlevoix. The plant currently operates at only 50 to 60 percent of its capacity on peak summer days.

However, some city sanitary and storm sewer lines on the city's north side are still connected and at certain times of the year back up. The city is in the process of separating sanitary and storm sewer lines

Small video cameras were sent through the lines and according to engineers, the lines are in good shape, despite the fact that many are at least 50 years old.

At a Sept. 25 council work session, John Adams from the engineering firm of McNamee, Porter and Seeley Inc. presented the council flow charts and indicated that when separation work is completed, city sewer lines will be able to handle added flow from the two proposed projects in the township.

At that time, councilmen Jim Potter, Bill Haggard and Butch Russell said that it appears the Candidates speak Oct. 18

Candidates for city council seats will have an opportunity to air their views at a Meet the Candidates Night beginning at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday Oct. 18 in the high school study hall.

Three of six council seats are up for election Nov. 7. There will be races for two of the seats.

In the first ward, Cheri Hoffman is challenging incumbent Norm Probert. In the third ward, Pat [illegible] is challenging incumbent Earl [illegible]. In the second ward, incumbent Butch Russell is running unopposed.

Each candidate will be given five minutes to speak about their goals and objectives. Following candidate speeches, there will be a question and answer period.

The FOCUS discussion group is hosting the campaign. FOCUS sponsors public discussions on issues of local interest. FOCUS officer Patti Ulrich will moderate the candidate night.

Boss fills board vacancy

by WENDI WRIGHT

At its regular meeting Monday night, the Charlevoix Board of Education appointed Kenneth Boss as trustee to fill the vacancy on the board left by the death of Robert Drenth.

The board approved the appointment unanimously, following the recommendation by a committee comprised of board members Doris Pearl, Ardith Wieland, and Max Novak, board president.

Speaking for the committee, Pearl cited two reasons for the decision to recommend Boss.

First, she said, Boss is a former board member, therefore, he is familiar with members and the various committees. The committee felt that Boss' experience on the board would allow for a smooth transition to the post.

Second, Pearl said, Boss told the committee that he had no interest in running for election to the position in June, but sought only to finish Drenth's term. Pearl stated that this had been an important factor in the committee's decision to recommend Boss for appointment. She said that the committee did not feel comfortable recommending someone who would seek election to the post, stating that such an appointment might give the appointee an unfair advantage over other candidates.

Wieland echoed these thoughts. "We didn't want the board's choice to be construed as support for someone who would run in June," she said. Because Boss has no interest in seeking election to the position,

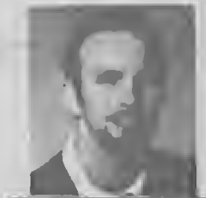
OPINIONS



REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Drivers need homefield edge

I'm not sure how much the homefield advantage is worth in athletic contests, but when it comes to driving around Charlevoix, the homefield advantage means everything.

At times when someone from out of town will be having all kinds of trouble getting around, a person who lives in Charlevoix will still be able to drive where they want to go without much difficulty.

The reason for this is more than just familiarity with the street system. There aren't that many streets in this town. After only a few days, a person gets pretty familiar with all of the main ones.

The homefield driving advantage in Charlevoix isn't so much a matter of knowing the streets. It's a matter of knowing the other drivers.

It's kind of an unwritten rule of the road in Charlevoix. If you're puttering along downtown on Bridge Street and somebody you know is sitting on a side street waiting to get in, you let them in. You slow down, smile, wave and motion for them to go ahead and make their turn. They return your wave and smile, make their turn and go on about their business.

On the other hand, if you're driving along downtown Bridge Street and the person waiting on the side street isn't somebody who you know, then they can just keep right on waiting.

And woe be unto the stranger who is presumptuous enough to try to nose his car out into traffic and create an opening.

"Stick that hood ornament out there any farther buddy, and I'll take it off.

Darn stranger anyhow. If he wants to turn onto Bridge Street, he can just wait for somebody he knows to come along. And if he doesn't know anybody, he might wait a long time.

Out of town visitors often get confused when riding with their Charlevoix hosts. They don't understand the fundamentals of Charlevoix driving and this lack of understanding leads to silly questions.

"How come you let that lady in on the last block and almost ran over the guy who tried to get in at this block?"

"Because that lady's my aunt. I don't who that guy was."

Normally, home field driving is only important on Bridge Street between the beginning of June and the end of August. However with downtown construction, homefield driving has currently come into play on State Street.

I visited New York City once and had to drive around in that madness.

In New York City, drivers beep and honk their horns.

New York City streets are a symphony of honking horns. Beep...beep, beep...honk, honk, honk. Sometimes even before leaving their driveways in the morning, New York City drivers beep their horns a couple of times. Just warming up. Wouldn't want to pull a horn-honking muscle.

And they don't honk their horns in a nice way. They honk with ill intent and take a sick pleasure in honking.

Stop lights are New York drivers' favorite places to honk. They try to time their honks so that the instant a light turns from red to green they get a honk in. They seem to want to get in as many honks as possible between the time the light turns green and the time when the first driver in line starts forward. This is their measure of driving and honking success.

I wasn't in any hurry while driving in New York City and didn't mind honkers running up big numbers. When I came to stop lights, I didn't even watch them. I figured the other drivers would let me know when the light turned green.

And New York City drivers don't wave. At least not with all of their fingers. A friend of mine from Michigan was driving a rented car in New York City and the honkers annoyed him until he waved at them in their own fashion. They probably figured he was a local.

But what can you expect from a city like New York. None of the drivers know each other. It's not anybody's homefield.

Carpal Tunnel recovery

Carpal Tunnel.

The first time I heard those words, I visualized an awesome highway engineering project burrowing through the mist-shrouded Carpalian Mountains of central Pennsylvania. I imagined thousands of cars and trucks speeding through the tunnel each day headed for Pittsburgh or Philadelphia.

The impression lingers — but today I see a train of woebegone hikers emerging from the dark tunnel, each with his arm in a sling.

Like thousands of other folks who use their hands to earn a living, I am a victim of carpal tunnel syndrome (CTS), an agonizing condition that turns the fingers into pork sausages and awakens the sufferer a dozen times a night with painful, tingling digits.

Carpal tunnel, of course, has nothing to do with highway engineering or central Pennsylvania.

The carpal bones, however, are a genuine engineering miracle. They are the little bones that form the wrist, leaving just enough room in the middle for the muscles, nerves and blood vessels needed to operate the hand.

All of this visceral spaghetti is held in place by a band of muscle across the bottom of the wrist. That's where carpal tunnel problems begin. If the muscle becomes too taut, the wrist turns into a bottleneck and the hand and fingers suffer.

The definitive diagnosis of carpal tunnel syndrome is performed locally at Lockwood-MacDonald Division of Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey.

Dr. James W. Rae of Leland visits the hospital four times a month to test suspected carpal tunnel patients with sophisticated electronic equipment. Dr. Rae helped develop the equipment while on the staff of the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor in the early 1950s.

Electrodes are placed on the arm to record the time it takes electrical impulses to travel from from the forearm to the hand. The longer the lapse, the more severe the problem.

I asked Dr. Rae how carpal tunnel was diagnosed before the test was developed.

"We usually told the patient he had arthritis," he said matter-of-factly.

Sufferers often try a variety of nostrums to seek relief. Some experiment with Vitamin B-6. Others increase their milk intake. Dr. Rae said cortisone helps in some cases.

But the only lasting remedy is surgery to sever the wrist muscle, relieving pressure on the carpal tunnel nerve.

The operation takes about one hour is performed under local anesthetic on an out-patient basis.

For some, relief is instantaneous, according to my surgeon, Dr. Merle Plagge of Charlevoix. Others continue to suffer symptoms for some time.

Since I postponed the operation literally for years, I am one of the latter. Although I had the operation two weeks ago, my right thumb is still numb but the afflicted area seems to be growing smaller every day.

The national Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., reports that fully 47 percent of the reported cases of carpal tunnel syndrome are work related.

"Without intervention, CTS can lead to marked discomfort, impaired hand function and disability. Workers who perform such repetitive tasks are at risk for CTS and include garment workers, butchers, grocery checkers, electronics assembly workers, typists, musicians, packers, housekeepers, cooks and carpenters," according to Thomas Matte, medical epidemiologist at the federal agency.

Matte says incidence of the condition is increasing as the nature of work changes, with more people entering service occupations and operating keyboards.

For those who balk at surgery, a change in occupations is sometimes necessary.

I have decided that if I have to leave newspapering, I am going to hire myself out as a tour guide in the Carpalian Mountains.

I might even sell slings as a sideline.

Letters to the Editor:

Soviet visit is a success

Late in the afternoon of Sept. 28 eight persons met four other persons at the Pellston airport. Those four other persons were Moscowites coming via New York city, San Francisco, Berkley, CA and Denver and headed for Charlevoix and Washington, D.C.

The eight greeters were host family members welcoming their guests from the Soviet Union. They were; Valeri Drannikov, Natalia Moskaleva, Dabiel Serebrennidov and Ludmilla Hitkova. It was quickly decided to call them Val, Natasha, Dan and Luda. A short time later they all sat down to a get-acquainted dinner. And thus began a relationship that the twelve persons will forever remember.

The above was the beginning of the end of a project that started last March. It began with one person and wound up with almost sixty persons participating in events and schedules planned by a committee of ten people. Before leaving our area the Soviets were seen, listened and spoken to by probably two thousand people. In addition newspapers, radio and television stations gave out news releases to the general public.

Val, Dan Natasha and Luda came to United States to see how our system operates and how the average American lives. They were not on vacation but on working journey to observe religious freedom, (they were all atheists) freedom to travel...to see the abundance of food in supermarkets, surplus of goods in malls and well-stocked car lots...view the productivity of American factories and the skills of management. They also watched elementary kids use computors and went into homes filled with labor saving appliances. This entire trip cost them not one kopeck or one penny. From portal to portal everything was free. Each uf us would like such an opportunity to go overseas and back home with all expenses paid.

The most favorite person was Valery, a frustrated T-shirt cooperative manager, who became even more frustrated after seeing the T-shirt making plant owned by his host family. Should I go to Moscow again, I would certainly look up Valery.

Luda (Ludmilla), very intelligent scholar, instantly converting English into Russian and vice versa, needed pampering and preferred talking to eating. At the public reception she was advised to wear the attention-getting permanent $7 identification badge, otherwise people would think she was another beautiful American lady. Luda was really a nice person.

Dan was always a gentleman, well-founded in the communist theory. Dan earned about $400 monthly as a designer of graphic equipment. His rent with utilities was $40, and the government took out another $40 for taxes. Daniel was the only unmarried member of the foursome.

Natasha, a close companion, worked with Dan in the same cooperative. A friendly woman, she was handicapped by not speaking English. However she was very fluent in French. Many schools throughout the USSR teach English. Twelve and fourteen year old students speak English naturally.

All four persons were communist party members, some of the 7 percent that control the Soviet Union. They receive privileges not available to 93 percent of their countrymen, such as special food markets and clothing stores, larger apartments and country dachas. They wait only a few weeks to pay cash for cars (no options). Because of shortages, drivers keep their windshield wipers in the glove compartments, and put them on only when it rains.

There is a mutual ignorance and scarcity of information between the US and the USSR. The revolution, two wars and Stalin's purges have killed forty-six million Soviets. Instead of hundreds, there should be thousands coming to United States. Instead of a hundred thousand going annually, a million Americans should go to the Soviet nation. This would reduce tensions and cut defense spending in both countries.

The "Soviets Meet Middle American" has each month for three years brought in twenty Soviet citizens.

The most rewarding and satisfying part of the project was that so many persons wanted to help and participate. Fully sixty people volunteered their time to make this an outstanding success. And thanks to them it was.

Hospice prepares for doll auction

Preparations are under way for the silent doll auction to benefit Charlevoix Area Hospice Inc.

The auction began in 1983 with area residents dressing 12 dolls for sale, raising $200. Since then the auction has grown to include more dolls, and toys and crafts. To participate, simply pick up a doll at any branch office of Northwestern State Bank beginning Tuesday, Oct. 10.

Take the dolls home and dress them creatively and return them to the bank by Nov. 30. Crafts can be of any design or purpose and must also be returned by Nov. 30 to be auctioned off.

Mary Kenny of East Jordan has participated in the event each year, said Joan Lemerand of the Atwood branch of Northwestern State Bank. Jan Veenstra of Atwood is working on her fifth edition of the Atwood the Adorable Doll and the mother and daughter team of Sharon and Andrea Jackson not only dress dolls for the auction but display them at Sharon Jackson's store Busy Bridge in East Jordan.

Bids on the crafts will be accepted from Dec. 1 to Dec. 8, with a $15 minimum bid. The auction will take place at each Northwestern State Bank branch office. The highest bid on a doll or craft becomes the price for the bidder to pay. All of the proceeds from the auction benefit hospice.

Nancy Flood (left) and Charlevoix Area Hospice director Margaret Lasater (right) display some of the dolls which will be sold in a silent auction to benefit the hospice.

DARE tapes donated

The Northern Michigan Medical Society recently donated two video tapes to DARE, a program which helps combat drug use and abuse among school children.

The Medical Society includes physicians from Emmet, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Antrim counties.

DARE - or Drug Abuse Resistance Education - is presented to elementary students in Petoskey, Harbor Springs, St. Francis, Littlefield, Pellston and Charlevoix by Trooper Charles Munyan of the Michigan State Police Petoskey Post.

Throughout Northern Michigan, the program is presented by other officers in classrooms in Boyne City, Boyne Falls, East Jordan, Mackinaw City, and Cheboygan and Antrim counties.

Northern Michigan Medical Society Past President Dr. Robert G. Fawcett, of the Burns Clinic Psychiatry Department, made the presentation on behalf of the society. The two tapes, "Dare to Say No" and "No Matter How You Say It...Say No," are well accepted by students, Munyan said.

"DARE to say No," is a 16-minute Disney video and "No Matter How You Say It...Say No," is a 12-minute Fox production featuring Isiah Thomas of the Detroit Pistons.

"We felt this donation would help fight the significant problem of drug and alcohol abuse," Dr. Fawcett said. "The DARE program is a good, preventive program that helps before the problem starts."

The DARE program is funded by community donations, with the exception of the officer's wages, Trooper Munyan said.

For more information about DARE, contact Munyan at 616-347-8101.

Doyle C. Fitzpatrick

Doyle C. Fitzpatrick, 81, of St. James, Beaver Island, died Oct. 15, 1989, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Graveside service will be 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21, at Holy Cross Cemetery, Beaver Island.

Mr. Fitzpatrick was born March 9, 1908, in St. Johns, Mich., the son of R. Hayes and Jesse M. (Irving) Fitzpatrick. He grew up in St. Johns and in 1926 graduated from St. Johns High School. He is an alumnus of Michigan State University and had worked as a sign painter in commercial art and later co-owned a sales promotion company in Lansing.

He married the former Phyllis J. Millward on Oct. 7, 1961, in Plymouth.

Mr. Fitzpatrick was vice president of Industrial Display Corp. in Lansing, and then worked for Oldsmobile Division, General Motors Corp. for 32 years, retiring in 1973 as supervisor of the art and chart department. He served for many years on the YMCA Mystic Lake camp committee. He was a member of the Oldsmobile Quarter Century Club; Michigan Historical Society; a life member of the Beaver Island Historical Society and a member of the Beaver Island Christian Church. He also authored a book, "The King Strang Story."

Survivors include: his wife Phyllis J. of St. James; one son, Leland C. of Fairfax Station, Va.; three daughters, Mrs. Donald (Colleen) Lackey of Eustis, Fla., Susan Fitzpatrick of East Lansing and Mrs. Robert (Marsha) Huston of Greenberg, Ind.; five grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Dorothy Eaton of Stanton.

The family suggests memorials to the Beaver Island Medical Center for the defibrillator unit.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

Erwin Belfy

Erwin Belfy, 65, of Beaver Island, died Oct. 16, 1989, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral will be 10:30 a.m. Friday, Oct. 20, at Holy Cross Catholic Church, Beaver Island. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Beaver Island.

Visitation will be after 3 p.m. Wednesday and on Thursday at the Belfy home with a rosary at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Mr. Belfy was born July 28, 1924, on Beaver Island, the son of William and Alice (Johnston) Belfy. He is a graduate of Beaver Island Community School and was a World War II veteran serving in the U.S. Navy.

On May 28, 1960, he married the former Emma Jean Eathorne. They returned to the island in 1979.

Mr. Belfy was employed as a plumbing inspector for the department of building and safety engineering in the city of Detroit, retiring in 1979 after 30 years.

He was a member of Holy Cross Catholic Church on Beaver Island; plumbers union Local 98; Friendly Sons of St. Patrick of Warren, Mich.

Mr. Belfy is survived by: his wife Emma Jean of St. James; one son, Mark E. Belfy of Warren; four daughters, Alice H. Belfy and Kathleen J. Belfy, both of St. James; Susan M. Belfy of Charlevoix, Mrs. James (Mary Ann) Cull of Bay City; two grandchildren, Jimmy and Katie; one brother, John Delbert Belfy of Charlevoix; one sister, Edna McCann of Charlevoix.

He was preceded in death by a brother, Merrill.

The family suggests memorials to the Oncology Department, Little Traverse Division, Northern Michigan Hospitals.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. J. Perry Fowler Safe Harbor Southern Baptist Church

A few months ago a young friend of mine, who is in the first grade, asked me to check his math homework. As I checked the work I found that most of his more difficult problems were correct but, there was a simple two plus two equation that had been answered as being five. When I discussed the problem with him he quickly became defensive and said, "I don't want it to be four, I want it to be five!"

In life there are some things that cannot be changed. A fact is a fact, and although some may wish to change certain facts or ignore them, the fact remains. When we look at the cross, there are some facts that we must admit to be true.

We must first admit that God loves us. As Luke records the crucifixion we see an innocent, sinless man who died for each of us. Although he could have rejected the cross, he did not because of his love for us and desire for us to know him personally in every day life. This same one cares for us today. He cares for our every need. There is nothing that goes unnoticed to him, and best of all, he is there for us.

Also, when we look at the cross we see that sin cost a great price. When one really understands the cross, they see a place where blood was spilled. A cross was a symbol of violence in Jesus day, but to all Christians, it is a place of love and forgiveness. Though the price if sin is high, Jesus took each of our sins upon himself at the cross.

Likewise, we must see the cross as a place for decision. As the two thieves hung near Jesus one chose to accept his forgiveness while another ignored and mocked Jesus. Each of us must stop and ask, "What will I do with Jesus." As Christians we have accepted his forgiveness and are thankful that he is no longer on the cross but has risen! He is now preparing a heavenly home for us! May we share his message of hope with everyone and forever be thankful for the cross.

County millage rates set

Although Charlevoix County will levy fewer mills, Charlevoix taxpayers will still be paying more dollars in the coming year.

Charlevoix County levied a total of 5.6846 mills this year. Taxpayers paid $2,800,461 in county property taxes based upon that millage levy.

In the coming year, Charlevoix County will levy a total of 5.5827 mills for the coming year, or .1019 of a mill less than this year. Taxpayers will pay $2,980,445 in county property taxes based upon that millage, or $179,984 more than this year.

County property taxes will increase in terms of dollars while decreasing in terms of mills levied due to an 8.4 percent overall increase in the state equalized valuation of property in Charlevoix County.

State equalized valuation (SEV) is one-half of a property's market value. A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of SEV.

In the past year, Charlevoix County's total SEV increased from $492,639,539 to $533,871,457. SEV is determined by tax assessors who use property sales figures and state guidelines.

An analogy may make the relationship between millage and SEV easier to understand. Say a person at an apple orchard eats one apple out of every bushel of apples harvested. In this analogy, apples eaten equate to mills levied and bushels of apples harvested equate to SEV.

If three bushels are harvested and a person eats one apple per bushel, he will eat three apples.

But say the apples eaten, or millage, is reduced so the person eats only one apple out of every two bushels harvested. If the number of bushels harvested stays the same, the person will eat fewer apples, but if the number of bushels increases from three to six, the person will still be eating three apples.

At last week's county commissioners meeting, the board of commissioners held three public hearings and set county millage levies for general revenue, the county transit system and Grandvue operations.

General revenue millage was set at 4.6008 mills and will bring the county $2,456,215. General revenue taxes pay the county share of funding for county departments and services.

County transit millage was set at .2455 and will bring the county $131,065. Transit money pays the county's share of funding for the county transportation system.

Grandvue operational millage was set at .7364 mills and will bring the county $393,144. Grandvue operational taxes pays the county's share of Grandvue operational costs.

Sheriff has hunting permission forms

Permission forms which allow hunters to hunt on private property are available at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office.

Hunters are required to hunt on private land they don't own. The form states that in return or the privilege of hunting on the land, the hunter will: observe rules of safe gun handling; leave gates as he finds them; not shoot in the direction of buildings or livestock; and use care in crossing fences.

Sears outlet has new owner plans grand opening celebration

Following several months of remodeling and renovation under new owner Joé Trojanek, the Sears outlet in Charlevoix will celebrate with a grand opening this Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Earlier this year, Sears changed the operating emphasis for its outlets. Previously the outlets handled catalogue orders and also sold appliances. Now the outlets primarily sell appliances, but also continue to handle catalogue orders.

Trojanek took over the Charlevoix outlet in May. He was not new to the business or Northern Michigan. He was raised in East Jordan and spent the previous four and a-half years working for former owners Woodrow and Margaret Wilson who retired.

Remodeling created a larger display area which allows the store to carry a wider variety of merchandise.

The store now carries vacuums, kitchen appliances, washers and dryers, electronic appliances such as TVs and stereos, and lawn and garden equipment including tractors and snow-throwers.

Trojanek says the store, located on South Bridge Street, now has approximately 1,000 square feet of display area and an additional 1,600 square feet for storage and the catalogue business.

Along with increasing the amount of merchandise on display, the line of brand names displayed has also been expanded. Trojanek notes that brands not traditionally associated with Sears are now included in the items at the Charlevoix outlet.

Normal store hours, 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., will be in effect for the grand opening. There will be several door prizes given away including a microwave oven, sets of cookware and numerous smaller items. Free coffee and doughnuts will be served.

"I'd like people who haven't been in to come in and see the merchandise, especially the expanded lines," Trojanek explained.

He said many items at the outlet represent a large purchase for the average family and often people like to see these items in a "hands on" way instead of just looking at a picture in a catalogue.

Trojanek said his initial months as owner of the store have been tremendous. He said customors have been very good to him.

Joe Trojanek became the new owner of the Charlevoix Sears outlet earlier this year. Following remodeling, Sears will host a grand opening this weekend.

City council leaves purchasing limit as is

The discretionary purchasing limit for the city manager will stay at $10,000.

Last week the city council discussed reducing the limit from $10,000 to $2,500. At this Monday's council meeting, the purchasing limit was again discussed, but none of the councilmen suggested taking action to change it.

According to city ordinance, "Competitive bids or quotations shall be obtained in purchase of goods over $1,500 or when deemed practical and contracts awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. Bids will be required of all purchases over $3,000; excepting in cases where the City Manager determines it is clearly to the City's advantage to waive this provision. All purchases of goods or services in excess of $10,000 must be awarded by action of the City Council."

During last week's work session, councilmen discussed changing the discretionary limit so that all contracts of more than $2,500 would have to be awarded by action of the council. But since the purchasing limit is set by ordinance rather than council resolution, changing it would require publishing notices and holding a public hearing.

Monday evening, councilman Bill Haggard who had never expressed support for the change, said, "I don't see a problem with the way it's currently run. I wouldn't go through all of the time to change it."

Councilmen Jim Potter and Ken Whitley said they would perhaps consider a limit of $5,000, but they made no motion to change the limit. Potter noted that reducing the limit to $2,500 might slow down city services.

Councilmen Earl Muma, Butch Russell and Norm Probert said they want as many city purchases as possible bid out.

City manager Mike Wiesner said he and the city department heads gets price quotes from several vendors on all purchases and attache the prices quoted to the purchasing order.

Premarital V.D. classes scheduled

Up until last April, persons planning marriage were required to be tested for venereal disease before a marriage license was issued to them.

Since that time, under Act 491 of Public Acts of 1988, persons planning marriage must also obtain a health certificate indicating they have been counseled by a personal physician or a professional from the local Health Department regarding the transmission and prevention of sexually transmitted diseases and HIV (the virus which causes AIDS infection), and also offered testing for same.

The Health certificate is then presented to the County Clerk along with the application for marriage license.

The Charlevoix office of District Health Department No. 3 has scheduled one-hour classes as follows through November: October 23, November 13, and November 27, all at 3:30 p.m. at Health Department headquarters at 203 Antrim Street.

Other classes will take place in Petoskey, Bellaire, and Gaylord at different hours for those who cannot attend the Charlevoix classes. The cost of the class is $15.

Arts Council names officers

Fran Pletz was elected for a second term as president of Jordan River Arts Council at the first meeting of the new board on Tuesday, September 19.

Under Pletz's leadership during the past year, the council offered numerous performing arts events in East Jordan, Mancelona, Bellaire, Central Lake and Boyne City, along with bringing a 48-piece orchestra to Elm Pointe Park for a pops concert.

Pletz says she envisions much more for the coming year, including workshops and classes after the council occupies its building at 301 Main Street in East Jordan.

A retired executive director of the Michigan Library Association, Pletz has been a driving force in getting the relatively new arts council established throughout the Jordan River area. Before moving to this area five years ago, she helped launch a similar project that developed into an active East Lansing arts workshop.

Also elected to second terms were Cindy Dalian, vice-president in charge of finance; Nancy Carey, vice-president in charge of membership; Rita LaVictoire, secretary and Sharon Jackson, treasurer.

According to the council's bylaws, officers may serve no more than two consecutive one-year terms.

New board members elected at the council's annual meeting in October are Ellen Addington, Ellsworth; Jim Bargar, Bellaire; Loria Bolt and Frank Hasseld, Charlevoix; Krista Knight, East Jordan; Paul Lisk, Central Lake; Heather Miller, Mancelona and Sheri Rhoads, Boyne City.

Other board members are Frances Bluhm, Denise Steely and Tom Teske, East Jordan residents who will serve on the board until 1992. Serving terms to 1991 are Jerry Aydlott, Lenore Bechtel and Howard Ellis, all of East Jordan. Serving until 1990 are Patti Hodge and John Richter, East Jordan, and Amy Wilks, Mancelona.

First grade students from St. Marys recently took a field trip to Maplewood Farm near Horton Bay to see the farm's llamas. The students were accompanied by their teacher Patricia Rash and several parent chaparones. They were guided through the farm by llama owner John Danly.

BRAKE PRICES?

UNTIL THEY PULL THE WHEELS, THEY'RE PULLING YOUR LEG.

Think about it. How do some brake places know what your next job'll cost if they've never seen your brakes to begin with? Answer: they don't.

Fact is, there's no way anyone can figure out exactly what the price will be. There are just too many possibilities.

That's why at Midas, we pull all four wheels before every brake job. To get inside your brakes. To inspect them. To positively determine what's gone wrong. From a nine dollar can of fluid to a new master cylinder.

And when we're finished, we'll give you a pinpoint estimate of the entire job. With a price that won't go up when the job's done. That's our promise to you.

So when it comes time to pay, you'll have a leg to stand on.

Childwatch meeting scheduled

City police, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and the elementary school Parent Teacher Association are sponsoring a parent training session for a community child watch program. The session will take place at 7 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 24 at the elementary school.

Police are investigating two recent reports of children being approached by men who asked the children to get into a vehicle. Both children declined and reported the incidents to other adults.

High school conferences planned

Parent-teacher conferences will take place at the high school from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., Thursday Nov. 2. Parents desiring to schedule an individual conference with their child's teacher should phone the high school office at 547-3222 between 7:15 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. Oct. 23 through Nov. 1. Conferences are normally scheduled to last 10 minutes.

Veterans warned

The Charlevoix County Office of Veterans Affairs is warning veterans that recent information they may have received about dividends on their G.I. insurance is false.

According to Veterans Counselor Ron Geer, a mailing with the heading "Government May Owe Veterans Money" has been received by some veterans. The mailing mentions a bill supposedly passed by Congress entitling veterans to a dividend on the G.I. insurance they carried when they were in the service.

Rayders lose to Chiefs 22-12 in football showdown

When Charlevoix found a way to stop Cheboygan's inside running game, the Chiefs ran outside Friday evening in handing the Rayders their first loss of the season, 22-12.

In the first half, and early in the second half, Cheboygan was successful running their fullback through the middle of the line.

Early in the game, Charlevoix was also successful running, with Rayder runners cutting back against the grain and catching the Cheboygan defenders off balance.

At halftime the game was close at 14-12. Although both teams were running well, they were also having some problems.

Cheboygan's problem was penalties, specifically clipping penalties. While Cheboygan blockers were blocking aggressively downfield, they were occasionally catching Rayder defenders in the back as the Rayders changed direction in pursuit of the play.

Charlevoix's problem was stopping the Chief's on fourth down. Cheboygan succeeded in three fourth down conversions.

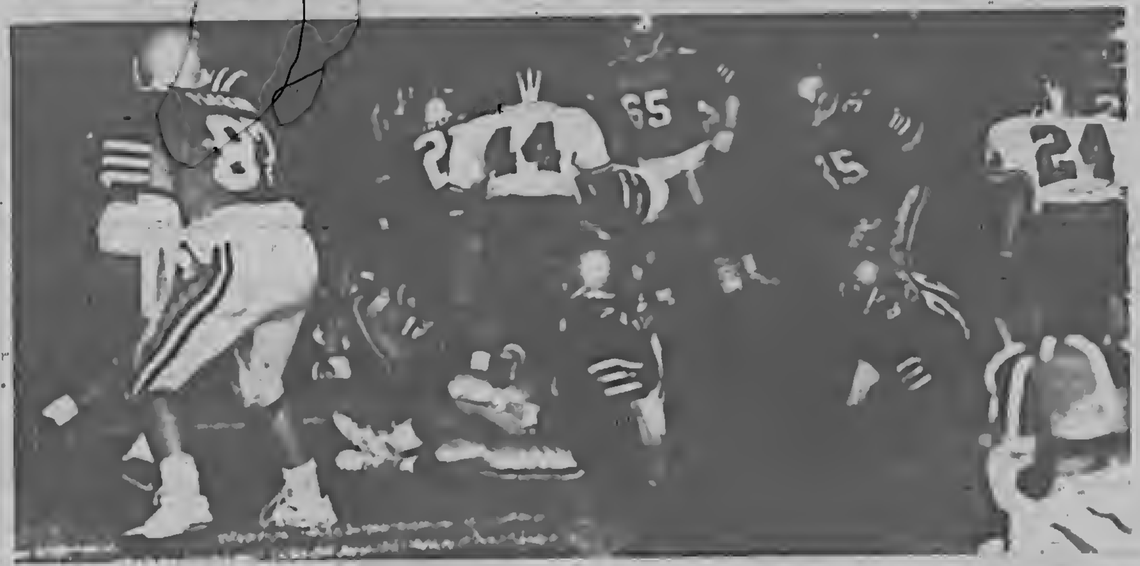
In the second half, Charlevoix's interior defense tightened up, but when the Rayders closed down the inside, Cheboygan ran outside. Cheboygan totalled 362 yards rushing in the game. The Chiefs threw only two passes and one of those was intercepted by Rayder linebacker Pat Elliott.

Charlevoix's offense was more balanced. Quarterback Dan Terryberry completed eight of 14 passes for 134 yards. He was intercepted once when his intended receiver fell down. Jason Corwin led the Charlevoix rushing attack with 91 yards on 10 carries.

Defensively the top tacklers for Charlevoix were Elliott, Brian Livingston and Bill Sherman.

The loss dropped Charlevoiox to 6-1 overall and 4-1 in conference play. The Rayders are second in the Michigan Huron Shores League behind Cheboygan and Petoskey who are undefeated.

This Friday will be the Rayders homecoming game. They will host Rogers City.



James Corwin (21) carries the ball into a churning mass of bodies during Friday night's game against Cheboygan. Other Rayders visible are Jason Parrish (87, Jim Marquardt (71), Tony Warchol (65), Brian Coolman (35) and Mike Stoneham (76).

Rayder coach Roger Gowell discusses strategy for line play with Tony Warchol and Jason Parrish.

Golfers qualify for state meet

Charlevoix golfers have qualified for state final play with a second place regional finish.

Josh Hastings and Luke LaBlance led the Rayders who finished 17 strokes behind first place Clare and 13 strokes ahead of third place Benzie Central.

Hastings shot an 81 and LaBlance shot an 83 to finish second and third individually in the region. Roger City's Josh Johnston was medalist with an 80.

Other Charlevoix golfers and their scores were: Randy Wurst, 93; Jordan Spencer, 103 and Doug Sineway, 107.

The state meet will take place Saturday, Oct. 1 at the Oak Lake Golf Course in Webberville.

Girls basketball team defeated

Charlevoix's girls basketball team lost to league-leading Gaylord 79-38 last Thursday evening. The loss dropped the Rayders to 0-12 on the year, while Gaylord improved to 10-3 overall and 7-1 in conference play.

As has happened in previous games this year, the Rayders played reasonably well early in the game, but unraveled in the second half.

A third quarter scoring imbalance proved to be Charlevoix's undoing. In comparing the second quarter to the third quarter, about the same number of points were scored. The two teams scored a total of 28 points in the second quarter.

In the third quarter, the two teams scored a total of 27 points.

The difference was that in the second quarter Gaylord scored only 17 of the points while Charlevoix scored 11. However in the third quarter Gaylord scored 23 of the 27 points, leaving the Rayders only the remaining four.

Melissa Boss led the Rayders with 21 points.

Yachting Notes

I've heard it said before that sailboat racing is "like standing in a cold shower and ripping up $100 bills". This pretty well describes boating this time of year. With the colder climate upon us, most people are busy putting their boats away with the exception of a few who will wait till the ice begins to form on Lake Charlevoix.

The Wednesday fall series was completed this week and the winds were really up. No bored sailors here. The race results follow:

In Fleet A the Apprentice (1st overall for series) takes line honors, with Pygmalion (2nd) second, following with Mint Julip (3rd), and Flash (4th).

In the B Fleet action Tireless (3rd overall) again pulls out a first, second is Sandpiper (2nd), third Mi Joy (1st overall for series!), then Kittywake (7th), Original Sin (5th), Lygnus (9th), Lost Vermonter (6th), Blasen (4th), Foxy Lady (8th).

In Fleet C with a rare showing Hussy (8th overall) takes a first, with the Johnson Boat (1st overall for series!) Next, the Bandit (2nd), Newsense (3rd), Sizzle (4th), MIP (5th), Moisture (6th), Allons Y (7th), Mud Duck (9th).

Jam Fleet results were real close for 1st overall with Cabaret taking the flag, second was Hot Mustard (2nd), Apothecary (5th), Stalworth (3rd), Sonrise (8th), Cheemaun (4th), Maureen (6th), Canusa (7th).

Upcoming events happening at CYC: this weekend, Saturday, Oct. 21st is "Sweetest Day". This will be a pre-Halloween party for couples, so dress for the occasion. This Wednesday, Oct. 18th meet out in Lake Charlevoix about 6 p.m. for the annual sail to the Landings for dinner. Also, Friday nights are still happening at CYC so stop by and say hi. November 11th will be the awards night for the year. Until next time...

PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE
ZONING MAP READOPTION

The City of Charlevoix Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on Wednesday, October 25, 1989 at 7:00 p.m. at City Hall, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, MI.

The public hearing will be held to consider revisions to the City's Zoning District Map. It is proposed that the map be amended to eliminate the C & O railroad right-of-way south of the Pine River Channel and make accommodation for the relocation of Ferry Avenue. It is further proposed that the C & O Railroad right-of-way north of the Pine River Channel be zoned "SR," Scenic Reserve. The proposed changes are indicated on the accompanying map.

The Planning Commission will consider the proposed changes and the readoption of the entire Zoning District Map.

Streetlights debated in the past

(The following article appeared in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a forerunner of the Courier, in the May 15, 1895 edition. Virginia Emrey, a former Charlevoix resident who now lives in California, ran across it this summer while doing some research in the Charlevoix Public Library. She found it timely, given Charlevoix's recent discussions concerning downtown street lighting.

The Courier's purpose in running the article isn't to promote or decry any position in the most recent street light debate, but just to indicate that the most recent street lighting debate is just that...the most recent, not the first, street lighting debate in Charlevoix.)

The special committee on electric lighting has made its report to the Council, recommending the adoption of the project of supplying steam in exchange for 14 arc lights. The report was adopted, and the matter referred to another special committee, to invite proposals.

It has been estimated that the cost to the village, under the plan adopted will be $800 per annum. From the first point of view this plan did not seem to the SENTINEL to be one that would, with positive certainty, adjust itself to future contingencies and developments. But the opinion was formed without investigation into the merits of the plan, and may have been untimely.

The committee has, evidently, given the matter thorough research, and arrived at its conclusions after careful consideration. Of one thing we are certain: The time has arrived when Charlevoix should have an electric lighting system. We have a population of 2,200 and every prospect of a steady, if not a rapid increase. Added to this fact is the positive certainty of continued and rapid increase of summer guests. Nothing in the way of public improvement has in it a more emphatic demonstration of public spirit than electric lights. A well lighted town is a wide awake town; and a dark town, in these days of progress, repels the stranger within its gates. In Charlevoix, at this time, there are but a few nights in each lunar month, when a citizen is not in danger of skinning his nose against a tree or a telephone pole.

To be sure, we have moved and had our being for more than a quarter of a century by the light of the moon; but in these hustling days the moon is a back number. It is the same moon we walked under when we picked our way home among the stumps, in the days when "Pap" Beers was postmaster. In these days our postmaster rides a bicycle, and the "world do move".

Has the thought struck you that some of us are slightly of the genus class? The shell that we inhabit is the same one that has entombed our more or less animated corpses since the steamboats landed at the outside dock.

They say Charlevoix is "beautiful". So is a Night Blooming Cereus, which opens up its petals once a year for the delectation of the esthetic. Let us shed the crust which fastened itself to our cuticle, open our pores, and be somebody! Let us make the beauty of our streets, our homes, and our girls more discernable to the naked eye after eight o'clock in the evening by the illuminating rays of something better than a smoky kerosene lamp.

Let Charlevoix emerge from its semi-lethargic state, and take itself a little 19th century animation. Let us have electric lights.

We hope the Council will act on the recommendations of the committee, and at once adopt measures to give us a first class system of electric illumination.

The sooner the better.

Ambasador group hosts speaker

The Charlevoix International Club, formed recently in Charlevoix, has arranged for Ione Veys, a teacher from Vassar, MI, and the state organizer of the Friendship Caravan of the People to People High School Student Ambassador Program, to visit Charlevoix at 11 a.m. Saturday Oct. 28.

Veys will speak to students and parents in the high school study hall and will explain how local students can apply for the opportunity to join other high school students from across America on a three-week tour of several republics and cities of the Soviet Union.

The High School Student Ambassador program was originally founded by President Dwight D. Eisenhower. The purpose of each Student Ambassador delegation is a balanced exposure to a variety of nations in a specific region, through such activities as briefings by host government officials, visits to factories and schools, meetings at international organizations, attendance at cultural performances, and homestays with selected families. The program enables Student Ambassadors to express their viewpoints, develop new friendships, and increase their understanding of the differences and similarities among all people.

The next Student Ambassador Tour is scheduled for June, 1990.

Great Lakes fish regulation becomes cooperative effort

David Hales, Director of the Department of Natural Resources announced that fisheries chiefs from the four states bordering Lake Michigan, along with tribal officials and Federal representatives, have joined together to coordinate fisheries management for that Great Lake.

"This is the first time since fisheries management began on Lake Michigan that a real effort will be made to concentrate the efforts of all those involved in enhancing fishing opportunities on the lake," Hales explained.

The chiefs, from Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin along with the Chippewa-Ottawa Treaty Fishery Management Authority, representatives of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Great Lakes Fishery Commission met September 26 and 27 in Michigan City, Indiana, and outlined future activities.

"We talked about the status of the Lake Michigan fishery and made several determinations," said Chief John Robertson of the Michigan Fisheries Division, "and we also talked about our expectations for the future."

Robertson said the group noted perch fishing and perch abundance are excellent; coho salmon populations are way up and indications are good for continued abundance in 1990; lake trout populations remain strong and numbers in refuges are very high; steelhead numbers are continuing to increase; whitefish and chub populations are continuing at or near record levels and good numbers of young Chinook salmon are now being recorded; potential good news for 1990-91.

Robertson said the group will jointly undertake the following projects:

–Develop and pursue common goals and objectives for the Lake Michigan fishery.

–Finalize a cooperative agreement between the states to closely monitor the numbers of forage fish in the lake.

–Continue to assess spring Chinook mortalities and take measures during the fall egg take to reduce bacterial kidney disease levels in Chinook.

–Continue to conduct and expand important cooperative research projects including studies of the diet, movement, and growth of young Chinook salmon.

–Pursue common catch limits on salmon and trout.

Sheriff's dept. adopts a new false alarm policy

Due to a large number of false burglar alarms responded to by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, the Charlevoix County Commissioners have adopted a fee schedule for false alarms.

A $50 fee will be charged for every false alarm generated by the user's system. No fee will be assigned if the property owner accidentally sets off the system and telephones the sheriff's department within five minutes of triggering the alarm. No fee will be charged if storm conditions trigger the system.

A fee which is not paid with in 90 days will result termination of the alarm service agreement between the county and the property owner.

Following are statistics on alarms, both false and founded, responded to by the sheriff's department during the past four years:

1984 - 98 alarms - 95 false - 3 founded.

1985 - 150 alarms - 147 false - 3 founded.

1986 - 168 alarms - 162 false - six founded.

1987 - 97 alarms - 96 false - one founded.

1988 - 60 alarms - 59 false - one founded.

According to a sheriff's department news release, "the Sheriff's Office treats these alarms as a 'felony in progress' and we drop what we are doing and respond accordingly. Consequently, we are spending too much time and effort responding to bogus alarms."

Official Notice

PUBLIC NOTICE

PUBLIC HEARING
Charlevoix City Council
Monday, November 6, 1989
7:00 p.m.
City Hall, 210 State Street

The Charlevoix City Council will hold a Public Hearing on the above date and time to receive public comments, written and oral on the following proposed amendment to the City of Charlevoix City Code. The amendment is as follows:

ORDINANCE NO.
CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
SUBDIVISION REVIEW AND ZONING FEE SCHEDULE ORDINANCE

An Ordinance to set fee schedules on matters involving zoning fees and fees for review of proposed subdivisions and to provide for additional fees when the costs to the City significantly exceed the standard fee and includes a determination by the City that a differential of less than twenty percent (20%) between its costs and the standard fee is deminimis and does not justify the added staff time to keep track of or collect an additional fee.

The City of Charlevoix ordains:

The following is a fee schedule for plat review and zoning matters.

Section I: STANDARD FEE

Subdivision Review
Lot Split Application	$ 75.00
Plat Review	325.00
Planning Commission
Development Plan Review	275.00
Rezoning Application	325.00
Special Use Permit Application	250.00
Zoning Board of Appeals
Variance Application	225.00
Land Use Permits
Sign Permit Application	25.00
Zoning Permit Application	25.00

Section II: ADDITIONAL FEE

A. When the City's cost for processing any matter which requires a fee as listed above exceeds the standard fee by twenty percent (20%) or more, then an additional fee shall be charged.

B. No permit shall be issued nor shall any approval become effective until the additional fee has been paid.

C. The additional fee shall be equal to the City's cost in processing the matter less the standard fee if the standard fee has already been paid. The City's cost shall mean the total value of staff time spent on processing the matter plus expenses. The value of staff time shall be the hourly compensation of all City employees or independent contractors whose involvement is reasonably required by the review process, including but not limited to the Planner, Zoning Administrator and clerical staff, multiplied by the number of hours each individual has spent processing the matter in question. Expenses mean photocopying and postage charges.

Section III: This Ordinance shall rescind Resolution No. 81-11-2 passed by the Charlevoix City Council on November 2, 1981 and any other ordinance or resolution which conflicts with the provisions of this Ordinance.

OCT 1989

... hold on sewer extension

city's first move is to finish separating storm and sanitary sewers no matter what decisions end up being made in regard to extending sewer lines into the township.

At the Sept. 25 meeting, mayor Gary Probert and councilman Norm Probert said they want to see the extension of sewer service play a role in the city "annexing" Charlevoix Township.

Monday evening, Gary Probert asked the council for a motion indicating no more city staff time is to be spent researching the project until separation of storm and sanitary sewers is completed and the north side system is proven to be in good working order.

Councilman Norm Probert claimed that in the past year at least 48 homes in the first ward have had problems with sewer lines backing up.

Cheri Hoffman, who was in the audience and will oppose Norm Probert in the Nov. 7 election, asked Probert how many of those 48 problems were caused by city lines and how many were caused by other problems or by problems in lines between homes and city lines.

Probert said he didn't know exactly what had caused the backups. But he noted that 11 of them occurred on one particular night so he didn't think those were problems with individual home lines.

Former second ward councilman Bob Timms said he was concerned about mayor Gary Probert making or suggesting motions to the council. Timms reminded councilmen that they are the ones responsible for making motions and voting.

Norm Probert made a motion directing city staff to spend no more time researching sewer extension to the proposed north side projects outside of the city until all of the city's north side sanitary and storm sewers are separated. The motion passed 5-1. Norm Probert, Ken Whitley, Earl Muma, Potter and Russell voted for it. Haggard cast the lone vote of dissent.

During discussion, city manager Mike Wiesner expressed no problem with the proposed action, but noted that it is probably a moot point since city staff has already done about as much research and provided as many facts as can be provided on the matter.

everyone who does choose to run will be on equal footing.

Pearl concluded the committee's recommendation by expressing appreciation to those who applied for the position. Eleven people sought the post.

In other business, Gayle Gennett was appointed as Chapter 1 director at the elementary school. Gennett will be responsible for coordinating all elements of the remedial math and reading program, which is funded by the federal government.

Also, Faye Rostar read a letter addressed to the board expressing concern over the Michigan Model health education program. Rostar said the letter spoke for families in the area who were worried about the possibility of the Charlevoix schools' participation in the program, which covers all facets of health; mental, as well as physical. Charlevoix has not yet officially adopted the program, though some Charlevoix teachers have participated in in-service training. Rostar posed several questions about the program, and asked that the board respond in one month.

Three of five city council candidates discuss views

Three of five candidates for city council seats explained their concerns and positions during a public discussion Wednesday, Oct. 18. Approximately 35 people attended the event hosted at the high school by the FOCUS discussion group.

Third ward incumbent Earl Muma and Pat Gaskin, who is challenging Muma, both attended the discussion.

Cheri Hoffman, who is challenging incumbent Norm Probert in the first ward, attended the discussion, but Probert did not.

Second ward councilman Butch Russell is unopposed in seeking reelection and declined to attend.

Candidates who participated all gave brief presentations of their views and reasons for seeking office. Following presentations, candidates responded to questions from the audience. (See related story.)

Along with sending word that he would be unable to attend due to a prior commitment, Probert sent a written statement which was read by discussion moderator Patti Ulrich.

The statement primarily addressed Probert's background, indicating: he is in his fourth year as a councilman; has lived in Charlevoix for more than 20 years while employed as a teacher; has been an officer in several organizations including the Charlevoix Education Association and state wrestling association; and said Probert tries to attend other city meetings in addition to council meetings. The statement said people with questions may phone Probert at 547-4226.

Council candidates (from left) Cheri Hoffman, Pat Gaskin and Earl Muma participated in a candidate night Oct. 18 explaining their political positions involving the Nov. 7 election. At the right is FOCUS official Patti Ulrich who served as moderator for the discussion.

Muma spoke of his family's background in Northern Michigan and explained his priorities as a councilman.

Muma said his family's background in Northern Michigan goes back generations and his family is "...by no means strangers to the Charlevoix area." Muma was born and raised in the Detroit area, but his family moved back to Northern Michigan when he was 14 years old. From 1952 to 1967 Muma served in the military. He and his wife moved to Charlevoix in 1967 and have lived here since that time.

Muma is in his twelfth year as a councilman. His service on the council was interrupted briefly when he ran for mayor and was defeated.

Muma said that as a councilman he has been very concerned with city finances and taxes. He said he was in-

Charlevoix High School's 1989 homecoming was marked by rain and umbrellas. Trish Sutton and Pat Elliott were crowned queen and king during halftime ceremonies. Queen candidates were (from left) Sutton, Cynthia Boydston, Jennifer Kelly, Kathy Pease, Rochelle Vogel along with last year's queen Shelly Ferguson. King candidates were James Corwin, Elliott, Scott Miller, Chad DeYoung, Webb Friedley along with Ferguson's escort Mike Stargardt.

Four councilmen critical of city manager

City councilmen discussed the contract and performance of city manager Mike Wiesner at a work session Monday evening, but didn't indicate any future course of action.

Councilmen Earl Muma, Norm Probert, Butch Russell and Ken Whitley expressed dissatisfaction with some aspects of Wiesner's job performance. Councilman Bill Haggard said he feels Wiesner is doing a good job. Councilman Jim Potter and mayor Gary Probert said little during the discussion.

Muma said there needs to be a team concept between the council and manager and he doesn't feel there is. Muma said the council does not always get information early enough so that it may be reviewed properly before decisions are made.

Whitley said he's satisfied with the city manager's contract, but feels the present city manager works to undermine the city council and doesn't keep councilmen informed.

Probert and Russell repeatedly complained about a sewer lift station installed on Ferry Avenue in 1984 or '85. The station has never functioned properly and the two councilmen said the city may end up paying between $40,000 and $65,000 for repairs.

Wiesner said the lift station has not been accepted by the city and it has not been determined that the city (rather than the engineer or contractor for the lift station) is liable for the repair bill.

Russell referred to a one-year warranty which the city had at the time the station was built.

Wiesner said he was informed at the time by former city attorney Jeff VanTreese that despite the warranty, the city would be on firm legal ground to

OPINIONS

Editorial

Praise is in order for the FOCUS discussion group and the three city council candidates who participated in the Oct. 18 candidate night.

The candidate night offered city voters an opportunity to hear candidates express views, explain priorities and respond to questions. Voters attending the discussion will be better informed when casting their ballots Nov. 7 and that's a plus for the community. FOCUS is to be commended for hosting the event.

Earl Muma, Pat Gaskin and Cheri Hoffman, the three participating candidates, handled themselves in a poised and dignified manner, addressing issues which are important to Charlevoix now and which will continue to be important to Charlevoix in the future.

A need for industrial development to create year-around jobs and a need for affordable housing were two important issues Gaskin, Hoffman and Muma discussed.

Gaskin emphasized the importance of communication and analytical skills in dealing with these and other needs.

Hoffman pointed out that adequate employment and housing for young families is vital if Charlevoix is to avoid becoming nothing more than a resort community.

Among incumbent councilmen, Muma has been in the forefront of efforts to bring jobs to the community. At the candidate night he emphasized his work on the tax review board and efforts to keep taxes down. Property taxes are something which will play a key role in industrial development and affordable housing.

While Hoffman, Muma and Gaskin performed well at the candidate night, it is disappointing that the other two council candidates, incumbents Butch Russell and Norm Probert, did not show up.

Russell is running unopposed in the second ward and declined to attend the candidate night. Although he faces no opposition, it still would have been good for voters to hear him outline his views at a public forum.

Probert sent word that he had a prior commitment. At Monday night's council meeting, he said he was testifying at a meeting in Lansing.

Probert also sent a written statement to the candidate night. The statement was heavy on personal background and light on political positions.

While not disputing that Probert may have had a good reason for missing the candidate night, it's still disappointing that he wasn't there. It would have been politically healthy for undecided first ward voters to see him and his challenger, Hoffman, debate issues and define their differences.

Probert's absence from the candidate night is made more disappointing by the fact that it is not the first time he has been absent from a particularly important council function.

Probert was also absent from the Aug. 20 council meeting. At that meeting, councilmen in attendance decided the fate of a proposal for new street lights downtown.

The streetlight decision was the council's most controversial this year. It was made before a packed council room and decided by a 3-2 vote. No doubt the five councilmen who voted understood they were going to take some heat no matter which way they voted. But they were there and they voted.

Once again, Probert may have had a good reason for being absent, but the bottom line is he wasn't there.

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Gullable beyond reform

Gullability is genetic and permanent. Gullable people are born that way and stay that way.

Fred was one person among a group of people I hung around with for part of my college career. Fred tended to believe pretty much whatever he heard.

Depending on how you look at it, Fred's willingness to believe things was either unfortunate or fortunate. It was unfortunate because the people he hung around with were constantly fabricating some sort of foolishness to get him going. It was fortunate because Fred's gullability inspired some truly creative thinking.

Fred was a reasonably nice guy and smart enough. He was just gullable. He never fell for really big things. He just fell for a bunch of little stories every day.

The worst part was that Fred knew perfectly well that he was gullable. And even though he tried to conceal it, there was just no way he could.

Whenever somebody said something that seemed a little bigger than the truth, Fred couldn't just wait in silence until the truth came out. No, he'd always give himself away. Time after time, he'd wrinkle his forehead and blurt out, "Really?"

And after a second, when it dawned on him that, as per usual, someone was pulling his leg, he'd say, "No. You're just saying that."

The unfairness of Fred's gullability was that it was such a one-sided thing. Even though people could mislead him at will, he seemed incapable of making up a story to get somebody else going.

As an example, one time Fred, myself and some other people were walking together, on our way to play a softball game. Another of our team's players, a guy named Tim, was going to meet us at the game. I'd talked to Tim on the phone earlier and made arrangements.

As we walked along, it suddenly dawned on Fred that Tim wasn't with us.

"Does Tim know we've got a game?" Fred asked, his face the picture of concern.

"Tim?" I said, in a tone of surprise.

"I'll go get him," Fred said and he broke away from the group and started walking toward the house where Tim lived.

"Wait a minute. Come back here," I called. "I talked to Tim on the phone. He's going to meet us at the ball field."

Fred turned and came back.

When we got to the ball field, Fred and I began playing catch to warm up our arms. As we were throwing, another of our teammates, a guy named Paul, arrived.

Although I occasionally took advantage of Fred's gullability, Paul was constantly figuring out stories to tell Fred.

As Paul walked up, he looked around and said, "Where's Tim?"

Instead of answering, I said nothing. I figured I'd give Fred a chance to get Paul going for a change. Let him get a little revenge, maybe see how the other half lives.

But when Fred saw that I wasn't answering Paul, instead of seizing the opportunity, he gave me a knowing, but disgusted look and said, "There, see. You don't tell him that stuff do ya? You just tell me that bull."

"But I was giving you a chan.." I cut myself off in midsentence. There was no point in explaining. Gullable people are beyond reform.

Opposes alarm policy

Editor,

In response to the Courier article regarding the Sheriff's department adopting a new false alarm policy of charging $50 for a false alarm. A policy adopted with Charlevoix County's blessing.

Let's get the priorities in order.

You are forgetting your whole purpose - protect the citizens and help make people feel secure.

Your statistics show a significant decrease in false alarms.

You failed to show how many breaking and entering runs occurred in homes without alarms.

With your thesis, some people would stop buying alarms and the crooks would be, and feel, more secure.

Sixty calls in the County for the year, WOWEE! You probably take that many coffee breaks in one month!

I am proud of the Sheriff's Department and Sheriff Lasater's leadership and intelligence. Now don't destroy the past good reputation.

The alarm system appears to improve and if it gives comfort to the aged and infirm let it continue please, without the threat of a $50 fine.

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

The truth behind it all

Isn't it odd how you can go through life hearing a particular word, expression or name — and using it yourself — without really understanding what it means or where it came from?

Take "Little Lord Fauntleroy," for example.

I have always understood that a "Little Lord Fauntleroy" was a boy so good, so sweet, so kind, so immaculately groomed, so warm-hearted that you'd like to clobber him over the head with a baseball bat.

As it turns out, I was right. But I never knew where this kid came from until I visited Charlevoix Library a couple of weeks ago. I had gone there to get a book of the short stories of Anton Chekov, because I was reading a dirty book by Philip Roth and Chekov's name came up repeatedly. One of Roth's characters was writing a paper on the Russian author.

I found the Chekov book I wanted and sat down at a library table to check the table of contents when my eye fell on an abandoned copy of another book called "Little Lord Fauntleroy" by Frances Hodgson Burnett.

Intrigued, I put down Chekov and picked up Burnett, a British-born author who immigrated to the United States in 1865 to live with relatives in a log cabin in Tennessee.

"Frances began writing when she was a teenager to help earn money," according to the preface to her book. "Her stories and novels for adults were enormously popular at the time; she later claimed she had never written a manuscript that wasn't published. As her reputation grew, she began writing stories for children, for which she is best remembered."

Her first children's story was "Little Lord Fauntleroy," a book which reportedly took America and England by storm in 1886 and brought the author fame and wealth.

The tale, as you may have guessed, is about a golden-haired little wimp by the name of Cedric, the son of a poor-but-honest American mother and a handsome British nobleman who was disowned by his rotten father — an earl — for marrying an American.

After the death of Cedric's father and his two ne'er-do-well uncles, Cedric is next in line to inherit his grandfather's title and vast estates in England.

Although grandpa isn't too keen about taking an abrasive little American under his wing, he reluctantly sends for Cedric and his mother. But since mama, whom Cedric calls "Dearest," is persona non grata to the earl, she is forced to live in a gatehouse while little Cedric is given lodging in grandpa's castle.

Grandpa is pleasantly surprised by his American grandson. Instead of a coarse, brutish little roughneck, Cedric turns out to be a real pansy who idolizes his grandfather and makes the old tyrant seem almost human in the eyes of the peasantry.

Of course, there's a fly in the pablum. Before long, an unprincipled hussy hoves on the scene who claims that her son is the earl's legitimate heir via one of Cedric's uncles. The claim appears valid until word reaches Cedric's good friends in the United States who happen to know the identity of the young challenger to Cedric's title. And the boy isn't his cousin.

From then on, the story is all downhill, with sweetness and light exploding at every turn. The earl and "Dearest" become friends and Cedric's best buddy from the states — the corner grocer — moves to Great Britain to make his home.

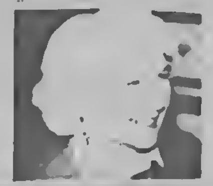
Thanks to coaching by Cedric, who by now is Little Lord Fauntleroy, the crusty old earl becomes the epitome of social responsibility.

"Little Lord Fauntleroy" is unadulterated sentimentality. No kid was ever as good as Cedric and lived to tell about it.

I kick myself now for having read the whole damn book from cover to cover, but I feel a great void has been filled in my education.

Frances Burnett was a tireless novelist, turning out such classics as "Sara Crewe," "A Little Princess" and "The Secret Garden" as well as countless short stories before death mercifully drew the curtain on her efforts in 1924.

EDITH



EDITH GILBERT

By Edith Gilbert

I just hung up the phone after talking to my niece, Janet, in Watsonville, California, about the earthquake. Chances are pretty good that you may be able to relate to her experience without too much difficulty no matter who you are or where you live. Here's her story. After returning from the market, she put the groceries away and sat down in the family room with her 2 year old, Claire, to watch the ballgame, when the quake struck. The TV fell off the stand and fortunately landed undamaged on top of a pile of laundry. Books and bookcases came crashing down and it was all very frightening.

But you should hear what happened in the kitchen! A huge unopened glass jar of peanut butter crashed on the sink and bounced onto the floor, spilling a sea of peanut oil over everything. Ditto to the new bottle of vinegar, jelly and catsup. All the glasses flew out of the cupboard and broke. The refrigerator door opened spilling a gallon of milk, eggs, orange juice and what-have-you on top of the peanut butter, broken glass, and catsup. But here's the kicker–there was no water to wash the mess up with!

Five year old Jacob had been playing outside with friends and said to his mom, "This is fun! When are we going to have another earthquake?" He enjoyed the part when the family sat down and ate all the ice cream before it melted in the freezer because there was no electricity. But Claire told me on the phone, "I'm scared!" And so was I when I heard my nephew, Walter, crossed the Oakland-Bay bridge at 4 o'clock, one hour before the quake. By all reports, the neighborly spirit and cooperation of the Californians under stress was remarkable. But that doesn't surprise me.

Now let's talk about stress for the moment. There's something that has bothered be for a long time. It's when young people say, "He's under a lot of stress" because he is trying to decide what college to attend, or where to go on vacation, or what boy to date, or the job is stressful because one can't smoke.

An event like the San Francisco earthquake, or hurricane Hugo puts feelings of a stressful situation in true perspective. It's stress when one doesn't know where a loved one is; or when one is out of control during any natural disaster. In contrast, everyday decision-making need not be stressful. It can be exciting, frustrating, hopeful, perplexing, stimulating, difficult, or challenging. At best it's when one is able to turn stumbling blocks into stepping stones.

Letters to the Editor:

What is bandshell status

Dear Editor:

The big question we are asking, as are many others, is "What has happened to the Odmark Bandshell Project?"

In 1946, Odmark took over the music program and band of Charlevoix High School and the city band. Through his efforts the platform that most of us knew was built in 1952 or 1953. For years he worked very hard to update this rather crude platform into something more suitable for the community and the great program that he built.

Toward this end, in 1975 there was $2000.00 in this fund. In recent months there have been many major contributions toward building a satisfactory bandshell in honor of the man who dedicated his life to building a great band program, not only for the school system, but for the community of Charlevoix.

We don't mean to sound flippant, but Odie must be turning over in his grave trying to understand what is happening to the $2000.00 contributed by his brother and the generous contributions by the MSBOA (Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association) and ASBOA. Interlochen donated, Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix donated and many individuals or couples donated $100 or more in his honor. These contributions were made for a bandshell in the park and not for an auditorium or for a bandshell any old place as some council members have suggested.

How can our council members ignore all of these generous tributes to a man who we all loved and revered as a great contributor to our school and community.

Marching band concert scheduled

The 1989 Charlevoix High School Rayder Marching Band Concert will be presented in the Charlevoix High School Gym at 8 p.m., Monday, October 30.

The seventy-six piece band will play music which it has performed at football games and parades during the fall marching season. Flag corps routines will be featured and the drum line will play a selection written especially for marching percussion. Other selections to be played by the band include marching arrangements of "Bravura", "Born To Be Wild", "One Moment In Time", "On Broadway", and "The Great Gate of Kiev".

Awards will be presented to band seniors and outstanding marching band students. Admission to the concert is free as a "thank you" from the band to the community for its support of the recent cheese and sausage fund raising drive.

Haney-Sapak

Patricia Ann Haney and Thomas Michael Sapak were married Oct. 7 at the St. John Mepomucene Catholic Church in Saginaw.

Haney is the daughter of Joseph Haney Sr. and Judith Haney of East Jordan. Sapak is the son of Aloysius and Eleanor Sapak of Saginaw.

Father Ray Mulka officiated the double ring rites and mass. Haney was given in marriage by her father.

Approximately 150 guests attended the ceremony. The church was decorated by the bride's aunt, Marie Shepard, with white and maroon Mums.

The bride wore a white satin gown with long sleeves, a lace overlay, high neckline and train. She wore her mother's veil and pearl head piece and carried white Gardenias with white ribbon streamers.

Elizabeath Murphy, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Susan Haney and Glenna Haney served as bridesmaids. They wore burgundy tea-length gowns with puffed sleeves. They carried tipped burgundy mini Cains on white fans.

Amanda Haney, niece of the bride, served as flower girl. She wore a burgundy tea-length gown with a burgundy lace overlay and carried a basket of white carnations.

Jim Brown, a friend of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen and ushers were Tom Theoret and Paul Haney.

A reception was hosted by Joseph and Judy Haney with the assistance of Al and Eleanor Sapak at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Boyne City. The wedding cake was made by Helen Richards, an aunt of the bride.

A rehearsal dinner hosted by Al and Eleanor Sapak with the assistance of Joseph and Judy Haney took place at St. John Nep Church Hall prior to the wedding.

Following the wedding and reception, the couple traveled to Niagara Falls and Pennsylvania. They are both graduates of Ferris State University and will make their home in Saginaw.

...three council candidates discuss issues of city strumental in twice lowering the city's general operational millage levy.

Muma has also been involved with the city's Industrial Park Committee and the County Growth Alliance. He indicated that he wants to see the city promote the industrial park "to make more and better jobs for our citizens."

Gaskin offered the lengthiest opening presentation. She said she has been a Charlevoix property owner for 19 years. She has a masters degree in social work and extensive counseling experience. Gaskin noted that she belonged to a religious community for 12 years and has served as an officer with the Charlevoix Historical Society for the past three years.

Gaskin stated that she understands the importance of good communication and will emphasize that if elected to the council. In describing how she felt the council should function, she drew parallels to hospitals and symphony orchestras, saying different people with different talents and expertise should all contribute to the process.

Gaskin favors Charlevoix's city manager form of government and favors renewal of the present city manager and city manager contract.

The council must make an adequate assessment of situations it is confronted with, Gaskin noted. As an example, she referred to the controversy over the bandshell. "A lot of different factors needed to be weighed much earlier in the process," she commented.

"Preservation of values we hold dear," was also a topic Gaskin raised. In reference to two large trees and the possibility of building public restrooms on city-owned property at 108 Clinton, Gaskin asked, "How can we consider letting those trees be sacrificed for restrooms?"

Consistency also is needed on the city council Gaskin said. She cited decisions regarding downtown city street lights, claiming that once the council decided to put them in north of the bridge there should have been a vision that the downtown area would go through with that theme.

Hoffman has been a resident of Charlevoix for 15 years. She holds a teaching degree from Central Michigan University and taught in the Detroit school system for three years prior to moving to Charlevoix. She has two children and currently is employed as a secretary along with being co-owner of a small business. She has served on boards of several local organizations.

Hoffman said she believes that when you see something you don't believe is working properly you should attempt to correct it.

"When I look at the way the city of Charlevoix is being run, I don't like what I see," she noted.

Hoffman views the city as a business with an annual budget totalling approximately $7 million. She said it should be run in a business-like fashion.

Hoffman said the council should hire the most qualified people it can find and let those people do their jobs.

She voiced a similar feeling regarding council appointed city committees. She said the council should appoint competent people and allow those people to research matters and make recommendations. She said the council should not "routinely reverse" committee decisions.

Hoffman said any person who goes before the city council should be heard with open ears and treated fairly and equally.

Cooperation, backbone and accountability were three words Hoffman stressed.

She stated that when someone approaches the council with a proposal that will benefit the majority of the community, the council should be willing to support the proposal and cooperate with those behind it. If a proposal only benefits a few people and harms the majority, she said the council should have the backbone to say no. She concluded that regardless of how a council member votes, he or she should be accountable and willing to explain why he or she voted that way.

The city council election will take place Tuesday, Nov. 7 with voting at the Charlevoix Elementary school from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Candidates respond to questions

Development, extending city utility services, joint planning with the township, the bandshell, and the city manager position were among the issues covered in questions addressed to three city council candidates Oct. 18.

Questions from the audience followed opening remarks by candidates Earl Muma, Pat Gaskin and Cheri Hoffman. (See accompanying story.)

Dorris Lundteigen asked Hoffman what her views are regarding: high density development, extending city utility services to the township and city and township officials working together in planning for development.

Hoffman, who is challenging incumbent first ward councilman Norm Probert, responded first to the question of extending utility services. She said she is willing to allow township residents to hook into city utilities, but at a premium rate. (Currently sewer users outside the city pay 1.5 times the city rates.)

She said that if the city and township are going to eventually consolidate, that city utilities will serve as a carrot to the township. Hoffman said mayor Gary Probert's attempt to use the extension of city utilities as a stick in dealing with the township is backwards. She said the city should move toward consolidation in a constructive manner.

In regard to high density development, Hoffman said the city should first revise the master plan and have a good master plan firmly in place. She said that once that is accomplished the city shouldn't have to worry about so many rezoning requests.

Hoffman, Gaskin and Muma all agreed that having the city and township work together in planning for the future is a good idea.

All candidates also agreed

CHURCH

The Charlevoix Area Community Chorale will present "Requiem" Sunday afternoon at the Charlevoix Congregational Church.

Chorale group to perform "Requiem"

The "Requiem" by John Rutter will be presented at 4 p.m., Sunday, October 29, by the Charlevoix Area Community Chorale at the First Congregational Church, State and Park Streets, Charlevoix. Ellen Addington will conduct the program.

Soprano soloist is Nancy MacArthur Smith, a former member of the Soldiers Chorus of the United States Army Field Band and a frequent soloist in the Charlevoix area.

The group will be accompanied by Nancy Brammer, oboe; Liz Crist, cello and Sylvia Norris, harp, of Interlochen; Linda Porath, flute, Amy Shupert, percussion, of Charlevoix; Elizabeth Humphrey, organ, of Ellsworth; and Petoskey teacher-artist, Rex Thuston, timpani and glockenspiel.

The public is cordially invited to attend this program of remembrance as well as a reception in the fellowship hall immediately following. There is no charge, although a free will offering will be accepted.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

By Jan Boss
Community Reformed Church

Driving through town the other day I looked up into the sky and saw half blue sky and half thick dark clouds, looking full of snow. The thought went through my mind: "I wonder who will win out? Will we have a sunny day or will the clouds come in and shower us with their ingredients?" Well, the sun did win out that day, at least for most of the day - the breeze was cool but the sun continued to shine brightly.

Everyday we wake, we are faced with the question: "Who will win out today? Will doubt - depression - pessimism or will joy - hope - love - friends - optimism?" We each have the choice of who or what will rule our lives.

In Jeremiah 29:11-13 the author writes "For I know the plans I have for you," declares the lord, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future. Then you will call upon me and come and pray to me, and I will listen to you. You will seek me and find me when you seek me with all your heart." God wants what is best for us - He wants us to feel happy and secure in His love - He gave His Son's life so we can live in that special union with him. Each day we are faced with who or what will rule our lives. I choose to let the One who made the universe - who wants what's best for me - who gave his son - who knows me better that anyone and still loves me, rule my life. Who or what is ruling yours.

Thomas J. Coyne

Thomas J. Coyne, 79, of Bellaire, died Wednesday, Oct. 18, 1989, at Meadow Brook Medical Care Facility in Bellaire.

Funeral was 11 a.m. Friday, Oct. 20 at the Bellaire Chapel of Mortensen Funeral Homes. Pastor Walter D. Kreger officiated and burial was in Lakeview Cemetery, Bellaire.

Mr. Coyne was born June 15, 1910, in Detroit, the son of John and Alice Hubbard Coyne. On May 31, 1930, he married the former Violet B. Staebler in Detroit.

Mr. Coyne retired in 1960 from the Chrysler Corporation Tank Arsenal Plant of Detroit where he was an engineer.

He moved to Bellaire from Garden City in 1975 and had attended the Hope Lutheran Church in Bellaire.

Survivors include: his wife Violet; two sons, Charles "Bud" Coyne of Charlevoix and Lowell "Babe" Coyne of Central Lake; four grandchildren; several nieces and nephews.

Mr. Coyne was preceded in death by one brother and two sisters.

The family suggests memorials to Meadow Brook Medical Care Facility in Bellaire or the Antrim County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

...candidates field questions

that something simpler and less expensive is needed for a bandshell in the park.

Gaskin noted that it's easier to see things in retrospect, but that things regarding the bandshell weren't thought out well enough in the beginning given the realities of money and the proposed East Park location.

Muma said he feels $300,000 is too much money to spend on what is proposed and East Park is the wrong place for that type of structure. He said he feels there should be a performing platform and fish pond in East Park and a civic center which can be used year-around should be built elsewhere in town.

Hoffman and Muma's views on the bandshell were essentially the same.

Third ward incumbent Muma, who is being challenged by Gaskin, was asked for his opinion on the importance of good rapport between the council and city manager.

Muma prefaced his comments by saying, "That's a hard question for the time being."

He then added, "I think the manager and council need to get along and strive in harmony."

Muma said the manager needs to get the council information so the council can make policy decisions. He said once a policy decision is made, the council should step back and let the city manager implement the policy. However, Muma added that if the manager deviates from the policy, then the council should step back in.

Muma was then asked if he had any ideas of becoming city manager himself.

Muma replied, "I don't think I have the qualifications."

School superintendent Gordon VanWieren asked the three candidates what they view as the most significant problems coming up for the city in the next 10 years.

Gaskin said she feels "the demoralization of spirit, conflict and negativisim that have permeated many of our transactions" in recent years will be among the biggest problems for the council to correct in the future.

Hoffman said a lack of team spirit and a lack of jobs are problems for the council to deal with. She said the community needs more employment and housing for young families.

Muma said he's concerned that increasing taxes in the downtown area will force building owners to build to maximum height. He said the problem of escalating taxes may create other problems in the downtown area.

Mesquite becomes ghost ship

The U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite will be converted into a "Ghost Ship" from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 31, as the crew of the cutter hosts its tenth annual Halloween party for the youngsters of the Charlevoix area.

Lieutenant Commander J. Richard Lynch has extended an invitation to children of all ages to dress up and come to the municipal dock as guests of the ship's crew.

Crewmembers disguised as pirates, ghosts and other ghoulish characters will greet the visitors and lead them through the dungeons below deck and the maze of passageways, finally reaching an area where refreshments will be served.

...Muma, Probert, Russell, Whitley criticize city manager seek recourse even after one year. He said current city attorney Jim Young is now reviewing the matter.

Russell also said he feels more city engineering projects should be bid out.

Wiesner conceded that on a water and electrical crossing near the Coast Guard station, he originally recommended a particular engineering firm, but upon council's insistence the project was bid out and the city ended up saving money and still getting a quality job.

However, Wiesner noted that in hiring for professional services cost isn't the only factor. He drew comparisons to getting sick and going to the doctor. The decision isn't made entirely on which doctor charges the least.

Haggard said he feels Wiesner is doing a good job and at his annual salary of $38,976 the city is getting a bargain.

Norm Probert disagreed, saying other communities pay their city manager less and only Cheboygan pays more.

Wiesner pointed out that the Cheboygan city manager's duties compare more closely to the duties of the Charlevoix city manager than do the city manager duties of other area communities. Some communities have a city manager and a city engineer. Wiesner is the city manager, but has an engineering background and lends that expertise to city projects.

Audience member Pete Phillips, who owns Phillips Northside Standard, said he has had problems dealing with Wiesner. He said Wiesner wanted to put up a fence between Phillips business and an adjacent city right of way so the right of way property could be beautified.

Phillips said the property was previously neglected and he didn't understand why it suddenly had to be beautified.

Phillips also was not happy that Wiesner sent a police officer to talk to him about a skid mark left on the street by a car one of his wreckers was towing.

In responding, Wiesner said the city has been attempting to beautify all of the pieces of property it owns. The right of way adjacent to Phillips' business is one of those pieces of property and is also between two holes on the municipal golf course.

Regarding the skid marks, Wiesner said the city was not attempting to cite Phillips for a violation. Wiesner said he did not feel it was unreasonable for him to have a police officer stop by and say, "Hey, please don't do that again."

Phillips said he felt his problems with Wiesner were of a personal nature.

Wiesner said as far as he was concerned the dealings were nothing personal.

Phillips noted that councilman Norm Probert had come to his defense in dealing with Wiesner and that was why Phillips came to speak at the council meeting.

Phillips also noted that if he's the only person who Wiesner has a problem with in the past five years, then the council should not dismiss Wiesner as city manager.

Audience member Chuck Papineau questioned how many hours Wiesner spent doing engineering work on city projects.

Wiesner presented a four-page list of city accomplishments which have taken place in the five years he has been city manager. He also briefly explained his involvement in the projects.

Others praise manager

While some members of the council criticized city manager Mike Wiesner Monday evening, some members of the audience questioned the council's method of handling the matter.

Audience members also said it was unfair for the council to bring up matters which have happened over the past five years and expect Wiesner to give an impromptu response from memory.

Audience member Lou Hollow said he wasn't sure an open council work session was a proper arena for the council to use in reviewing the manager's job performance. He added that he felt it is unfair for the council to drag out five years of activity and expect Wiesner to respond from memory.

Mayor Gary Probert said he believed the council had asked Wiesner if he would rather have the review done in private, but Wiesner preferred to have the matter be addressed before the public in an open session.

Audience member Bob Hoffman said councilmen were complaining about having to respond to last minute information, but then those same councilmen expected Wiesner to respond immediately and off the top of his head to accusations from the council.

Hoffman said the council should weigh their problems with Wiesner against the good things which the city has accomplished in the past five years.

Jim Malewitz, an engineer who has worked on several city projects, said that city projects have benefitted from Wiesner's engineering skills.

"As far as my involvement, Mike's expertise has helped out tremendously," Malewitz told the council.

Malewitz said Wiesner's engineering background has been important in coordinating projects and acquiring money through grant programs.

Although Malewitz conceded there may have been five or six things which went awry with projects, those things are outweighed by the good things. Even on the projects where there were problems, Malewitz said those problems may be due to misinterpretation rather than mistakes.

"You have to have a good manager to get this many projects done," Malewitz said.

Dinner planned for industrialists

Area industrialists are invited to attend the Northwest Michigan Industrial Association dinner meeting on Thursday, Nov. 2, 6:00 p.m., at Staffords Weathervane Restaurant, Charlevoix. Jim Taylor, Plant Manager of Viatec in Charlevoix, has offered tours of the facility prior to the meeting beginning at 5:00 p.m.

Jack Keck, Director of PACE (Providing Academics Cost Effectively), has been invited to talk after dinner about how the proposed two-way interactive instructional television system can help meet the needs of Northern Michigan school districts by providing improved education opportunities for students and residents. Such a program will broaden the types of industrial training and retraining offered in our area.

The Northwest Michigan Industrial Association is an industrial service organization designed to meet the needs of area manufacturers, and serves a five county region.

Industrialists interested in attending the meeting or learning about the organization can call Dick Beagle, program administrator, at the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance (616-582-6482).

Halloween trick or treaters encouraged to put safety first

Halloween provides "ghoulish" fun for children, but safety precautions are necessary to protect tiny trick-or-treaters from mishaps, AAA Michigan reports.

"Every Halloween, children are hurt darting in front of cars, tripping on costumes and eating tainted candy," said AAA Michigan Community Safety Services Manager Robert V. Cullen. "However, accidents can be avoided if youngsters follow our safety advice and motorists take extra caution that evening."

Thousands of Michigan children take to the streets to "beg" for treats each Halloween. Last year, five youngsters were injured in traffic accidents during trick-or-treating hours, according to Michigan State Police,

This year AAA Michigan celebrated its tenth annual "Light Up A Life" program, which encourages Halloween safety around the state. As part of this effort, free cards listing Halloween safety tips are available at AAA Michigan offices statewide with such advice as:

-Trick-or-Treat before dark.

-Wear flame-resistant costumes, bright in color and short enough to prevent tripping.

-Avoid vision-blocking masks and floppy hats. Wear makeup instead.

-Avoid oversize shoes and high heels.

-Plan a route before leaving home, bypassing unlighted houses and deserted areas.

-Cross only at corners. Never run out between parked cars or in mid-block. Look all ways before crossing.

-If there is no sidewalk on the left, walk facing traffic.

-Let parents inspect treats before eating them.

Motorists can help ensure a safe Halloween by being alert for children who may dart into the street. Drivers should turn headlights on at dusk and limit speed to 15 miles per hour in residential areas during trick-or-treating hours.

Jackson receives honor

William "Pat" Jackson, chairman of the Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission, has received word that he is a recipient of a Keep Michigan Beautiful award to be given at the organization's annual meeting Oct. 25 at the Ann Arbor Marriott Hotel.

Jackson was nominated for the honor by Keep Charlevoix Beautiful. Jackson, a landscape architect who heads his own firm, BJR Inc. was cited for his volunteer efforts and vision.

With the cooperation of City Manager Mike Wiesner, a design plan by Jackson to beautify the southern entrance to the city was implemented this past spring with more than $7000 worth of plant material being planted by city workers under Jackson's supervision. Flowering trees and shrubs line a new walkway to Captain's Corner shopping center.

Jackson was instrumental in persuading the city, KCB and the Chamber of Commerce to sponsor a design contest for new Welcome to Charlevoix signs. He then provided a conceptual sketch for landscaping around the signs.

State increases fees charged to state park visitors

State park visitors will have to pay higher fees to enjoy Michigan's natural resources next year, according to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

The Natural Resources Commission (NRC) at its regular monthly meeting in Lansing September 7, approved camping and motor vehicle fee increases that take effect January 1, 1990.

The money received as a result of the increases will also pay greater utility costs and assist in hiring seasonal employees to maintain the park system.
